The usual time has you know, is so should be—but, Indeed it is the shops will overcome them, and eight. This season opens more fairly though than January from the Islands but the North Shore speak of quite good catches, and as our poor fishers are hopeful, in spite of low prices rejoicing.

We have a new occupation and a new hope. A mill company, composed of some Buffalo gentlemen of means, have purchased, or have the county will consent. Town assessment and operation for a period of ten years, to put up a first-class saw and grist mill upon Beaver Point, in our harbor. Our Island has excellent hardwood timber, merchantable hemlock, and some pine. Besides, the soil has long produced the choicest wheat and other small grains. The people are all extremely working for the mill; and on July 5th—the day of the special election ordered by the supervisors—it is believed there will be but few votes registered to "exemption."

Meetings have been held, and committees of our best residents appointed to take the matter in hand, and no energies are they of a favorable vote of the people, that our experience will enable them to guarantee the exemption in advance.

Yours hurriedly, N'limpurte.

WILL ROGERS' NEW SCREEN PLAY TO BE SEEN HERE SOON

Will Rogers contributes his accustomed humor on the talking screen in "Business and Pleasure," adapted from the best seller novel, "The Pinkerton's," by Booth Tarkington, in his latest Fox production coming Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theatre screen.

Rogers, in this newest comedy, has the role of Earl Tinker, middle west automobile manufacturer, who takes his family on a sightseeing tour in the Mediterranean—and incidentally, wins Italian pleasure's with a brilliant piece of jockeying.

The story, written by Tarkington pertaining as a defense of the typical American tourist and as an answer to the satirical attacks on the native in a comedy drawn in his "Main Street" and "Babbitt" strains much of the humorous flavor in the screen version. Few changes were made in even the geography or dramatic form as well as to serve as a proper vehicle for the Rogers' brand of humor.

We find Rogers then, as a safety razor manufacturer, who, through aggressive competition by a member of rivals, finds himself in a precarious business position. He embarks on the ocean voyage with his wife, his daughter, and a deep laid plan to rescue his business and send his trade scooting down in defeat.

Aboard the de luxe liner he meets, among others, Lawrence Agle, enacted by Joel McCrea, a playwright, who is enjoying the fruits of a Broadway success in a vacation trip to Algiers. Also among Rogers' early acquaintances is Miss Monaco, played by Jetta Goudal, a mysterious French lady of unusual charm and brilliance.

Mrs. Tinker, played by Dorothy Peterson, is a nagging wife, jealous of every move her husband makes. Olivia Tinker, emitted by Peggy Ross as a young girl of 20, angry with her father for dragging her away from her sweetheart, and determined to punish him for interfering in her affairs.

While Mrs. Tinker and Olivia are desperately seasick Rogers enjoys himself immensely. He doesn't care much for Ogle who is hypocritical and sophisticated, looking down from his Olympian heights with disdain on the plain, outspoken, natural American, Earl Tinker.

Ogle and Olivia swap at each other at every opportunity, while Mrs. Tinker has a desperate time trying to keep track of her husband. He has struck up a strong friendship with Miss Monaco. Pretending to be a seeress, she finds out the real reason for his trip. She learns that he plans to go to Damascus to obtain rights to the famous Damascus steel for his razor blades.

The scene shifts to Algiers and tribal headquarters in the desert, giving Rogers an unusually wide scope for his individual brand of humor. These sequences are said to contain some of the funniest scenes yet credited to the famous comedian.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS 10 By James W. Brooks

MANY are the roads that cross and re-cross the pages of American history, but none were more prophetic in the making than the National Old Trails Road, long since the fulfillment of Washington's dream for a great route toward the West. It is now U. S. 40, and on either side of it crosses the mountains in South-western Pennsylvania lie scenes of Washington's first battle, and his only surrender. From the rock above he fired the first shot in the French and Indian War, and above at the relief mark the grave of Jumonville, the fallen French leader.

TURNING back to his hurriedly built Fort Necessity in Great Meadows, the youthful leader was forced to admit defeat after a short engagement with superior numbers. The surrender papers, drawn in faulty French and containing an error which was to cause embarrassment later, were signed by candle light in a drizzling rain, where the group of trees stand on the roadway in the center foreground. Washington and his little band marched out of Fort Necessity at daybreak on July 4, 1774. Some years later despite the shouldering of greater responsibilities, he bought the place of his defeat and held it until his death.

Sees Napoleon as One of Nature's Supermen

Napoleon believed in superhumanity, he advocated conquistadorial marriage; he suffered terribly from defeat, but never from humanity; he regarded friends, family and women without any affection, thereby his early infatuation for Josephine!—to think, he was a supermen. He had enough enemies for 100 men.

How different it is even now to excerpt from the glamor of his name! Although I know he was one of the most intellectual schizophrenics that ever lived and all Europe had to stomp between peace and him, that no country, no people and no community were safe while he was at large—although I am aware of all this, if he should appear on earth now and say "I'll be emperor" I might listen and follow him—Without Lion Pleats or Scrimmer.

Modern Contract Bridge By Lelia Hattersley

Biddable Suits

WHEN you assess your hand for an opening bid, if you hold the requisite 2¼ honor-tricks look first for a BIDDABLE SUIT, remembering always that such a four-card minor takes precedence over a no trump, provided the suit is "biddable."

Biddable suits are:

A FOUR-CARD SUIT headed by 1½ HONOR-TRICKS.

A FIVE-CARD SUIT headed by ½ HONOR-TRICKS.

A SIX-CARD SUIT headed by NO HONOR-TRICKS.

Sound minimum four-card suit bids:

AQXX
KQ10X

Sound minimum five-card suit bids:

KXXXX
QJXXX

Sound Minimum six-card suit bid: 10 9 X X X.

Opening bids of one or two, regardless suit take-outs, and forcing bids do not require any greater strength than about three tricks, tricks in the bid suit. But with four-card suits, the minimum opening bids are out of the question, or in most hills of more than one, only when you are making a forcing bid or take-out, or have previously bid a longer suit, a bid of two on a four-card suit recommended. With extremely long four-card bids require some plus value.

In some cases even the following suits may be bid: A J X X, K Q X X, K J 10 X, or 10 9 X X X. But it must be remembered that such bids are exceptions, not advocated for ordinary hands.

It is important throughout all the contracting to keep in mind the limitations of biddable suits because at all times in defensive bidding, takeout, rebidding, etc., as well as in original bids, you must be sure that you get your partner in biddable. Sometimes in responding to an informatory double you are forced to name an undesirable suit; but no voluntary bid should be made on such a suit, except in extreme or abnormal cases.

Opening the Bid, Third and Fourth Hand

In making an original bid, the position of dealer and of Second Hand are almost identical in that each makes its declaration before his partner has had a chance to bid or pass.

After the dealer and Second Hand have passed, Third Hand is in a different position, because his partner has shown that he cannot be counted on for honor-tricks. Therefore unless Third Hand has at least three honor-tricks he should pass; and Fourth Hand should follow the same rule.

Fourth Hand must have sufficient strength in the thing to be established when a player responds to the bidding and gives his opponents a second chance to enter the contracting. Small point adjustments have no advantage sense, even three honor-tricks are found in insufficient for a third or fourth hand opening bid.

Remember that a hand is always stronger differently when the honor-tricks are distributed rather than massed. The distribution of your high strength and protection in major suits is always important. Beware of keep in mind when opening double or Third and Fourth Hand bids.

At the same time, do not allow yourself to be so fearful of opening the bidding that you are tempted to pass out second minimum Fourth Hand bids which might be strong enough to arouse fruitful scores or even, sometimes, a game. Your partner although he has passed originally may be just under his guess of honor-tricks, or may hold some very useful, sufficiently strong for a second-try bid.

An old bridge whoosie which has not thirteen cards points to the loss of valuable partial scores is:

Actually to see the probability of a game in your own hand you would have to have a feeling of extraordinary strength; either great trump length, or at least fifty honor tricks.

The question is ask yourself before, "Can I see game?" but, "Can I see enough defensive tricks to beat this, with about one trick from my partner, I can see game against my bid in; opponents are apt to declare."

Another misunderstanding, which occurs with less experienced players is that the position of Third or Fourth Hand carries the same restrictions on bids following the opening declaration as it does on the original bids. Since the contracting has been opened a player's original position in regard to the dealer is an affair of practically no moment.

A Crisis

Jim's mother was driving as fast as her conscience permitted in an automobile to get him to his bed-time story on time, and all the while he was patiently reading a book. As they drew up to the door, and she was preparing to rush him off, he murmured excitedly:

"Oh, wait a minute, mamma! I'm right in the middle of a big fight."

SEA GULLS EXPERT IN AERIAL CRAFT

Could Give Pointers to Army Aviators.

Some six or seven years ago the Vineyard Gazette published the first story of the sea gulls, which, having discovered that the hard-surfaced roads serve well as a substitute for a rock, abalone envelope and quahaug to lets by dropping them from the air to the surface of the highway. Since that time the habit has married further stories, including the minority fact of these birds, who make allowance for wind velocity with the elements of an expert riflesman or airplane bomber, never missing the narrow road to drop the shellfish from a height sufficient to shatter the shells. All of this has been verified by other newspapers have made similar discoveries about gulls in various places, and it has become quite the reasonable thing for them to carry an account of the activities of these natural sky riders whenever the shellfish are easily obtainable and attract the birds. But the Gazette now presents a new angle on the Vineyard seagulls, together with the solution of a mystery that has for long been a puzzle to islanders and visitors alike.

For several years it has been noticed by passersby on the Edgartown-west Tisbury road that in the vicinity of Arbors Bridge there are apt to be found the mortal remains of large fish and very frequent live ones. Where they come from, or what causes their death, has been a mystery. Sometimes the white crows that the harnesses are blind where the wheels of passing cars would of have struck them, and moreover, they always had the appearance of having been more or less mangled and torn. It was reasoned for that Chester Hillebrand to solve the mystery, which the Gazette now puts before.

According to the custom who is well versed in natural history, and has spent much time in observing the activities of sea birds, the ordinary sea gull is fond of rats and mice. The remains of shellfish, strewed along the road in this locality, act as bait, attracting these rodents from long distances. They hide in the beach grass when cars or pedestrians approach, but when the highway is clear they will scamper about the road, eating the fragments of shellfish or quahaug that they find in the emptied shells.

All this furnishes the mighty efficient gulls get in their skillset and dexterity in the newspaper, turned over the shoes and the money to the proper, who returned them to the right owner.

"Oh, wait a minute, mamma! I'm right in the middle of a big fight."

Widespread Belief in Unicorn Through Ages

From very remote antiquity down to the present time, China and Japan have preserved a belief in a quadruped one-horned wild animal, in the extinct form of a horse, so rare as an object of veneration.

The abyssinians call an Indian Unicorn, a horned shrunk phantom and writer, who died about 200 B. C., in one of his treatises speaks of white or red wild asses of Inner-Asia whose wide, single, long white horns upon their heads, when ground to India. He goes on gravely to inform the then drinking cups made from the horn of a unicorn rendered safe to poisonous any poison poured into them, a belief which persisted for and over the Middle ages.

The origin of these stories is not difficult to find. No remains of any such animal have ever been discovered, but do without doubt to have actually seen a specimen of them. And yet the belief in their existence is so widespread in several parts of the world that it ought be easier to account for than to ascribe to the imagination of a few. Some of the horned rhinoceroses of Africa and Asia would serve to show the absurdity of attempting to identify the various animals with an ungulate or one-horned animal as the rhinoceros as would some writers.

Evidence of Antiquity of Hawaiian Islands

Ancient Hawaiian traditions often contribute to a scientific discovery with modern scientific discovery and conclusion. One such tradition is that two Hawaiian women are "the last long lives generations and the fourth"—in other words. Their 25,000 years ago. This would correspond to the age of the archaeologist.

And now Dr. Arthur Amos Eaton, professor of geology at University of California, who has been doing work among Hawaii is to have discovered proofs of. He finds evidence of extinct ages in the stratification of corals and soil. The islanders used as stone or gourd for food in the form of bowls, which are found in vast numbers of copper although not in commercial quantities. The stone remains of the islands are rich in iron, so an almost capacity large quantities of manganese prevents its commercial use.—Exchange.

Here's One Honest Man

A Boston cabinet maker's wife had nothing to offer a beggar but a pair of her husband's old shoes, which, unknown to her, contained $15 entire savings. Later marks (1926). The beggar did not inspect them, and sold them to a second-hand dealer. The dealer read the account of the loss in the newspaper, turned over the shoes and the money to the police, who returned them to the right owner.

SUPREME IN THEIR OWN ENVIRONMENT

Australian Natives Masters of Woodcraft.

Among the wonders of nature are living cases of the brains age whose forefathers were the first and last of all European civilizations.

Ignorant as they were in so, the native aborigines of Australia and Tasmania, living on a continent of their own environment are as much in evidence as the kangaroo and the duck-billed platypus. Anthropologists Tasmanian, Australian, Melanesian, Polynesian, Micronesian, Indonesian, Caucasian, Mongolian, Negro and Amerindian—have found in vast parts of human many millions now found in the Australian aborigines. They have no fabric more used or time to speak of, no knowledge of the arts and sciences, no religion worth the name, no social organization worth while. Yet they are, even by the standards of civilization, masters of woodcraft.

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL By Charles Sughroe

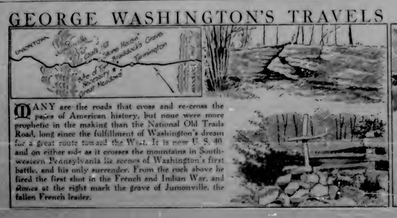
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS



MANY are the roads that cross and re-cross the pages of American history, but none were more prophetic in the making than the National Old Trails Road, long since the fulfillment of Washington's dream for a great route to the West. It is now U. S. 40 and on either side as it crosses the mountains in Southwestern Pennsylvania lie scenes of Washington's first battle, and his only surrender. From the rock above he fired the first shot in the French and Indian War, and stones at the right mark the grave of Jumonville, the fallen French leader.

TURNING back to his hurriedly built Fort Necessity in Great Meadows, the youthful leader was forced to admit defeat after a sharp engagement with superior numbers. The surrender papers, drawn in faulty French and containing an error which was to cause embarrassment later, were signed by candle light in a drizzling rain, where the forms of trees stand on the roadway in the center foreground. Washington and his little band marched out of Fort Necessity at daybreak on July 4, 1774. Some years later, despite the crowning of greater responsibilities, he bought the place of his defeat and held it until his death.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Gives a clear, velvety skin and new beauty. Use a little at night as directed. Then each day wash and see how much whiter, clearer and softer your skin is. Fine, pimply, sallow skin quickly responds. Mercolized Wax is the modern way to a beautiful complexion. Obtainable at any druggist. A little goes a long way.

Sees Napoleon as One of Nature's Supermen

Napoleon believed in no religion; he advocated consensual marriage; he suffered terrible from defeat, but never from remorse; he regarded friends, family and country without any affection barring his early infatuation for Josephine—in short, he was a superman. He had enough energy for 100 men.

How difficult it is even now to escape from the glamour of his name! Although I know by this time of the most unschooled assumptions that ever lived and all Europe had to choose its worst rulers and bits, that he restored, as people and no community were quite made, he was at large—although I am aware of all this, if he should appear in earth now and say, "It is the emperor!" I again leave all and follow him.—William Lyon Phelps in Scribner's.

Snakes Are Missed

The importation of great numbers of various species into the United States from Eastern India China is said to be responsible for an alarming increase in the rat population of the territories of the latter country from which they are exported. Snakes destroy many rats and other rodent pests, and since snakes are among the animals in short of the fact that 10,000 pieces of reptile skins were imported in this country in 1929, the Indian claim is the final answer of how rats increase.

Fire Loss Heavy

The annual fire loss on farms originating from various handling of petroleum products, with gasoline and gasoline is estimated by the Department of Agriculture to be about $2,000,000. To current this loss as much as possible, the department is making addresses to farmers on the dangers of handling the materials, answers and advising sticks on how they should be stored.

Battlefield Will

A will, written on a battlefield in France by a Philadelphia soldier mortally wounded in action, was filed with the register of wills for probate. Henry J. Kreitler, who died September 17, 1918, at 91. Mihiel following the American offensive, entered the will directing that he was about to die. He left his war risk insurance of $7,500 in his mother and sister.

Unhoused and Unsung

In August, 1918, an English soldier rubbish single handed a German headquarters and captured many documents which he could not read. The officer day he accidentally learned that they were the Hindenburg defense plans which enabled the allies quickly to win the war. He's now wondering who took the credit he should have gotten.—Collier's Magazine.

NEXT GREAT DELUGE IS FORECAST BY SCIENCE

Washington—We still speak of "the Ice age" as if it belonged to the far remote geological past. Geologists have punched the continents that there were several Ice ages. What is more, the last Ice Age, known as the quaternary, is only about half over, despite our blistering summers. "Normal Ice" or "normal snow" are figments of the poetic imagination. Very shortly the great Ice sheets in the Arctic and Antarctic regions are melting, and producing their opposite, the deluge. Ice conquers, then water.

The geologic climate that now exists in the North and South poles was once a tropical region such as exists—or once did exist—in the present tropical zone of the globe. In the course of many thousands of years they have changed places, and the shrunken remnants of plants, phytoplasts and microorganisms as at Peary, Sir Edgeworth Davis of the University of Sydney, Australia; Prof. Antonia Meinardus of Groningen, and a score of others. The latest is Dr. William J. Humphreys of the United States weather bureau, who ventures, although the Australian Meteorologist has gone on record with similar suggestions, to add views and modifying them in the light of the information gathered in the Antarctic regions in the April expedition and to streamline by the Admiral Fred Alfred Whitter and his companions.

Dr. Humphreys claims that both ocean and weather zones would be reversed. Ice would begin to form around the present tropical zones of the globe. In the course of many thousands of years they have changed places, and the shrunken remnants of plants, phytoplasts and microorganisms as at Peary, Sir Edgeworth Davis of the University of Sydney, Australia; Prof. Antonia Meinardus of Groningen, and a score of others. The latest is Dr. William J. Humphreys of the United States weather bureau, who ventures, although the Australian Meteorologist has gone on record with similar suggestions, to add views and modifying them in the light of the information gathered in the Antarctic regions in the April expedition and to streamline by the Admiral Fred Alfred Whitter and his companions.

The earth is steadily growing warmer. As all life lies at the two poles during a stupendous volume of water is no mismatch. Professor Daniel can't accept estimates that the sea level will rise 50 feet. Professor Meinardus would doubtless put estimate higher. Humphreys, with the studies of World and Weather before him believes that there will be 100 feet between their sea melting now, as we see by the floating bergs found on the coast of the Southern Atlas and other coastal and tropical regions.

So, within limits or almost certain limits, we are another deluge. Sir would drown over the Empire State building only the tallest land projections would be left. Florida and Manhattan islands and Great Britain almost the same. Japan would be left with its famous mountains and Hawaii with its famous peak, but the world would be a far smaller place than it is now.

Upside Down Woman Is Cured

London—The extraordinary case of a woman who spelled backward and read books and even pictures upside down is recorded in the current Lancet, British medical journal, by Dr. H. Hager and Dr. Hubert Unger of the Iwein Mental hospital.

After a time by hypnotism the woman found that she was unable to read backward, and was held written before her treatment.

The woman, a former servant in the institution, was subject to sudden trembling of the hands that she spoke and wrote, the same number of cups and saucers. After an illness she was committed to the hospital for examination. She had been previously treated as a congenital mental defective.

In the hospital, failure of speech on command was discovered. She could write a state, but the nurses could not understand her script. She could read written backward, though put down from left to right in the customary manner. Even when the letters were correctly oriented, though upside down, she could not read.

Tears requested to write "politician," she put down the word "Hoover" as "Hoover" she spelled "Nomad"; all the letters were similarly reversed.

In mathematics, she wrote all the figures upside down, and put the same thing in chemistry—carefully selecting like dogs, cats and horses. In crossword puzzles she wrote with the left hand, and when she finished she had a perfect reversal of the original.

READING AND CHARACTER

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois

He was twelve, perhaps, sitting all hunched up upon the floor in one corner of the office building reading the evening news, the top of which thrust papers on the floor beside him.

"What are you reading?" I asked, knowing that nothing of ordinary would keep him so engrossed.

"Hindenburg," was the only word he uttered.

"Interesting," I insisted.

"I was not," he answered, and kept on with the reading.

I knew very well when was leading the children attention this young mind was concerning itself with the world's doings, and the trial of "Billy" Mitchell was in that category. The price of practically every newspaper in the country, I was aware, was brutal so horrible so revolting that I could not bring myself to the point of reading them. It was the philosophy of the unhappy perpetrator should be put away as

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

Assort the Ewes at Lambing Time

Lambing time is the shepherds' harvest, and it is also the best time to cull the flock. Ewes lamb much in the sexes that do not give enough milk, and at times that give poor barbers, and credit marks in the ewes that have twins and triplets, so flock replacements may be made of lambs from the best ewes.

Many shepherds say they prefer a single good lamb from each ewe rather than twins, but a flock can be developed that will not only have a large percentage of twins but will care for them as well. In the central-western lamb production contest, C. W. Wishart, the Minnesota shepherd, scored 93 lambs from 28 ewes. These lambs averaged 95 pounds apiece, or 147 pounds to the ewe, at four and one-half months. The winner of the Michigan contest, from a flock of 38 grade ewes, had 57 pounds of lambs from each ewe at four months of age. Twenty-four of the 38 contestants in Michigan produced more than 100 pounds of lamb each.

Such fleshy ewes come not only from well-bred ewes but also from well-fed ewes at lambing time. Intensive attention is necessary when there are both sorts of animals, or when a ewe does not bear enough lambs that is apparently thrives can be detected. This is done by watching and by taking the lamb daily down to the scales. Comparisons with both lambs to start the lamb again.

When it is necessary to better feed a ewe, one milk powder is the best cow. A ewe's milk is much richer in fat and solids than cow's milk. The first few days it is best to feed about three pounds of cow's milk daily, gradually every two or three hours and gradually increasing the amount of milk and the number of feedings. The milk should be fed at about 90 degrees Fahrenheit. If the milk is not warmed rather it causes scouring, and if too hot it may cause considerable injury.

Lambs Did Well When Fed on Russian Thistle

One of the surprising outcomes of a lamb-feeding experiment at the Akron (Colo.) station was the result of feeding Russian thistle, an almost worthless weed. Lambs that had been fed on a ration of twenty pounds each, silage, ten pounds each, alfalfa hay, one pound each, and two pounds each of grain, possibly, as many as 5. If so, the lambs will be fed as shown in subsequent rounds. For the lambs you must assume that on being fed the first ration they will be ready for any emergency. How you were ready to add your number to the ration is not clear. It is better to know whether or not your partner has the 2's. Only then can you be sure of the desired game zone. Now, in this case, you must serve promptly notice of the bid. Then, if you can, set your partner to the task. Which is one of three ways which you deem advisable. Now, if you have a hand no more than six cards in the suit of your partner's declaration; if you have a singleton alone at no trump; or third, by a jump forcing game of one more than necessary, in another suit.

If your partner has opened with a biker suit in spades, he has length or strength, and you have a short suit of which that gives you the probability of making some sort of game contract. If, it usually best to make the jump bid of three unconditional forcing bids of the first or second suit, as will be fully outlined in a later article.

Learned to Leave Fire Alone

One of the most amusing incidents of the early days of fire prevention was when a fog of wire manufacturers, early in the nineteenth century, attempted to substitute metallic coal for coal in their rolling mill. After working for a time with two carloads of coal they were about to give up the experiment as they had done a lot of work with poker, had down their tools and went to lunch. When they returned they were astonished to note that the furnace was hot. Opening the door they found the interior glowing with intense white heat. Upon investigating they found that the way to make an anthracite fire burn was to leave it alone!

Remarkable Tide Ranges

The United States coast and geodetic survey says that the largest periodic range of tide on the coast of the United States proper occurs in the Bay of Fundy, in which locality there is an average range of 20 feet; in Turnagain arm, Cook inlet, Alaska, there is a mean range of approximately 30 feet and a spring range of nearly 35 feet. The largest known periods of tide in the world occur in Minas basin, Bay of Fundy, where the mean range is 42 feet and a spring range of 45 feet has been reported.

Silage Thoughts

Silage is the cheapest known substitute for both pasture and hay and is the cheapest stock food that can be produced on the farm.

The only way to save and harvest corn grain down in the silo. Corn damage by drought, hail, or frost can be ensiled and made into excellent feed.

The land owner would do well to enjoy his fruit before he dies. In this way he would make it more attractive for a good tenant. He would be enriching his farm, for then the stock would be kept with a profit.—Dakota Farmer.

Requeen Every Year

"Requeen your bees every year," was the advice given to attendants at a bee meeting by J. C. Wilson, bee expert, at Michigan State college extension department.

"The old queen bee stops laying eggs in the first days of October," explained Kremer, "and the young queen should be introduced."

Mr. Adams has found that one of a new queen every year would improve the honey crop materially, Kremer said in the spring.—Michigan Farmer.

Cattle Graze Willows

Steve Adams, Dalton county, Ontario, has a large acreage of over-flow land in the Missouri river bottoms. It grows up thick to willows. Mr. Adams has found that white faces will graze small ones under they make good pasture for cattle. He has a cattle feeder on them as readily as on good grass pasture. Joe Pilon is another who pastures willows. Last summer he had 300 cattle grazing among willows in Dalton county, according to Capper's Farmer.

Sow Says in Wheat

Lumber cutting of wheat land is possible in some sections of the corn belt. In Hamilton, Grimes county, Indiana, seeded sorghum in the fall of wheat. He used three packs of Sudan an acre, and the sorghum was tested in June and made 20 bushels an acre. The Sudan was a little too very dry and as a result the sorghum did not mature a good crop. Mr. Hall expects, reports that double the last yield. Mr. Hamilton is pleased with the plan and the mixture. He intended his grandchildren from the late Nobraska U. Brady, and wants to turn the harvest from the bottom.

Gypsy Bands Use Autos for Their Wanderings

Jefferson City, Mo.—Modernism is invading the realm of gypsydom, who are heeding the call of spring and the open road.

Missouri ain't among the nomads, and many of their traditional characteristics remain, but the picturesque covered wagons and other unhygienic modes of travel are yielding to up-to-date transportation modes.

Many of the roving bands are traveling the highways this year in automobiles, some of them late and expensive models, except colored wagons are almost the only remnant of the daring dress of bygone days, and even some alike have adopted modern garb of the day. These traveling caravans are already entering by cities, particularly in the southern part of the state where the longed-for country is fitting setting. This movement is regarded in many communities as the first true sign of spring.

Fortune telling, vending of shawls and other articles and hoodwinking is still the foremost activity of the communities frequented by gypsies.

Their operations are secret, but for the most part are reflected in the glistening surface of automobiles instead of silhouetting the scrawny mules and flapping canvas wagon covers of earlier days.

Oregon Asks People to Walk on Capitol Grass

Salem, Ore.—Not only can you walk on the grass in the capitol grounds here, you are invited to do so.

Secretary of State Hal Hoss declared recently that, while there were no "Keep off the grass" signs on the Capitol lawns, visitors carefully kept off the grass.

"The state of Oregon pays them to enjoy the lawns," he said.

"So we are going to put up signs reading, 'Please walk on the grass.'"

POTPOURRI

Many Kinds of Beetle

More than 150,000 different species of beetle have been studied and described by scientists, making up the largest group of insects in the world. Twelve thousand of these are natives of Central and North America. The name comes from Latin, "coleos" meaning sheath, and "pteron" meaning wing, which describes the hard wing covers of beetles.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lella Hattersley

No. 4
The Rule of Eight

DURING the play of the thirteen tricks of a hand, four tricks will be won by one, about four or five with other honor cards, and the remainder with lower cards. Thus we get a yardstick for the trick distribution of a hand.

The Yardstick of Tricks
Honor Tricks	Low Card Tricks

(possibly 8½)

In said bids those low card tricks are won by trumps, or by end cards of set up side suits. At no trumps, all tricks are won either by honors or by end cards of suits.

The 4-3-2-1 Count (All No Trump)
Honor tricks that do so that the lead between twenty-four undetermined tricks.	card:
4 to 4½	2 to 3 Unsound no bid.
5	3 Unsound 1 NO TRUMP.
5½ or more	3 to 4 GAME.

When you and your partner are counting a suit, it is highly probable that against your trump defense the opponents will be able to cash only low card tricks. So you have only the defense of their inferior in your honor tricks. Therefore a partnership holding of honor tricks with strong trumps puts you in the game zone with a major suit bid. To carry out the bid, the lead must be the same as a minor suit, where the opponent must be held down to two defensive tricks, some additional support or the number of tricks in your own and the dummy cards and strength is usually needed.

To give a partnership suitable the specific use of the yardstick is the most certainly occurring struggle, for by assume that you are in the position to bid according to your partner's original sum bid of one. If he has but two honors, you know that he has at least 2½ honor tricks. He may have more than 2½ honor-tricks, possibly as many as 3. Then the three surplus tricks will be shown by additional rounds. For the present you must assume that on being the first ration they will be ready for any emergency. How you were ready to add your number to the ration is not clear. It is better to know whether or not your partner has the 2's. Only then can you be sure of the desired game zone. Now, in this case, you must serve promptly notice of the bid. Then, if you can, set your partner to the task. Which is one of three ways which you deem advisable. Now, if you have a hand no more than six cards in the suit of your partner's declaration; if you have a singleton alone at no trump; or third, by a jump forcing game of one more than necessary, in another suit.

If your partner has opened with a biker suit in spades, he has length or strength, and you have a short suit of which that gives you the probability of making some sort of game contract. If, it usually best to make the jump bid of three unconditional forcing bids of the first or second suit, as will be fully outlined in a later article.

Learned to Leave Fire Alone

One of the most amusing incidents of the early days of fire prevention was when a fog of wire manufacturers, early in the nineteenth century, attempted to substitute metallic coal for coal in their rolling mill. After working for a time with two carloads of coal they were about to give up the experiment as they had done a lot of work with poker, had down their tools and went to lunch. When they returned they were astonished to note that the furnace was hot. Opening the door they found the interior glowing with intense white heat. Upon investigating they found that the way to make an anthracite fire burn was to leave it alone!

Remarkable Tide Ranges

The United States coast and geodetic survey says that the largest periodic range of tide on the coast of the United States proper occurs in the Bay of Fundy, in which locality there is an average range of 20 feet; in Turnagain arm, Cook inlet, Alaska, there is a mean range of approximately 30 feet and a spring range of nearly 35 feet. The largest known periods of tide in the world occur in Minas basin, Bay of Fundy, where the mean range is 42 feet and a spring range of 45 feet has been reported.

Cafes Demand

The various cafes have come together with the care taken in their preparation. Cafes were a white sauce in spite of the finished product. It is estimated that nearly 1,000,000 pounds are used a year in the United States.

Educational Work

The cause of education says that December 5-11, 1926 was the first educational week to be nationally observed. Doctor Claxton was the founder of this movement.

SYNOPSIS

Ragged, and starving a boy of about eighteen is found in the woods by a hunting party, having fled from the brutal father, Hal Morrison, and son of Hal Morrison, Sr., a wealthy farmer (dead) is sent to Cranberry with a letter to Colonel Blake. The colonel, his wife, and their young daughter Ruth, are impressed by the boy's manner, and by his good looks. Hal finds himself becoming friendly with a girl named Mary, "Mary" and Bumpy Jenkins, black servant of the colonel. Ruth is the only child of the colonel, and is the boy's own daughter she is centered his affections. Hal is given a job in the village store, and his father passes out of his mind. Hal is given a job in the village store, and his father passes out of his mind. Hal applies himself diligently to his work, and is promoted. Ruth likes him—a strong bond on her side, but Hal is not sure of his feelings. Mary is in love with Hal, but is fatally shy, and his daughter, Mrs. Lockwood, is a snob. Hal is given a promotion which means a raise in salary. Unpremeditated evidence points to Hal as the murderer of Mr. Lockwood, and he is arrested. The friendly Dr. Hal as the murderer of Mr. Lockwood, and he is arrested. The friendly Dr. Lockwood takes up the study of law, under Bob Lockwood, a prominent lawyer, and Hal's evidence at the possible

BE SURE YOU UNDERSTAND IT

Within the past eighteen months at least one-half of the states have considered levying new taxes on the gross revenues of public utility companies. Two states, South Carolina and Illinois, have passed measures taxing the electricity generated within their borders. In both cases the measures were opposed in the courts on the grounds of unconstitutionality, but were upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

It is to be hoped that the public will not consent to such schemes without a thorough understanding of what they mean. Political advocates of them ask support on the ground that they will tax the rich corporations in order to benefit the entire population. What is not explained is that the taxes will add to the individual, rich and poor, alike, and proportionately more heavily on the latter.

The question of balancing the National budget the sky. It has no means of producing dollars out of thin air. Any increase in operating expenses, whether it be for labor, supplies or taxes, must find its way into the gas or electric bill. It must be passed on to the customer. And the man with an income of three thousand a year will pay relatively more of it than the man with a million, because no matter how wealthy one is, there is a limit to the amount of electricity that will be used.

PROTECTING OUR FORESTS

California officials have little regard for anyone who endangers the forests. One camper, who was convicted of leaving a camp fire burning in wooded land, was sentenced to stay in jail "until it rains." So for days he razed between the bars of the county jail, hopefully watching for clouds to appear!

Forests constitute great natural assets of many states, and every year vast areas are burned over, destroying thousands of acres of timber. Much of this destruction is caused by careless campers and picnic parties and by motorists who discard lighted cigarettes, cigars and matches along the roadside.

The lack of care evident in forests is no different from that which results in huge property losses from other causes throughout the nation. Year in and year out the destruction continues, averaging about a half-billion dollars in property losses, according to The National Board of Fire Underwriters, and causing 10,000 deaths.

Reduction of this great waste is a problem to which thinking Americans may well give attention. What can they do about it? Each one can work out the problem of fire-safety in relation to his own home and business. This done, the result in lowered fire losses will be of economic and social benefit to all.

THIS IS LIFE INSURANCE

No investment offers so much, particularly to the person of average means, as does life insurance.

It provides a fair return on the investment with as high a degree of safety as is humanly possible. Its basic principles are the multiplication table and the law of mortality—matters of absolute fact. It works not upon theories, but upon time-proven fundamentals.

In time of emergency it offers a ready means of raising cash—and its value is definite, unswayed by general business conditions. It is always at par, even when other investments are selling at unprecedentedly low levels. It gives what no investment of any other kind can—security for ourselves and dependents in the future. No investor in a legal reserve company's policies has suffered loss, due to failure of the company, in more than fifty years.

This is life insurance—the finest of all investments. Its record of sales, which are maintained at high levels even in these times, is ample testimony to the esteem in which it is held by millions of foresighted Americans.

This is the first concrete result of General Pershing's lashing appeal in the current American Magazine for an unofficial mobilization against the underworld, which he credits with a large share of responsibility for the current depression. Direct action against a million criminals and grafters is Pershing's proposed remedy, and supporters of his proposal believe it possible to enlist 5,000,000 citizens in an organized national war on crime, racketeering, graft and laxness in public office. The movement would be non-partisan and non-political.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

IN LITERATURE AND STATECRAFT

In this sequestered home at Williamsburg, Virginia, known as Bassett Hall, once lived John Tyler, the president under whose administration the Republic of Texas was annexed to the United States. Here, as vice president, he received word by courier that he had become the Nation's chief magistrate through the death of President Harrison. Here also Thomas Moore, the Irish poet, wrote the "Firefly" in 1804.

is waxen powerless to suppress; the sinister growth of the underworld, whose tentacles reach out to touch us all; the ever-increasing extravagance of government, and the mysterious paralysis of our economic system—these are the enemies which now confront us.

"An underworld of gangsters and racketeers, unparalleled in any civilized nation, is eating more and more deeply into our national life, infecting politics, extorting tribute from business, threatening our homes. Prohibition has largely financed this postwar underworld.

"Our frontier ancestors, when the criminal element got out of control, formed themselves into vigilance committees, rounded up criminals, and strung them to the nearest tree. Why should we not form neighborhood and community committees, so that the gang will find itself confronted with an organized body of men larger and stronger than itself?

"Committees of this kind would be vigilance committees, not in the old sense, but in the sense that they would be ever vigilant in the protection of rights and performance of civic duties. I would consider it an honor to serve on such a committee myself.

"The ability of the underworld to terrorize society lies in the fact that it is thoroughly organized, while society is not. At present it is more the gangs against the individual than otherwise."

WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?

We have had a moratorium of the War debts. We have had international conferences, and lots of them, in the interests of peace and in behalf of disarmament.

We have organized gigantic methods for relief of the drought sufferers, the unemployed, and the unfortunate.

We have massed the credit of the Government and loaned billions of dollars to the farmers, and to the processes of keeping crop prices from falling through the cellars; and to the railroads and steamship lines and bankers.

A utility company cannot raise revenue from gas or electricity without a hearing. Why should not the rich corporations in order to benefit the entire population. What is not explained is that the taxes will add to the individual, rich and poor, alike, and proportionately more heavily on the latter.

is simple to place a thin layer of granular material, such as sand or gravel, over the shoulder, apply a cut-back asphalt, and mix them together in the same manner as an oil processed road mix. The final finish is obtained with a blade grader, traffic soon insures complete compaction, and a comparatively small amount of money has been spent.

BUYING A SAFE CAR

A survey covering nine states, the District of Columbia, and Ontario, for periods varying from seven to 12 months, showed that a total of 8,130 accidents were due to defects in automobiles. Of these accidents, 435 involved fatalities, 4,210 personal injuries, and 768 property damage. In Pennsylvania alone, during November, 1931, the defective automobile was responsible for 12 deaths, 327 injuries and demolition of property totaling $52,700.

The safe car provides good visibility—good enough so the driver can see an object on the ground, either in front or at the side, two car lengths away. Rear body structure must be solid. Steering, of course, is a factor of the utmost importance. In the safe car there is no sense of "pulling" or of road "light." Brakes must be equalized, must apply easily and yet not grab, and must stop the car quickly, not only at 20 or 30 miles an hour, but at 40 and 50. The car must hold the road well, and show no tendency toward bouncing when making emergency turns and stops.

TAX BANKRUPTCY

The spectre of tax bankruptcy is faced by a good many Americans these days. Tax levies, according to Melvin Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, take the estimated equivalent of one day's labor every week from everyone in the country. A few years ago one out of every 22 persons gainfully employed was on the public payroll; now the percentage is one in 11. It is said that if the present rate continues, in a little over twenty years we will have one person working for government for every person who pays taxes!

Recently, in a middle-western state, one million acres of land were taken over by the counties for unpaid taxes. Another state has an $18,-000,000 deficit. Another has $10,000,000 in signed contracts for certain projects and is unable to raise a single dollar with which to meet them. In many parts of the country local bond issues have defaulted, schools have been closed, necessary functions of government have been crippled, public employees have been unpaid.

This is what government extravagance has done. Higher taxes is not the solution. The people cannot pay. In Ohio, according to Mark Sullivan, with present low commodity prices, the state and municipalities take, in taxes, a sum, about equal to the entire value of every farmer's crop. Nothing but tax bankruptcy can result if the trend of today is continued.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

It is true that the clouds of depression are hanging low over the United States at this time, but when one compares the situation in this country with that in many of the older nations of Europe he will still find abundant cause to be thankful that he is an American. During the past few weeks there have been three governmental changes in three important nations, two in Europe and one in the Orient. The nations which have had these changes are France, Germany and Japan. Although foreign affairs are ranking large in each of these nations it is an undeniable fact that a great deal of the unrest which led to change of government was due to economic conditions.

In Japan the militarists got a firmer hold on the government, not along because of the Manchurian venture, but in a large measure because the people are poverty stricken and living conditions are becoming more depressed. The French change to the left was due principally to economic conditions within the country, which have been steadily growing worse in spite of the fact that France has felt the depression less than any other civilized country on the globe. The foreign policy in the new government is the same as that of the old, which indicates that the change was due to internal conditions.

In Germany the other day the Breuning government fell unexpectedly when it was announced that President Hindenburg had lost confidence in it. A great many people at once leaped to the conclusion that this meant a turn about in the foreign policies of the Reich, which would become more warlike. Many French papers declared that the Germans had again played a mean political trick on them by waiting until the French had put in a socialist government, and then putting in a nationalist government after it was too late for the French to do anything about it.

But the facts are that the policy of the new German government, so far as foreign affairs are concerned, is exactly like that of the Breuning cabinet. Dr. Breuning had announced long ago that Germany could and would pay no more reparations, and he stood for upholding German "rights" in the Polish corridor. The policies of the new government will be exactly the same so far as dealing with other countries are concerned. Change in Germany, too, therefore was due in a large measure to domestic conditions. The Breuning cabinet had proposed cutting up the big estates in East Prussia and making small farms of them for the unemployed. It had advocated also heavier taxation, and it was principally because of these two proposals coupled with the depression troubles that the government was forced to resign at this time.

It is not to be understood, however, that the international affairs of these various nations are in a settled state. Never have there been more political unrest in the world at large, in times of peace at least. Japan is penetrating further into Manchuria and getting into the Russian zone of influence. No doubt there would have been war between the two nations long ere this had it not been for the fact that Russia is not yet ready and seeks a few more years of economic preparation for the conflict, which is sure to come sooner or later. An involvement of Japan might easily bring into the conflict the French allies on the western border of Russia who would be expected to take a part against Russia. What Germany, Italy and France would then do, is a problem.

There are danger spots in Europe, too, the touchiest of which is perhaps the situation along the Polish corridor, where the Germans claim that the Poles are trying to get possession of the Free City of Danzig and the Poles claim the Germans are trying to Hitlerize the same city. Any trouble here would doubtless bring about a disastrous conflagration.

There are therefore, abundant reasons why we may still be thankful we are citizens of the United States. And abundant reasons, too, why Uncle Sam should keep out of foreign entanglements and center his attention, as he is doing at present, on attempts to rehab the economic fabric of the United States.

Mrs. W. J. Pearson and her two daughters, will leave tomorrow for Springvale, to rusticate among old friends for two weeks.

The steamer Beaver took over the furniture for the new Beaver Island hotel Wednesday, and it was the biggest "jag" of its kind Capt. Campbell's boat ever had.

A leading Charlevoix contractor has figured it up, and finds that there are 66 carpenters employed in Charlevoix, in house building and have been since the 1st, and will be until snow flies again, or later.

In our school article last week we stated that Hon. E. H. Green was the second teacher in Charlevoix. We were in error. The second teacher was the sister of the first, Miss Celia Moses (afterward the wife of A. Buttars) succeeded Mrs. Lettie Stockman. This makes Major Green the third teacher, but the first male teacher.

A Charlevoix industrial item: Tenders are engaged in fishing from the port, and 115 men are employed—as many as it takes to run any two sawmills in Charlevoix county. And it is a ten months industry. Last winter fishing continued into January and began again in March. And this does not take into account the work at ship-yards and machine shops in keeping the boats in running shape.

Supt. Hartsig rides a bike and when you see him scorching down Bridge street, you may bet the cigars for the crowd that he is after a man or a team to work on the sugar factory. Things are humming up where Stover's Creek was wont to meander gently to Pine Lake from the cemetery and beyond. Hartsig was formerly captain of the Detroit Rifles and someone says he marches the men to work by fours, in flank movement, and the teams go in at a gallop.

Forty Years Ago

F. G. Hines has purchased the Eaton residence on Main street and will occupy it within a few weeks.

The Marion people have organized to attend the Charlevoix celebration in a body. They will rendezvous near the cemetery in the morning and be assigned a place in the procession. J. G. Reed and Geo. Anderson are the committee of arrangements. Banks people are invited to join them.

Nick Shores and Larmie Ferguson, of Norwood, brought back from the Jordan two hundred nice trout. They were caught late Saturday night.

THE DIXON FARM

A party of surveyors was here from Grand Rapids yesterday making the boundary plan of the Dixon farm recently purchased by C. & W. M. officials. They will plat it for resort purposes at once.

The Dixon residence has been leased to the Chicago Summer Resort Association as an annex. Mr. Dixon vacates the premises between this and July 4th. The plan contemplated includes a boulevard along the lakeward edge of the terrace, connecting on the north with the state road. Several side streets will sub-divide the plat. Work on the hotel may be commenced this fall.

THE DRIVING PARK

The Charlevoix Driving Park Association is a reality. A meeting was held at the village hall Monday evening and the following officers elected:

President, G. W. Crouter; first vice president, B. W. Miller; second vice, Chester Denton; secretary, F. W. Mayne; treasurer, O. S. Washburn; directors, G. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, Wm. Stevens, Geo. Bates, Jas. Gellick, George Burns, A. J. Mc-Leod, F. W. Mayne, O. S. Washburn, Chester Denton, A. Richards.

Another meeting will be held tonight and further details of organization effected. It is proposed to make the primary object of the Association the acquirement of the best trail mile racing course in Northern Michigan.

Fifty Years Ago

The cottages of O. M. Allen and Mr. Parsonage, on the Charlevoix Summer Resort are rapidly approaching completion. Both have towers and will be ornaments to the grounds.

The committee appointed to make arrangements for the celebration of the coming Fourth of July, have progressed so far with their arrangements as to be able to assure the people that the day will be celebrated by one of the best free entertainments ever presented to any community. The Ancient and Honorable Order of Mosshacks will parade in new and beautiful regalia and with new banners and emblems, headed by their band in a new and expensive chariot. The committee have secured the services of Prof. Numblewrist, the famous clown and wizard who will perform many remarkable feats. The committee are also negotiating with the world renowned Mississippi Minstrels with a fair prospect of securing them for a free open air entertainment. The Charlevoix Cornet Band are under special training for the occasion, and will furnish good music on the streets during the day.

Sixty Years Ago

A. Fox and A. Buttars, Esqs., of this village recently took a pedestrian trip from the head of Pine Lake to Bear River, camping out and undergoing all the discomforts of bushmen.

Mr. John McNeal of Banks, communicates the particulars of a logging contest which came off at the place of Mr. George Clark in Marion. We use Mr. McNeil's own words: "Mr. Matchett came to the field with a gang of six brag men, to beat everything that would be in the field. I came to the field with my team and picked up Messrs. Clark, Spain and Stimmer, and we gave them their choice of the piece. We finished it in two hours and a half, and it took them four hours to do theirs.

Martha M. Gusmiuyak of the Afton school got 100 in both reading and physiology.

Jennie Brooks of the Undine school has the highest average in the seventh grade with 91 plus. Laura Jones is a very close second with 91 plus. She is from the Walloon Lake school. Betty O'Donnell of the McKinley school at St. James comes in third with an average of 91.

In the eighth grade Christina Withers stands first, with an average of 96 and has 100 in History. She is from Marion Center.

Clare Beattie of Barnard stands second with 95 and has 100 in arithmetic.

Congratulations to all these successful boys and girls. May you go on from victory to victory.

And we hope that everyone who was not successful this year will win with flying colors in 1933.

CLOTHES STYLES ARE NOT ONLY ONES SET BY SCREEN

When every feminine head last year was adorned with an Empress Eugenie hat—due in a large degree to Ann Harding's wearing of one of those chapeaux in "East Lynne"—the public suddenly awoke to the fact that many style innovations are set by the film industry.

Not so widely recognized, however, is the collateral fact that styles in other fields than feminine attire are also frequently set by the movies. Modern furniture and interior decorating, for example, would still be confined to a few European salons had not the screen popularized the new idea and brought about a world-wide demand for chromium-plated chairs and plate-glass chandeliers.

In "Careless Lady," the Joan Bennett-John Boles comedy-romance coming to the screen of the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, the wide variety of settings tax-ed the ingenuity of the art director, Joseph Wright. Opening in a prim little New England town, the locale shifts to style centers and fashionable resorts in New York and then to similar spots in Paris—each necessarily different in design and treatment.

For the New England scenes, Wright constructed the suites below floor of an old Colonial home and ransacked the antique shops of Los Angeles for pie-crust tables, Ionran Phyfe settees, old-fashioned wallpapers and other adjuncts. Then changing to the modern mood, he built a half dozen gown-shops, a futuristic night club, a Parisian hotel suite, several Rue de la Paix establishments and a smart country-club interior — each with its own distinct motif in decoration.

These settings are said to add much to the realism of "Careless Lady," which comes with advance reports of being one of the most enjoyable and smartest offerings of the year. Minna Gombell, Walden Hayden, Nora Lane, Raul Roulien and other favorites are in the cast. Kenneth MacKenna directed the production for Fox films.

The monetary system of the Hebrews was based upon the Babylonian system of weights. The ratio of the value of gold to silver was 1:13 1/2 and prevailed over all western Asia.

BE SURE YOU UNDERSTAND IT

Within the past eighteen months at least one-half of the states have considered levying new taxes on the gross revenues of public utility companies. Two states, South Carolina and Idaho, have passed measures taxing the electricity generated within their borders. In both cases the measures were opposed in the courts on the ground of unconstitutionality, but were upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

It is to be hoped that the public will not consent to such schemes without a thorough understanding of what they mean. Political advocates of them ask support on the ground that they will tax the rich corporation in order to benefit the entire population. What is not explained is that the taxes fall upon the individual, rich and poor, alike—and proportionately more heavily on the latter.

The question of balancing the National budget the sky. It has no means of producing dollars out of trees. Any increase in operating expenses, whether it be for labor, supplies or taxes, must find its way into the gas or electric bill. It must be passed on to the customer. And the man with an income of three thousand a year will pay relatively more of it than the man with a million, because no matter how wealthy one is, there is a limit to the amount of electricity that will be used.

PROTECTING OUR FORESTS

California officials have little regard for anyone who endangers the forests. One camper, who was convicted of leaving a camp fire burning in wooded land, was sentenced to stay in jail "until it rains." So for days he gazed between the bars of the county jail, hopefully watching for clouds to appear.

Forests constitute great natural assets of many states and every year vast areas are burned over, destroying thousands of acres of timber. Much of this destruction is caused by careless campers and picnic parties and by motorists who discard lighted cigarettes, cigars and matches along the roadside.

The lack of care evident in forests is no different from that which results in huge property losses from other causes throughout the nation. Year in and year out the destruction continues, averaging about a half-billion dollars in property losses, according to The National Board of Fire Underwriters, and causing 15,000 deaths.

Restriction of this great waste is a problem to which thinking Americans may well give attention. What can they do about it? Each one can work out the problem of fire-safety in relation to his own home and business. This done, the result in lowered fire losses will be of economic and social benefit to all.

THIS IS LIFE INSURANCE

No investment offers so much, particularly to the person of average means, as does life insurance.

It provides a fair return on the investment with as high a degree of safety as is humanly possible. Its basic principles are the multiplication table and the law of mortality—matters of absolute fact. It works not upon theories, but upon time-proven fundamentals.

In time of emergency it offers a ready means of raising cash—and its value is definite, unswayed by general business conditions. It is always at par, even when other investments are selling at unprecedentedly low levels. It gives what no investment of any other kind can—security for ourselves and dependents in the future. No investor in a legal reserve company's policies has suffered loss, due to failure of the company, in more than fifty years.

This is life insurance—the finest of all investments. Its record of sales, which are maintained at high levels even in these times, is ample testimony to the esteem in which it is held by millions of foresighted Americans.

PERSHING VIGILANCE COMMITTEES

Organization of "Pershing Vigilance Committee" throughout the United States as an emergency measure to fight crime and depression is being proposed in Washington. This is the first concrete result of General Pershing's lashing appeal in the current American Magazine for an unofficial mobilization against the underworld, which he credits with a large share of responsibility for the current depression. Direct action against a million criminals and grafters is Pershing's proposed remedy, and supporters of his proposal believe it possible to enlist 5,000,000 citizens in an organized national war on crime, racketeering, graft and laxness in public office. The movement would be non-partisan and non-political.

"Today the nation faces another crisis," says General Pershing. "The enemies allied against us are more insidious but not less dangerous than in the world war. Pervasive self-seeking and corruption, which the chosen officers of the

By JAMES W. BROOKS

IN LITERATURE AND STATECRAFT

In this sequestered home at Williamsburg, Virginia, known as "Bassett Hall" once lived John Tyler, the president under whose administration the Republic of Texas was annexed to the United States. Here, as vice president, he received word by courier that he had become the Nation's chief magistrate through the death of President Harrison. Here also Thomas Moore the Irish poet wrote the Firefly in 1804.

in waeem powerless to suppress the sinister growth of the underworld, whose tentacles reach out to touch us all, the ever-increasing extravagance of government, and the mysterious paralysis of our economic system—these are the enemies which now confront us.

"An underworld of gangsters and racketeers, unparalleled in any civilized nation, is eating more and more deeply into our national life, inflicting pitiless, extorting tribute from business, threatening our homes. Prohibition has largely financed this postwar underworld.

"Our frontier ancestors, when the criminal element got out of control, formed themselves into vigilance committees, rounded up criminals, and strung them to the nearest tree. Why should we not form neighborhood and community committees, so that the gang will find itself confronted with an organized body of men larger and stronger than itself?

"Committees of this kind would be vigilance committees, not in the old sense, but in the sense that they would be ever vigilant in the protection of rights and performance of civic duties. I would consider it an honor to serve on such a committee myself.

"The ability of the underworld to terrorize society lies in the fact that it is thoroughly organized, while society is not. At present it is more the gangs against the individual than otherwise."

WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?

We have had a moratorium of the War debts. We have had international conferences, and lots of them, in the interests of peace and in behalf of disarmament.

We have organized gigantic methods for relief of the drought sufferers, the unemployed, and the unfortunate.

We have massed the credit of the Government and loaned billions of dollars to the farmers, and to the processes of keeping crop prices from falling through the cellers; and to the railroads and steamship lines and bankers.

A utility company cannot raise revenue from get has been solved by a patient and much-abused congress.

The gold standard has been upheld in the United States.

The crash of country banks has been checked.

There aren't quite so many divorces.

Now what are we waiting for?

WIDER ROADS FOR SAFETY

As car speeds and traffic congestion increase, the width of the highway becomes steadily more important. An extra foot or two may mean all the difference between safety and disaster.

Old methods for widening existing roads were customarily both expensive and unsatisfactory. In a recent address, given before the North Atlantic Highway Officials' Association, Bernard E. Gray of the Asphalt Institute, explained a practical method for widening highways that should be of interest to all states. The method is simply to place a thin layer of granular material, such as sand or gravel, over the shoulder, apply a cut-back asphalt, and mix them together in the same manner as an oil processed road mix. The final finish is obtained with a blade grader. traffic soon insures complete compaction, and a comparatively small amount of money has been spent.

BUYING A SAFE CAR

A survey covering nine states, the District of Columbia, and Ontario, for periods varying from seven to 12 months, showed that a total of 8,136 accidents were due to defects in automobiles. Of these accidents, 435 involved fatalities, 4,240 personal injuries, and 768 property damage. In Pennsylvania alone, during November, 1931, the defective automobile was responsible for 12 deaths, 327 injuries and demolition of property totaling $52,700.

The safe car provides good visibility—good enough so the driver can see an object on the ground, either in front or at the side, two car lengths away. Rear body structure must be solid. Steering, of course, is a factor of the utmost importance. In the safe car there is no sense of "pulling" or of road "fight." Brakes must be equalized, must apply easily and yet not grab, and must stop the car quickly, not only at 20 or 30 miles an hour, but at 40 and 50. The car must hold the road well, and show no tendency toward bouncing when making emergency turns and stops.

TAX BANKRUPTCY

The spectre of tax bankruptcy is faced by a good many Americans these days. Tax levies, according to Melvin Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, take the estimated equivalent of one day's labor every week from everyone in the country. A few years ago one out of every 22 persons gainfully employed was on the public payroll; now the percentage is one in 11. It is said that if the present rate continues, in a little over twenty years we will have one person working for government for every person who pays taxes!

Recently, in a middle-western state, one million acres of land were taken over by the counties for unpaid taxes. Another state has an $18,-000,000 deficit. Another has $10,000,000 in signed contracts for certain projects and is unable to raise a single dollar with which to meet them. In many parts of the country local bond issues have defaulted, schools have been closed, necessary functions of government have been crippled, public employes have been unpaid.

This is what government extravagance has done. Higher taxes is not the solution. The people cannot pay. In Ohio, according to Mark Sullivan, with present low commodity prices, the state and municipalities take, in taxes, a sum, about equal to the entire value of every farmer's crop. Nothing but tax bankruptcy can result if the trend of today is continued.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

It is true that the clouds of depression are hanging low over the United States at this time, but when one compares the situation in this country with that in many of the older nations of Europe he will still find abundant cause to be thankful that he is an American. During the past few weeks there have been three governmental changes in three important nations, two in Europe and one in the Orient. The nations which have had these changes are France, Germany and Japan. Although foreign affairs are ranking large in each of these nations it is an undeniable fact that a great deal of the unrest which led to change of government was due to economic conditions.

In Japan the militarists got a firmer hold on the government, not alone because of the Manchurian venture, but in a large measure because the people are poverty stricken and living conditions are becoming more depressed. The French change to the left was due principally to economic conditions within the country, which have been steadily growing worse in spite of the fact that France has felt the depression less than any other civilized country on the globe. The foreign policy of the new government is the same as that of the old, which indicates that the change was due to internal conditions.

In Germany the other day the Brenning government fell unexpectedly when it was announced that President Hindenburg had lost confidence in it. A great many people at once leaped to the conclusion that this meant a turn about in the foreign policies of the Reich, which would become more warlike. Many French papers declared that the Germans had again played a mean political trick on them by waiting until the French had put in a socialist government, and then putting in a nationalist government after it was too late for the French to do anything about it.

But the facts are that the policy of the new German government, so far as foreign affairs are concerned, is exactly like that of the Brenning cabinet. Dr. Breuning had announced long ago that Germany could and would pay no more reparations, and he stood for upholding German "rights" in the Polish corridor. The policies of the new government will be exactly the same so far as dealing with other countries are concerned. Change in Germany, too, therefore was due in a large measure to domestic conditions. The Breuning cabinet had proposed cutting up the big estates in East Prussia and making small farms of them for the unemployed. It had advocated also heavier taxation, and it was principally because of these two proposals coupled with the depression troubles that the government was forced to resign at this time.

It is not to be understood, however, that the international affairs of these various nations are in a settled state. Never before has there been more political unrest in the world at large, in times of peace at least. Japan is penetrating further into Manchuria and getting into the Russian zone of influence. No doubt there would have been war between the two nations long ere this had it not been for the fact that Russia is not yet ready and seeks a few more years of economic preparation for the conflict, which is sure to come sooner or later. An indictment of Japan might easily bring into the conflict the French allies on the western border of Russia who would be expected to take a part against Russia. What Germany, Italy and France would then do, is a problem.

There are danger spots in Europe, too, the touchiest of which is perhaps the situation along the Polish corridor, where the Germans claim that the Poles are trying to get possession of the Free City of Danzig and the Poles claim the Germans are trying to Hitlerize the same city. Any trouble here would doubtless bring about a disastrous conflagration.

There are therefore abundant reasons why we may still be thankful we are citizens of the United States. And abundant reasons, too, why Uncle Sam should keep out of foreign entanglements and center his attention, as he is doing at present, on attempts to rehabilitate the economic fabric of the United States.

Supt. Hartzig, of the sugar factory, expects his family here Saturday for the summer.

Mrs. W. J. Pearson and her two daughters, will leave tomorrow for Springvale, to rusticate among old friends for two weeks.

The steamer Beaver took over the furniture for the new Beaver Island hotel Wednesday, and it was the biggest "jag" of its kind Capt. Campbell's boat ever had.

A leading Charlevoix contractor has figured it up and finds that there are 60 carpenters employed in Charlevoix, in house building and have been since the 1st, and will be until snow flies again, or later.

In our school article last week we stated that Hon. E. R. Green was the second teacher in Charlevoix. We were in error. The second teacher was the sister of the first, Miss Celia Moore (afterward the wife of A. Butlars) succeeded Mrs. Lottie Stuckman. This makes Major Green the third teacher, but the first male teacher.

A Charlevoix industrial item: Two tugs are engaged in fishing from the port, and 115 men are employed—as many as it takes to run any two saw mills in Charlevoix county. And it is a ten months industry. Last winter fishing continued into January and began again in March. And this does not take into account the work at ship-yards and meshing shops in keeping the boats in running shape.

Supt. Hartzig rides a bike and when you see him scorching down Bridge street, you may bet the cigars for the crowd that he is after a man or a team to work on the sugar factory. Things are humming up where Stover's Creek was wont to meander gently to Pine Lake from the cemetery and beyond. Hartzig was formerly captain of the Detroit Rifles and someone says he marches the men to work by fours, in flank movement, and the teams go in at a gallop.

The cottages of O. M. Allen and Mr. Parmelee, on the Charlevoix Summer Resort are rapidly approaching completion. Both have towers and will be ornaments to the grounds.

The committee appointed to make arrangements for the celebration of the coming Fourth of July, have progressed so far with their arrangements as to be able to assure the people that the day will be celebrated by one of the best free entertainments ever presented to any community. The Ancient and Honorable Order of Mosshacks will parade in new and beautiful regalia and with new banners and emblems, headed by their band in a new and expensive chariot. The committee have secured the services of Prof. Nimblewrist, the famous clown and wizard who will perform many remarkable feats. The committee are also negotiating with the world renowned Mississippi Minstrels with a fair prospect of securing them for a free open air entertainment. The Charlevoix Cornet Band are under special training for the occasion, and will furnish good music on the streets during the day.

Sixty Years Ago

A. Fox and A. Butlars, Esqs., of this village recently took a pedestrian trip from the head of Pine Lake to Bear River, camping out and undergoing all the discomforts of bushmen.

Mr. John McNeal of Banks, communicates the particulars of a logging contest which came off at the place of Mr. George Clark in Marion. We use Mr. McNeil's own words: "Mr. Matchett came to the field with a gang of six brag men, to beat everything that would be in the field. I came to the field with my team and picked up Messrs. Clark, Spain and Skimmer, and we gave them their choice of the piece. We finished ours in two hours and a half, and it took them four hours to do theirs.

Martha M. Gumdyak of the Afton school got 100 in both reading and physiology.

Jennie Brooks of the Undine school has the highest average in the seventh grade with 91 plus. Laura Jones is a very close second with 91 plus. She is from the Walloon Lake school. Betty O'Donnell of the McKinley school at St. James comes in third with an average of 91.

In the eighth grade Christina Withers stands first, with an average of 96 and has 100 in History. She is from Marion Center.

Clare Beattie of Barnard stands second with 95 and has 100 in arithmetic.

Cecil Dell of North Bay also has 100 in Arithmetic.

Congratulations to all these successful boys and girls. May you go on from victory to victory.

And we hope that everyone who was not successful this year will win with flying colors in 1933.

CLOTHES SPELLS ARE NOT ONLY ONES SET BY SCREEN

When every feminine head last year was adorned with an Empress Eugenie hat—due in a large degree to Ann Harding's wearing of one of those chapeaux in "East Lynne"—the public suddenly awoke to the fact that many style innovations are set by the film industry.

Not so widely recognized, however, is the collateral fact that styles in other fields than feminine attire are also frequently set by the movies. Modern furniture and interior decorating, for example, would still be confined to a few European salons had not the screen popularized the new ideas and brought about a world-wide demand for chromium-plated chairs and plate-glass chandeliers.

In "Careless Lady," the Joan Bennett-John Boles comedy-romance coming to the screen of the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, the wide variety of settings tax ed the ingenuity of the art director, Joseph Wright. Opening in a quaint little New England town, the locale shifts to style centers and fashionable resorts in New York and then to similar spots in Paris—each necessarily different in design and treatment.

For the New England scenes, Wright constructed the entire low er floor of an old Colonial home and ransacked the antique shops of Los Angeles for pine-rest tables, Duncan Phyfe settees, old-fashioned wallpapers and other accents. Then changing to the modern mood, he built a half dozen gown-shops, a futuristic night club, a Parisian hotel suite, several Rue de la Paix establishments and a smart country-club interior — each with its own distinct motif in decoration.

These settings are said to add much to the realism of "Careless Lady," which comes with advance reports of being one of the most enjoyable and smartest offerings of the year. Minna Gombell, Walden Hey town, Nora Lane, Raul Roulien and other favorites are in the cast. Kenneth MacKenna directed the production for Fox films.

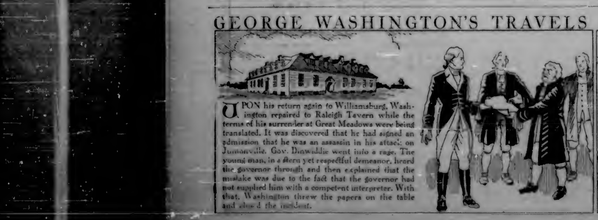
Copyright, 1932, by James W. Brooks. All Rights Reserved. Nationally Correct Showings By CASTLE PARK



UPON his return again to Williamsburg, Washington reported to Raleigh Tavern while the terms of his surrender at Great Meadows were being translated. It was discovered that he had signed an admission that he was an assassin in his attack on Jumonville. Gov. Dinwiddie went into a rage. The young man, in a stern yet respectful demeanor, heard the governor through and then explained that the mistake was due to the fact that the governor had not supplied him with a competent interpreter. With that, Washington threw the papers on the table and shook the incident.

SORE in mind and heart, Washington resigned his commission in the Virginia militia and returned once more to Mount Vernon. He would often remark that a good stiff ride would jolt trouble from his mind, and when again in communion with Nature the perplexities of military duty were soon left behind. "How much more delightful," he wrote, "to an unbenighted mind is the task of making improvements on the earth than all the vassalary which can be acquired by ravishing it by the most uninterrupted career of conquests."

On the Funny Side

SOUNDED SUSPICIOUS

The talkative old man was delivering quite a lecture on speedy travel to the young man with whom he shared a compartment.

"Yes, we travel fast these days," he said. "But have you ever thought of the fright of time—of the fleeting hours of youth, the golden days that swiftly pass away? Have you ever counted the minutes—?"

"Look here!" said the young man, suspiciously, "I don't quite get the hang of this. Are you trying to sell me a watch?"

As It Looked to Her

Three-year-old Helen followed her father in the barn and stood for awhile watching him oil harness. When she returned to the house her mother said, "What is daddy doing at the barn?" Helen replied in a bored way, "Oh, he's washing the horses' garters."—Exchange.

Impetuous Campaigning

"Do you think you need to appeal to the collegiate vote by making your talk more classical?"

"I'm afraid to try it," answered Senator Sorghum. "My conservative constituents might be afraid the boys would become an enthusiastic ass to go further and start one of those student riots in my behalf."—Washington Star.

HARD TO TELL

"Don't you think Mrs. Strongmind's husband is naturally a gentle, patient man?"

"Sometimes I think he is and sometimes I think he's just plain scared."

Late Stayer Again

"Virginia, er—what does that young man do?"

"What young man, papa?"

"Why, the one who stalls three nights a week and never notices the clock."

"Oh, papa, he has political aspirations. He really expects to be elected a legislator."

Foul Weather Warnings

"Hiram," exclaimed Mrs. Cheesecord, "that candidate you don't like is coming up the road. What'll I say if he wants to kiss the children?"

"Don't say anything. Just call 'em back in the kitchen and give 'em plenty of bread and butter and molasses."—Washington Evening Star.

GETTING EVEN

No Job for Him

Aint—Do you mean to say that Springer who has been out of work for a year actually refused offer of a job?

Isn—Yes, he says he gets more from charity than he would from the job.

Too Obvious

Mrs. Gabbles—Here is an interesting article on "What a woman should weigh."

Husband—Does it, by any chance, mention her words?

Joke Not on Him

Hix—That was a good joke those kids pulling a fast one on the cop on the sidewalk for some passers-by to kick.

Nix—Not so good—the first man who came by picked up the kids and put it on, throwing his own away.

Know His Business

Blonder—Leisuring himself has dark hair and his wife is very suspicious.

Ins and Outs at It

"My husband is trying to sell our car."

"Why?"

"He says the outgo for the upkeep is too much for his income."—Boston Transcript.

Sorry He Spoke

He—I wish you would tee your head a little more, my dear.

Wifey—Good! I will go to the milliner's tomorrow and ask it myself.

HOUSES of the FUTURE will have SMALLER KITCHENS and LARGER BATHROOMS

ARCHITECTURAL ambitions this winter emphasize an overwhelming trend toward smaller kitchens and larger bathrooms. There is no particular connection between these opposite tendencies, except that both have a sound scientific basis and are interesting illustrations of American leadership in everything that makes for efficiency and good living.

Small kitchens are in general more convenient than large ones. Fifty years ago the average American kitchen was often the largest room in the house, an entrance of vast open space frequently used as a general sitting room, as a laundry, and as a playroom for the children. Distances from one point to another were so great that food preparation became a task requiring the combined efforts of several persons. An inquisitive husband who strapped a pedometer to his wife's wrist found that she walked more than a quarter of a mile while making a custard pie in such an old-fashioned kitchen.

The modern kitchen is designed for the utmost conservation of time and energy, and the ideal size for the average home, according to scientists, is an oblong room no more than 8 by 12 feet. The oblong shape is better than the square because fewer steps are required in crossing the room from one work center to another.

Science also dictates the arrangement of the equipment. Everything is arranged for purposes of step saving. Most women work in a right to left motion. The order of their activity is fixed—first, gathering up the raw food from cupboard and refrigerator; second, preparing it for the stove; third, cooking it and serving it; fourth, removing the dishes, washing them and putting them away. This fixed order is reflected in the arrangement of the kitchen furniture,—first, refrigerator and food cupboard; second, work table; third, stove; fourth, serving table to the dining room or alcove.

The scientists prescribe that the walls shall be lined with all the equipment in the room named, so that work proceeds exactly like the assembling of an automobile on an endless belt. And the kitchen of the future will be so small as it can conveniently be and meet these requirements.

Bigger and Better Bathrooms

On the other hand, bathrooms just naturally tend to increase in size and importance. The modern bathroom has come to be one of the most attractive rooms in the house, well lighted, well ventilated and luxuriously equipped and decorated.

The American fashion has no precedent in the lives and customs of people of other lands. There are no "period styles" in bathrooms to copy. The bathroom is a development of the past 35 years, and architects have only recently begun seriously to study the equipment and decorative treatment of this modern American room.

Originality in bathroom architecture was held back for a long time by the casual and undistinguished beginnings of the room itself. A generation ago, when a home owner became converted to its importance as a factor in health and comfort, he would order one installed in his house, usually converting another room, a large closet or a back hallway into a bathroom. And this attitude toward the bathroom has left its mark upon architects and builders up to very recent years. In planning new houses, or remodeling old ones, they gave the largest room to the human an entrance of vast open space frequently used as a general sitting room, as a laundry, and as a playroom for the children. In planning new houses, or remodeling old ones, they gave the largest room to the bath consideration to the bathroom, it was tucked away in any old corner, and grudgingly given a small obscure window.

Times are changing, however, and today architects and builders have begun to realize that the bathroom is so essential to the well-being of the whole family that from the very starting of the plans for a house it should be a part of that home and should receive special attention.

In the lessons of the future this particular room will be planned and built as a bathroom, with more light, more air and more sunshine than ever before. It will have plenty of space, and will be frequently equipped with such machinery of health as exercisers, weighing machines and sun lamps.

Science and invention have worked so many miracles in the daily life of the Twentieth Century that people sometimes fail to realize their supreme contribution to the noble task of abolishing household drudgery. In an hour the modern home maker can accomplish things that required days and weeks in the days of her mother and grandmother.

First came the electric iron, and the steps it saved from the stove to the ironing board and back again summoned to several miles a year for every home maker. Next came the washing machine, not only saving time but also contributing to human happiness by abolishing aching backs and cracked knuckles. Then the vacuum cleaner, which at one stroke abolished the tiresome and dusty task of sweeping. Finally the automatic refrigerator, whose possibilities are only just beginning to be realized by home makers, only it not only saves time and energy, but actually takes a part in the preparation of food, adding a host of intriguing contributions to the daily menu.

The automatic refrigerator can brought a new cuisine of luxury and attractiveness to the home table. It has added a note of color and zest to all departments of domestic hospitality. With its aid, the technique of food preparation approaches perfection.

We have discovered that cold is just as important in the kitchen as heat. It improves meats, fruits and vegetables. It makes cakes more beautiful and appetizing. It enables the home maker to keep her prepared dishes longer and so do her work further in advance. It brings to the ordinary family hundreds of recipes never before within their command. It helps every housewife in the achievement of new economies and new enjoyments.

The importance of a good refrigerator is unquestionable. Annual years of foodwaste in the United States is 20 percent of the total, and half of this is waste in the home due to spoilage.

Frozen Desserts

The first Englishman to make a frozen sherbet was Richard the Lion Hearted in the year 1191, while he was crusading in Palestine. He was treated to this delicacy by the Moslem medan leader Saladin. Richard could hardly believe his tongue when he tasted so delicate a dish.

One of the "tall tales" told by Marco Polo when he came back from his travels was about a frozen product that tasted like sweetened snow. Nobody believed him until he showed a Venetian cook how to do it. About 200 years later one of his recipes was used by Catherine de Medici as the climax of her wedding feast. Today with the aid of the automatic refrigerator the humblest home may have with slight effort and expense dishes which 200 years ago were served only to kings and emperors, and to them only on the most important occasions. Today it is no more trouble to make a biscuit tortoni than a rice pudding.

Housekeeping Made Easy

The busiest of housecleaning has been practically driven out of American life by the modern spirit of efficiency and labor saving. New tools and machines have been developed, old implements and materials have been improved, and houses are built so that it is easy to keep them clean. The modern washing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the self-winding mops and chemicalized dust cloths are instruments which make it a simple working principle to keep clean rather than to make clean.

If the daily household routine is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there is no longer any need for worrying about those periodic upheavals which used to be known as "housecleaning time."

The modern woman is a great labor saver by "preventive house cleaning." Which means a study of where dirt comes from, and an effort to stop it before it enters.

Another household invention which is just beginning to find a wide following among architects and home makers is the electric dish-washer. In a question of household economies which make it a primary working principle to keep clean rather than to make clean.

If the daily household routine is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there is no longer any need for worrying about those periodic upheavals which used to

Use Judgment in Mating

It is poor policy to mate up any fowls, least of all male birds, that have previously shown any signs of disease or weakness. It is unwise to mate up undersized females to overlarge males, or vice versa.

The mating seldom "strike," and it is always impossible to secure results from undersized females to overlarge males. Avoid any signs of disease or weakness. It is unwise to mate up undersized females to overlarge males, or vice versa.

Specialized Speaker

A good story is told of Lemuel Burke, the orator of England's royal and friend of America. A colleague of Burke's, rather a poor speaker, was called upon to speak immediately after Burke had made one of his best speeches. Rising to his feet, he said, "I say ditto to Mr Burke"—and sat down.

Fund of Ill-Luck

Royal Antique Repaired

Rebuilding an eighteenth century carved chair for the use of England's royal palaces was a job undertaken by a London oriental shop. A piece of the carpet 7 feet by 4 feeter was cut out years ago, and the weaver was ordered to renew the missing portion. The work required eight weeks.

From the Bible

The source of the quotation, "Let your moderation be known to all men" is the Bible, book of Philippians, chapter 4, verse 5.

Whiskey as Exchange

Following the collapse of the Continental currency in 1780 there was a widespread retraction in the old practice of barter, and in some sections of the country, particularly South Carolina, whiskey was employed as a measure of value in lieu of money.

Unkept Twigs

Modern schools insist that the modern twig of a child's personality should be encouraged to grow unbent and unhampered.—Woman's Home Companion.

Birds Carry Diseases

Birds such as the English sparrows should be fenced out of poultry houses, says the Idaho Farmer. These pests transmit fits and ticks and chick enteritis, quality yard to a community, and if possible, carry diseases from the household of cattle or one poultry yard to others. They will shove as a result of chicken pickings from pen, changing movements, impulses or the gatherings where the pen has been set, a permanent difficulty point; attempts to duplicate the desirable features in model will result in an awkward wobbly line; beginning and ending lines will be abrupt and stubby as a result of meticulous care to begin and end at a point which the forger considers exactly correct.

In repeat matter, it is also easy to detect certain errors on the part of a forger. The repetitions of various marks of machines differ in the letters. Many simple lessons out of date on each year they learned impressed. For instance, a 1928 machine cannot be used on a letter dispatched 1925, without record of a mark of resubmission. As an automotive of ten years may be revealed by the length of a letter, or by the lessons of an m. North or are two questions alike. Letters between definitions dirty or out of position.

The Bait

"I fell for that, too, until I noticed it was always the same sock."

Where's crime, the idea that an average woman rather is outmatched finds a better interest long if he or thoughts is correct!

Middle age is that period when a man begins to yearn at a comfortable age.

Of course none of us do the same things we did when we remember of the day every day.

There is nothing more profitable than work.

REMOVE BIRD WHEN OUT OF CONDITION

May Check Spread of Coccidiosis in Flock.

Chronic coccidiosis in adult fowls cannot be distinguished by external symptoms from other wasting diseases, and only by the use of the microscope after death were a critic to the liquid "new-Weather." Thinks the main factor occurring in Michelia, the only do not fatality the sickness of the intestine, which are to be found in the intestinal contents or in scrapings from the intestinal walls.

Lesser in chronic coccidiosis or other diseases causing the loss of appetite, dirty plumage, glutinal loss of flesh, paleness of comb and wattles and perhaps paralysis of the legs found in such disorders, all affected birds should be removed from the flock and quith kept for new notes. The quarters used should be placed in good sanitary condition and the old ones forgotten.

The parasites causing coccidiosis and other infections of like hazards lay infest ground that has been used for a considerable length of time by poultry flocks and healthy birds must be kept from such ground if avoidance of infection is to be expected. Chronic coccidiosis spreads slowly in an adult flock, and removal of sick birds with sanitary precautions to prevent infection of the healthy associates should be observed.

No Raiser Can Report Profit From Dead Hens

Dead hens make the largest item of flock depreciation, and this depreciation in the United largest item, next to feed and labor, or about one-fifth of the total expense of the laying flock, says Prof. H. G. Manor of the New York State College of Agriculture after a study of ninety-two New York state flocks in 1930.

The percentage of mortality varied from 3 to 73 per cent of the average number of laying birds. The mortality averaged 25 per cent, with no difference between large or small flocks. When hens are valued at $1 each at the beginning of the laying season and are worth 75 cents at the end of the year, a mortality of 10 per cent makes the depreciation 35 cents to the hen. If the mortality were 40 per cent, the depreciation to the bird would be 65 cents. Professor Manor warns poultrymen to give close attention to disease and parasite control.

Use for Hair

Tons of hair at one time were used for packing between the plates of a certain part of English war vessels. Hair, being very elastic, afforded a good backing to metal.

Ultraviolet Protection

Dangerous and invisible rays of ultraviolet light produced by arc welding are absorbed by a special paint developed for the covering of walls in rooms where such work is done. It is an oil-type paint gray in color, and dries in about two hours after application.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Those Good Old Days

It is the feeble and ill-nourished mind that shrinks from knowledge of what has been and suffers from pessimistic dread of what is yet to be. It is only the mentally and spiritually hampered—prisoners by of evil to come—who believes that all change to our own day must be for the worse, and who long for the good old days.—Albert Shaw in Review of Reviews.

Don't Cut Down on Feed

This is no time to cut down on the flock's feed, even though egg prices are low. In fact, low egg prices make it all the more necessary that birds be fed generously and thus be kept at the height of their ability to produce. The laying flock should have a mash before it all the time during the summer months. In addition it should be given some grain. The only feeding change should be the cutting down and finally the elimination of the morning feeding of scratch grain.—Exchange.

Hens Averaged $4

Hens averaged this net profit over feed cost last year for Mrs. John Nilles, Minnesota, due to careful feeding culling and housing. A handwritten had an order for chicks from some of a profitable flock—he had to know the record of the flock. Mrs. N'lles had this information—she has kept records three years. Chicks from her flock satisfied the customer as well a second order was placed and other orders have followed. Quality gets the best price.—Kansas Farmer.

Feeding Young Chicks

Texas tests at the Central experiment farm, Grosses, have shown that better results are attained by feeding chicks early than by the methods of delayed feeding formerly in vogue. The following is a check sample, is given, excellent results at the farm: Use part shorts, one part middlings, one part ground yellow meal, one part ground grains, half part animal feed mixture. If you could have meal, I per cent salt, I per cent cod liver oil.

Ovelia is Scorned

The orchid, so highly esteemed as a flower here, has little attention by women in Bogota, Colombia, where one branch, containing from eight to ten flowers, costs only $2.50. Women there consider it much smarter to wear gardenias.

"Go the Priesthood of Man" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, June 12.

Among the Bible citations was the passage (Acts 4:8) "Then Peter said 'Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.'"

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 126): "Whoever crushes the understanding of Christian Science is trying to destroy what will perform the sudden cures of which it is capable; but this can be done only by taking up the cross and following Christ in the daily life."

AMERICA'S WORLD RESPONSIBILITIES

By H. J. HAAS
President American Bankers Association

H. J. HAAS

We are in a changing world with many new financial problems for which we have no precedents, and many old problems which have to be changed as to an unrecognizable. American bankers have been called into world affairs to find a solution of unknown finance. We may expect these calls to be more frequent in the future than they have in the past. We are the world's foremost banker and we must accept the responsibility which goes with it.

Let us have to the future with confidence. Every time the experiment a great sorrow came into, perhaps as great we felt we could never overcome it, but time is the great healer and eventually we have come out of the valley of the shadow of the church. It will be crowded, but more pleasant than in the shadow.

PUBLIC INJURED BY BANK GOSSIP

National Association Declares Community Interests Demand Protection Against Idle Rumors

BOTH in their advertising and in their direct contacts with customers and others, bankers should "remedy and persistently deserve more time and thought to keeping people admitted of the fact that while the bank has many obligations toward its customers, equally is it true that the depositor also has certain obligations to the bank to enable it to properly maintain its position in the community," a recent statement of the American Bankers Association declares.

"A bank admittedly is a semi-public institution and there is a mutuality of obligation resting upon both the banker and his customers to maintain the effective functioning of that institution that is superior to the personal interests of either," it says.

Bankers might well consciously devote greater effort to building up the public viewpoint in their communities that due to their public obligations and burden of public interest, the banks are entitled to protection against ill-informed or malicious gossip and rumors, the statement says.

"As to banks in some states, bank deposits have afford this protection," it points out. "We recommend that this protection be availed of by definite action wherever practical both as a matter of immediate expediency so as to awaken public opinion as to the dangers of the gossip about a community's banking institutions."

What Can Be Done

Farmers should rid themselves of any false hope of outside aid from legislation. The only recourse left for the producer on a reduced price level is to produce his goods at reduced costs, and nearly every farmer can likely put into force a few economies to production. Farmers must produce as largely as possible the materials they use, and get away from cash purchases until prices come down proportionately on the things they buy. The cheapest way in the farming business is to raise your own feed and not let the other man get your dollars.

GEORGE ARLISS
IN "THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD"

George Arliss, whom portrayals of statesmen and laymen were nationally acclaimed, appears in a new guise in "The Man Who Played God," his latest starring vehicle for Warner Bros. Pictures, which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Arliss turns his genius to the portrayal of genius in "The Man Who Played God." In this picture he plays the role of an international by famous musician whose wizardry with melody places the world at his feet. He is adored by women, admired by men, numbering even kings among the thousands subject to the wonder of his music. Those intimate with him, however, respect him even more for his human qualities and kindliness than for his musicianship.

In "The Man Who Played God," an adaptation of the stage play by Jonnan Josephson and Maude Howell from the story by Governeur Morris, Arliss' "family circle" includes his adulterous and worshipful sister, portrayed by Louise Closser Hale, and her loyal secretary-nurse, Bettie, played by Ivan Simpson. Two accompanists, one a widow with whom he had been in love before she married another, the other a blind girl and charming young girl, are in love with him. The first does not tell him of her love because she believes him in love with the young girl, and the latter, on the other hand, is perfectly frank and outspoken in her avowal of love for the great Maestro. Violet Heming appears in the role of the widow and Bette Davis, a newcomer to the screen, is seen as the young debutante in love with the elderly musician.

"The Man Who Played God," presents full opportunity for Mr. Arliss to express human emotions. The drama is heightened by the sudden deafness which takes his music from the great musician and completely alters his life, thoughts and outlook on life. Metropolitan opinion, common in acknowledging that Arliss' portrayal of "The Man Who Played God" is undoubtedly his supreme achievement to date, in spite of the excellence which invariably places his pictures in the "ten best" lists of each succeeding year. Many critics, in fact, have already chosen "The Man Who Played God" for inclusion in 1932's "ten best."

EDNA FERBER'S NOVEL REACHES THE SCREEN

"So Big," the new picture starring Barbara Stanwyck which Charlevoix picture-goers will have an opportunity to see beginning Friday at the Palace Theatre, has been adapted from the Pulitzer Prize novel by Edna Ferber which was not only a best seller when it was published but has gone on selling steadily and largely ever since. It has, in fact, attained a place on the shelf of American classic fiction.

"It seems very important that 'So Big' should be faithfully reproduced on the screen," said Edna Ferber in New York, while Miss Stanwyck's latest vehicle was in production at the Warner Bros. Studios in California. "'So Big' holds a very special place in my affections, and so many people have written me since it was published, telling me that it holds a special place in their affections, too, that I have long ceased to regard the story as belonging to me alone. It belongs to all those people who have loved it, felt it as much as it does to me, though I wrote it. I can never think of 'So Big' as I do of most of my other writings. It holds a part apart."

It is not a simple matter to transfer a story like "So Big" to the screen; and the responsibility was left by Miss Stanwyck, by William A. Wellman, who directed the picture, and by the actors and actresses who made up the cast. "We felt that we were handling something very delicate and beautiful," says Barbara Stanwyck. "We had all read the book —all, of course, except little Dickie Moore, who is only five years old—and we all loved it. 'So Big' is unquestionably the most important picture I have ever made. I felt that while I was acting in it, and so did the others."

BARNARD STOPS LOCAL TEAM

TAKES TILT BY SCORE OF 14 TO 6, FIRST DEFEAT

By Newman

Playing a brand of baseball far superior to anything the local independent baseball nine has met with so far this year, the Barnard team won from the locals last Sunday by a score of 14 to 8.

Barnard was off to a two run lead in the first inning, and was never threatened thereafter until the Charlevoix boys started a big sixth inning rally. Barnard has staged a remarkable improvement in the last month, and could hold its own with most any team around here now. The Barnard batters hammered away steadily during the afternoon, sometime getting one run, sometimes two or three. Joe Stutsman, in addition to handling the entire pitching assignment, led his team in scoring, with three runs. He received also the best support from his team in the field, as Barnard made quite a few double plays when danger seemed near.

Morris Dixon and David Newman, each with four safe hits out of five times at bat and with two runs scored apiece, led the local hitters. Stan Smith hit the longest blow of the day in the ninth inning, getting a home run and scoring Joe Shores ahead of him. Ho Helms made the first local score, in the first inning. And Bob Sterritt added another to the total in the ninth. Charlevoix batters managed to get one, two or three hits apiece, but they all died on the bases, or were put out on double plays, of which Barnard made five.

This defeat was the first suffered by the team since it was organized in its present form. The present standing is five victories and one defeat. The locals also received a setback when they lost to the Ellsworth Independents in a practice game last Friday night. This defeat was due partly to the fact that some of the Charlevoix regular players were unable to leave town for that game. Charlevoix will be host to the Ellsworth team at 5:30 p. m. this Friday evening, and expects to have its strongest team on the field. Due to the fact that this game is to be played in the evening, there is to be no charge made for attending, and all baseball fans are urged to be present and see a good game. Charlevoix will also play a game here Sunday at 2:00 p. m. with some worthy opponent.

MARION

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blackwood called at the Geo. Meggison home Sunday.

Mr. Herman Myer of Boyne Falls was a Marion Center visitor Sunday.

Word was received of the death of George Simpson at Beaver Island, Ill. Mr. Simpson was an Uncle of Geo. Meggison and a resident of Marion about forty years ago, living on what is now part of the W. K. Straw farm.

Mrs. W. K. Straw has visiting her, a sister and two nephews of Pinconning, Mich.

Mrs. Parsein and her father are spending a few days in Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Everts of Detroit are spending Mr. Evert's vacation with his father, Mr. George Everts of Phelps and Mrs. Everts' brother, Mr. Geo. Meggison.

Mr. J. C. Knight returned to Kalamazoo Friday after spending a vacation trip here of two weeks, visiting old time friends and fishing streams and lakes in nearby territory with which he was familiar in the earlier history of this region.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE ON RESORT NEAR ELLSWORTH

According to Mr. Robert Rosenbloom, new owner of Big Fish Inn near Ellsworth, seventy-five per cent of rooms and cottages have been reserved by patrons for the July-August vacation period. Extensive improvement work has been made on buildings and grounds during recent weeks. With the close of the 1932 vacation season several new cottages are to be erected and ready for occupancy with the opening of next season, says the owner.

RETURNS HOME FROM REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong returned from Chicago Sunday, where she spent the presiding week and as an alternate, attended the National Republican Convention as well as sessions of the several committees.

That she had a glorious time, wonderful experience and fully appreciates the efforts of her friends that made it possible for her to attend the big event.

In substance Mrs. Armstrong in part says: It was a pleasure to me to represent Charlevoix County and the 11th Congressional District in the state delegation, attending the now historic Republican National Convention of 1932.

There were many vital questions considered by able men and women in spite of the fact that the liquor problem made the big noise of the event.

I was proud of our own Mrs. Bina West Miller and Governor Brucker while the most impressive sight to me, or that I have ever witnessed was the raising of "Our Flag" on the opening of the convention.

SPECIAL SERVICE

Rev. E. S. Deane will hold a special service at the Episcopal Church Sunday evening June 26th at 7:30 and will have as guests members of the local F. & A. M. fraternity. All members of Charlevoix Lodge No. 283 F. & A. M. and all visiting members of the order are urgently requested to meet at the Masonic temple at 7 o'clock from which they will march to the church to attend the service in a body.

BEAUTY SHOP OPENS

Opening the same suite of rooms at 110 Bridge Street, as in 1931 the "Pierre Hamlin Beauty Shoppe" opens this week under the management of the owner, Mrs. Charlie Hamlin, who for some years past has successfully and most satisfactorily conducted the shop.

FINE ADDRESS GIVEN

A very fine address was given Tuesday by Mrs. Wm. H. White of Boyne City, before the Methodist women, assembling very much at home in the church parlors. Mrs. White spoke on the General Conference of the church, the world convention to which she was a delegate, which was in session throughout May in Atlantic City.

The Methodist parsonage recently entertained as guests from Cisco, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bicknell of the Bicknell Mercantile Company of that city

Mr. Paul Watters, lighthouse keeper at North Manitou Island, accompanied by Mrs. Watters, daughter Marie, and son Albert spent three or four days here with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sterritt, returning home Monday.

Mrs. E. C. Sterritt went to Petoskey Wednesday as local representative to attend a four day session and meeting of veterans of foreign wars which opened Wednesday and will continue until Saturday evening when final adjournment will be taken.

Hon. Louis S. Anderson, Mrs. Anderson and children and Mr. A. H. Mathews, the latter president of the Northport bank and all residents of Leelanau County were guests of Captain and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur Sunday afternoon.

POPULAR NOVEL NOW DRAMATIZED FOR MOVIE SCREEN

"I, Jerry, Take Thee, Joan," startling first-novel of Cleo Loran, short story author and Hollywood syndicate writer, has been filmed by Paramount as a co-starring vehicle for Sylvia Sidney and Frederic March.

In Miss Loran' story, studio experts immediately recognized dramatic qualities of a high order. It has been made into a picture about which Sylvia Sidney and Frederic March find an admirable vehicle for their superior dramatic talents.

The picture is presented under the title, "Merrily We Go to Hell." It dramatizes the story of married life in America's modern young group of irresponsibilities. The novel became one of the best sellers of the past year, and the picture closely follows the dramatic episodes of the original story.

Dorothy Arzner, Hollywood's only woman director, has again demonstrated her extraordinary directorial capacity in the production of the picture.

The production marks the first combination of Miss Sidney and March at the head of a cast. Both, former stage players, have also been identified on the screen with highly interesting parts. Miss Sidney in "An American Tragedy," "Ladies of the Big House," "The Miracle Man" and others, and March in "Laughter," "Strangers in Love," and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

"Merrily We Go To Hell," comes to the Palace Theatre for Sunday and Monday.

EAST JORDAN RESIDENT DIES LAST MONDAY

Mr. Frank E. Brotherton, well known, on this region for fifty-four years a resident of East Jordan, during forty of which he was bookkeeper for the East Jordan Lumber company and who has been in failing health for some months was found dead in his bed last Monday morning. He was 61 years old and is survived by Mrs. Brotherton.

The last evening service for this season will be held at the Episcopal Church Sunday, June 26th, at 7:30 o'clock, when Rev. Edward S. Dean in charge Mrs. Brown of Petoskey will sing and special music will be rendered. A cordial invitation is extended to all. Notice for summer services will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Musallem and two sons, St. Augustine, Florida, residents for some months past, returned to Charlevoix Wednesday, where they will occupy their residence, 108 Park avenue, during the summer season.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hooker returned from Ypsilanti Tuesday, where they attended the commencement exercises at the state normal. Their daughter, Dorothy, one of the graduates of the class of 1932 accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Hooker on their return home.

Mrs. S. Boucher and daughter of Chicago are at the Belvedere for the season.

NOTICE—Another consignment of Government Red Cross Flour has been received for distribution in this part of the county.

STEAMER BEDEL TO MAKE LOCAL TRIPS DUURING DAY

Plans of the Legion for the Fourth of July celebration at Charlevoix have included the chartering of the Steamer Osman Bedell, for two round trip excursions to East Jordan and Boyne City out of Charlevoix for the entertainment and pleasure of those who have no other means of transportation as well as to make possible a trip that in days past has many pleasant memories for residents of this region. The present plans are to leave Charlevoix about 7 a. m. and make the call at the other two cities returning to Charlevoix before noon. The return trip will leave Charlevoix immediately following the fireworks in the evening. The price will be well within the reach of all, only 50c for adults and 25c for children for the round trip.

During the day it is planned to run 45 minute excursions out into Lake Michigan and Pine Lake and to give the kiddies a break, the price will be 25c for adults and 10c for children under 12 years of age.

An effort will be made to secure music on the boat and to have a concession to help pay expenses.

Arrangements for the parade are progressing nicely and a goodly number of interesting floats will be in line. Members of the three Legion posts of the county and their Auxiliaries, the Petoskey and Charlevoix post bugle and drum corps and one or two bands will march.

A fine set of aerial fireworks has been ordered and a snappy baseball tournament between two leading heavyweight performers of the region will crown a series of interesting field contests.

There will be dancing a number of novel street sports, turtle race, and other interesting features.

The three blocks between Antrim and Park Streets, which will be roped off and closed for the various celebration purposes before and after the parade—traffic being diverted at the two end cross streets to State St. and Bridge—will call for the parade, to start about 12:00 and from then on the day will be an interesting one.

The junctions of Mason and Clinton Streets with Bridge will be devoted to concessions and the concessions committee again wishes to urge that those desiring concessions apply at once and produce the cash in advance if they want their selections held for them. All concessions will be apportioned and sold at the information bureau.

All Legionnaires and ex-service men attending the celebration are requested to register at the information bureau, producing discharge papers, legion card or other evidence of service, whereupon they will be given identification cards. This is necessary, because a prize will be given to the Legion post having the most members in line in the parade proportioned to each post's paid membership, and also on serve as a tally of ex-service men and Legionnaires in the district.

A meeting of the Tri-post association of Charlevoix County was held at Boyne City, Tuesday evening, at which the radio broadcast of the Schmelling-Sharkey fight and an excellent supper were the main features. Mrs. J. M. Harris appeared before the members of the three posts and explained the method of ordering and apportioning the Red Cross or government milled flour among the needy families of the county.

Evangelist F. W. Mehl of Detroit, Mich., will hold a Gospel service in the Norwood Township Hall Sunday June 26th, at 8 p. m. No collections will be taken. A hearty welcome is extended to all.

THE DETROIT PLAYERS TO LOCATE AT IRONTON FOR SUMMER SEASON

The Detroit Players, who for the past four summers have installed themselves in their home of the state with their tent show, have announced that they will permanently locate for the season near the city for a series of performances to be given in the Tanglewood Playhouse, on Route 66 near Ironton Ferry. The highest type Broadway plays are to be presented and the curtain will rise each Tuesday and Thursday evening at eight thirty, beginning July 5th.

Adams T. Rice, manager of the Detroit Players, and widely known as a director, co-starred with the New York Theatre Guild, and ironic designer, will be in charge of the technical staff. Regarding the coming season at Tanglewood, Rice says, "We are exceptionally proud of our new location and of our cast. We have been fortunate this year in obtaining talented members of SWAP HUSBANDS AND WIVES; PROVES O. K.

Minot, S. D.—An unusual experiment in exigamy in which two neighboring families in this county swapped wives, husbands, children and homes three years ago has pooled no more, it was revealed in the three-cornered trial that both women and their husbands are more than pleased and satisfied with the result, while neighbors who prophesied failure for the experiment have agreed they were mistaken. Welfare workers say it is the only successful case in their experience, being absolutely unique.

The names of both the Hazeltines are the families involved. Two husbands, two wives and several children were installed in new homes and the readjustment which followed.

While the Knights had five children before the readjustment, and the Hazelwoods had two, under the new arrangements the Knights found themselves with but four children, while the Hazelwoods had their family increased by two children to eleven.

The two families were great friends before the amusement was tried and they remain as good friends as ever today. The element attached the exchange of children, the parents went to the same church, and often the four parents would ride into the same automobile and go to the same "movie" show. They declared their divorces together and had a double marriage the next day. Their then 10 cases back to their new homes.

Neither C. Knights nor the Hazelwoods were gossips, the "outs" under laws agreed they were mistaken. Welfare workers say it is the same old case in their experience, being absolutely unique.

WATCH THE TAXES

Up to this time we have had deflation in everything excepting the cost of government in America and the resulting taxation. Of course, as everyone knows, taxes are now mounting because of the falling off of the federal revenues, and higher income tax rates and nuisance taxes will be necessary until there are added revenues resulting from a resumption of normal conditions.

It is obvious that there can be no real permanent improvement in America until taxes can be reduced, and that the only way taxes can be reduced is through a lessening in the expense of government. The one healthful sign everywhere is that the people are becoming outspoken in their opposition to new government ventures at this time. Governments everywhere, state and local as well as the national government, are being importuned to reduce their costs of administration, and if the people who are protesting will only translate their criticism into votes next fall there will be some real reductions in the cost of government before many months.

In fact in many states and many communities, genuine efforts are now being made by officials to reduce the cost of government. It is not to be forgotten after all, that most of the tax burden shouldered by the ordinary man comes to him from his local government, and it is here that the real tax reform can commence. The Federal government is always under the watchful eye of political leaders and the newspapers of the country, and is the first to reduce taxes when the opportunity arises. But it is so easy to forget about the real burden of taxation—the local and state taxes—and to focus one's attention on the taxe debates in Congress.

LESS SPENDING, NOT MORE REVENUE

While the newspapers of all parties and no parties, and men and women in all stations of life up and down the land are demanding that Congress reduce the expenses of government by at least a billion dollars a year, why do these in charge of this government spend all their time trying to find new ways of raising revenue? We might not need to find many new ways to do this if we were to cut our costs to meet the revenue we have.

The people are distinctly opposed to being milked further and they are just as distinctly in favor of reducing expenses so that the milking process need not be extended.

Figures show that the cost of government in the United States—meaning the costs of all kinds of government—amounted to 17 per cent of our entire national income last year and statisticians say that this year the cost may be as much as 23 per cent. In other words, the average man will be working nearly one-fourth of all his time in 1932 to support the government with its tens of thousands of idlers and wastrels and its unnecessary agencies of one kind and another.

Of course the federal budget must be balanced, but that can be easily done if we first reduce the budget to the legitimate needs of the country. Our governments need to spend less rather than to collect more.

It is stated with some show of authority that the federal government alone has been spending $5,000 a minute in the last year in excess of its income and some states and many cities have been doing the same thing proportionately. If the national government will lack two and a half billion dollars this year of being able to pay its debts, the fault is largely in the unnecessary spending, not altogether in a lack of revenue.

Citizens have a duty to perform in this crisis. They can demand of every candidate for every office that spends the public's money, which means all of them, that he take a firm stand in favor of reducing the expenses of government, under threat that the voters will defeat him next November if he do not.

It's time to quit trying to lift ourselves by our bootstraps, time to quit employing stimulants for business and to give it a remedy. That remedy is lower costs of government, not some new form of taxes, not the trying-out of some pet theory like that of the Farm Board which has cost the people a half billion dollars while the farmer's condition was gradually becoming worse.

The American railroads have reduced their operating expense 40 per cent since 1929. Had the governments of this country done the same thing we would not now have to be worrying about new tax laws and balancing budgets without sufficient funds.

THE RAILROAD ENIGMA

The railroads are among our largest taxpayers. In normal times they are the most important employes of labor and purchasers of supplies. They perform a vital service which no other agency can yet duplicate. And we have led them to the brink of ruin, by subjecting them to unequally regulated competition from government-subsidized steamship and barge lines on the water, and commercialized motor transportation operating over state-built and state-maintained rights of way paid for by all private taxpayers, including the railroads. All this, as Governor Ritchie pointed out some time ago, "has threatening consequences to our future prosperity, as well as to the millions of our people whose savings are invested in the railroads, either directly or through savings banks and insurance companies."

When we deliberately cripple a basic industry we all pay the bill. We pay it in unemployment, in depressed business, in smaller tax receipts for the public treasury. At present most industries suffer from low earning capacity—but that has been the condition of the railroads ever since the war, due largely to an overdose of restrictive regulation. If ever the people had an interest in an industrial problem, they have it in the railroads.

WE'RE ALL INTERESTED

To those who live outside the mining states the silver problem may seem a very remote matter, without local importance.

In truth, however, debased silver affects us all. In the near past half the people of the civilized world have had their purchasing power lowered to a fraction of former levels. The inevitable result has been an equivalent drop in our export business. Many factories, employing thousands of Americans, whose principal trade has been with other lands, have closed their doors.

There is not enough gold in circulation to carry on the business of the world. The best economic minds are working for the establishment of a practical ratio between the values of gold and silver. If they succeed we will have taken a long step toward restoring prosperity.

THE COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT GOES ON

Since 1928, in spite of the collapse of prices and markets, the 11,400 farmer-owned cooperatives in the country have increased their total business $100,000,000. The number of cooperatives has increased to about 12,000 and less than 80 have failed. There has been a total membership gain of 150,000 in the last six months.

Here is definite hope for the farmer. Apparently the depression has given him a new realization of the value of the cooperative. If that is true, hard times will not have been in vain. They will have been the driving force that prepared hundreds of thousands of farmers for sound prosperity and a stable business in the future.

It cannot too often be repeated that the success of the cooperative movement lies in the loyalty of individual members. No cooperative, no matter how strong, can survive unless the bulk of farmers in its territory work for the common good. Every member must back up his cooperative and must do his best to bring in his neighbors. If he does that, the farmer's tomorrow will be bright indeed.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

Origin of Public Schools in America

Among the many acts of wisdom of George Washington was to provide a fund for the teaching of orphans and children whose parents were unable to defray their expenses in school. This is the building still in use at Alexandria Virginia, and the fund was supplied from the dividends of certain bank stock which General Washington owned. In this act of Washington is found the origin of the public school system in America.

500,000 TAX SPENDING BODIES

The statement was recently made from an authoritative source that there are upwards of 500,000 tax spending bodies in this country.

It is estimated that during the fiscal year to end June 30, these bodies will have spent the sum of $14,000,000,000—one-fifth of the national income. Where, in 1905, the per capita annual cost of government was $19.39, it is now about $125—an increase well in excess of 600 per cent!

The present predicament of the country is largely the result of these tax increases, made necessary by political waste, inefficiency and selfishness, and by the creation of new bureaus and boards, each with its list of employes, and by unwarranted extension of government activities into fields which should properly be left to private initiative. Unless a start is made toward genuine government economy, which will lop off unnecessary earning power of our citizens will be confiscated by taxation.

PUBLIC SERVICE FROM RELIEF FUNDS

As an outlet for surplus labor, highways offer the best opportunity in so much as they are about the only thing that can be produced without glutting the market, according to the president of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Some 5,000,000 American farmers are still situated on roads that become impassable in winter, preventing them from marketing their goods at the most advantageous time, from sending their children to school, from receiving quick medical attention when needed, from keeping social contacts, etc.

The expenditure of a road dollar serves a double purpose, in that it puts money in circulation while actually providing something we need, and so is not to be confused with "relief" appropriations that put money into circulation but do little permanent good. Placing a man to work on a road means that we provide another one with work somewhere else supplying materials.

It is said that the country could build a hundred thousand miles of good roads now and make use of every mile. That is something worth striving for. Every state and every county must do its part. Modern developments which have made it possible to build fine weatherproof, full-width highways for a very few thousand dollars a mile, allow us to do needed road work without plunging ourselves into debt!

Cheer up. Fifteen years ago we had a war to end war and now maybe we are having a depression to end depressions.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

A great many people are trying to account for the defeat, in some states and congressional districts of the sitting senators and representatives, in the various Republican and Democratic primaries. It is difficult to base the reason for these defeats on any one issue, or one set of issues. Some of those who have lost have been defeated by dry and others by wet candidates, so that it can not all be blamed on the liquor issue. The case of Senator Brookhart of Iowa and Senator Morrison of North Carolina are examples.

Perhaps the best general reason that can be assigned for the various upsets is the depression and the failure of Congress to do anything to end the hard times. Just what Congress could do, of course, is still a matter of debate, although it is generally conceded that a program of general economy and of rapid balancing of the budget will help a great deal.

But no matter whether or not he believes that Congress can end the depression, the average man is inclined to lay a part of the blame for present conditions on the failure of Congress to act promptly and effectively. As a result sitting senators and congressmen coming up for renomination, have encountered many casualties in the ranks, although there are of course notable exceptions.

This habit of blaming everything that goes wrong on to the "ins" is not totally an American custom. They do it in South America, and Europe too, and even in the Orient. Conservative governments have been turned out, in some instances, to make way for radical governments and, in other instances, liberal governments have given way to those with a conservative label. There has been no general pattern of change. It has been in most instances, a turning out of the "ins" and replacing them with the "outs", even though most of the voters must realize if they stop to think, that the various governments of the world have had little to wo with the great economic depression which was only an inevitable aftermath of the World War.

Some of the American statesmen who have been praising France, during the past year or so for its great thrift, and its business ability, which they claim has softened the effects of the depression in the Latin republic, are now beginning to have spoken too soon. Latest wonder whether they may not word from Paris is to the effect that the government is going to have as tough a time in balancing its budget as did our own Congress. Some figures made public by the French Minister of Finance are to the effect that there will be a deficit of $160,000,000 at the end of 1932 and plans are already being laid to reduce military expenditures by ten per cent, to effect a saving of $61,000,000 as a starter.

It is true that France was not invited in lending money to Germany and Austria, as were the American and the British bankers, but she has loaned considerable sums to her allies in Central and Eastern Europe. These are political rather than commercial loans. If conditions in Central Europe get much worse, as they show considerable evidence of doing, some of the French allies are going to suffer even more than they are suffering at present, in an economic sense. The French have shown a great deal of satisfaction in the way the world has been withdrawing gold from the United States and other countries and piling it up in Paris. But if the French default continues and conditions get worse in Central Europe the gold may start sliding out of France faster than it was drawn from America.

Fire destroyed the Grant Jordan Lumber Company's shingle mill Saturday night; loss $6,000, partly insured. It will be rebuilt. This is the third mill totally destroyed in this town in five months.

Dr. Frank Wilkinson, who was here to attend his brother's wedding yesterday, made the Sentinel a pleasant call. Dr. Frank, who now writes D. D. S after his name, has located at Hastings. His many friends of this section will wish him well.

Ira A. Campbell, son of Capt. P. P. Campbell, arrived at the paternal roosting-by-the-lake yesterday. Ira has in his inside breast pocket a parchment relating the interesting part that he is a lawyer, and one of the excellent sort that came from the Michigan University law school. Mr. Campbell will remain here for three weeks and then locate at Seattle, Wash. for the practice of his profession.

The Knights Templar, of Traverse City, were here on the steamer Harriet Hart Saturday, on their pilgrim to the Soo, and the weather favored Charlevoix for it blew the biggest gale of the season, and mercury was down to about 50 or lower. The Hart was compelled to remain here until five o'clock Sunday morning, when she proceeded north, with a good sized sea still running. The Knights and ladies made the best of it, and spent the afternoon visiting among their friends. In the evening the K. P. hall was secured for them, and they had two hours in dancing. They had a fine band with them, which furnished the music. The commandery was under Eminent Commander W. W. Smith and his staff but went in citizens' dress. Many leading Traverse City business men were in the party, including Herbert Montague, manager of Hannah Lay & Co.; J. T. Hannah, Cashier First State Bank; prosecuting attorney Pratt; Wm. Beltner, Mr. Ott and O. J. Moffatt, prospective candidate for state senator. Geo. P. Brown and wife of this place, went with the party.

C. H. Bellinger is settled down in his new room in the Bartholomew building, and has a neat, attractive place of business. Mr. Bellinger's success is merited.

The business men and others of the village subscribed enough in an hour on Friday to purchase a new bass drum for the band, for which the boys are truly thankful.

An interesting feature of the rescue of the crew of the schooner Descoates by the Milwaukee Life Saving Crew, was the fact that the captain and two of the last named crew were Charlevoix boys, and well acquainted with those whose lives they so bravely rescued. Capt. Evenson formerly run a fishing rig here, and Frank O'Neill and Ed. Bedford are Charlevoix boys. Capt. Blair and his crew fell into hospitable hands when they were cast upon the shore by the angry waves.

What marvelous changes have been wrought in the region tributary to Charlevoix during the past dozen years! Even a decade ago, fully one-half of the land was in the clutches of a corporation who could not sell it to settlers, and a large and fertile tract in this county was lying dormant under the unbroken primeval forest of Indians. Practically Charlevoix harbor and Pine Lake was closed to navigation. Communities of settlers were struggling through privation and toil, with poor markets and low prices, but brave hearts and strong hands, and we can say from personal experience that the farmers were not the only ones who had "their mines on the grindstone." But as we ponder over the changes that time has wrought, our reward is ample in the fruition of those years of unwavering faith and hope, we have seen the wilderness blossom into a garden, we have seen the forests changed into meadows and fields of waving grain; we have seen the transformation of poverty into prosperity. We have witnessed the entrance of marine commerce to ninety miles of our inland coast; we've seen that commerce grow from one small lumber scow to its present large proportions; we have seen villages spring up upon our inland lake and agencies for the utilization of our great natural wealth establish themselves. We have seen Charlevoix grow from nothing to the prettiest village in northern Michigan. We have stood upon the wall and trumpeted to Christendom, the beauties of this land of promise; and now, thank God, we are seeing that which our faith pictured to us thirteen years ago. We expect to see still greater things than we have yet greeted our eyes. Within this favored portion of the realms of nature there are yet wonderful changes in store for us.

A Chicago gentleman has two hundred dozens of live pigeons confined in coops in the rear of the Fountain City House. He is fatting them for market.

Beaver Harbor—The marine reporter of the Detroit Tribune gives this description of Beaver Harbor. "This locality for many years well known as the Isle of the Latter Day Saints is probably one of the best harbors to be found between Buffalo and Chicago lying completely landlocked, when once inside, and in earlier times formed a shelter for passing vessels.

During the time of the Saints there was a spendid village there and more or less traffic was carried on with vessels which came there. Latterly it is rarely visited, and its present inhabitants are only a few fishermen." How will this appear to the enterprising citizens of one of the greatest fish marts on the chain of lakes?

The citizens of Charlevoix save at last made provisions for the erection of a school building which will be a credit to the village. A building to cost $4,000 will be commenced this summer and carried forward to completion as rapidly as the provisions made will allow. The meeting on Saturday evening last voted to issue bonds to the amount of $1,000 payable March 1874, and to raise $1,000 the coming winter, by direct tax and the balance to be raised as needed, either by bonds or direct tax. It was the sentiment of the meeting that a building 35x60, two stories in height, with stone foundation, be erected. The lower portion to be completed this fall for use next winter. Plans and specifications are to be prepared immediately. The committee as named at a previous meeting to select lots requested a choice of Lots 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18, of Block 10, the alley included. The site selected reaches from Mason to Clinton streets and is the most suitable and pleasant location that could have been selected. If the provisions made and the sentiments expressed are carried out, Charlevoix will soon have a school building surpassing any in Grand Traverse.

GENERAL Braddock's approach to his tragic lunar was unknowingly planned in Carlyle House at Alexandria, Washington's courteous insistence that his services be accorded proper rank having been satisfactorily met, this quiet and observant youth for the third time found himself moving in military fashion toward contested ground about the Ohio. Lord Fairfax rode with him part of the way, giving such advice from the saddle as came to his mind.

ONE day, about noon, the marching soldiers were scattered from the road-way by the noise and dust of a forty red coats approaching from the rear. As it passed, the troops saluted and drums beat the Grenadiers' March. It was Pride riding before a fall, which moved Washington to remark that if he were General Braddock, he would prefer a horse to a coach. "Not if you were he," dryly replied Lord Fairfax.

Robin Had Business There

Some time during the winter a pane of glass was broken in the clubhouse of the Bath (Maine) Country club and no early action from the club could be had. It was decided that was a good place to build a nest and rear her young, as the clubhouse had not been kept open during the winter so she knew proper the fastened visitor and certainly the glass was reset. Then it was noticed that a robin kept flying across the glass and getting in it. Inside the clubhouse was found a nest with two blue eggs in it.

Echoes of the Custer Tragedy

The Custer Battlefield Today

Gen. E. S. Godfrey

Cadet Henry Moore Harrington

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FIFTY-SIX years have passed since the crimes of Gen. George Armstrong Custer drew to its dramatic close, yet the glamor of his name has kept alive for more than half a century the memory of that tragedy while other battles much more important historically have been all but forgotten. Recently a month passed without there appearing in the news of the day some echo of "Custer's Last Battle" to recall to the minds what took place on the 25th day in June 1876.

It must be an item referring to one of the "last survivors of the Custer battle" who have bobbed up with such regularity during the last five decades and who have so rarely been proved to be fakes.

As a matter of fact there were many "survivors" of the Custer battle if the term "Custer battle" is interpreted to mean the whole action which took place on the Little Big Horn on June 25, 1876. There were the officers and men who were in the detachment of the seventh cavalry commanded by Maj. Marcus A. Reno, Capt. Frederick W. Benteen and Capt. Thomas McDougall, which Custer picked his command to attack the Indian village. Then were the members of Troops A, G and M under Capt. Troops D, H and K under Benteen; and Troop B, guarding the pack train, under McDougall.

But of Troops C, E, I, F and L, which were under the immediate command of Custer and which were so quickly surrounded by the Indians there was not one—not ONE—survivor of Custer's last stand until that was not a man, but a horse. That enthusiastic "little survivor" was Comanche, the dapple-gray which was ridden into the battle by Capt. Myles W. Keogh of Troop I. Two days after the battle he was found wandering about the battlefield pierced by seven bullets but on watch and remained that at first it was doubted that the only survivor thing to do was to kill him. But, soon, it developed, Gen. Alfred H. Terry's chief of staff and an intimate friend of Captain Keogh, persuaded upon the soldiers to spare Comanche's life. His wounds were dressed and he was so well cared for on the steamer Far West, which carried the army's wounded from Custer's command back to Fort Abraham Lincoln, that he rapidly regained his usual form. By the age of twenty-eight years. When he died in 1890 the horse was stuffed at Fort Riley, Kan., and Professor Dyche, a naturalist connected with the University of Kansas, mounted the skin and today there stands in the Dyche museum at the University of Kansas the lifelike form of the only authentic survivor of "Custer's last stand."

OF IT may be as true about some one who "fought with Custer" and who "escaped the massacre because he was detailed from the regiment at the time." But there was not a ten such individuals's scarce within several hundred miles of the Little Big Horn on that day and have no more right to claim that they "fought with Custer" than have several hundred other men who were in the armies in the field against the hostile Indians during the campaign of 1876. There again it may be a item referring to some one who asserts that he was a "Custer scout," although the number of every man who has a legitimate claim to that title is well known and all of them, with the possible exception of some of the Arikara Indian scouts who accompanied Custer on his last expedition, are now dead.

Considering the amount of publicity that has been given from time to time to all these "last survivors," "Custer fighters" and "Custer scouts," it seems all the more remarkable that so little attention is paid recently to the passing of each important and genuine actor in the Custer tragedy. For when Brig. Gen. Edward S. Godfrey, U. S. A., retired, died at his home in Cheshire, Conn., on last April 16 it marked the end of the last of Custer's trusty commanders. On the day that Custer ordered General Godfrey and Lieutenant Geoffrey, commander of Troop K of the Seventh cavalry, and Troop K was a part of the battalion commanded by Capt. Frederick W. Benteen, the senior captain in the Seventh, when Custer divided the regiment to make his attack on the Indian village strung along the banks of the Little Big Horn.

Not only did General Godfrey play an important part in the fighting which took place after Benteen's command joined forces with the detachment commanded by Maj Marcus A. Reno, but in later years he became known as the leading authority on the Custer battle and the chief defender of Custer when the question was raised as to whether or not the Battle of the Little Big Horn was due to Custer's fancied—but, of the events of his previous career, Albert H. Terry. Not the least of General Godfrey's services to the memory of his chief commander was in refuting the slander that Custer had committed suicide when he saw that the destruction of his command was inevitable. In an article written in collaboration with Lieutenant Hare, who was a aide, and I cannot honestly pay anything further either of brave or false.

"Have you the same opinion now?" I asked where a man had just escaped the fate of his command. "I have not wavered in my opinion," he answered, and every report of every officer, including those of Reno and Benteen, bears out my contention. I have also several who claim to have been with Custer and who were not. Custer's command was destroyed in less than an hour and a half, and there were only two survivors of the fight, Curley, a Crow Indian scout, and a white man named Girard, who was a interpreter. Curley rode away on a horse and Girard escaped on foot. Both were killed, but perhaps not immediately, yet it is not believed possible that any of the men could have escaped. Sixty survivors in the same period—two days. Some have claimed that they were with Custer's command when he was killed in Little Bear's camp, on the Little Big Horn, which was flushed with the victory over Custer. The Bear, however, denies both statements that they took no prisoners on the battlefield, two possibilities of all the command, your scout was among the missing. Custer's command was destroyed. Even Benteen, who, with Reno, defended himself until reinforcements arrived, was severely criticized for his conduct of the battle. Reno was court-martialed and found guilty of cowardice in the face of the enemy, but was restored to duty on the recommendation of the court that the finding be remitted because of his previous good record. Benteen, who was also criticized, was exonerated by the court.

Some time ago I heard a rumor that there had been found a dead horse that was fully equipped, except for the saddle, and that it was a thoroughbred horse. I went to the scene of death as investigation. I returned to the settlement and reported that the horse had been shot in the head. It was impossible to determine if it was a scrub or "pure" cavalry or Indian horse, saddle, saddle-blanket and all the rigs were gone, and apparently in the same way the small grain bag with which the Seventh cavalry had provided itself. The oats in the bag had not been disturbed. The marks on the mare shoes. I was told that some five thousand the service in the Custer campaign. Also that a number of regular army officers, including Gen. Hugh L. Scott, had been present at the time of the discovery of the horse and had found the horse

REPORT OF REPUBLICAN CONVENTION AT CHICAGO

By Mr. H. Weber

To the Parishioners of the Lower Kalkaska Congregational Doctors of Medicine:

Dear Friends:

Having been impressed with the importance of calling your attention to belonging to the National Republican Convention held at Chicago on June 14th, 15th and 16th, I feel it my duty to call a meeting of your parishioners to thereby report to you the proceedings of the Convention and in which I had an important duty to perform as a delegate to the Convention.

The meeting was called to order and was started by John W. Hodgett, of Grand Rapids, with Thomas Clancy following. Paul Chase, Hillsdale; W. W. Blackmer, Flint, and William H. Klingensmith, Detroit as assistants.

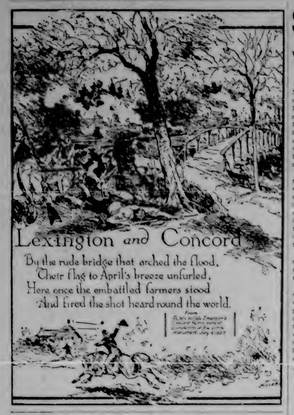
Following Paul Chase, Hillsdale; Samuel Eddy, Lake Linden; Mayor Clyde M. Ford, Detroit, permanent organization, Mrs. Lenore L. Woodbridge, Detroit, temporary chairman of the committee on credentials, Clarence Brucker, Whitten, as the party's candidate for, and with two persons the foundation of the country's stability, orderly government and world strength.

Second, A brief analysis of the various problems decided upon at this great convention must first be presented for your consideration. The organization of prohibition forces first, and to whom he truly says that prosperity has followed closely any conference with the latter as our administrative policy, because to attempt any other course in the presence of nearly twelve hundred delegates, so many diverse delegations, from so many different states, so many different shades of opinion, would have resulted in a chaotic mass of ideas and desires, which would have taken ages to work out.

Before the organization took place, however, the Progress Steps Committee, consisting of twenty-four members of leadership, of previous ballot of platform, framework of the party, of the many diversified governmental districts of Michigan left the room in session by Arthur Middlebelt, Saginaw, the Honored contributing to the unity of the party. I will and then and Neil, presiding Mrs. Lord in the Ballroom Room at the Congress Hotel Monday evening before the convention began. Practically every delegate was there, and although some of that meeting was well there were no differences of opinion of any sort. All were of one mind.

Governor Brucker opened the meeting at 10 o'clock, and very properly put the meeting into motion by the appointment of the temporary committees, a committee that dealt with the credentials and all that belongs to the national leaders Mr. Green being one of the members subscribing to a very timely report on the prohibition matter, the only question of the entire convention of importance, matter on which there was a decisive and considered decision of platform.

The committee on committees was headed



Secret Life of Kreuger Exposed

World's Greatest Swindler Lived as Gay Libertine.

New York.—While the colleges and New York banks are trying to recover millions of dollars they lost backing Ivar Kreuger, Swedish financial wizard and the world's greatest swindler, facts have come to light revealing his private life in New York, Paris and elsewhere as that of a libertine who lived narrowly to escape all his fixed quality as a hard-headed financial genius.

It has been found that he had the staggering sum of $30,000,000 to personal debt and between individual assets he owed more than he controlled. Records in Paris in which he concealed his debts were also found. Kreuger on a little turned off $500 for drinks at a time, surrounded by gay women, sparkling champagne, and lavish entertainment.

Kreuger in a New York penthouse, or in his Paris mansion with his wife, was a model husband and his private habits.

A successful smiling financier making transactions, and devoid of personal extravagance, he was a man of many personalities. Always the millions he was able to display enabled Kreuger to purchase the secrecy of the women who visited his secret hideaways.

And yet in the years during which Kreuger flitted from country to country, from continent to continent, not one of his women companions during his frivolous days the most subtle hint of associations that seldom acquired the dignity of true companionship.

GOOD ADVICE FOR A SAFE FOURTH

This year most of the nation will celebrate the Fourth of July with a three-day holiday. Such a long period for recreation is awaited eagerly by us all. Yet an unusual length double the hazards and danger to which we will be exposed.

Independence Day is known as the worst accident day of the year. This year may break the tragic record unless everyone guards himself closely and observes all safety rules. A list of "don'ts," all excellent advice, has been prepared by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters and follows:

If you drive your car—Drive Safely.

Don't drive recklessly—it's a long holiday and there's plenty of time.

Don't drive too long without resting—mental lapses due to fatigue cause accidents.

Don't pass other cars unless you have a clear view ahead; don't cut in and out of traffic lines; don't pass or fail to slow down at intersections.

If you go in swimming—Swim Safely.

If you celebrate with fireworks—celebrate safely.

Don't explode firecrackers near combustible materials.

Don't celebrate with guns loaded with real cartridges or shot; firecrackers and toy cap pistols are dangerous enough.

Don't fail to treat injuries, even the most minor ones, immediately and intelligently. Tetanus poisoning works slowly but surely.

Don't get too close to a display of fireworks—premature explosions occur

DEFENSE PREPAREDNESS

Those extreme and unreasoning pacifists who would have Uncle Sam disarm without regard to the military preparations of any other nation, and who decry Uncle Sam's refusal to do this as "militarism" and "imperialism" would do well to study that part of the Republican national platform adopted at Chicago on June 15, which deals with the questions of limitation of armament and national defense.

The resolution starts out by pointing to the fact that the movements for the reduction of armaments have originated with the United States government and not with the nations of Europe. In the Geneva disarmament conference," the resolution declares, "America is an active participant, and a representative delegation of our citizens is laboring for further progress in a cause to which our country has been an earnest contributor. This policy will be pursued."

Then on the maintenance of the defenses of the nation the resolution continues:

"Meanwhile, maintenance of our navy on the basis of parity with any nation is a fundamental policy to which the Republican party is committed. While in the interest of necessary government retrenchment, humanity and relief of the taxpayer we shall continue to exert our full influence upon the nations of the world in the cause of reduction of arms, we do not propose to reduce our navy defenses below that of any other nation.

Armaments are relative, and therefore, flexible and subject to change as necessity demands. We believe that in time of war every material resource in the nation should bear its proportionate share of the burdens occasioned by the public need and that it is a duty of government to perfect plans in time of peace whereby this objective may be attained in war. We support the essential principals of the national defense act as amended in 1920 and by the Air Corps Act of 1926, and believe that the army of the United States has through successive reductions, accomplished in the last twelve years, reached the irreducable minimum consistent with the self-reliance, self-respect and security of this country."

Here is a clear-cut definition of policy which ought to appeal to every American. The United States is not a warlike nation and never has been. We have all the territory we want and the greatest market in the world right here at home. There is no necessity, therefore, for imperial conquest and ninety-nine per cent of our people agree to this Efforts of unreasoning pacifists and other internationalists to give the impression that Uncle Sam is standing in the way of disarmament are dishonest and unpatriotic to say the least.

The United States has already reduced its land forces to skeleton-like proportions. It is willing to reduce its navy when other nations reduce in similar degree but is not willing to have one inferior to any other navy on the seas. We feed a navy as good as the best for the protection of our citizens and of our world trade. To agree to anything else would be the height of folly and the resolution adopted by the Republican party at Chicago fully recognizes this fact.

COOLIDGE ON DEBTS

There is sound logic and considerable food for reflection in the discussion of former President Coolidge on the subject of debt cancellation. Mr. Coolidge again calls attention to the fact that debts cannot be cancelled, that somebody must pay them, adding that "the money we furnished we had to borrow. Some one must pay it. It cannot be cancelled. If we do not collect it from Europe we must collect it from our own taxpayers." There can be no argument on that score. Cancellation is impossible. Somebody must pay.

A great deal of the argument of the internationalists for debt cancellation is based on the theory that it will help our foreign trade, that the nations of Europe relieved from the debt burden, will buy more from us. Well, there is room for argument here. In the first place, it is to be remembered that up to this time Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and the other nations which owe us have been carrying no debt burden. They have been collecting the money to pay us from Germany, and in the case of France at least, have been collecting considerably more.

Mr. Coolidge, however, brings up another point which argues potently against the theory that "cancelling" the debt would help our foreign trade. After declaring that the effect of debt payments on foreign trade is problematical, he adds:

"With all its unknown and unknowable factors, it is not possible to make an accurate analysis of either foreign or domestic trade. But there are some features of its relation to cancellation that seem plain. In the first place to remit the debts would be a direct subsidy of more than $250,000,000 per year to the governments of foreign countries made for the assumed purpose of inducing their people to trade with our people. While that would be something distinctly new under the sun, we ought not to discard it on that account, without examination.

While there is some sentiment in trade it is largely a matter of interest, going where it is most advantageous. The foreign people being relieved of certain taxes, it is assumed, would have more money to spend. But how can we be assured it would be expended here? The natural place for them to buy goods would be where the price was lowest. Our taxes would be higher because the bonds we issued to get money to lend Europe must be paid. That would increase the cost of our production.

"Instead of being better able to meet world competition and sell more goods to Europe, the chances would seem to be that other countries would be so high that Europe would not only find cheaper goods in other countries, but would be better able than at present to take away our foreign trade in non-European countries."

It is easily possible, therefore, as Mr. Coolidge suggests that the transferring of this debt burden to the backs of the American people would injure rather than assist our foreign trade. The whole question is one in which Uncle Sam must move slowly, and it is a good bet that he will move slowly.

BUY AMERICAN GOODS

Those who argue that we should lower our tariff barriers might get a new slant if they would start looking for foreign labels on various articles of merchandise now freely offered in the American market. They might bring themselves to the discovery that one of our big troubles is that our tariff schedules are insufficiently protective to prevent a constant dumping of goods made abroad—goods which could just as well be made by American workers here at home.

There can be no more effective "heavy artillery" against the depression than American purchasing power. It would be a fine thing for the country if everybody in the United States would apply the full force of his or her purchasing power exclusively (or as far as possible) to goods made by American labor.

All wealth is created by labor. About a hundred million Americans have money to spend. They can spend it for the goods that are made here at home. The application of our total purchasing power to products made, transported and distributed by American labor would block further unemployment, recall millions of workers back to the job, check reductions in wages and with each new job generate more purchasing power making for an elevation of wage levels.

The wets seem to be able to make just as much noise as they did in the old days when they had something to oil their whistles with.

Now that the budget has been balanced without a general sales tax wouldn't it be a good idea for Congress to add a general sales tax of one-half of one per cent, to be applied in emergency in case the budget gets itself unbalanced again?

COLONIAL LANDMARKS AT JAMESTOWN, VIRGINIA

"And he removed from thence and digged another well." This quotation from Genesis 24: 22 aptly applies to this old well from which the new arrivals in America drew their supply of pure water. Nearby are the ruins of the old church, its broken tower marking the way to tragic scenes in Colonial history. Both are now in the keeping of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

One of the most significant bits of news from an economic standpoint given to the American people in a long time was the announcement from New York the other day to the effect that the shipping of gold to France and other countries of Europe, principally Holland and Switzerland had come to an end. The central banks and governments of these European nations, it was announced, have practically completed the calling home of their gold deposits in the United States, a process which has covered long weary months. Gold may indeed be shipped to Europe but it will be principally "earmark ed gold", that is, gold which has already been set aside for shipment and which therefore is not counted in and has no effort on the gold reserve of the United States.

Although the immediate effect of this announcement was the strengthening of the American dollar and of American confidence in general, the announcement has greater significance than this. It means that the gold drain on the United States, which started last October about the time Great Britain left the gold standard, had been completed without in the least disturbing of the United States dollar or causing a ripple of unrest in the financial waters of the United States. During these months, a billion and a half in gold has been shipped to Europe. America has released it willingly and has so completely refuted and exploded the European charge that we were "hoarding" gold.

All sorts of reasons have been given for the withdrawal of this gold from America. The fact that it assumed great proportions immediately after England left the gold standard led many to believe that European financiers and governments feared that with Britain off the gold basis Uncle Sam would follow suit. Then the various inflationary measures proposed in Congress, although they had little chance of passing, have been misunderstood in Europe and caused withdrawal of gold through fear that Uncle Sam might embark on an era of uncontrolled inflation.

French banking authorities maintain that their action in withdrawing gold was a good thing for both France and the United States and will result in a better distribution of gold throughout the world for trade expansion. But unless some of this gold leaves France—and a great many financiers believe it will soon begin to do that very thing—it is difficult to see where the mal-distribution of gold has been remedied to any great extent.

Some of our own financial writers do not credit France with such unselfish motives in withdrawing gold from America. Aside from any fear of American stability, they say that the French were actuated by selfish political motives. They call attention to the fact that France has been using her gold in Europe as a political weapon for the past few years, seeking to dominate the politics of Europe by the yellow metal, rather than by gunpowder and steel. They charge further that the gold withdrawal was inspired in part by President Hoover's moratorium last summer which the French did not at all like and which they held up as long as possible and by a decisive on the part of the French to "teach Uncle Sam a lesson" and to show him that he should not try to run counter to French political aims.

Whether this is true or not, and whatever the motive may have been, it now appears that the world has learned a lesson concerning the stability of American institutions and of the American gold dollar. Despite the fact that we have shipped this great hoard of gold to Europe, Uncle Sam still has ample gold reserve and one which is larger than he has enjoyed many times before even in the big celebrated years of prosperity. The European run on America's gold is over and the confidence of Europe in America has been restored—it it was ever really lost, which is doubtful. The only thing which can harm us now in the matter of gold reserve is a lack of confidence on the part of the American people themselves. But if Congress gets through in short order, balancing the budget and averting the danger of inflation, confidence of Americans will begin to grow rather than to recede further.

June 26th was Sunday, but nevertheless it was a great day for Charlevoix. There were no noisy demonstrations, but a good portion of the town turned out to witness the cristening.

The unfinished depot was filled, the platform crowded, the right of way back to the terrace about all occupied, the space between the track and the beach was thick with carriages and omnibuses and three steamboats lay at the railroad dock.

The train from the south was scheduled for 2:40 p. m. but at 2:10 a train appeared and was supposed to be the regular, but proved to be a special. It consisted of a baggage car the vestibuled wagner "Lenvenor" and General Manager Healds private car. Engine No. 160 pulled the outfit. She side tracked, and twenty minutes later Engine No. 161 pulled in the regular train of three coaches and a baggage car. There was no demonstration but had it not been the Sabbath the crowd would have made itself heard at Boyne City.

A crowd of Charlevoix people boarded the train for the run to Petoskey which was made in 21 minutes taking the 10:30 train back in the evening. There was music in the brakesman's voice as he shouted "Charlevoix" to the passengers returning to their homes happy in the thought that the days of compulsory staging and steamboating were the things of the past.

The alumni reception to the graduating class at Hiram V. Rifenburg's last Wednesday evening was a most enjoyable social occasion, as well as one of unusual interest as an educational event. The beautiful lawn of the "dural palace" was illuminated by Chinese lanterns and music and mirth reigned till nearly midnight.

Fifty Years Ago

The Mason estate is being platted.

Work will be commenced at once on the Charlevoix Machine Shop.

The Charlevoix Fourth of July committee has selected the grove on the north side of Round Lake, for the exercises on that day.

Hon. John S. Dixon will be president of the day on the Fourth, Hon. E. H. Green, vice president, Rev. G. Daniels, chaplain, and A. J. McLeod, Marshal.

A "prairie schooner" of the old-fashioned sort, drawn by one mule and a horse, passed through town Tuesday. It came all the way from North Carolina, and its owner located in Hayes.

An opportunity will occur on July Fourth for the people of this region to hear a first class orator, as Gen Cutchon has for years been classed among the leading orators of Michigan. He speaks at Charlevoix the Fourth.

Ample facilities will be furnished on the Fourth for the people up the lake to get to Charlevoix in time to participate in the big celebration devoix to participate in the celebration. The Morley gets here at 9 a. m. from up Pine Lake, and the Ganelle will either lay up at the head Monday night or start from here early enough Tuesday morning to get here at nine. The South Arm boats will also get the people here at that hour. Charlevoix has secured one of Michigan's finest orators for the occasion, and the people of the entire region should avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered to hear him.

The Charlevoix School Board last week made a contract with Prof. J. D. Allen, of Clarkston, to assume the management of our school for the next year. Prof. Allen is an educator of many years experience, having been ten years principal of the schools at Ashtabula, Ohio, five years at Holly, Mich., and five years at Clarkston, Mich. He has a Ohio state certificate granted by special act of the legislature, and is spoken of by those who know him as a ripe scholar and good teacher. He proposes to purchase or build a residence here and become a permanent citizen of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix is to have a bank. Last week Mr. W. P. Brown, of Livingston county and Mr. Lewis Reynolds, of Gratiot county, were in town looking it over with a view of opening a banking office here. They had previously visited other towns where inducements had been held out to them, but upon arriving at Charlevoix, and looking the ground over they at once concluded that here was the place and informed our reporter that they would on or before the first day of September, open a bank here. The location of the bank is not yet determined, but the matter of a site for a building is left with their attorney here, Mr. Cruikshank. They propose to put in a burglar proof, time-lock vault, at an expense of at least $1,000, and both being wealthy men, will bring to the business ample capital. The business interests of Charlevoix have long felt the need of a bank and now that we are to have one, we have reason to congratulate ourselves.

Charlevoix Summer Resort Items. Work on the Music Hall is progressing rapidly. A new piano for the resort is on the way here. More new cottages are to be commenced next week.

A new landing is to be constructed on the upper river for the accommodation of guests wishing to take Pine Lake steamers.

The manager of the Belvedere House, Mr. Farnsworth, arrived the 20th inst. The assistants came last Tuesday. The Belvedere is now open for guests.

Mrs. Allen Potter, J. Knight and family, J. F. Woodbury and his daughter, Mrs. Ranson, Messrs. Fish and Smiley, L. T. Bixby and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hadlock, all of Kalamazoo; Mrs. Van Vleck, and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Hart and daughter, Flora of Ionia; Rev. Mather and family of Battle Creek are in their cottages.

Sixty Years Ago

We were allowed the pleasant privilege on day last week of a ride to the head of Little Traverse Bay. The weather was fine and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the trip. The Commodore Nutt, under the guidance of Capt. Aldrich, was the craft upon which we took passage. Many objects of interest met our eye on the way up, which we never saw before. Our attention was called to "Big Rock Point"", so-called from a monstrus rock, which tradition says was thrown from the north shore by a monstrous Indian, in by-gone times. When upon inspection we found that the rock projected ten feet above the water, and measured fourteen feet across, we concluded that tradition lies somewhat. We cannot consistently believe any such yarn. Through the tops of the trees, situated on a sightly eminence, beautifully shaded, we caught sight of the Indian village of Ka-ga-che-wind. Not enough of it was seen however, to judge of its size and appearance. After a row of two hours we reached Bear Creek which is directly opposite Little Traverse Harbor. Upon landing we saw nothing but a rattledown Catholic Church, just setern of which was a burying ground which is said to contain bodies closely packed and three deep. We guess this is true. Nobody near the Cathedral we noticed several low wooden buildings, which looked as though one of them might have been the summer residence of the "big injun" who ruled the pebble. But upon ascending the hill a different view presents itself. In the distance we behold green fields, and beautiful isolated groves, dybracing vine-clad cottages. The one farthest from us is the farm and residence of Deacon Andrew Porter. We soon reach the residence of Hon. Ingalls, and partake of cooling refreshments. We then begin to look about us, and find a sawmill, located on an excellent water-power and containing two sets—circular and upright. Nothing is being done in the mill now, owing to a scarcity of hands. Bear River is the natural outlet of Bear, or Walloon Lake, which lies five miles back from the Bay. It makes its appearance here through a deep gully, shaded on either side by overhanging trees. The scenery is truly romantic. Mr. Benjamin Ingalls gave us much information, and pointed out many objects of interest. A strong stock of general merchandise is to be found in a building backy by. Here we were shown an Indian war club, said to be the relic of the Fort Mackinac Indian Massacre of 1812. It is a curious looking weapon, feathered with feathers and ornamented with brass tacks, each one of the latter representing a scalp. The bloody and fiendish monster who used it is still living near by. We soon boarded the Commodore and steamed across the Bay to little Traverse Harbor. And on approaching the dock the first object that attracted our attention was the steam barge East Saginaw, taking on a cargo of shipping wood. Then we picked out from among the other Indians the smiling face of our friend Capt. Charles Davidson. We found everything hustle and confusion, the streets and dock being lined with Indians attendant on the payment. We were escorted by our host to his residence, where we had the pleasure of meeting Rev. George I. Bettis, the Indian Agent, and Mr. Godfrey, of Grand Rapids, the poor Indians' tried and true friend. We soon met our smug stock of general merchandise able Representative, Hon. C. B. Fenton, of Mackinac and subsequently we ran across our good friend Mr. riaWatterman, the Cheboygan Clothing Merchant—long may he wave! Bank Rollins we found looking sleepy, but handsome as ever. Henry is doing a thrivine business. He generously donated us a handful of peanuts, and we resumed our ramble in time to meet Mr. Blackbird, and others of our acquaintance. Little Traverse village is not much to boast of, but it is nestled down in one of the most romantic spots on the Great Lakes. The perfectly landlocked harbor cannot be excelled. After beging another handful of peanuts at one of the many shops with which the village was filled, we prepared for our return. Stepped aboard and crossed to Bear River, where we dined sumptuously at Mr. Ingalls' and then we pointed our bows homeward, entering the rives at dusk.

REPORT OF REPUBLICAN CONVENTION AT CHICAGO

By Al. H. Weber

Michigan's delegation was there practically 41 strong, and so was its section of alternates. The delegation proper was headed by Governor Brucker who was always present and keenly following the business of the meetings. Ex-Governor Fred Green was another person always in his place, alert and active. We might mention others that showed that same interest at all times in the convention, but those two delegates are best known to you and to the people at large. Following the usual routine necessary in the beginning of such gatherings, Hon. H. H. Snell of New York took the gavel as permanent chairman of the convention and his opening address was a ringing appeal to the party to stand firmly on President Hoover's presidential records as the sure foundation for victory at the polls in November.

Our next delegation caucus, or get together, took place in the French Room at the Stevens Hotel on Tuesday evening, after the resolutions committee had completed its report and the same was ready to be picked to pieces or adopted. Ex-Governor Green, who was a member of that resolution committee, and had been spending so many long and sleepless hours attempting to come to an amicable agreement on all matters, particularly on the convention's disposition of the liquor subject, read the resolutions as had been approved by a majority of the resolutions committee and also submitted the report of a minority of that committee, which had to deal only with the liquor question. Mr. Green all the way through, had taken the position that Michigan should adhere to the decision arrived at at the state convention held at Grand Rapids, while the soaking wets in the delegation insisted on a straight repeal of the Volstead act. Others favored the majority measure, but after a lot of wrangling and what turned out to be one of the most spirited events of states in the whole convention, a vote was taken and 28 of the delegates voted for the amendment backed by Ex-Governor Green and the other fifteen voted for the administration plank as was adopted at the convention later that night. Your delegate voted for the amendment.

We did not discuss the matter of a choice for president or vice president at any of our delegate meetings, deciding that in our way at the convention after setting through the long program of speech making that began when Hon. Joseph L. Scott of California in a fifteen minute speech closed by saying: "We of his own state of California, proudly present this homespun American. Herbert Hoover to lead us to victory." This announcement was the spark that turned the great stadium into a bedlam of marching, cheering, yelling, noise making men and women. This lasted for half an hour before Chairman Fess could again get order, and then followed resounding speeches in which our own Governor Brucker, called upon without preparation or planning, made his way to the speakers stand while his Michigan delegation stood while his Michigan delegation stood and cheered, and behind that brief contribution to eloquent oratory favorable to our president was a punch that caused delegation after delegation to arise to its feet and cheer along with Michigan, in what proved to be one of the most acceptable of all the seconding speeches. Michigan was doubly honored at this time as Mrs. Rhea West Miller, our former national committee woman, was also called to make a seconding speech. In the end President Hoover was swept to victory on the first ballot, needless to tell what became of the 28 votes registered against him.

In the nomination of a vice presidential candidate this did not require so much time, as it lacked the great excitement that took a half hour for the presidential nomination. It lacked the long list of seconding speeches. In the voting several states held back their vote until close to the end when it was certain that Vice President Curtis would be renominated, then Pennsylvania came in with its 75 votes, others that had held out followed and Mr. Curtis was nominated on the first ballot and the convention came to an end amidst wild cheering.

Notes

The adoption of the majority report on the wet and dry question, in the end, proved to be the most practical solution of the problem looming so large before the public mind today. The adoption of the majority report was a decided victory for the wets, who never can hope to attain a repeal of the 18th amendment, while that period would mean the business of the moonshiner and the bootlegger as well as smash the plans of the ardent drys. The amendment to the 18th amendment will allow each state to decide whether it wants to be wet or dry, and in the final analysis it may have the assistance of the federal government in helping keep inviolate its laws. The proposed amendment does not allow the return of the saloon, and it leaves open the way to individual state control.

In the final analysis the minority report sought to attain the same end, but it was put into more understandable phraseology, and would have perhaps been better understood.

Michigan's 41 delegates were practically all in constant attendance at all conferences and convention meetings. The alternate delegates also evidenced an keen interest in all that transpired and your alternate delegate, Mrs. E. B. Armstrong of Charlevoix was always in her chair, except when filling your delegate's place when he was called away, and her political views meshed perfectly with those acts registered by the delegates from her state.

FIRST BARRYMORE PLAYS IMPORTANT FILM CHARACTER

In this story, based on the play by Maurice Rostand, famous French playwright and author, Barrymore essays the role of a middle-aged German parent who, although the war has been past history for a decade, is still a bitterly nationalistic partisan.

Violent in his accusations against the French, he inspires his entire community, a small town in post-war Germany, to subscribe to his own point of view.

His neighbor, Nancy Carroll, had been the sweetheart of Barrymore's son, a German soldier who was killed in the war. When Phillips Holmes, the French youth who killed him, and who also suffered a profound remorse, comes to tell the dead man's family of his deed, Nancy intercepts the errand. Should Holmes tell the father, she feels sure the old gentleman would kill him. Holmes meets the family, but because of Nancy's entreaties, he refrains from telling them the harrowing facts that have preyed on his soul.

But Barrymore soon forgets his nationalistic fervour, and becomes very friendly toward Holmes. And Nancy falls in love with the youth Holmes is determined that he must make a clean breast of it, and tell Barrymore of the part he played in Nancy's former sweetheart's death.

He is on the point of carrying out his resolve when the pinnacle of the drama is reached—and all ends happily for the sweethearts.

It is the first time that Barrymore had ever portrayed such a role in the talkies and he carries the delineation of the hard-headed, but lovable old patriot with a full measure of his accustomed skill.

Lionel Barrymore last year received first prize for acting honors from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. He is the eldest member of America's most famous stage family. John is the youngest. Ethel's between.

JOAN BENNETT COMING HERE SOON IN "WEEK ENDS ONLY"

The forced vacation of a "week end girl" in the role adapted by Joan Bennett in her latest Fox Film production, "Week Ends Only," coming to the Palace Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday, Democrats take note, is unbroken after her father's exit in Wall Street and his subsequent death. Miss Bennett gets a job as a speakeasy manager by her former butler, and from this point achieves her new profession.

Miss Bennett, whom dramatic critics say has recently been enhanced with the discovery of her talents as a fine comedienne, is said to have ample opportunity in this production to display both qualities. Ben Lyon as a carefree art student and John Halliday as an amorous millionaire have the leading male roles and present an effective contrast in their rivalry.

Halliwell Hobbes as the executive who befriends Miss Bennett, Allan Dinehart, Burton Churchill, John Arledge and other Fox favorites are in the cast of this production.

Interesting backgrounds abound throughout the picture. A luxurious lodge in the Adirondacks, a Greenwich Village studio, a millionaire's home, an ocean liner and a speakeasy that is the fanciful reproduction of one of New York's most exclusive and secretive resorts, serve as the settings for much of the action. Alan Crosland, who has turned out many successes during his screen career, directed "Week Ends Only" as the first Fox offering. William Conselman wrote the screen play and dialogue from the successful novel by Warner Fabian.

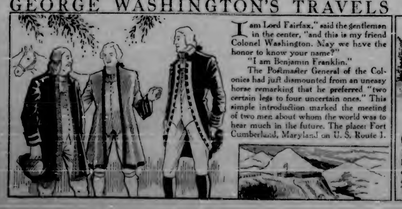
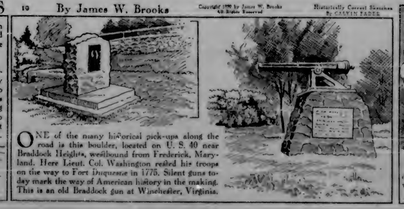
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS



I am Lord Fairfax," said the gentlemen in the center, "and this is my friend Colonel Washington. May we have the honor to know your name?"

"I am Benjamin Franklin."

The Postmaster General of the Colonies had just dismounted from an uneasy horse remarking that he preferred "two certain legs to four uncertain ones." This simple introduction marked the meeting of two men about whom the world was to hear much in the future. The place: Fort Cumberland, Maryland on U. S. Route 1.



ONE of the many historical pick-ups along the road is this boulder, located on U. S. 40 near Braddock Heights, westbound from Frederick, Maryland. Here Lieut. Col. Washington rested his troops on the way to Fort Duquesne in 1770. Silent guns today mark the way of American history in the making. This is an old Braddock gun at Winchester, Virginia.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lella Hattersley

The Distributional Count

No. 6.

THE START with an orderly process of constructive thinking concerning the worth of the actual cards which you hold when making the most usual bid at contract, a suit bid of one, let us realize how many tricks you are undertaking to win and ascertain what will be the probable source of those tricks. When bidding one you contract for seven tricks. Of course you are not expected to take all seven tricks yourself. Your hand is supposed to furnish at least four of the contract, and you are permitted to count on finding about three assisting tricks in your partner's hand.

To see how your own four tricks can be counted, let us take this fourth type of a minimum one heart bid:

S:8 6 4 H:A Q 9 3 D:8 6 4 C:7 6

(When vulnerable, this hand would be too weak for an opening bid. Vulnerable, a four-card suit bid must hold at least a queen better than the minimum.) Obviously as only 7% of your tricks appear in honors, something additional must be produced from the length or distribution of your suits. One of those expected playing tricks is a small heart; because in bidding a suit, you are always permitted to count one playing trick for every trump over three, that is, one end trick in a nine-card trump [illegible] trump suit, and three end tricks in a six-card trump suit. This brings your hand to a total of 3½ playing tricks. Where is the other ½ to be found? In another "long-card," the fourth diamond, which has about a fifty-fifty chance of setting up as an eventual winner. In side suits, you may also claim as a playing trick to every card over three—just half the value of "long-cards" in the trump suit. Thus you get the value of the above hand as a total of 4 playing tricks which include 2½ honor-tricks.

Now, suppose that you have bid one heart on the holding above described. Your valuation is sound because unless your partner has adequate trump support it is improbable that you will ever play the hand at hearts. If he bids the balance of honor strength but lacked trump support, your partner would take you out. If he lacked both honor strength and trump support, the opponents would declare their strength, relieving you of your responsibility. In no case could you redid such a hand at hearts, even though your partner gave you every encouragement to do so.

When opening an original bid in a suit, the estimate of your playing tricks is based entirely on honor-cards and long cards in trumps and side suits. Singletons or void suits cannot be counted as extra tricks because the ruffing in your hand have already been estimated as playing plenty. To add a value for singletons or void suits would simply amount to counting the same tricks twice. A particular warning must be given against this error, often made by fairly experienced players. A short suit or void is as we shall see an extremely valuable asset in the ensuing hand to a trump bid. But in the declarer's hand it has only a slight promotional value, too indefinite to count.

In Declarer's hand	In dummy with suit
A 4-card length is worth	1 trick ½ trick
A 5-card length is worth	2 tricks 1 trick
A 6-card length is worth	3 tricks 1½ tricks

As a matter of fact, in the first declaration of a suit bid, it is not necessary to count playing tricks. All sound opening suit bids of one show about 4 playing tricks for the reason that there must be no less than 2½ honor-tricks in the hand and at least one long suit trick in reserve; an additional ½ trick can almost invariably be found somewhere. But in constructing rebids, after your partner has raised, or sometimes after he has denied your suit, it is absolutely essential that you count your playing tricks and ascertain how many partner can contribute for the combination. After he, Southland, Portland, Baltimore, had presented in a modest way the long-card tricks in his mixed yarborough for the Presidential Job, Doctor Francis attempted to secure recognition from the chair, and when he found attempted to force his way onto the platform. The audience promptly he wanted to say something more in his own behalf, but that was not the good doctor's purpose. What he wanted to do was to withdraw his own name and present to the convention the name of the distinguished Massachusetts representative, Calvin Coolidge. The police took a hand in the affair, escorted the doctor from the platform, and the name of Calvin Coolidge was not mentioned except that during the roll call for the Presidential nomination three or four delegates from as many states interrupted speech-making for this.

Check These With an Atlas

Some surprising facts have been compiled by the National Geographic society. The city of Reno, Nev., is 100 miles farther west than Los Angeles, Jacksonville, Fla., is farther west than Cleveland, Ohio. One travels south from Detroit to reach the nearest part of Canada. At Panama the sun rises in the Pacific and sets in the Atlantic. New York city lies west of the Pacific—that part of it which touches Alaska—Portland Oregonian.

Place for the Booster

Boosters flourish much of the sunshine in our daily existence. A kind word, a smile, is relished by everyone. A grouch is the friend of no one. So try putting in a three follow on the back, instead of soaking him on the head.—Griffe.

Fishing Note

Tailing does not scare fish while you are in a boat, says a veteran angler, but the movement of feet on the bottom of the boat, as the urge from a motor can be toy 10 under the water. He says noises are reflected from the surface of the water.

First Street Lighting

In the year 1414, the city of London introduced street lighting by ordering every house and shop owner on certain streets to hang out a lantern at midnight.

G. O. P. BIG SHOW AT CHICAGO WAS A MASTERPIECE

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Chicago.—The Republican convention met, nominated Herbert Hoover as the party's candidate for President, and Charles Curtis as its candidate for Vice President, adopted a platform that embodies a modification of the prohibition amendment to the states as one plank, and adjourned.

That is what was accomplished by 1,152 delegates—Senator Borah not being present—and 1,154 alternates, who crowded a great hall from the first convention an estimated total distance of 2,306,000 miles at a cost for railroad fare of something over $60,000.

So far as the actual issues of the convention was concerned one reporter—even the multi-eyed have written it at any time during the last three months and possibly at any time during the last three years. For there had to be a convention, the presently participated delegates must have their day in the sunlight, even though there was no reason for even for a Presidential nomination, and after all had to pay their own railroad fare and hotel bills. Members of the platform committee had to have the opportunity of being known as contributors to posterity. The assistant secretaries and the ushers would never have been satisfied had they been deprived of wearing their badges, and even the press vouchers had to have their chance to earn an honest dime.

The Nomination Is a Walk

When the roll call of states for the naming of candidates began on Thursday the California delegation was the first one to respond and James Scott presented the name of Herbert Hoover. His naming of the President produced the only genuine demonstration of the convention. When Oregon was reached the name of Hoover Frazier was long and loud in coming, an additional ½ trick can almost invariably be found somewhere. But in constructing rebids, after your partner has raised, or sometimes after he has denied your suit, it is absolutely essential that you count your playing tricks and ascertain how many partner can contribute for the combination. After he, Southland, Portland, Baltimore, had presented in a modest way the long-card tricks in his mixed yarborough for the Presidential Job, Doctor Francis attempted to secure recognition from the chair, and when he found attempted to force his way onto the platform. The audience promptly he wanted to say something more in his own behalf, but that was not the good doctor's purpose. What he wanted to do was to withdraw his own name and present to the convention the name of the distinguished Massachusetts representative, Calvin Coolidge. The police took a hand in the affair, escorted the doctor from the platform, and the name of Calvin Coolidge was not mentioned except that during the roll call for the Presidential nomination three or four delegates from as many states interrupted speech-making for this.

Veteran Attendant at Convention Is Honored

That at least three T. H. Perry of Bradenton, Fla., realized the sensation of a lifetime. He not attended R. O. P. conventions prior—pretty every one since the party was founded—and he'd had personal contact with many who have made party history. But he never before set upon the platform of a national convention, until this year.

It came about like this: Mr. Perry, venerable and inveterate convention-goer, came all the way from Florida like those recently, as a spectator. Consequently he was seated far up in the highest gallery.

Mrs. Harry S. Smoot of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois Republican Women's club, happened to emit her eyes heavenward and saw the stately figure, recognizing it as one she had seen at many other conventions. She conferred with the national committee, told them about Mr. Perry and his record. Soon thereafter Mr. Perry was overwhelmed by the honor of being led to the platform, introduced to all the dignitaries and seated.

He claimed hands with Lincoln's "a" by the Chicago convention in 1860. He met clarified, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft. When he held Roosevelt he was "for him," he said, Teddy beamed and said:

"Only for you?"

Silent Lancashire Clogs

Another new trade has come to Lancashire, in the wake of a new fashion. It is the making and the wearing, of the silent clog. Once every cotton town was clogged with the clatter of the wooden clogs of the millworkers as the mills were [illegible] which they were shod rumored on the pavements. Now clogs are being made again in that line of economy, shod with rubber instead of iron. The millworker has taken little her old footwear, but goes to her looms on silent feet. Even postmen and policemen are using the new clog.

JEFFERSON'S NAME HIGH AMONG THOSE WHOSE FAME LIVES

More than a century ago groups of negro slaves stood on the lawn on the hilltop of Monticello mourning and weeping for the master of the mansion who had just closed his eyes in death; and far off at Quincy, in the rambling frame house, with its gardens and trees, people were gathered about the bed in which John Adams lay dying. His mind was at Monticello and he was answering, perhaps, lacerates to him and answered the last letter of the friend of his youth and age. His last words: "Thomas Jefferson still lives," he said.

A moment later both Jefferson and Adams had been gathered to their fathers—and it was the Fourth of July.

Just half a century before to the day the two men had enacted heroic roles. Jefferson, bending over a little desk in a room in Philadelphia, had written the Declaration of Independence and put the hand to a goose, and John Adams, who fought so stoutly to command its articles had failed lamentably to alter.

for continuing assistance to co-operate through the farm marketing act, and to this end Congress, after an hour, put down to that one whirl, all important subject, prohibition, they were interested.

The authority of the resolutions committee authorized a plank that would satisfy the Eighteenth amendment drys and permit the wets to stand personally people of any state to decide for themselves whether they wished to be dry or wet. It was the first appearance of the modification of the Eighteenth amendment in the state or transportation of intoxicating liquors within the state. It was the federal government's duty to control and regulate the sale of liquor within the state. It implied that the federal control and regulation would be through the medium of personally dispensaries to be established in wet territories only.

Other planks call for tax reduction; for a definite tariff and the extension of tariff protection to cover natural resources; [illegible] farms, forests, mines and oil wells; for a shorter work day and shorter week of work, restriction of immigration, collective bargaining, freedom of speech and assembly, for a home loan discount bank system; for giving the federal power commission authority to regulate charges for electric current when transmitted between states, and others that are usually found in any party platform.

If all of those wavering assistant secretaries and ushers voted for the prohibition ticket next November, Mr. Hoover is sure of victory.

"Welcome to the g. o. p., ANTON J. CERMAK, Mayor," was the message carried in the arm of every city official in sun on July 5, and printed the Sun Dial.

On July 2 Lee's resolutions were passed by the vote of twelve of the thirteen colonies, the New York delegation refraining from voting for want of instructions from their provincial. On July 3 the formal declarations, almost precisely as written by Thomas Jefferson, was reported by the committee and debated most of the day. John Adams sang the chief speaker for the part of the nine united. The discussion was resumed in the morning of the 4th, and at two minutes in the afternoon, after one or two slight modifications, it was adopted.

Silent Lancashire Clogs

Another new trade has come to Lancashire, in the wake of a new fashion. It is the making and the wearing, of the silent clog. Once every cotton town was clogged with the clatter of the wooden clogs of the millworkers as the mills were [illegible] which they were shod rumored on the pavements. Now clogs are being made again in that line of economy, shod with rubber instead of iron. The millworker has taken little her old footwear, but goes to her looms on silent feet. Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

The greatest thrill a mother can know

HER BABY . . . thriving . . . gaining by leaps and bounds! His back, strong and fine as a little champion's. His teeth developing perfectly. His legs straight and sturdy. His skin rosy, his flesh firm, his whole body a living promise of health—radiant, buoyant health—through the years to come!

Can any food except Nature's food build such a baby? Millions of mothers have answered Yes to this question. And now more emphatically still a world-famous clinic answers Yes.

Living proof—in millions of healthy babies

Seventy-five years ago, Gail Borden gave Eagle Brand to the mothers of America. Today, Eagle Brand—second only to mother's milk in easy digestibility—is known as a wonderful infant food the world over. Eagle Brand has raised more healthy babies than any other food, excepting mother's milk. In practically every community are healthy, sturdy boys and girls, and men and women who got their start in life on Eagle Brand. Itsyourown tcommunity, see how these Eagle Brand ex-babies compare.

What the scientists discovered

But newer still is the news from the world-famous baby clinic. Two physicians fed a group of 50 average babies on Eagle Brand for a period of several months—checking with care every detail of their health and growth. Bone structure. Tooth development. Weight and height gains. Blood count . . . And those 50 Eagle Brand babies, judged by every known test, proved themselves superbly nourished!

Mail coupon below for a free copy of "Baby's Welfare"—containing feeding instructions and directions for general care; also histories and pictures of Eagle Brand babies. We will gladly send your physician a report of above scientific test of Eagle Brand. Your grocer sells Eagle Brand—feeding instructions are on the label.

Leslie Howard, who plays the leading male role in Paramount's "Berkeley Square" which comes to the Palace Theatre Thursday, is an English actor who first gained prominence on the London stage about a decade ago. Because of his outstanding dramatic talent and attractive personality, American theatrical producers drafted him for featured roles on the Broadway stage. He was an immediate and pronounced success.

His first Hollywood appearance was in the role of Sir Galverton Shigley in "Just Suppose" During the next fifteen years he appeared in fifteen major American productions, the most prominent of which was "Outward Bound" playing opposite Kathlen Cornell, and "Her Cardboard Lover," in which he scored a great success, which success he repeated in London on two occasions in one of which Tallulah Bankhead played the feminine lead.

In 1927, just ten years after becoming an actor, he joined the ranks of the playwrights and wrote the play "Murray Hill" which he produced later in London under the title "Tell the Truth." In addition, at about the same time, he staged some productions in London theatres.

Howard's most recent stage engagement was the lead in the successful Broadway play, "The Animal Kingdom." He enjoyed pictures several years ago, playing prominent parts.

Howard was not born to the dramatic profession, in fact he started as a bank clerk in London shortly after finishing his education at Dulwich School. He quickly tired of his banking vocation and joined the British army after the breaking out of the World War. He was honorably discharged from the service in 1917 and then chose to become an actor. He is married to Ruth Evelyn Martin and has two children, a son Ronald and daughter named Leslie Jr., after her father. His principal recreation is riding and his hobby is amateur photography.

Howard's most attractive stage and screen characterization is that of the smooth, suave, sophisticated lover.

Mrs. L. G. Hamlin, daughter Nauna, and Jamin accompanied by Mrs. Merlin Truss, motored up from Elkhart, Indiana, Saturday to visit Mrs. Hamlin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ulrich, for about ten days.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR JOSEPH PFISTER

Mr. Joseph Pfister for many years a resident of Charlevoix, but more recent years living in Detroit, died suddenly, Saturday afternoon in his home city.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfister, long time Charlevoix residents.

The date of his birth is given as October 26, 1887, therefore at the time of his passing in his 45th year. and place of birth, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfister have resided here since 1925 and it was at that time that the subject of this sketch came to Charlevoix with his parents. Some years later Joe enlisted in the U. S. Navy, during which period of enlistment he visited many foreign ports, making the trip with the fleet of battle ships on their around the world during the Roosevelt regime. At the close of his term of enlistment he returned to Charlevoix and later secured a position in Detroit where he continued until his death a period of eighteen years, except for the time he saw service in the World War. During the World War he was on a transport, making nine round trips between New York and France.

The body accompanied by Mrs. Pfister and daughter Barbara arrived here Monday for funeral service. The service was held Wednesday forenoon at St. Mary Church with the rector, Fr. Neubecker officiating and this was attended by relatives and a large number of local friends and members of the American Legion. Many floral offerings, beautiful ones, were forwarded from distant points as well as many from local friends testifying to the sentiment in which the deceased was held during his life time.

He was united in marriage in Detroit with Miss Margaret Webster, November 1, 1917, by whom he is survived, also by the daughter Barbara, herein mentioned, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfister, Charlevoix, and a sister, Mrs. A. P. Young of Boyne City.

FOURTH ENJOYED BY THOUSANDS

LEGION SPONSORS MOST SUCCESSFUL CELEBRATION

With arrangements completed and everything set for the celebration in advance of July 4 and a superior day provided by the weather man, the American Legion members, sponsors of the event went into action early Monday morning on the program undertaken by them as sponsors for the city.

Weather conditions for the entire day were superior, absolutely perfect, all fitting in with a well balanced program carried out in detail in such a manner as to be heartily endorsed by the throng of people witnessing the several events.

Affairs passed off pleasantly, entirely so, as there was, nor has there been, any criticism about the way the celebration was planned and conducted. Taken all in all it probably was the best and most satisfactory event of like nature in the history of this region.

Early in the forenoon the vanguard of the crowd appeared on the scene and a little later the streets were crowded with sightseers and parking space was at a premium. Throughout the entire day the crowd increased in size, the high point in attendance being during the early hours of evening, continued in large proportions until after midnight, after which it gradually faded, with a moderate proportion actively engaged in pleasureable pursuits until the break of day.

The Legion boys got off to an early start, proceded swiftly with their work during the day and kept it up through the night. They were everywhere, directing this and ordering that. Their directing was perfect, their orders supreme. "Let's go" was the order of the day? "Let's go," was the order usually observed. From them came the orders and observance of the order spelled success. Non-observance took another route and spelled failure for the pleasure seekers. Every thing was on time and failure to witness any special feature of the occasion was due simply to non-observance of instructions given, hence a loss to those superiors who knew best—even better than those in charge.

Noise was reduced to a minimum, regardless of the size of the crowd, the large number of machines moving constantly. for celebration purposes on Independence Day. Occasionally a small firecracker exploded or a small blank cartridge by some enthusiast made the high spots in so far as noise was concerned, except such as was made by shooting of the small cannons by Legion members. "Quiet" seemed to be the order of the day and so far as noise was concerned the celebration could have been held as well on Sunday. There was in this regard no objectionable feature.

The street parade was one of the attractions of the day. Floats by civic organizations and business places were attractively arranged, all are worthy of mention even the clowns. The display put on by the W. C. T. U. easily won the distinction of being the best in this feature, hence was awarded the grand prize.

From early morning the S. S. Ossian Bedell, Captain James H. Gallagher, was engaged in making trips to Boyne City, East Jordan, around Lake Charlevoix and out on Lake Michigan. The steamer was under charter for the day under an arrangement with the Legion. She made several trips and upon each carried a large number of passengers and made for the most entertaining feature of the day as well as profitable to the ship owner and to those who chartered the craft.

Mr. Theodore D. Birnkrant and brother Norman B. of the legal firm of Birnkrant Bros., consisting of five brothers, of Detroit spent several days here recently. They are also interested in Charlevoix real estate, consisting of business properties.

TRICK SHOES, NOSES, WIN FORTUNE FOR COMICS

Fortune may lie in a sneeze; fame may rest upon a pair of crossed eyes, and steady work may be derived from clever manipulation of a toothpick.

Such strange trade-marks were revealed recently in a survey of the specialties indulged in by the screen comedians who are appearing in "Million Dollar Legs," Paramount's Olympic Games Comedy, which comes to the Palace Theater, on Sunday and Monday with a cast headed by Jack Oakie, W. C. Fields, Ben Turpin, Lyda Roberti and Andy Clyde.

The survey was suggested by the fact that there are more than 100 expert and well-known funsters at work in Hollywood studios, and, with few exceptions, each one has an individual trick not duplicated by the others. Take, for example, Harold Lloyd's horn-rimmed glasses, Charlie Chaplin's tiny moustache and shoes, Charlie Ruggles' hat and sagger, Buster Keaton's frozen face, etc.

When the roster of comedians appearing in "Million Dollar Legs" was examined, the most obvious examples of trade mark humor were found to be Billy Gilbert, who has made a fortune out of a comedy sneeze; Ben Turpin, whose crossed eyes have made him world famous, and Ernie Adams, in constant demand because he gives character to a toothpick.

EXCURSION PLANNED FOR LEGIONNAIRES

TRI-POST AND TRI-UNIT OUTING SET FOR JULY 17TH

The long talked of outing of the Legion and Auxiliary organizations of Charlevoix County will take place Sunday, July 17th.

The steamer "Ossian Bedell" has been secured and will make the trip to Beaver Island and back, Charlevoix at 9:00 in the morning and returning to Charlevoix around 9 o'clock in the evening.

Basket lunches may be taken or dinner secured on Beaver Island. Handball or baseball and other games will feature the program of the day which will be worked out in detail later.

This affair is planned as an old-fashioned get to gether meeting and special arrangements have been made to insure the children of Legionnaires and ex-service men of a good time. To insure this the fare will be $1.00 for any Legionnaire, this to include his wife and children.

Friends and relatives may be invited, the fare for which will be 50c for adults and 25c for children.

In other words as far as Legionnaires are concerned, bring your lunch, a $1 bill and sunny disposition and enjoy an entire day of varied pleasure.

FLOWING WELL SUCCESS

After many days of laborious work during which many difficulties were overcome and disappointments galore placed in the background, Frank Hammond, well driller, of Ironton, Burton L. Brooks, superintendent of the work and J. W. Harris owner of resort property near Ironton, on Lake Charlevoix, now smile complacently and are pleased with the result of their effort, through which they brought from a depth of 130 feet a flow of water of 2,000 gallons per hour through a 2-inch casing, that raises 21 feet above the ground level at one of the Harris cottages.

Nor did their troubles cease for some time after the well came in. The next thing was to control the flow, no small task without proper equipment. This was finally accomplished satisfactorily, not however until the grounds were flooded, making more extra work by way of building drainage to relieve the situation.

With this done and the flow of water controlled, there was a happy trio, hence the smiles and contented look on the faces of the men who brought in the well and the property owner.

PIONEER DIES HERE TUESDAY

MRS. MILLARD OLNEY LONG A RESIDENT OF THIS REGION

Following an illness that has been continuous over a period of fourteen years, Mrs. Elizabeth Olney, wife of Millard Olney, passed away at the family residence, 104 Hurlbut Avenue, Tuesday afternoon July 5.

Mrs. Olney was a pioneer resident of this region. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Miller. She was born at Toronto, Canada, July 9th, 1850 and when fifteen years of age came to this region with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Miller.

She was united in marriage with John Maxey at Norwood April 20, 1876 who passed away one year later leaving him with a family of three children, all of whom are living at this time, John Maxey and Mrs. Elizabeth Durance of Charlevoix; Mrs. Rose Wittum of Burlington, Minn., Mrs. Louise Houck, of Mount Clemens, Mich. and Eugene Maxey of Rexhill, South Dakota. Other survivors are the husband before mentioned, one sister, Mrs. Lena Wallace of Charlevoix, two brothers, Charles Miller of Detroit, George Miller of Muskegon Heights and seven grand children.

Funeral service will be held at the Church of God this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the pastor, Rev. I. T. Mark officiating. Interment will be at Brookside.

Mrs. Olney has resided in this region, the major part of the time in Charlevoix, continuously for nearly six decades of time. Her life with the public has been an open book each page of which carries a record of faithfulness to duty to her family friends and community.

Although more or less of an invalid for many years she has been a remarkable source of assistance to the needy in ways other than financial and many can give evidence of her charitable acts, helpfulness in times of dire need and thorough understanding of the misery endured as in the lot of true pioneers in the struggle for existence.

Her life work has been one of devotion to her family and friends. In this she made many and frequent personal sacrifices and now that she has gone she leaves many to sincerely regret her passings.

CELEBRATE FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith of Detroit, where they have lived for the past decade, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, July 4th, by spending the day with Charlevoix friends as guests of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are pioneers of this region and until recent years residents of Charlevoix.

The city park was rendezvous for members of the Smith Clan July 4 when the family members, some fifty in number met and enjoyed a picnic dinner.

The following family members were represented at the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Jess Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Smith and family and Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Ross, the latter a daughter, and family of Charlevoix, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vallow, the latter a daughter, of Mancelona; Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Smith, also a daughter, and family and Miss Bertha Smith of Bellaire, Mr. Stephen Smith, a brother of Mr. F. W. Smith of Charlevoix; Also Mr. and Mrs A. Brenmeyer of Petoskey and Miss Linehan of Harbor Springs, old time friends of the venerable and highly respected couple.

Mrs. Geo. L. Warner, Miss Caroline Smith and Mrs. M. H. Dodd, after spending the winter months at Daytona Beach arrived Friday from the south and are occupying the Warner Cottage of the Belvedere grounds for the summer.

MARY JANE NYMAN DIES UNEXPECTEDLY YESTERDAY

Charlevoix citizens were shocked this morning when a report spread rapidly over the city that Miss Mary Jane Nyman passed away unexpectedly at the home of her grand parents at a late hour last night.

She was born in Charlevoix June 1, 1918, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Nyman, but practically her entire lifetime was spent with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams.

For some time passed she has been afflicted with diabetic troubles, but regardless of this she appeared to the casual observer as rugged and healthy as any normal child of like age and just as happy and active. Occasionally in past years she has been seriously ill as a result of the malady but has quickly recovered. Late last night she suffered another attack that came practically without warning and shortly thereafter, at 10:15 p. m. she passed away.

She is survived by her father Emory Nyman of Petoskey, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams and other more distant relatives, all of whom are grief stricken over their loss.

Bright, happy and cheerful of disposition "June" as she was known, was loved and enjoyed by everyone with whom she came in contact. She was idolized by family members who keenly feel the lost sustained by her death.

Funeral service will be at St. Mary's Church Friday morning at 10:15 with Father Neubecker officiating.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING MONDAY

TWO NEW MEMBERS ARE TO BE ELECTED AT SESSION

The annual school meeting is set for Monday evening, July 11, at 8:00 o'clock at which time reports for the past year will be heard and other work incident to the school activities presented and two members of the board of education elected. The retiring members are Mrs. E. J. Hiller and Mrs. B. Saltonstall. The meeting is important to patrons of the school and taxpayers and should attract all people interested in local educational affairs and no doubt will be liberally attended.

Ray Faulkner, Jr., who for some months past has been an instructor at Ohio State University returned home early this week to spend his vacation with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulkner, Sr. The latter met their son at Grand Rapids, all returning from that city via the motoring route.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Leventon and children motored up from Chicago Saturday. Mr. Leventon spent the following two days at the Leventon summer place near Ironton, returning to Chicago Monday afternoon. Mrs. Leventon and the other family members remaining for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacArthur and daughter Mildred of Flint were guests over the week end of Mrs. MacArthur's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Eckinger. Mr. and Mrs. MacArthur returned home early this week, Miss Mildred remaining with her grandparents for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rasmeur are at their fine cottage, 405 Mercer Blvd. where they will continue until some time next month, when they return to their home, St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Fred G. Bellinger motored up from Frankfort Sunday and spent the day with Charlevoix relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Ball of Traverse City, were visitors here early this week.

BAND CONCERT THURS. NIGHT

FIRST CONCERT INTERRUPTED BY SHOWERS

Thursday, June 30, opened the 1932 concert season for the City Band. The band appeared and had completed three numbers when rain prevented the completion of the program. The numbers which were rendered for this concert will appear in the coming programs.

In accordance with Independence Day last Monday's concert program was filled with stirring patriotic music. Music of war days always fills the heart with patriotism A group of soldiers songs of 1776 and a medley of world war songs were greatly appreciated by the audience, and the trombone solo by Carl Beattie was quickly recovered. Late last night he suffered another attack that came practically without warning and shortly thereafter, at 10:15 p. m. the pained away.

She is survived by her father Emory Nyman of Petoskey, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Adams and other more distant relatives, all of whom are grief stricken over their loss.

Bright, happy and cheerful of disposition "June" as she was known, was loved and enjoyed by everyone with whom she came in contact. She was idolized by family members who keenly feel the lost sustained by her death.

She continued her trip to Charlevoix via Traverse City where she was met yesterday by her father-in-law F. H. Hines, who brought her here for a short visit before returning to her home on the west coast.

Mr. Ray O. Brundage of Kalamazoo was a guest of Attorney Arthur L. Fitch Tuesday. Mr. Brundage was a visitor north of the Straits earlier in the week making his Charlevoix visit on his return south.

"MAN ABOUT TOWN" WITH WARNER BAXTER, AT PALACE TUESDAY

Based on Dennon Cliffe's story of intrigue at Washington, mid-political and personal, "Man About Town," the new Fox production, coming to Tuesday to the Palace Theatre. It depicts the adventures of two life long friends who become bitter enemies when a woman comes into power.

But up in Canada that includes the many slow paces of the nation's capital, the time is said to convey an ultimate picture of political and social intrigue in the international colony. The personnel of the United States Secret Service, as they attempt to uncover a foreign plot, are revealed. With a background of world politics and social functions, the story of "Man About Town" is woven around the unbreakable bond of two men for one woman.

Warner Baxter, handsome and talented leading star whose popularity has steadily increased since he came into prominence for his role in "Cisco Kid Arizona" appears in the leading part, that of a gentleman gambler and secret service agent and lover. The way Tracie plays an important role of a man, mad with jealousy, attempting to send a friend to his death.

FOUR ESCAPE FROM COUNTY JAIL MON.

COUNTY OFFICERS FAIL TO RECAPTURE JAIL BREAKERS

Sheriff Vaughan found four prisoners missing from their quarters at the county jail when he entered the place of confinement Monday morning.

All was well the preceding evening and up until 10:30 p. m However Monday morning four men were missing and up to date unaccounted for.

The four prisoners, James Porter, Dwight Pfeifer, Bill Skaggs and Lyle Barnes were awaiting trial, the first two named charged with breaking and entering, Skaggs for some minor offense and Barnes was held under a statutory charge.

Just how it all came about other than that supposedly safe window bars were removed, thereby permitting the prisoners to regain their liberty on Independence day, is a matter of conjecture.

The sheriff and his force are working on the case and making a determined effort to recapture the quartette, and two lost, counting only full nine inning games. They will play Ironton on the South Side Field Sunday at 2:00 p. m.

SNOWFLAKE CAMP

The Forest Home Spiritualist camp will begin July 17 and close Aug. 21. Rev. John parent of Sargent will be the lecturer, message bearer and trumpet medium. He is exceptionally good at blindfold ballot work. Cordial invitation to all is extended.

WHITECAPS BREAK EVEN

INDEPENDENTS DEFEAT ELLSWORTH, BARNARD WINS

During the past week the Whitecaps, Charlevoix's Independent baseball team, broke even in two games played.

Last Wednesday evening they met the Ellsworth independent team, which calls itself "The Hookey Tonks" and came out on the top end of a 11 to 8 score. The hooks showed that they have finally thrown off the fear of an Ellsworth hoax which formerly kept them from playing their best. The team played all around good ball to win this game, which went the full nine innings. Five errors in the field were made, and every Whitecap player participated in the batting assault. Their game was played on the Ellsworth ball field. On Wednesday, July 6th, the Charlevoix team will play a return game at Ellsworth, starting about 5:00 p. m.

Sunday afternoon the locals met and were defeated by the fighting Barnard team. The Barnard boys played fine ball behind the masterful pitching of Joe Stutzman and Orvin Cunningham. Stutzman allowed the Charlevoix team one run in two innings, when successive hits by Williams, Sterritt and Dixon brought Williams home. Cunningham pitched the last seven innings, and allowed only six hits. Sterritt's single, followed by his stealing second and then Dixon's double, brought Sterritt home. The Barnard outfielders could not find the ball at first, and Dixon walked to third and then sprinted home to beat the late throw. This ended Charlevoix's scoring for the day. It is a matter of dispute as to whether Charlevoix suffered more from weak batting or from poor fielding. Some feel that with Barnard's great pitching (Cunningham has the greatest curve pitching for a team in the Texas League, and Stutzman is pretty good, too) Charlevoix was fortate to start. But the writer figures differently. Charlevoix could have won with only the three runs, as only one of Barnard's scores was earned. They only got two safe hits in the nine, the sixth. These two hits gave Barnard its only earned run, but Charlevoix made enough errors in connection with other scattered hits to allow Barnard to make nine runs. The final score was 3 to 2.

At present the Whitecaps have a percentage of .777, with seven games won, and two lost, counting only full nine inning games. They will play Ironton on the South Side Field Sunday at 2:00 p. m.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

A fire plainly seen from Charlevoix Tuesday night attracted some of our people to the farm of H. Hamlin located several miles northeast of this city. The fire destroyed the house and contents, the barn and a considerable proportion of its contents and some minor buildings. The fire was well underway when discovered by neighbors, who made an effort to save the property, with but little success. Members of the family were away from home at the time of the fire. This neighbors reported originated in the barn at about 9 o'clock, spread to the other buildings and made for a heavy financial loss to the owner.

SPECIAL DINNER — Chicken and Fish dinners every Sunday during the season 60c. Room with board $10 per week. 409 Petoskey Avenue, Charlevoix, Mich.

BY ONE of those ironies in which the largest city in the world seems to take cruel, almost demoniac delight, night work on a new subway is the making. Men toiling under diversity in front of one of the metropolis' most glittering theaters.

That meant that the street itself was converted into a Bedlam cavern fenced off with improvised wooden railings, while the limestones and watches which drove all night's merciful performance time had to disgorge their fairest and perfumed, high-heeled and white-gloved sex pass on a little wooden runway, which carried them over the subway abyss.

Sometimes in their furs and perfumes, their capes and high heels, theater goers stopped to peer down into the caverns the performers, the unrecognized flowers of the earth, where men swung their cohorts, or defied like cats with razzing noises that rent the night, or slowly, grimly, silently, with the sinews of their arms, lowered carts on which to unload new rock that in its turn had to be hoisted.

It was a primitive, fantastic spectacle. Somewhat like the drudgery of Dante in the inferno. Men in rubber boots, with their trousers tucked into them, stood knee deep in water. Others, stripped to the waist, their bodies shining with sweat, worked with pick and shovel. Still others, naked to the skin, their muscles like ropes under the tension of their labor, swung sledges, or, with their feet planted wide apart, their arms and shoulders bulging, their backs bent, their faces set, their veins standing out, they drilled holes in the rock that in its turn had to be blasted.

Life became a burden almost for misery for him to drag. He slept away his days in the tenement he called home and he slaved away his nights in the half railed subway and the light of any kind of dealer went out of his eyes. Only there were old months to feed at home, and night work paid a third again as much, and so one went ahead, sullen and dogged with the knowledge that some wind night, go what might, those five evil dens and Fanta had to be fed.

His wife jailed and scarred under his growing gloom. His children, whom he loved, came to avoid him more and more.

Even on the street where he lived chief came after a time to be known as "villain."

Rothkoff's some one said of him once but timm turned and swore and hit out at the man who said it.

Time was not Rothkoff's ally anything else. He was first miserable, Weighted then with a sense that the social system which made him look at all night in an air-and street corner while men and women sat in plush interiors was somehow wrong. Weighted more with the sense that his Fanta should have some of the fine and the portions of life instead of just the grime and the drudgery. Half wanted for children to grow up into some of the luxuries of life. And here they were, the two of them, on poor but respectable; they could only with sacrifice buy through with large and then it was necessary that he help himself to only enough.

After he had taken his bachelor's degree he went limit and entered one of the oldest and most professional schools in the country where he won honors for himself. He came back to the Middle West and took up the practice of law, and made fair to be one of the most successful men in a great city in which he resided.

He was a successful man, whose She was selfish, now wanted this for herself; it remained her to have this home as hers, and she would see to it. She had for more money than sufficed for the two of them. She would be struggle and hell and stay in his office at night. Naturally he was glad for his business. LEAGUE'S NEW PALACE READY IN TWO YEARS

Geneva.—The League of Nations' new $6,000,000 palace will be complet ed early in 1934.

The structural work on the secretariat building is completed. Construction on the council hall already has started. The foundations of the assembly hall and the Rockefeller library are being dug.

The project for a permanent league building was advanced in 1926. After many disputes over the site, the foundation stone was laid in September of 1929. Actual construction work on the secretariat building did not begin until March of 1927.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave added impetus to the project when he contributed $2,000,000 for the construction of a library. Since the establishment of the league, Americans have donated more than $5,000,000 toward its work.

The present site of the new palace is said a subject of many bitter disputes. The building committee originally wanted to construct the palace on the lake, but a short distance from the present secretariat. An original plot of sloping land was obtained from the city, but it was found insufficient.

The committee started negotiations with an aged and wealthy English woman, Mrs. Maria Hatton, who owned the adjoining property. Mrs. Hatton, who is known as the empress of Geneva for her generally kindly ways of sorts, refused to sell.

The original site was one of the most beautiful in the vicinity of Geneva. The palace would have been situated on a small hill on a point overlooking the lake. Directions to would have been closer to town and the international labor office. But an other and more beautiful site was chosen.

The office of the secretariat provide space for between 500 and 600 offices. The secretariat will be built around the space provided by the council hall. This hall forms a break in the construction, the assembly hall being set back some distance into a terraced patio, which connects with the council hall and the secretariat. The entrance to the assembly hall will be separate.

Across the patio the Rockefeller library will balance the council hall. All the buildings are connected by covered wings, which will contain committee rooms. In front of the palace is a reflecting pool, which will be terraced to slide the railroad tracks.

The story is told that an admirer of Cervantes, knowing of the poverty against which the talented Spaniard struggled, suggested to the archbishop of Toledo that he be made a "protector of the plays and it have an of the agonies in which he was working.

"That forbid!" a friend standing by exclaimed. "It is necessary for to so poor that he writes so well; it is his poverty that drives him to his book."

Exquisite Designs of Earliest Watch Cases

In the latter part of the Sixteenth and the first of the Seventeenth century in Europe such extravagance in dress, watch cases were pulsed, chased and engraved and enameled, some mounted in rock crystal set in form ornate, stars, and shells, and representations of flowers, animals, boats, butterflies and the like. The Dutch, especially, made the finest cases of this most popular, was probably an offshoot of the least-dropping fashion of its day.

IS EUROPE BANKRUPT?

We have heard a great deal during the past few years about the poverty and approaching bankruptcy of Europe. Most of us have been convinced of that condition of our relatives across the sea by the very repetition of the statements made to that effect. We have been told time and again that Germany cannot pay reparations and may have to declare a moratorium on her private debts. We have been told how Central Europe is approaching dissolution and how France, England and Italy are unable to pay us anything on what they owe us because of the general conditions.

Many sober minded people are beginning to wonder, therefore, how much of this is propaganda, and how much of the actual condition is the fault of the Europeans themselves in failing to come to some sort of an agreement to stabilize conditions.

In this respect a recent book on European conditions by Mr. Garet Garrett is interesting in the extreme. Mr. Garrett knows his subject and the book was written after a great deal of painstaking study of the conditions on the continent across the Atlantic. Mr. Garrett admits that Europe is not as well off as the United States but declares that, judging by European standards it is better off than ever before. France has more gold than before the war—a great deal more—and Great Britain, he says, is richer in investments. The standard of living in Europe is higher than before the war, and, so Mr. Garrett declares, "the whole of Europe is richer in material power and equipment, in all the means to the production of wealth."

In dealing with the subject of the proposed cancellation of war debts to relieve the so-called "burdens of Europe," Mr. Garrett declares that Wall Street has loaned Europe three dollars for every dollar Uncle Sam has received in the way of a repayment on the war debts. Germany has paid reparations to Great Britain, France and other nations from money loaned to her by European capitalists; the loans from Germany, so Mr. Garrett declares, amounting to more than twice what we have received on account of the war debts from England, France, Italy, Belgium and other European nations.

As the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel has well put it in commenting on Mr. Garrett's book:

"It is well that the American people face the truth which Mr. Garrett so convincingly presents—the truth that we have been a bunch of saps to pour so much money into European coffers, with the result that our own coffers have been sorely drained.

"He rightly calls it 'indecent' to compare the war loans, on which interest was charged, with our outright gift of man-power, as if we set a higher value on money than on men. 'No,' he correctly states, 'we did not charge for our manpower; we were charged for it? We paid for the British ships in which our men sailed to France; and we paid port dues when our ships landed munitions in French ports—munitions for the defense of France. We even paid railroad fare for moving our men to the front. Everything the allies got in this country they borrowed; for everything we got in the allied countries we paid cash.

"But now the international bankers, anxious to make fat new commissions on some more issues of foreign securities floated at a handsome interest rate, insist that we ought to wipe the slate clean. In other words, the American taxpayers are asked to take it on the chin in order that the Wall Street crowd may take a new and fancy profit. If half the concern were registered in dealing with the problems of our domestic industry that these Wall Street fellows are registering with regard to Europe, the disappearance of the American depression would be accomplished over night."

PROGRESS THROUGH DEPRESSION

A period of depression forces men to take account of stock, and this not only in its literal commercial sense, but in every relation of life, even man's relation to the universe, and still more widely, the relation of society itself to its ultimate destiny. We may be sure that all this stock-taking, material and spiritual, individual and social, will result in discarding much that we once thought precious, even vital, and also in creating new values for the new day.

Thus what we emotionally call depression may really mean a new ascent, or the compulsion to achieve one. Science knows two types of change in the conformation and condition of the earth and of its inhabitants—slow, insensible, secular changes, and cataclysms. Of the former the rising and sinking of continents and the approach and withdrawal of ice ages are examples. At the moment is an ice-age going or coming? Nobody knows.

So in human society. There are extreme pessimists who look upon our depression as the beginning of a toboggan slide for mankind. But here history comes to our aid, and, besides, we know vastly more about the causes of economic depressions—whether or not we can control them all—than we know about the cause, or causes, of an ice age, except that, whatever these may be, we are very sure that they are not under our control. We believe that when men bring on the next depression—if they do—it will be because they have sinned against light.

So man, in spite of his fatal tendency to relapse, not only is now making good resolutions, but will keep some of them. This is what progress has always been—not a full rising to the summons of the future, but even, at worst, a partial one. Man climbs the ladder of his destiny round by round, flattering himself that he is about to emerge at the top of his cloud-hung ascent, but even another step challenges his powers. That is his doom as man—half-way between dust and deity.—Providence Journal.

WHAT THE NEW TAXES MEAN

A married business man with one child, having a net income of $6,000, will pay an income tax to the Federal government of $124 as against $25.63 in the past. If he buys a $600 automobile he will have to pay a new tax of $18 plus 50 cents for tires on tires, etc. If he uses 700 gallons of gasoline during the year and 30 gallons of lubricating oil, he will pay a tax of $8.20, in addition to state gas and oil taxes. If his wife gets a $200 fur coat the tax will be $20.

If he makes home brew he will pay about $3 in taxes on malt. His wife's perfumes, powder, etc., will cost another $3. If he buys a $75 radio and pays $100 for an electric refrigerator, the taxes will be $3.75 and $5, respectively. He will pay increased taxes on cameras, electricity, matches, the telephone and a hundred other commodities and services. If he spends $2 a week for shows and movies, the Treasury will get $10 from him by the end of the year.

His total direct taxes will be about $310, as against about $174 under the old rates—an increase of $236.

It looks as if the new bill will fatten a depleted Treasury—but it's going to make a deep hole in the public pocketbook. And these taxes are only a beginning unless definite steps are taken to curb the expense of government, the cost of which increases like compound interest as the number of public employes grows.

LEARN HOW TO WALK

An extremely important phase of the automobile accident problem is carelessness or ignorance on the part of the pedestrian. During 1931, pedestrian deaths reached 14,500, out of a total of 34,400 deaths caused by automobiles, and the number of pedestrians injured non-fatally was 300,000. Consequently, if we are to make definite progress in reducing deaths and injuries we must teach the public to walk.

In the case of the walker on the highway at night, the old rule of "keep to the right" may be suicidal—left side is the right side. Wearing dark clothing increases the hazard because of its invisibility. Weather conditions are all important, and at the hour between light and darkness, when the pedestrian tends to blend into the background and figuratively disappear, he must be extremely careful, inasmuch as the driver may not be able to see him at all, and hence not take care of him.

Carelessness in crossing streets, stepping suddenly out from between parked cars, walking around the end of a street car into traffic and thoughtlessness and abstraction regarding traffic lights, court disaster.

GOVERNMENT WASTE ASSAILED

"Appalling and inexcusable extravagance" in national, state and local government, was assailed by George T. Buckingham, Vice-President of the Illinois Power and Light Corporation, in addressing the National Electric Light Association.

"If the spending of public money goes on at the present rate, aided by politicians and the 'spoils system,' this nation is going bankrupt, all the lesser government agencies are going bankrupt and millions of American people are going bankrupt in the worst economic debacle this world has ever witnessed," said Mr. Buckingham.

"In pre-war Germany it was said every citizen carried a soldier on his back. In pre-republican Spain it was said every citizen carried a priest on his back. In this land it can now be said every citizen carries a politician on his back."

WORTH-WHILE TALK

Jokes on the eloquence of the life insurance salesman who is held to be the most indefatigable of all talkers, are plentiful. But we are beginning to realize that this eloquence has been a fine thing for the country.

He has talked us into putting into effect life insurance totaling some $300,000,000,000. That insurance stands as a barrier against disaster. Businesses may fail, investments may be wiped out, inheritances may be dissipated. But the insurance policy never wavers in its value. The assets of American life insurance companies are comparable to the deposits in the 7,552 national banks—the first totals 19 billion and the second, 23 billion. It is interesting to note that not in fifty years has a policyholder suffered a loss due to failure of a legal reserve life company.

Insurance in force represents, to a larger degree than most of us realize, the future of the country. It makes for stability in government, business and individual life, for prosperity and progress. The insurance salesman has done a lot of talking—and every word he has said has done a little more to prepare and defend us against the exigencies of the future.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The beginning of a long hard political campaign is at hand. Every four years, under the provisions of our constitution, it is necessary for the people of the United States to choose a leader for the ensuing four years. With the great political conventions over, the campaign will soon be under way. For years it has been an economic axiom that presidential campaign years were always bad for business, and we approached the campaign months with some doubt and uncertainty even in times of prosperity. But this year the country is already in a depression in which we seem to have reached the bottom, so that it is barely possible that the usual situation will be reversed and that the presidential campaign year may see the beginning of better times again.

We have had all sorts of independent political movements almost from the beginning of the government, but every four years there comes to us a fresh realization of the necessity of political parties. Without them our government could not function in the way it was intended to function. There have been two great political parties ever since the foundation of the government, and we have gotten along pretty well and made fair progress since 1787. Even our enemies admit that. It is to be hoped and expected that we will continue the two party system, and not adopt the European type in which many blocs of voters with divergent interests, are represented by political organizations, with the result that often many little parties must combine to form a government. The inevitable result of such a system in times of stress is a dictatorship.

Now for great political parties to function properly there must be close and efficient organization and the perfection of such organization must mean efficient and inspiring leadership. For it is vitally necessary, even in a free government like our own, that we have courageous, wise and patriotic leaders around whom the adherents of the various parties may assemble. Real leadership is one of the necessities of the hour. Republicans from each of the forty-eight states assembled in Chicago, chose, by unanimous judgment, to pledge their faith in their leader of four years ago. Since 1928 we have been engulfed, as have all other nations, in a world-wide depression, but the rank and file of the Republican party has approved the constructive efforts of President Hoover to alleviate conditions and return the nation to stability and for that reason, by their assembled delegates have selected him as their leader in the all-important campaign of 1932.

Will H. Hays well summed up the case for the Republican party in his speech in the State Convention of the party at Indianapolis when he said:

"There must be leaders, of course, in whom we have confidence and to whom we give our earnest and enthusiastic support. Otherwise an army is a mere mob. A political party without a leader is a mere masquerade, but the very essence of democracy is citizen cooperation, not unfair, unwise and destructive criticism."

The way those Europeans want us to saddle the expense for the World War would almost make one think that Uncle Sam started it all.

There are seventeen political parties in the French chamber of deputies but they don't all have to hold national conventions.

Capt. M. J. Bonner will open the new Hotel Beaver, at St. James, on Friday, of this week, and the occasion should call for an excursion to the beautiful island, on the steamer Beaver, that day. The Hotel Beaver opening will inaugurate a new epoch on the Island. Go over and see the new house.

You may not be a Mason, but the Masons of Grand Traverse region, with their families will assemble here July 16th, and it will be a glorious time. The Masons as a rule, are the representative people of the region, and are good people to meet. Therefore come to Charlevoix whether you are a Mason or not, and we guarantee you will enjoy yourself. Come to town and stay the evening. The park is open for picnic parties, so you may bring your baskets if you desire.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Richter of Grand Rapids was at Beaver Island Sunday, and held confirmation services. He returned here Monday evening, and on Tuesday evening confirmed a good class at the Charlevoix church, the pastor Rev. Dr. Alexander and Rev. Fr. Innocent of Petoskey, assisting.

A GREAT DAY!

We celebrated! We celebrated big! We covered ourselves all over with glory.

To say that the Charlevoix celebration was a success is putting it too mildly; it was a stupendous, colossal, gigantic blow-out.

There was not a weak or discreditable feature of the demonstration. From the first boom of Capt. Wilbur's cannon on the north bluff till the last rocket was fired, a grand occasion was grandly met," just as the hills read.

The sun shone, yet the day was cool and pleasant.

But the folks! Great Scott! They were all here! Ten thousand of them! Not one less!

They began coming by hourly trains from Petoskey early in the day and 3,000 came from Petoskey alone. The excursion train from the south brought 800. The Macabees excursion from Boyne City brought nearly 500. The steamers Columbia, Crescent and Cummings came from Grand Traverse Bay loaded. Marion, Norwood, Banks, Hayes, East Jordan and South Arm were all here.

They filled the town and hung on to the edges. A circus and a museum, which ordinarily would have been noticeable, were mere two incidents in the flood of attractions. Every available spot and vacant building was occupied by refreshment stands, and everybody got enough to eat.

The morning parade was too big for the territory covered. The line of march was: Main, State, Antrim and Bridge streets to the North side grounds, and as the head of the line came into Bridge street from Antrim the rear had not yet left Bridge st.

The oration of Wm. Alden Smith was billed as a leading attraction and it went beyond the mark set. It was eloquent, scholarly and inspiring. On every hand were heard words of commendation and satisfaction. The introductory remarks of President Moore were most happily worded, and were received with an enthusiasm only second to that which marked the hour of Mr. Smith's masterly address. Rev. Mr. Macpherson's prayer was an eloquent and soulful appeal to the God of Nations.

Charlevoix made no mistake when Fred J. Meech was appointed chairman of the executive committee. In every respect Mr. Meech did himself credit in that capacity. He not only successfully piloted the committee through the breakers of the preliminary work but skillfully directed the affairs throughout the celebration. Very much of the great success of the undertaking is due to his efforts. He and the committee were ably seconded by Secretary F. W. Mayne. Both are entitled to the thanks of the public.

The Sentinel scribe made a trip to Bellaire Thursday afternoon over the "new line." As a pioneer of northern Michigan, we are compelled to acknowledge that it was our first visit to the county seat of Antrim county —an acknowledgement involving a degree of humiliation. From Charlevoix it is a run of less than an hour through one of the richest and best set sections of Northern Michigan, along the shore of that most beautiful chain of lakes—the Intermediate. Bellaire has been somewhat isolated since it was created by the Antrim County Board of Supervisors. But they "builded better than they knew." Bellaire is now secure in her grip of the future. It is a beautifully located town, in the heart of a section marvelously rich in natural resources, and possessed of manufacturing advantages now largely augmented by railroad facilities, and must in the natural order of things prosper. The town has an eternal crush on the County Seal by virtue of her location, and a farming section contiguous to it that will supply agencies of growth and progress.

MORE than a century and a half has passed. From ground along the Monongahela river where Washington fought as a youth to repel French and Indian invasion of British territory, smoke ascends from the fires of industry. Manufacture and commerce have long since blotted out the ill-fated adieu of Fort Duquesne.

WAS there ever a young man upon whom responsibilities fell with such sudden weight and significance? Here, by the roadside, four days after the battle, young Washington read the burial service over his general — "my general" he wrote, rather than have it read by a chaplain who had shown cowardice in retreat.

A Pennsylvania country doctor told the American Therapeutic society in convention at Baltimore how a dying patient's joke—"Give me breath! Give me breath!"—led to the physician's discovery forty-seven years ago of oxygen's lifesaving property in the treatment of pneumonia.

Dr. G. E. Hollenstine of York, Pa., described how Trout, 72 a. m., until late at night March 6, 1885, he sat at a bedroom floor in Loganville, Pa., and with a rain tube, a flame, some black specimens of iron, some putash, a cork and some tubing generated oxygen which, bubbling up from a basket of water held under the patient's nose and mouth, turned his face from blue to pink and set him on the road to recovery.

A short time before he made his discovery Doctor Hollenstine had been graduated from Bellevue hospital medical college. The patient he rescued and now lives only a few doors from the physician.

Jose Hamlet

It seems that Imogen Entwhistle, 21, whose sense of humor is admittedly developed, home in on a conference of story writers and play producers at the Hotel National stations with the demand that they listen to a play in her head immediately. He refused. It in detail, without notes, listened, said one and all the announcement—engagements she entered it among that it was too gloomy, too simple and good. Imogen thereupon left with a grin, but vowed as an actor call the deal to act. "Well, anyway," she said, "it was good. The story I've just told you, gentlemen, is the plot of 'Hamlet.'"—Boston Herald.

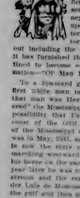
Henry Rowe Schoolcraft

Schoolcraft Landing at Lake Itasca in 1832

Lake Itasca

Rev. William T. Boutell

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON



THE Indians called it "The Father of Waters." The mighty stream which flows south through the heart of the North American continent, its mystery, its majesty and its power captivated the imagination of the first white men to hear of it and sent them questing northward into the wilderness to gaze upon the broad sweep of its waters. The epic of American history could not be complete without including the story of the Mississippi and it has furnished the theme for what seems destined to become one of the folk songs of the nation—"Ol' Man River."

To a Spaniard goes the credit for being the first white man to stand upon its banks and that man was Hernando De Soto who "discovered" the Mississippi in 1541, though there is a possibility that Panfilo Narvaez, following the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, saw the mouth of the Mississippi as early as 1527 or 1528. It was in May, 1541, near Chickasaw Bluffs, a short is now the state of Mississippi that De Soto, marching westward in search of gold, entered in his house on the east bank of the river. Hundred years later he was to find a watery grave in that stream and the remnant of his command, under Luis de Moscoso, floated down the river to the gulf and then made their way back to Mexico. So while De Soto has the credit for being the first white man to see the main stream of the Mississippi, it was his lieutenant, Moscoso, who was most likely the first white man to know its southern terminal.

It was the French, however, rather than the Spanish who made the Mississippi one of the main rivers of travel in extending their empire in the New world. Jean Talon, intendant of New France, Quebec, dreamed the Pierre Marquette in 1670-1 Some historians set then did not, but James G. Lang in his "Pathfinders of the West" states unequivocally that they did and produces what seems to be abundant proof to back up her assertion. Whether they did or didn't reach the Mississippi, only a few more years were to elapse before Frenchmen were to be navigating the upper waters of the river—Marquette, the Jesuit priest, and Louis Joliet, the fur trader, exploring it from the mouth of the Wisconsin river in 1673 and following it as far south as the mouth of the Arkansas river. Louis Hennepin exploring it north from the Wisconsin river to the Falls of St. Anthony and Rene Cavalier de la Salle in 1682 floating down the Mississippi from the mouth of the Illinois to where the great River empties into the gulf, the first man to follow it from its long a distance and there at the mouth to raise the banner of France and take possession of the vast country drained by this river in the name of His king.

For more than a century the white men British and French, busy with their struggle for domination of North America did not seem to solve the whole mystery of the Mississippi—its course from source to mouth. No doubt there was much speculation as to the origin of this mighty waterways during this time but it was not until 1766 that Thomas Hutchins, British surveyor and trader for the Northwest company, while returning to Grand Portage from a trading visit to the Mandan villages in what is now North Dakota, found the present body of water known as Itasca lake which he believed to be the source of the Mississippi.

But its claims were disproved seven years later by a dashing young American army officer, Lieut. Zebulon M. Pike who followed the Mississippi north to its headwaters. Pike left St. Louis on August 9, 1805, in a keel-boat, with 20 men and 20 "items for provisions, under separate cover, among other things, to "unwind the mainbrace of the Mississippi in its source." By October Pike had reached the present site of Little Falls, Minn. The water was too low then and he built a fort for use as his base of operations. Undaunted by the winter weather Pike started north in December, traveling by dog sleds over the frozen river. He reached Sandy lake, Lake which he considered the "south source of the Mississippi." and Upper Red Cedar lake, now called Cass lake, which he reported to be the "upper source of the Mississippi."

His "discovery" was verified 14 years later when Gov. Lewis Cass of Michigan territory led an exploring party to the source of the Mississippi in 1820. Cass and his party left Detroit on May 24 in three big birch-bark canoes and on July 5 entered the mouth of the St. Louis river, passed the present site of Duluth, Minn., and landed at the Ojibway village on the south part of Pond du Lac. From there he proceeded by a well known route, part waterways and part portages up to the St. Louis and East Savanna rivers and down the West Savanna to Sandy lake. He then went up the Mississippi to Upper Red Cedar lake which was named Cassina (the present Cass lake) and this lake he confirmed Pike's report as the "true source of the Mississippi."

Seymour, Franchere, Buffalomo and Anderson had all had their turn at "discovery" of various parts of the Father of Waters. It now remained for a man of another nationality to take a hand in solving the mystery of the river.

In the spring of 1823 there arrived at Fort Snelling on the Virginia, the first steamboat to ascend the Upper Mississippi, its master named Dawson Bottineau. With Maj. Stephen H. Long of the United States army (destined for fame as a western explorer) Bottineau left in July for the Red River country. At Pembina on the Canadian border the two men separated and Bottineau, with an interpreter and two Chippewa Indian guides, struck off into the wilderness to the southward to seek the source of the Mississippi.

Bottineau's guides deserted him but he pushed on alone and succeeded in reaching that lake. There he engaged a half-breed guide who led him southward to a small, swampy lake about half way between Red and Cass lakes and to within a few miles of Cass lake. Bottineau could find no visible outlet of this lake but he believed its waters to "trickle through its banks both northward and southward" and he pronounced it "the most northerly source of the Mississippi." While he was not convinced that this lake was the source of the Mississippi and in reporting that fact Bottineau was careful to say that "other waters may be considered as the western source of the Mississippi." But did not mind this lake, however, and this allowed the honor of discovering the source of the true source of the Mississippi.

That honor was to be reserved for an American pioneer missionary and explorer, Henry Rowe Schoolcraft and to his fast which is the occasion for an interesting celebration at Itasca park, Minnesota this summer (on July 13, 1932, Schoolcraft, then accompanied by Lieut. James Allen, Lieut. James and which also Schoolcraft then determined the "true source of the Mississippi and in recognition of that fact Congress appropriated $2,000 in the following year to mark the source of the Mississippi with a suitable monument. Nothing was done about this, however, until 1891 when the Minnesota legislature, with commendable foresight, appointed a commission to preserve the area as a state park. Nothing was done about this, however, until 1891 when the Minnesota legislature, with commendable foresight, appointed a commission to preserve the area as a state park. Nothing was done about this, however, until 1891 when the Minnesota legislature, with commendable foresight, appointed a commission to preserve the area as a state park.

Few names in the exploring expeditions and discoveries in America are better known than that of Schoolcraft's associate, Lieut. James. Little is known of Lieut. James except that he was born in Pennsylvania, was graduated from West Point in 1819 and was assigned to the Fifth infantry. He resigned from the army in 1827 and died in 1838.

Schoolcraft appointed Governor Cass' expedition in 1820 as mineralogist and although he seems to have been a somewhat inferior explorer he was the true source of the Mississippi, the accomplished both earned title of that fact that Lake Itasca is the source of the Mississippi. At present I, some body of water which fed Cass lake and which therefore might properly be regarded as the source. But he had no opportunity at the time to pursue his investigations. In 1822 the semi-diplomatic position of Agent of Indian Affairs in the Northwest was created and Henry Schoolcraft, who had been the most because of his knowledge of the Indians, was appointed to the position.

In 1832, Cass, who was then secretary of war, instructed his former mineralogist to conduct an exploration into the country west of the Great Lakes, the reported purposes being one of pacification. The Chippewas had received a painted war club and pipe from Chief Peau de Chat, of the Sioux, who was proposing to resist what he considered the unjust encroachments of the whites in the state of Louisiana. Presumably Schoolcraft was to conciliate the ambitions of the Sauk hunter among the Chippewas so as to forestall any bloody pause between them and their hereditary enemies. But there was also a purpose of information about them as he could, and to see to it that no more is pending were reclaimed. The purposes of "pacification" as announced to subordinates, William T. Boutwell, was attached to the party, by Douglass Houghton were to ascertain the Indians, and a military escort consisting of ten men was commanded by Lieut. James Allen was provided.

Schoolcraft's party left Sault Ste Marie on June 7, 1832, and went by way of Fond du Lac and the Savanna portage to Sandy and thus lakes. Within his wife left on Lake Superior he met Hindoo, or the Yellow Head, a Chippewa Indian whose home was at Cass lake. This fellow was about to make the 1832. He led the explorers to their island in Cass lake, where his village was located. From this place Schoolcraft planned to push on into the wilderness through one of the inlets that he had observed in 1820, hoping to find the true source of the Mississippi.

The Yellow Head, who knew the region well, was ready to help him. He drew maps and hected five small canoes in which to travel, and engaged additional guides. Early on the morning of July 11 he led a party of 16 persons out of Cass lake by way of a stream that he said was the Mississippi. The travelers ascended this stream to Lake Bemidji and then turned south, following the east fork of the Mississippi now known as the Yellow Head or School-craft river to its beginnings in a swamp. They then began to walk over a hardly noticeable portage path toward the southwest.

This journey across the portage began early on the morning of July 13. The Yellow Head, carrying a canoe, led the way, and one others some after, some loaded with baggage, others bearing canoes. Through woods and under brush they picked their way to Indian Elk Lake. "Every step we made," wrote Schoolcraft, "the scene was more wild and picturesque, the ardor with which we were carried forward," writes Schoolcraft. "The desire of reaching the actual source of a stream so celebrated as the Mississippi—a stream which Le Sueur had reported the assembly of a coursery and a half thinking a navy could be made navigable—produced, and we followed our guide down the sides of the first eminence, with the full satisfaction of momentarily reaching the goal of our journey. What had been ready to give out appeared suddenly, on turning out of a thicket, as a small sheet of water, the glistening calmness

"WOMAN IN ROOM 13" WILL BE AT PALACE FRIDAY, SATURDAY

No matter how often they attend a picture theater, few screen fans realize that a given story can be produced as a comedy, a melodrama, a mystery thriller, or a straight romance. "Treatment," the studio phrase for a detailed synopsis of the finished film, holds the key to the type of offering that will result, and many brilliant achievements in picture annals have come about by treating a familiar plot from an entirely new angle.

Henry King's latest Fox Films production, "The Woman In Room 13," which opens Friday and Saturday at the Palace Theatre with Elissa Landi in the starring role, is an excellent example of this. The story revolves around the killing of a famous surgeon in his hotel room, with suspicion falling on an innocent man as the slayer. The identity of a woman in the room at the time is a vital part of the story, and the entire plot is of the type that ordinarily would be made as a mystery film.

In preparing the story for the screen, however, Director Henry King and Scenarist Guy Bolton decided to avoid the mystery angle, and by letting the audience see everything as it occurs, to center the interest on the outcome of the affair rather than on the customary question of who the murderer may be. Thus the spectators know that Ned Hamilton is unjustly accused, that the woman in the room was Myrna Loy and not Miss Landi, and that Ralph Bellamy could, but for reasons of his own, will not, clear up the matter and secure Hamilton's release from prison.

These matters being known to the audience but not to Hamilton or Miss Landi, the audience interest is accordingly devoted to her efforts at securing Hamilton's release and in outwitting Bellamy. Consequently what would otherwise have been "just a mystery film" is made into an absorbing human drama—and the spectators are the gainers, for from all reports "The Woman In Room 13" is one of the most outstanding pictures of the year.

JUDGE GILLESPIE TO OPPOSE BOHN

SEEKS SEAT IN CONGRESS IN THE FALL ELECTION

Saturday Judge Ray Gillespie of Sault Ste. Marie was in Charlevoix in the interest of his candidacy for nomination to succeed Dr. Frank P. Bohn as Congressman from the 11th District. He was accompanied by Mr. H. C. Ryan, who is well known in this region.

Judge Gillespie announced his candidacy one week before his Charlevoix visit and prior to entering this county had spent some time in the eastern part of the district below the straits of Mackinac, where, according to reports he has had much encouragement relative to his campaign.

Relative to his candidacy, Judge Gillespie says "I stand unequivocally for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and will base my campaign on that issue together with other important matters which are now facing the Congress of the United States. I intend to make a thorough campaign in every county of the district and will make a thorough canvass within the next 10 days at which time I will have more to say concerning my candidacy."

"Judge Ray Gillespie of the Soo, who is opposing Frank P. Bohn of Newberry for the Republican nomination for Congress, opened his campaign at Escanaba in an address to the Spanish American war veterans. He accused Bohn of playing both sides on the prohibition question and said he only desired the office for the glory of the title."

Judge Gillespie was here only a few hours during which he met several Republican party leaders who will assist him in his campaign in Charlevoix County. He will return probably next week, at which time he will spend more time in the county and make arrangements for an intensive drive for support in all parts of the district.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE TO BLACKSMITH SHOP

Members of the Charlevoix Fire Department were called to 214 Newman street Wednesday afternoon to subdue a fire that was discovered in the roof of a structure occupied by W. H. Guild as a shop.

Considerable damage, mainly to the roof of the building was caused before the fire was extinguished.

The loss was covered by insurance and according to reports the damage will be replaced by the insurance company.

WHITECAPS LOSE SUNDAY'S GAME TO IRONTON MINE

On Sunday afternoon the Charlevoix Whitecaps engaged the Ironton baseball team in an exceedingly free hitting slugfest. Ironton emerged the winner by the score of 19 to 16, due mainly to better hitting when men were on bases. Charlevoix players showed a tendency to die on bases, at least one, and sometimes two or three runners being on bases when the third out was made in every inning.

Charlevoix had to use a made-up team due to the fact that some of the regulars were out of town but the defeat is not blamed on the substitutes, as they played fine ball. Bob Cummings, at center field, and Joe Stutzman, at short were right on the spot when any ball was hit in their territory, and both made some fine catches. "Hap" Cunningham, batting at first base, made six safe hits out of seven times at bat. Stan Smith, regular catcher, led in scoring for the locals, with four runs.

Joe Williams, for Charlevoix, and John Johnson, for Ironton, pitched the first four innings, and each allowed eleven runs. Hap Cunningham pitched the last five innings for the locals and allowed eight runs. Ivan Thompson, who pitched the last five for Ironton, did especially well, allowing only four runs.

RECOVERING AFTER OPERATION RECENTLY FOR APPENDICITIS

Master Carleton Baumgardner, Jr., 11 years old, of Toledo, who entered Lockwood hospital a few days ago and was operated on for a case of appendicitis is well along the way to complete recovery.

He is a grandson of Mrs. F. S. Baumgardner of Toledo who as in past summer's spending the vacation period in Charlevoix. The young lad had entered a boys camp in Emmet County for the season and a few days later he was taken to Lockwood and his father, Carleton Baumgardner, Sr. notified of his condition. He chartered an airplane and two hours after leaving Toledo landed at the Emmet County airport, arriving after the operation had been completed. The father remained with the son some days and when assured that the lad was out of danger returned to Toledo.

THREE-DAY TRIAL FOR PERFECT KISS

Clive Brook kissed Claudette Colbert in a test for three days. Then the kiss was pronounced perfect enough to film.

The taxi-kissing scenes were made for the first Colbert-Brook co-starring feature, "The Man From Yesterday," coming to the Palace Theater on Thursday.

In this picture, Brook, as a British army officer and Claudette Colbert, married hastily in war-time Paris, spent an hour-and-a-half honeymoon in a taxicab, then Brook leaves for the front. Nearly ten years elapse before they find each other again. Colbert in the meantime, believing Brook dead, falls in love with another man. When they find each other again, they have that sweet them into matrimony a lost for Claudette. Only duty remains Brook, however, refuses to accept the sacrifice, and, in a climactic scene, frees her for real love.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION

The Annual meeting of the Charlevoix Hospital Association will be held in the city council rooms Wednesday, July 20th at 8:00 p. m.

Meeting called for the purpose of receiving the past years business and the election of 3 trustees for a period of 3 years to succeed.

LEGION PLANS THREE EVENTS

BOAT EXCURSION ON SUNDAY, BOXING THURSDAY EVE.

Among other summer activities planned by Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, is a boat ride to Beaver Island on the Steamer Ottawa Bedell, which occurs next Sunday at 9:00 a. m. This will be an excursion for Legionnaires and their families and whatever capacity is left will be sold to the public. The boat will return to Charlevoix at nine p. m. and it is planned to have some form of entertainment, including a baseball game on the island. The fare will be $2, for adults and 25c for children.

Wednesday evening, July 20th, has been set as the date of a moonlight boat excursion on Lake Charlevoix for the public. It is planned to have an orchestra and dancing as entertainment features. The fare for this event will be 25 cents to all.

Thursday evening, July 21st, one of the Legion's popular boxing entertainments will be held in the open air arena just north of McNeil's taxi garage. A number of top-notch performers have been secured and the host's promise to be well worth witnessing. The charge will be only 40 cents.

Plans for the securing of the 1932 State Convention of the Legion for Charlevoix are being pursued and the idea has met with favorable response from posts in all parts of the State. Next Tuesday evening, July 19th, the annual election of the post officers will occur and all members are earnestly requested to be present and elect officers for the ensuing year.

Those who have not paid the balance on the dues for the current year are reminded that this sum is now due and settlement of these accounts would be a valuable aid to the post treasury at this time.

RESULTS OF ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION

Patrons and others interested in the public schools to the number of at least 191, that being the number of votes cast, attended the Annual School meeting held Monday night, heard the reading of reports and participated in the election of two members of the Board of Education to represent the district for the term for which they were elected.

In the selection of new board members but four names were presented for consideration to this important position. Only two ballots were taken for the first Mr. Darker Kirby — with a majority of the vote cast — and as the vote was unanimous — was declared elected. This was followed by the presentation of three names for consideration. The returns on this contest gave Mr. Henry Partridge a small majority over the combined vote of his two competitors and the election.

The attendance was far larger than at many of like meetings in past years, but yet far below the showing that should have been made at a public meeting of such vital importance to those interested in educational advancement wherein valuable property and financial affairs necessitating large expenditures are concerned all of which demands the attention of taxpayers.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MR. FRANK L. ALLEN

Funeral service for Mr. Frank L. Allen who passed away at the summer home of Mrs. F. W. Rockwell in Charlevoix Monday at 5 o'clock a. m. was held in Chicago, where the body was taken for interment, Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Allen arrived in Charlevoix Thursday, July 7th to make an extended visit with Mrs. Allen's mother, Mrs. Rockwell, cottage 37, on the Belvedere Club, where he was the victim of an acute heart attack, passing away soon thereafter. The deceased is survived by the widow, Mrs. Nellie Rockwell Allen and one son Gordon Rockwell of Chicago.

RADIO TELEPHONE SERVICE TO BE EXTENDED BEFORE END OF YEAR

It is expected that radio telephone service from the United States will be extended to half a dozen Central and South American republics before the end of the year, according to an announcement today by N. I. Johnson, manager here for the Michigan Bell Telephone company. Furthering the service will necessitate the establishing of a new radio station at Hialeah Florida near Miami. Equipment for the station has been ordered.

Among the new countries to be reached by the service is Panama, including the Canal Zone. The latter will be the second outlying possession to be connected with the United States by radio telephone, as service with Hawaii was opened last December.

Other Central American republics included in the scope of the service will be Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. The South American countries to be connected are Colombia and Venezuela. The Bahama Islands also will be reached through the new station. With the proposed service in operation, the United States will have direct telephone connection with nearly all the countries and islands bordering on what was formerly known as the Spanish Main, as wire service already reaches Cuba and Mexico, and radio telephone service was extended to Bermuda late last year. The additions will bring the total foreign countries within telephone reach of the United States to 45.

FIRE DESTROYS RAILWAY STATION AT ELMIRA

A disastrous fire of unknown origin, but by many believed to be the work of an incendiary, destroyed the Pennsylvania railway station, warehouse connected with the same and several large potato warehouses used for storing certified seed potatoes. The later were owned and used by dealers Buell, Krapie, Dollas, Zarenia and Elmira, the last of which remain seriously for the owners and unless rebuilt with annoyance to the growers.

In view of the fact that all of the structures were burning simultaneously and that the fire did not spread from building to building gives rise to the theory that the fire was not accidental but of premeditated character.

The Elmira loss will be heavy and the fire a serious blow to the owners of the several buildings destroyed, and unless rebuilt will heavily handicap certified seed growers when the time arrives for marketing this 1932 yield of tubers.

YACHT MIZPAH CALLS HERE WITH NOTABLES

The yacht Mizpah, hailing from Chicago, with the owner, E. F. McDonald, president of the Zenith Radio Corporation on board with a party of friends of note, Count and Countess Von Luckner, the former captain of World War fame; Gutzon Borgum, sculptor; Commander Donald B. Mc-Millan, explorer, Dr. Edward Bumpday, scientist and Mr. Howard T. Riddle of Tulsa, Oklahoma, spent some time in this port last week and while here were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sorenson.

The Mizpah usually makes frequent visits at this port each season, therefore it is probably that this splendid yacht will appear here again in the near future.

REVENUE ACT RELATIVE TO DEEDS AND CONVEYANCES

Schedule A of Title VIII of the Revenue Act of 1926 is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subdivision to read as follows:

"K. Conveyance. Deed, instrument or writing delivered on or after the 20th day after the date of the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1932 and before July 1, 1933 conveying real property, tangible personal property, stock certificates, or shares of stock in an association, joint stock company, or corporation, or certificates of profits, or any interest in the foregoing, whether such conveyance is by sale, assignment, transfer, or otherwise (except to, or vested in, the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons, by his, her, or their direction), when the consideration or value of the interest or property conveyed exclusive of the value of any lien or encumbrance remaining thereon at the time of sale exceeds $100 and does not exceed $500, 50 cents, and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereof, 50 cents. This subdivision shall not apply to any instrument or writing given to secure a debt."

COLONIAL CLUB CLOSES DOORS

"UNSATISFACTORY LOCAL CONDITIONS" IS REASON

For the first time in seventeen years, during the summer vacation period, the main rooms of the Colonial Club remained unlighted and closed to the public last Thursday night, waiting for a complete purpose to club patrons and a source of amazement to local citizens.

The Colonial Club was formally opened Saturday evening, July 2 with a large attendance, a large number present being persons who have participated in each formal opening of the club since it came into existence seventeen years ago, and at the formal opening for the 1932 season there was every evidence of a complete continuance of the program followed in past years until the final of the vacation period.

Inquiry as to the reason for the unexpected move on the part of the owner, that of closing the premises, with established entertainment in full swing, which drew thousands of individuals, many from far distant points to Charlevoix annually, resulted in the reply, "unsatisfactory conditions prevailing at the present time are wholly responsible for closing the club."

For seventeen consecutive seasons the Colonial Club has been the one outstanding feature as a place of entertainment in Charlevoix, holding a recognized high position, known nation wide for its gentlemen entertainment programs, such as receive endorsement by a clientele composed of refined men and women, the elite of society from all parts of the country, many of whom are prominent national figures, some of international fame, as well as celebrities of foreign lands.

What is the prospect for reopening the Club" was answered by "That, as is indefinite, all depending upon future satisfactory conditions. With conditions as now, never! The Club is closed for the season and may remain closed permanently, however, that is a matter that must be left for the future to solve."

The restaurant feature connected with the Club will be continued temporarily, as in the past and under the same management as during this and past seasons. Just how long to left to the manager for final decision, and until that time the restaurant will continue with the same excellent services as heretofore.

Mr. James Hall, for some weeks past a guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brady, 701 Sheridan Street, returned to his home, Sunnyside, Wisconsin, early this week.

McKEIGHAN TO SPEAK HERE

TO ADDRESS VOTERS ON HIS 14 POINT PLATFORM

Hon. William McKeighan of Flint, who candidate for governor as a republican will address Charlevoix voters and others Thursday evening, July 21st, at which time he will enlighten the listeners concerning his views on public affairs and probably discuss the 14 points introduced in his published platform, as follows:

1. Eliminate state tax on real and personal property.
2. Thoroughly reorganize the state government with a view to eliminating useless bodies and commissions, curtailing activities of the state police, removing deadwood from, and greatly reducing the state payroll.
3. Old age pensions.
4. Bond volume tax.
5. Regulatory legislation permitting of licensing and control of retail merchandising.
6. Removal of the $50,000 corporation tax limit.
7. State equalization of all school taxes.
8. Return to the people of Michigan their rights and privileges to enjoy nature's bountiful gifts to the commonwealth . . . gifts that God made for the many and not gifts to be exploited by private interests.
9. Creation of a public service commission to serve and protect the public as well as the utility companies to the end that fair and warranted service rates may be restored to the people.
10. Individual distress caused by unemployment must have constructive and remedial attention from the state.
11. Creation of state aid for financial institutions so that depositors will be fully protected in times of depression as said as in times of prosperity, strict regulation, in fact as well as in theory, by a competent state group, of all security offered for public investment.
12. Not a road-building holiday but a non-political, sensible road-building program based on revenues in hand, but revenues in prospect.
13. Equalize the burden of conservation and promote the state's tourist business to the fullest extent.
14. Repeal of the 18th Amendment to the federal constitution and all supplemental Michigan laws, substituting therefor the right of the state to deal with the question as the people shall direct.

Mr. McKeighan will speak from the band stand corner of State and Mason streets, according to present plans.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY-ONE ON EXCURSION LAST SUNDAY

One hundred and fifty-one persons took advantage of the excursion rates offered Sunday and made the trip to St. James on the S. S. Oeslan Bedell. Early morning weather, due to more than an ordinary breeze, was not encouraging to pleasure seekers for making a water trip. As a result but a single ticket had been sold up to the time set for sailing. About this time telephone calls came in and personal inquiries at the office indicated that many were desirous of making the trip. After a short delay excursionists began to board the ship. The weather on the return trip was all that could be desired.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

DEMOCRATS PUT ON ROARING SHOW AT CONVENTION

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Chicago.—The democracy of America met in national convention in this city, and at the end of six days and six nights of strenuous labor, had selected first Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as its candidate for President and John N. Garner of Texas as its candidate for vice-president. A platform was prepared, of which precedent for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and the restoration of the control of the liquor traffic to the several states was the outstanding feature. The platform also promised the use of beer and wine as a means of raising revenue to help balance the budget.

The nominees were selected by the delegates to the democratic national convention, and it was also the duty of the convention to notify them, as it did, with the customary ceremonies. There was no actual contest over the nominations, and there were no ballots taken, the nomination of Governor Roosevelt by acclamation being followed by the nomination of Speaker Garner by acclamation.

The platform was adopted by a viva voce vote, but no actual count was taken, the chairman declaring that the "ayes" had it, and no one disputing the declaration. There were scattering "noes" heard, but they were drowned in the volume of the "ayes."

The platform was read to the convention by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, and was received with frequent applause, which was loudest when the repeal plank was reached. The platform was then adopted by the viva voce vote.

The nominations for president and vice-president were made on the fourth day of the convention, which began on Monday, June 27, and ended on Friday, July 1. The nominations were made by the calling of the states in alphabetical order, and the placing in nomination of candidates by the delegates from the several states. The seconding speeches were then made, and the roll of states was called for the casting of votes for the candidates. The first ballot resulted in the nomination of Governor Roosevelt, and the second ballot in the nomination of Speaker Garner.

The platform adopted by the convention declares for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, and for the restoration of the control of the liquor traffic to the several states. It declares for the use of beer and wine as a means of raising revenue to help balance the budget. It declares for a reduction of the cost of government by at least 25 per cent. It declares for unemployment relief and old age pensions through the several states. It declares for the protection of the home owner against foreclosure. It declares for the extension of the merchant marine. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the public domain. It declares for the reciprocal trade agreement policy. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Philippine Islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Virgin Islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Panama canal. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Hawaiian islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of Alaska. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of Puerto Rico. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Samoan islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Guam islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Panama canal. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Hawaiian islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of Alaska. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of Puerto Rico. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Samoan islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Guam islands.

The platform declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Philippine Islands. It declares for the maintenance of the integrity of the Virgin

PURCHASING POWER OF DOLLAR

As measured by the index of the United States Department of Labor, the purchasing power of the dollar is now 35% per cent greater than it was in 1923, which is some consolation for the man who has had his salary or his dividends reduced in the meantime, because it means that he can go out and buy fifty per cent more in the way of commodities with the same amount of money than it would have been possible for him to purchase in 1929. This, of course, is small consolation, for the fellow who is out of a job or for the man who holds stocks on which dividend have been passed entirely. For the bondholder, however, with good securities, it means that a bond which was paying six per cent in 1929, and is still a good security, now pays the holder certainly nine per cent, so far as the purchasing power of the interest is concerned.

There is not so much consolation in this, however, for the man who was in debt in 1929 and has been struggling ever since to get out of debt. The dollar today buys more wheat but it will get no more on a 1929 mortgage than it would have three years ago, and the dollar is much harder to get on than it was then.

And while commodities have declined considerably since 1929 there is one important item on the average man's budget which has actually increased rather than declined. That is the item of taxation. The United States government has been compelled to increase taxes because of the declining returns from income taxes and other regular sources of revenue. And in the case of the states and smaller units of government there has been no decline in taxation which would in any way match the decline in commodity prices. It is true that the settlement for decreased state and local taxes is increasing. The title is rising and it can now be predicted fairly safely, that in most of our states and communities there will be real and, it is to be hoped, effective effort to decrease the cost of government during the next few years.

Local governments should save in the purchase of materials used for repair and construction due to the decline in the commodity price index. There is a tendency also to decrease the salaries of local officials, in line with the decrease which has just been made in federal salaries, and it is also likely that public expenditures in the various states, counties and cities of the country will be more closely scanned during the next few years.

Tax associations are springing up on every side, and everywhere we are now getting propaganda for low or local taxes. Years ago we were launched on an orgy of spending public as well as private. It seemed that the public held an almost unshakable reserve of money and credit. But now we know differently and we are beginning to realize what it means to pay the piper. If out of the present mood for retrenchment comes a wider realization of the fact that for years we were traveling at too fast a pace, and if this can be reflected in plainer and more sensible government, local as well as national, then it will be indeed true that we have gained something out of the depression. Experience is still a hard teacher, but now as before, it is the only instructor to whom a great many people will agree to listen.

HOW TAXES RUIN BUSINESS

Only experience can demonstrate how much of tax yield predicated on a known volume of business, with some allowance for shrinkage will actually be collected through the new levies created by the 1932 revenue bill. Unless the figures have very generously margined the premium heavy taxation puts on legitimate forms of evasion, the budget-balancers are likely to be disappointed.

Official estimates of gains from new taxation are necessarily based largely on guesswork. The question arises whether the guessers foresaw the extent to which the taxed will find legitimate ways of evasion.

Motion picture theaters are lowering their prices so they will come within the tax-exempt limits. Tire manufacturers and dealers encouraged the public to stock up with new tires for a year in order to avoid the tax on tires. The motor industry did the same.

The city of Boston will save $8,000 a year by delivering tax notices by employes instead of sending them through the mails under the increased postage rate. Many municipalities and corporations will follow its example.

Bankers predict the tax on checks will discourage the paying of bills by check and cause a revival of the old system of making up payrolls in cash instead of in checks. The person who pays his bills with cash instead of mailing a check will save five cents (the two-cent check tax and a three-cent stamp) and the cost of an envelope.

Nothing so promotes thrift and craft as new taxes that strike directly home.—Bangor Commercial.

REVENUE—AND MORE REVENUE

This much can be said for the new revenue bill—it will probably balance the budget and remove the present danger to American credit.

This can be said against it—it takes us another long step toward a tax condition similar to that of England, Australia, Germany, and the other tax-distressed countries. The levies against gasoline, lubricating oil, tires, electricity, the check and bond taxes, the theatre tax, etc., will work hardships on millions of our citizens. The income tax increases will doubtless cause a further flow of capital into tax-free government bonds, thus taking money out of the channels of trade, and away from industries sorely in need of funds. To this extent, it will hamper employment and delay a return to normal conditions.

There is one lesson we should have learned—that undeviating watchfulness is the price of economical and efficient government. If we have to pay greatly increased taxes we have ourselves to blame—we gave officeholders all the rope they wanted, and they are slowly strangling us. The American has been indifferent to the operation of his government. He has been a poor stockholder. He is paying now.

The tax fight never ends. It is time we laid our plans for doing what we can, through the power of the ballot, to make tax reduction a reality in the future.

"BACK TO EARTH"

"The greatest asset any nation can have is the spirit of its people, said a noted speaker recently "and the greatest danger that can menace any nation is the breakdown of that spirit. . . That spirit is still with us. It will carry us on. However unfortunate our present economic conditions, it is not as bad as it is painted by our professional pessimists. Not all the entries are on the debit side. We have again learned—we seem always to have to learn these things again —some wholesome truths that should profit us in the future. We have learned the folly of living in a fool's paradise. We are rid of the hallucination of 'easy money'. We have shed the delusion of 'something for nothing.' We have turned our eyes from mirage to reality. We have come back to earth. These are no small gains."

The collapse of fictitious and absurd "values" will prove to be a good thing for the country. Everything that had genuine value in 1928 or 1929 has genuine value now. We tried to run an economic machine on hot air, and the machine finally slowed down awaiting a supply of "solid" fuel.

FIRE PREVENTION

Every citizen is thus directly interested in every fire, not only in his community but in the state at large. He is interested in whether or not fire departments have first class, standard apparatus and an efficient personnel, whether or not they are handled by politics, leading to the appointment of the wrong men as chiefs and marshals, whether or not law enforcement officers are so zealous as they should be in the detection and prosecution of arsonists. These matters are the public's business.

From the standpoint of the individual, he can do much to help by periodically examining electric wiring, chimneys, roofs, heating apparatus, by making essential repairs at once, and by taking care in handling inflammable household liquids—those old friends of the fire menace.

This is the way to reduce fire losses. There is no greater civic duty than to encourage fire prevention and fire protection of property secured through individual interest backed by fire departments well manned and equipped with standardized apparatus.

FARMERS ARE BIG FACTOR

When it comes to the dairy industry, we hear more about the distributors of milk products than of the farmers who do the actual producing. But, from the economic standpoint, the distributors are pretty small fry when compared to the farmers.

The dairy industry represents an investment of $10,250,000,000. Of this amount about $9,000,000,000 represents the farmers' investment in land, buildings and equipment. The distributors' investment is the balance—$1,250,000,000.

In other words, the 3,000,000 farmers who own the cows and the farms and produce the milk, are a good deal more important than the 30,000 distributors, even though the latter are necessary to the business. Yet, the farmer gets the short end of the stick. When prices are reduced, the cut is usually taken out of his share. As a result, at a time when millions of farmers are losing money and few are making profits, other factors, in the dairy industry are making as large a unit profit as they ever did.

The cooperative movement is the farmers' hope for remedying this condition. The fact that millions of farmers have created and are loyally supporting thousands of cooperatives over the country, is a fine augury for the agricultural future.

Judging by the news coming from Chicago the people are not nearly so worked up about the depression as they are over the wet and dry question.

It is reported that Germany may offer France an economic and military alliance. When that is perfected we will expect to go to the zoo and see the lion and the lamb playing a friendly game of ping pong.

It is alright to say that prosperity is just around the corner but the average man wants to be convinced that he is not riding on a merry go round.

Shrines In American History

COLONIAL LANDMARKS AT JAMESTOWN, VIRGINIA

"And he removed from thence and digged another well." This quotation from Genesis 24-22 aptly applies to this old well from which the new arrivals in America drew their supply of pure water. Nearby are the ruins of the old church, its broken tower marking the way to tragic scenes in Colonial history. Both are now in the keeping of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

Troubles of the delegates at Lausanne, seeking to settle the reparations question, and of those at Geneva trying to come to some agreement on disarmament, tend to prove once more the statement which has often been made by neutral observers of the European situation, to the effect that the difficulties of the old continent are not so much financial as political. We hear all sorts of pleas from financiers in Europe and in our own country to the effect that European countries ought to get together and bury their difficulties for the sake of the general economic situation. We are told the world is fast going to ruin and our modern civilization is doomed, unless the European nations find some means of getting together and starting a sane and constructive program designed to turn the world toward normalcy again.

And yet, often as this advice has been given, when the delegates assemble in conference representing the nations of Europe, great and small, they are unable to arrive at any definite conclusion, in spite of an economic situation which in most parts of Europe seems to be steadily growing worse. In short, the delegates of the various countries will not yield to the dangerous economic situation. This can only mean one thing, and that is that principal European differences are not economic, but political. Each prefers to run the chance of national ruin rather than yield anything tangible to the other fellow.

The conferences at Geneva and Lausanne are abundant proof of this. At Lausanne pleas have been put forward that Germany and France fix up their troubles in the interest of the common good. Yet every attempt at an agreement has failed and there is no assurance that anything tangible or lasting may be accomplished. It is indeed true that the delegates may go through the motions of agreeing, to save their faces, but no student of political affairs, that we know anything about believes anything lasting will be accomplished.

France is determined to save the reparations scheme not because she needs the money, but because she feels that to let it go by the boards would mean the ultimate revision of the Treaty of Versailles and the end of the French political dominance of Europe. The Germans, while they probably could not pay anything for the present, are determined to get out of reparations for all time to come, not because they feel that they may never be able to pay anything again, but for the reason that they want to end the whole scheme and then get rid of some of the burdens imposed on them by the treaty of peace so interfering with French control of the continent, and increasing German prestige.

So the talk about the way Europe is going on the rocks in an economical way falls on deaf ears. The various nations are determined not to give in any farther, and they are dominated principally by political motives. Perhaps they recall the fact that Europe has been ruined before and has survived although they ought not forget the story about the old pitcher that went to the well once too many times. At any rate the economic situation is secondary with the statesmen who are running the nations of Europe, and it is probably equally true that economic conditions are secondary with the various peoples, too. Otherwise the statesmen would not be able to survive.

There is a lesson in this for Uncle Sam. We have heard our own government advised time and again to cancel the European debts and lower the tariffs to relieve the economic situation of Europe and so save the world. But if, as has been demonstrated above, the trouble with Europe is political rather than economic, the program of cancellation would be only a temporary remedy and nothing of lasting benefit could be really help Europe until the nations over there straighten out their political difficulties. Cancelation and tariff revision, under such circumstances, would only injure the United States without helping Europe. That is why the American administration has repeatedly advised the statesmen of Europe to iron out their own troubles and agree among themselves before they ask any further sacrifices on the part of Uncle Sam.

The new Belvedere Hotel and the Chicago Club House are fast filling up and most of the cottages are occupied.

The iron pipe for the Charlevoix water works arrived by rail last week and is being scattered along streets. Work is to be done at once.

Capt. Daily of the U. S. dredge, has received orders to dredge for the water works pipe across the river. Yesterday he dug out a hole for the W. U. cable across the upper river.

The Charlevoix Driving Park authorities are by no means to let improvements on their grounds cease, because the 4th is past. Plans are being made to continue work on the track and fit their grounds for fall races.

Petoskey Democrat—Capt. Nell Gallagher, of Beaver Island, has sent H. G. Rose an eighteen pound cannon ball dug up on the Island and supposed to have been fired from the government building at the time of the Mormon troubles and the murder of King Strang.

WELL, WHAT NEXT?

For many years Charlevoix looked forward to an uninterrupted navigation between Lake Michigan and Pine Lake. The blessing was secured.

Then we cast our eyes forward for the sight of a locomotive. It is here. Charlevoix has now what we have these long years hoped and prayed for—a harbor and a railroad. We have—or soon will have—a fourteen foot channel into Pine Lake, and the main trunk line of one of the best of railroad systems is ours.

What next?

To what shall Charlevoix next turn its attention? Or shall we set down contented with what has been accomplished? By no means has Charlevoix reached the fullness of her destiny. There is yet much to be accomplished for Charlevoix. What we have accomplished is only the beginning.

The depot will be ready for occupancy next week.

Two Wagner sleepers are attached to every morning train both, and every evening train has two chair cars and a "buffet".

Burns and Cameron have taken the contract to erect the C. & W. M. platform and pavilion at the New Belvedere and have started work.

Bellaire Breese—The number of tickets sold on the railroad for Charlevoix last Monday was 900. The Inne company has many words of praise for the Charlevoix boys, who extended to them every courtesy and did their best to make their visitors feel at home.

Fifty Years Ago

The everlastingly popular Dick Cooper is back in the Fountain City House, and we must frankly say Charlevoix and the traveling public rejoices in the fact. Dick is popular and he always has a housefull. The traveling public may always depend upon getting enough at the Fountain City House and of being well treated.

Dr. S. C. Graves, a graduate of the University of Michigan, of the class of 1883, has located in Charlevoix for the practice of his profession, and has established his office in Dr. Weed's drug store. Dr. Graves is a son of Rev. Dr. Graves, of Grand Rapids. He has for the past year filled the position of Assistant Demonstration of Anatomy at the University and is highly recommended by the faculty.

AN EVENT—Friday last was marked by an event in the history of Charlevoix which was the fruition of long years of hope, and the culmination of more than a decade of progress. We say culmination, because in the event is embodied the realization of the results of the growth of Charlevoix harbor from a shallow stream, open only to small sail boats to a capacity sufficient to float the commerce which passes almost from one end of the Great Lakes to the other.

At eight o'clock on that evening, the propeller Fountain City, of the Western Transportation company, running between Buffalo and Chicago, entered our harbor and moored alongside of Upright, Emrey and Co's dock. She was drawing eleven feet 3 inches, but experienced no difficulty in getting through the river. Upon the approaches to the bridge were assembled large crowds of Charlevoix people and as the fine steamer passed through the bridge a lusty cheer went up from hundreds of throats.

It was a proud moment for Charlevoix. No Charlevoix was no prouder than Capt. Gibson, who has hosts of admiring friends throughout this northern country.

The Fountain City has for the past sixteen years been a favorite with Charlevoix people, always regular, safe and seaworthy, with a popular captain and officers, she has been looked upon as a friend in which such confidence was reposed as we would in a tried and true human friend. We could easily imagine that the grand old steamer was proud herself as she floated upon the clear, deep waters of Round Lake.

It is the intention of Capt. Gibson to enter the harbor every trip up, and will stop outside on her way down.

VISITORS TO MICHIGAN may enjoy their favorite sports

Michigan offers unlimited facilities for every summer sport. These combine with her rugged scenic beauties, fine highways, well equipped state camps and excellent hotels to make Michigan an ideal vacation state.

The millions of dollars spent each year by Michigan's thousands of visitors add to the prosperity of the state. Let us also spend our own vacations in Michigan this year, thereby contributing still further to its prosperity.

And wherever you go, dispel worry by telephoning home and office frequently. Call friends to tell them when you will arrive. Telephone ahead for hotel accommodations. Long Distance rates are low.

We have it within our power to make the fruits of past labor mighty agencies for future progress.

Shall we do it?

Shall we be content with the ephemeral benefits of summer travel, or reach out after the more permanent benefits, industrial growth?

We have every requisite for this much desired advancement, and only energetic action is necessary.

Shall we look forward or be content with the past and present?

RAILROAD NOTES—The depot has been added to the telephone exchange.

The surveyors are staking out the C. & W. M. resort plat. A portion of Dixon Avenue to the depot has been graveled. We now have a daily freight each way.

It is our purpose to keep our paper on a footing calculated to shield it from that glamour and death which generally overtake those of the dishwater order, and by fearlessly holding up our principles and reflecting the tenets of true Republicanism to deserve from our local democracy the respect due an honorable enemy. We do not say that this is all we expect. Some of our best friends and most liberal patrons are Democrats, and we do not hesitate to say that the existance of our paper today is in a considerable degree due to the faithful friendship and generous patronage of followers of that creed.

In the interest of the county we labor, and we aim to do so with impartiality—considering not individual sympathy for Grant, Greely or Davis. But on the great issue our sentiments are expressed in the four lines at the head of our editorial column.

Messrs. Dougherty and Carr have the scow "Who'd Av Thot It" of Northport, on the ways for repairs.

The Queen of the Lakes—The new iron side-wheel steamer "Queen of the Lakes" launched a short time since at Wyandotte, was out on the 6th on a trial trip, passing a short distance up the river and returning. A distant view gave us a very favorable opinion of her and her movements. She is about 180 feet long, and is built arrangement and is painted white.—Detroit Tribune.

PICTURE DEALS WITH SEXYS FROM NEW VIEWPOINT

Hundreds of books, plays and motion pictures have been turned out in recent years dealing with home life in this hectic age. The faults and virtues, the pleasures and pains of domestic existence today have been discussed from every conceivable angle —except one.

That one is the angle of boyhood. How the youngsters of the nation regard our modern scheme of things and our high-pressure mode of living constitutes a viewpoint that few writers have touched. Yet it is of vast significance to adults as well as to the youths who in a decade or two will be running the country.

What do these young people think of marriage and divorce today? Of our new educational theories and methods? Of their home surroundings in this age of radios and fast cars and prohibition and mother's clubs? And how do they feel about the existance of our paper today is the Charlevoix dentine), a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

RUTH CHATTERTON FINDS NEW VEHICLE WHILE SNOWBOUND

Ruth Chatterton herself discovered the story of "The Rich Are Always With Us" playing at the Palace Theater Sunday and Monday, while she was snowbound for a week at Arrowhead Lake, seventy miles east of Hollywood.

The First National star had gone to the mountain resort for a week's rest, taking with her an armful of books suggested by the studio for further consideration as starring vehicles.

She had not read twenty pages of the novel before her interest was aroused. By the time she reached the final chapter, she knew she had found her first story. A long-distance telephone call to the First National studio next morning advised them of her decision.

"E. Petit," the author of "The Rich Are Always With Us," is in real life, Mrs. Arthur Somers-Roche, the wife of the famous novelist, and a warm personal friend of Ruth Chatterton. Not until the story had been purchased was Miss Chatterton aware that "E. Petitt" and Mrs. Roche were one and the same person.

Alfred E. Green, who directed Disraeli," "Smart Money" and several other popular screen successes, directed "The Rich Are Always With Us."

The producers have given "The Tenderfoot" a more elaborate setting than any previous Joe E. Brown picture, with the result that the combination of story, cast, direction and settings bring to the screen what has been hailed by metropolitan critics as one of the funniest films of all time, bringing new laurels to Brown's successful record of hit-after hit.

Joe E. Brown, affectionately regarded as the current king of comedians, follows up his "Fireman, Save My Child" success with "The Tenderfoot," a First National picture coming to the Palace Theater next Friday and Saturday.

In his latest, wide-mouthed Joe portrays a Texas rancher who comes to New York with the last of his money, which he intends to invest profitably so he can lift the mortgage on his ranch. Armed with his money and his six-shooters, he becomes involved with theatrical producer, falls in love, buys a show which is unconsciously and unwittingly turns the show into a howling success, gets mixed up with lawyers and ladies, eventually overcoming all obstacles, lifting the mortgage and winning the gal.

MARTING under disrespect shown by a subordinate, Washington set out for Boston to have his position clearly defined by Governor Shirley of Massachusetts, then the highest military authority in the Colonies. He returned with full authority as Commander-in-Chief of the Virginia forces. This was his first trip to Boston, and he died he rode in full uniform.

OUT, what winding roads do even heroes sometimes travel! Washington detoured to Philipse Manor, near Yonkers, to pay court to Mary Philipse, a Colonial beauty. It was not an ill-timed call, for was he not resplendent in a new blue and buff uniform with a white and scarlet coat? And was he not accompanied by an impressive military escort? The proper approach, it would seem, for the sudden capture of a lady's heart.

Scraps of Humor

DOUBLE REASON

She followed her husband down the stairs and acted herself regretful him at the breakfast-table.

"I hope you weren't annoyed because I interrupted a pencil with your razor, darling," she innocently asked.

"Yes, I was—cause, he replied patiently.

"Twice, darling?" she echoed.

"Yes, after I had given up trying to shave I tried to write with the pencil," he returned.

NOW THEY BOTH KNOW

"Of course you know, landlord, that living is very dear, and—

"Yes, yes, of course. In fact, I shall have to raise my rents on account of it. Have a new contract with an additional $100 per year."

Long Journey

A man who spends a good deal of time traveling is decided to gold when at home. He is more celebrated for occasional time for economy.

"One day he got into a deep bunker, where he stayed for a long time.

His opponents strolled over to discover the golf-stretcher had dug quite a sizable hole in his efforts to dislodge the ball.

"Well, Bill," he said, guiltily, "off to Australia again?"—London Tit-Bits.

Benefits of College

Gentleman in a restaurant near the City Hall park:

"How's your son making out at college, Bill?"

"Fine; he's improving all the time."

"Getting good marks, eh?"

"Well, his marks aren't so hot, but his letters touching me for money are more grammatical every week."—New York Sun.

Unexpected Flight

A disk golfer had lost his ball and was unnaturally was inclined to be annoyed with his caddie. "Why the blazes didn't you watch where it went?" he demanded angrily.

"Well, sir," said the boy, "it doesn't usually go sideways, and so it took me unprepareduhs."—Boston Transcript.

Thermometer

Gone to her first term at school, insisted that she was a "thermometer" and her parents were at a loss to know what she meant. Later her mother visited the school and heard the teacher call the pupils in the front seats her "front monitors."

Then Gena whispered: "That's me, mom!"

HUBBY'S TOPIC

Mrs. Newwed—No. He talks about mine.

Seeking Adequate Protection

"How did that big boy in gangland come to get sent to the penitentiary?" asked Bill the Bore.

"Most of been [illegible] influence," replied Dirk the Dip. "He got so supercilar a bulletproof vest wasn't protection enough. He needed high stone-work."

Change for Her

"Do Filmer the movie star, is very fond of working in her garden."

Experience Improves

The wedding was over at last. "There, that was an experience," said the bridegroom. "Did I look like a fool at the altar rail?"

"No," replied the best man, "but anyone could see that you were yourself."

Real Daughters of the Revolution

Miss Sarah Pool, eighty-six, and Mrs. Mary Newsom, eighty-nine, whose father, Henry Pool, served for four years with Georgia troops in the war for American Independence are shown here as both were in Hancock county, Ga. The daughters of the American Revolution have established the fact that there are only seven persons now alive whose fathers fought in the revolution, with Georgia claiming two of them. Their fathers was married three times, and they are the children of his third wife. When the younger, Mrs. Mary Newsom, was born, her father was ninety years old. Both are members of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

PLATINUM INVADING MANY NEW FIELDS

Metal Is Now Worth Twice as Much as Gold.

Washington—Platinum is leading new fields. Platinum leaf and plating are among the most recent developments of the industry.

"Platinum is one of the workhorses of metals," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"A pound of platinum is worth more than two pounds of gold, but a little platinum goes a long way. Normally, about six tons is required annually to supply a metal-hungry world. The entire can be refined and beaten into leaf one two-hundred-thousandth of an inch thick. A cubic inch can be drawn into an almost invisible wire that could be wound twice around the entire globe.

"Because it is costly and only to an infinitely perishable, more than half of the world's supply of platinum is sold over the jewelry counter. In the average jeweler's show cases display platinum rings and rings of other metals with platinum settings for precious stones.

"Platinum and platinum-plated watch cases enclosing works with platinum pinions, rings and powder boxes, vases, flower and fruit bowls, various ornaments, and tableware.

"Platinum often does its best work beyond the vision of the average layman. As a part of a radio tube it aids modern entertainment; in telegraph and telephone instruments it improves and speeds modern communication. In the electrical apparatus of automobiles, motor trucks, railroad trains, ships and airplanes, it contributes to modern transportation and business.

"Tradesmen use platinum-plated pins to secure price tags; the metal aids construction engineers in locating obstructions for new projects; the surgeon uses a gold, platinum-tipped needle in new methods of treating cancer, and even in fact, distinctly artistic in his beliefs.

"He married when approaching forty and had a large family of children. The two things that interested me in the bringing up of his children was first that he tried from the outset to institute in them very distinct and orthodox religious faith, and second that, although he was absolutely strict in his use, he gave some of them an opinion toward the elementary training where was afforded by the rural schools.

"I want my children known," he explained, "and imagine girls one a certain stability in this world and a definite assistance for the next. It is a casualty and an assurance within I do not myself enjoy. Even if it is not boldness, I should rather they remained and were happy than to live in the uncertain state of mind which I am in."

It wasn't truth he was after it was happiness.

"Up to adolescence," he said, "that was you know, the simplest you are. Knowledge makes men dissatisfied and discontented.

Here was a man widely read, well informed, well grounded in the principles of the church, but he had no doubt, he had seen in cases no one times and now wobble opened up to him. To him knowledge was not power, nor religion an inspiration.

Religion, Ignorance, and Happiness

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It was the eminent thing in the country neighborhood in which I grew up for anyone to have been to college. The educated men of our neighborhood were pretty limited. Even the "schoolteachers" who presided over the district school which I attended had seldom been farther in the pursuit of knowledge than the training afforded by the eighth grade. One neighbor I recall had had a year or two of residence in an academy of mediocre grade, but he was an exception.

The best educated men in our community, so far as formal training was concerned was McManis.

He accepted no definite religious faith, but was, in fact, distinctly agnostic in his beliefs.

This Husband Stork Encourages His Mate

Cincinnati, Ohio—Speaking of thoughtful husbands, a female stork at the Cincinnati zoo is sitting on two eggs. Ordinarily a stork or other species of bird, while sitting, eats little or nothing. But not so this bird. Her mate secures about and provides her with food. "Just the other day," says Sol. A. TEXAS BUILDS SHAFT FOR FAMOUS VETERAN

State Honors Man Who Fought for Independence.

Fort Worth, Texas.—A monument to Gen. E. H. Tarrant, famed veteran of the War of 1812 and the Texas war of independence was recently unveiled here.

To Tarrant is accredited the subduing of the Indians in this region for his achievement, this county was named for him.

While still a youth, about nineteen, he distinguished himself in two battles against marauding Indians with a southern army under Gen. Andrew Jackson.

Well qualified for frontier life and a natural pioneer, he came to Texas in 1839, leaving the army in 1836, after independence was won, he joined the Texas Rangers. He became commander of the northwest Texas region, coincident with hostile Indians and Mexican outlaws.

In 1850 General Tarrant was elected as representative to the congress of the Texas republic. Although a resident of Nebraska, he quickly resigned to return to command of the Rangers.

As an able ranger and also active physically, he traded the saddle for a legislative chair and served several terms in the Texas legislature after Texas was admitted to the Union.

Fudge Frosting

2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup light corn sirup, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Add chocolate to milk and place over low flame. Cook until mixture is smooth and blended stirring constantly. Add sugar, salt, and corn sirup, and stir until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking without stirring, until a small amount of mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (232 degrees F.). Remove from fire. Add butter and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.). Beat until of right consistency to spread. Makes enough to cover two 9-inch layers.

Price of Bread Soaring High in Soviet Russia

Moscow.—The shortage of bread and bakery products has become a critical problem for soldiers in the Ukraine, the Volga Region and to a lesser extent, Crimea and Caucasus.

In Ukrainian cities the Red army ration, issued at inflated prices, has to government consumers, is cut from three to five rations a day, in the private market, which did not exist some months before, the government has established fixed prices for bakery products and has ordered all bakeries to sell at these prices.

Lines of thousands of persons regularly form outdoors, especially women, regularly from Moscow, Leningrad and other northern cities, where are being supplied. The most cities in Moscow is flooded with purchasers, dressed in cities where the bread ration is [illegible].

Recently the bread ration was cut another in Kiev, Odessa, Chelyabinsk and other Ukrainian cities, on account of the shortage. Factory workers equal to are still in others to [illegible] bread to [illegible] "official prices." All others must buy at the markets and pay the exorbitant prices.

5,400 Arkansans Draw Confederate Pensions

Fayetteville, Ark.—Eleven months after the close of the civil war an act was passed by the Arkansas legislature providing for pensions for veterans of the Confederate army. Only other landlords since. The act authorized the governor to draw warrants against about $1,200,000 annually. An advisement pending pensioners, had brought the annual disbursements to about $700,000 a month. Pensions for this sum of approximately half and about 50 per cent of the current county of $125,000 a month.

Mary Virginia Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kiel Lewis, wealthy and socially prominent cattleman, was named Miss Nebraska in the Miss Rodeo Bryon to represent that state at the dedication of Nebraska's Pioneer statue in the Pioneering memorial to Pioneers on June 20. She sailed for France bearing messages of greeting from President Hoover to the heads of European governments.

NEW INTEREST IN LONG-PASSED RACE

Neanderthal Study Revived by Scientists.

The recent announcements made by Dr. George Grant MacCurdy, director of the American School of Prehistoric Research, that three Neanderthal skeletons had been unearthed at the Pontil of St. Cloutard, near Hasta, Palestine, has formed new attention on this long extinct race. Not only does the find confirm recent archeological theories concerning the antiquity of human domination in that part of the world, but it also promises a wealth of new information about this ancient people.

Neanderthal man seems to have been the sole representative of the human race in Europe in the last glacial epoch, but until recently no signs of these were or their characteristic culture known, as the Mousterian, had been found elsewhere. Following the discovery at Damascus, which first added knowledge of Neanderthal type were unexpected finds in Europe, in Java, Rhodesia and elsewhere. Improvements in the technique of excavation and other refinements of Neanderthal have also been found in England.

The date of Neanderthal occupation in Europe may be estimated as extending from 250,000 to 50,000 B. C., though some archeologists believe that the period was much longer—certainly sufficiently to bring about the changes in the race that, in time, led to the entirely different Cro-Magnon and Aria types of today. Neanderthal is said to have vanished at a period at least as long as that in which human skulls have remained it. Their culture, such as it was, certainly dominated those regions for thousands of years, and was replaced by that of the Cro-Magnon people—and consequently modern type of man—only when the retreat of the great ice front made it possible for a less harsh human type to survive.

To Ernest A. Hooton, of Harvard university, recently described the Neanderthal as "a human type that is distinctly archipedd to low prehension and chewing." They each several varieties of flaked flint implements of very primitive type, they buried their dead with some ceremony, and they cultivated some conflicts with the cave bear (the remains of caverns with workers engravings.)

Until recently it was supposed that the Neanderthal race died out only in Europe, since no remains had been discovered elsewhere. In 1925, however, part of a Neanderthal skull was found by T. Darville Perie, a young anthropologist, while he was excavating a large cave on the western shore of Lake Galilee.

This discovery stirred archeologists to a more thorough search for traces of ancient man in the caves of Palestine. One of the most famous work are was Miss Dorothy A. E. Garrod who had charge of a joint expedition sent by the American School of Prehistoric Research and the British School of Archeology. Miss Garrod found in a cave near Athlit seven alive remains of early man, dating back until the Neanderthal period and giving a more or less connected history of the various human cultures that existed in that region from glacial times right up to the present.

In the upper layers of the settlement in this cave, which is known by an alive as "daughters of Ubaid," were relics of civilization from the bronze age to the present. Between this layer was a stratum designated as Mousterian and lower still were the cracking stones of some early flint implements and bones of animals. Limestones of extinct species, and human skulls layer remained as similar stage in human development from the remains of caves 24 feet from the surface of the cave. It is not the beginning of conservation, the cause of Neanderthal extinction remains unclear.

Find Crustaceans

Discovery of five species of small crustaceans hitherto unknown to science, almost microscopic in size, in bathing Chesapeake bay is announced by Lt. Charles B. Wilson of the Smithsonian Institution report. They are copepod crustaceans, distant relatives of the crab and the shrimp and the lobster and constitute the third largest of items fish eaten by man. Those discoveries resulted from a biological survey of the bay conducted under the direction of the bureau of fisheries. Four crustaceans of the small crustacean were found to swarm the bay waters.

Indian Calendar Found

Tyler, S. D.—Evidence of the Indians' keen knowledge of the stars has been found by Indians living near Lake Traverse reservation in the discovery of a calendar stone, which is believed to be more than 100 years old.

The stone, which is about 18 inches square, is divided into 28 sections, each section being marked with a symbol representing the moon's position in the heavens during that period.

Fudge Frosting

2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup light corn sirup, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Add chocolate to milk and place over low flame. Cook until mixture is smooth and blended stirring constantly. Add sugar, salt, and corn sirup, and stir until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking without stirring, until a small amount of mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (232 degrees F.). Remove from fire. Add butter and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.). Beat until of right consistency to spread. Makes enough to cover two 9-inch layers.

"Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, July 10.

Among the Bible citations was this passage: (John 14: 14, 15) "If I shall ever Love and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following: (p. 497) "When did Jesus' professed followers learn to consider him in all his ways and to imitate his mighty works? Those who procured the crucifixion of that persecuted one would gladly have turned his sacred career into a multisided doctrinal platform. May the Christians of today take up the more practical import of that career."

WHITECAP'S LOSE FOURTH

BOW TO ELLSWORTH NINE BY 10 TO 9 SCORE

(By Newman)

The Charlevoix Whitecaps lost their fourth game of their summer's campaign last Wednesday evening when they bowed to the Ellsworth independent nine known as the "Hinkydinks." The final score was 10 to 9.

Charlevoix outhit the opponents, getting safe blows 26 times to Ellsworth's 20, but Ellsworth's hits were more timely.

Bob Sterritt pitched a good game for Charlevoix, striking out ten men, but the Ellsworth diamond was one which favored the batter to the disadvantage of the pitcher and infielders. Home plate is at the upper end of a gentle slope and almost every time the batter would connect with the ball he would get a safe hit as the ball would be too hard to handle. This, of course, hurt neither team in the field and was no worse for the heads than for Ellsworth. Every man who played was guilty of at least one misplay in the field, judged by ordinary standards.

Charlevoix took a 5 to 2 lead in the first inning when Smith, Sterritt, Helms and Newman all got safe hits. Charlevoix got another run in the third inning when Helms scored on successive hits by Dixon and Newman. Ellsworth, counted three runs in the fourth to make the score 5 and 4 in their favor. Charlevoix had a chance to put the game on ice in their half of the fourth, but luck seemed against them. Smith, Sterritt and Helms were all on base, with two men down. Dixon hit a blow that would have been a three bagger under most conditions, but the Ellsworth fielder had been playing far back, and made a nice catch of the fly. That was the turning point in the game, and the most important single play of the day. Newman scored on Towsley's hit in the fifth inning, temporarily tying the score, but Ellsworth came right back in the sixth with three runs, and in the seventh with two runs, giving themselves a 10 to 5 lead.

Charlevoix rallied somewhat after that, holding Ellsworth scoreless for the rest of the game. Smith scored on successive hits by Sterritt and Newman in the eighth inning. Charlevoix started a real batting spree in the last inning. Gravelin, first up, got a nice clean single for his first hit of the day. Marvin Dixon advanced him to second with a sacrifice hit. Joe Shores was safe on an error, leaving men on first and third. Shores went to second on Smith's out. Sterritt knocked both men in with a double that could have been stretched to a triple. Helms' bit scored Sterritt for the last run. Mavis Dixon ended the game with another long fly to the Ellsworth right fielder, who had put Charlevoix's second baseman out three times on well-hit balls.

These two teams will meet on the local field Friday evening at 5:30 p. m. and the locals will try to win the rubber game of the series, they having beaten the Ellsworth team 11 to 9 in a previous game.

Mr. Horace R. Fowler, Charlevoix resident and business man, announces his candidacy for the office of Probate Judge in this issue of the Sentinel and asks the support and endorsement of republican party members as well as their vote at the primary election scheduled for September 13. Mr. Fowler is a long time resident of this region, is well and favorably known in the county where he has many friends who will support his candidacy.

Mrs. Louis Sharrow and son Junior accompanied by Mrs. R. C. Hubbard and daughter, Vernajean, guests at the Sharrow home motored to Ypsilanti Sunday where Mrs. Sharrow remains for a few days while Junior is in the Ann Arbor hospital for treatment.

The coming of the Great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus to Petoskey for afternoon and night performances on Monday, July 25th, has been announced with flamboyant posters of elephants, clowns, aerial stars and all else that goes to make up the miscellaneous wonder of spangleland.

The huge show, with its thousand and one marvels, will, this year, offer more brilliant features than ever before.

Foremost of the thrilling displays will be Clyde Beatty, wild animal subjugator, famous as the most fearless man in the world. Alone and single-handed, this youthful trainer enters the huge steel arena with a massed group of thirty-four wild and ferocious lions and tigers.

Other highlights will include the Clarkonians, and the Siegrist troupe of aerialists; the Wallace high school of educated horses; the Hagenbeck-Wallace herds of performing elephants, groups of iron-jaw girls in colorful aerial displays; scores of trained wild and domesticated animal exhibitions.

The circus program includes over twenty separate displays, each of which calls for brute or human actors in sufficient number to fill the mammoth "big top" from end to end. And there is not a moment without its thrill—and its laugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bisbee and Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Bisbee of Northport were guests of Captain and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur Sunday.

TWC LOCAL STUDENTS AT NORTHWESTERN

Two high school students from Charlevoix, Mich., who are attending Northwestern university this summer on scholarships offered by the school of speech, played important roles in a program of one-act plays presented by the school of speech the last week of their summer term.

Miss Dorothy Staley played Madame de la Bruine in Anatole France's "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," and John Winder played Giles Boiscoutier, Secretary.

Miss Staley and Mr. Winder were two of the nine high school juniors from twelve cities who were selected on a competitive basis to receive scholarships for a four-week summer course especially organized for them at Northwestern University.

Special classes in acting, play producing, play directing, make-up, voice and diction and public speaking were formed for the high school juniors. Particular attention was given to methods of production, technique in acting, methods of directing and staging and to problems of lighting and costuming.

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Palmer were passengers from St. James to Charlevoix on the S. S. Bedell Monday, returning to St. James Wednesday. While there are many pleasant, beautiful places in this region we glean from a short conversation with Mrs. Palmer Tuesday, that no place in northern Michigan appeals to her with such superior force as does Charlevoix. In this we voice her sentiment "charlevoix against the world."

Mr. Albert A. Wilbur and Master George Cline of Chicago are spending the week with Captain and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur, parents of Albert A. and grand parents of Master George.

LIGHTNINGLIGHT BOAT EXCURSION BIG SUCCESS

Due to some misunderstanding the weather man furnished lightninglight instead of moonlight for the Legion Excursion of the Ossian Bedell Wednesday evening and the Sunday of electricity was prosperous.

However and in spite of the rain a large crowd enjoyed one of the big best evenings entertainment for glee that has ever been made available in this community. With the boat ride, complete entertainment, music, rain, wind, lightning, thunder, and various other thrills encountered on the return trip of the Bedell with the floating dance palace, "Keuka" in tow the trip takes its place as another successful legion event. And incidentally proved to all the trustworthiness of the Sir Ossian Bedell" and the ability of Capt. Gallagher and crew.

The "Keuka" is anchored out in Lake Charlevoix and the Legion will sponsor dances there on Monday and Thursday evenings beginning next Monday evening. These dances will be comparable as to conduct and prices, with other resort and location events and the public is cordially invited to enjoy a boat ride and dance-ing at less than ordinary dancing prices.

DEMOCRATS HOLD MEET IN BOYNE CITY RECENTLY

Last Friday democrats of the county held a meeting at Boyne City, decided to place a full ticket in the field, nominated candidates for the several county offices, also a candidate to represent the Charlevoix-Leelanau district in the state legislature, transacted some other business before adjournment, such as pledging support to county, state and national tickets and passed the word along the line for all democrats to buckle on their political armor, get into the political fight and make a strenuous effort to elect each and every nominee.

It is interesting to learn that local democrats, dormant or practically so for a term of years, are making an effort to rehabilitate the organization by putting a little pep, a minus quantity in recent years, into the 1932 campaign. In this effort we wish them success even to the point where candidates on opposing tickets will realize that they have not indulged in a wholly one sided campaign as in many past years.

The candidates for the various offices are: Representative in the state legislature, E. E. Crose; sheriff, Leo W. Powers; Judge of probate, Chas. H. Gale; County Clerk, W. A. Lawday; Register of Deeds, Roy Winegarden; Surveyor, R. F. Sleen; Coroners, Burt Friday and A. Fiseberg. No selection was made for County Treasurer, this being left temporarily and will be made later by the candidates or county committee.

ANNOUNCE THE MARRIAGE OF THEIR DAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lindley announce the marriage of their daughter Lyrta to Mr. Leroy Volz of Cincinnati, Ohio, in Carrolton, Ky., on May 19. Mrs. Volz will be remembered as a member of the graduating class of the local high school, class of 1931.

Mr. Volz has been visiting at the Lindley home on Petoskey Road for a few days but has returned to his home in Cincinnati. Mrs. Volz plans to remain with her parents until fall and will then join her husband in Cincinnati where the young couple will make their future home.

Mr. F. J. Hall, head of the Detroit Gas Company and family arrived here last week and are at the Harsha cottage, Boulder Park for the summer.

S. Thomas Barry and son "Tommy" for some weeks past a guest of the formers Uncle and Aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kook returned to their home, Toronto, Canada, last Friday.

LEGION ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

AT REGULAR MEETING LAST TUESDAY EVENING

At the annual election of officers of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 326, American Legion, held Tuesday evening, Lew-C. Allard, popular commander of the past, retired voluntarily from office on account of a projected trip south during the coming winter and the pressure of outside duties that he has assumed.

Shirley R. Hurd was elected commander for 1932-33, with William E. Taylor as his vice commander. F. V. Tyler was unanimously re-elected adjutant and Clarence B. Meggison elected as finance officer to succeed Charles Martin who has come expires this year by legion law.

G. P. North was re-elected chaplain of the post and Leo W. Allard elected sergeant-at-arms. E. J. Kilbe will fill the post of welfare officer for the coming year, with J. Sidney as his assistant in charge of disability claims and the voluminous paper work connected with them Sam King succeeds himself as Child Welfare Officer and the posts of Americanism officer and rehabilitation officer will be filled by Dr. Frank R. Wilkinson (re-elected) and Albert F. Taylor, respectively.

The officers will be officially installed at the first regular meeting following the 21st of August, 1932.

S. M. SEE & SONS AUCTION SALE BEGINS TODAY, JULY 21ST

Beginning today the fine stock of furniture and housefurnishings at the store of S. M. See & Sons goes on the auction block in order to close out the stock after which the See block where the business has been conducted for many past years, will be rebuilt on the interior and utilized for other purposes.

The stock is new, up-to-date, and complete, one of the finest in this region, hence the decision of the manager, Mr. L. S. See to close out the stock and retire from this branch of mercantile pursuit is a matter of regret to local citizens and residents of contiguous territory.

During the years that Mr. See has conducted the business the store has been well stocked with new goods, modern, attractive and artistically displayed, making for one of the most metropolitan business places in this entire region.

For particulars of this sale see advertisement on another page of the Sentinel.

POTATOES FOR NEEDY MAY BE OBTAINED AT LEGION HOME

A limited number of bushel of potatoes are available at the Legion Home on East Garfield Street to those who are unemployed or are in need of food.

MR. ED. A. NOWACK CANDIDATE FOR GOV.

Mr. Ed. A. Nowack of Lansing, candidate for Governor and known throughout the state, was a Charlevoix visitor last Friday. His visit here may have some political significance however he was not actively engaged in behalf of his candidacy when here.

That he is a candidate for gubernatorial honors is evidenced by the filing of his petition carrying some 22,000 names of Michigan electors, interested in his candidacy.

A personal acquaintance with Mr. Nowack that extends back over a score of years leads us to conclude he can put on a vigorous, interesting campaign and that having been in close touch with state affairs for a long term of years, he is in a position to furnish some inside information, facts and figures such as will assure electors, and terrorize some Michigan office holders if such a thing is possible.

HI-JACKERS MAKE RAID ON SUGAR BOWL SUNDAY

Hi-Jackers paid a visit to the Sugar Bowl at an early hour Sunday forenoon, made some inquiries concerning the proprietor, Mr. George Gladin, feared that he was absent from the place and upon leaving took with them three slot machines, loaded them into an automobile which was packed nearly and drove away.

Prior to removing the machines the hi-jackers stated that "State Police were making a raid on other places in town where slot machines were operated and that they would save them the trouble of handling the machines at the Sugar Bowl.

Miss Superman, an employee at the Sugar Bowl, states that the two men, although strangers to her, spoke as though they were friends of Mr. Gladin and appeared to be familiar with the room and its surroundings and by inference at least, that they were taking the machines before state police arrived to make an official raid a few minutes later.

In view of the fact that state police were not making a raid and that such officers were not in Charlevoix at the time the conclusion is that it was a smooth case of racketeering.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL PICNIC CHARLEVOIX-DETROIT CLUB

Natives from Detroit announcing the first annual picnic and potluck of the Charlevoix-Detroit Club have been renewed by Charlevoix residents.

Saturday, July 30, is the date selected, time from 12 noon until 8:30 p. m. and place, on the Canadian side of Bell Isle, East Side Athletic field, with potluck lunch at 5:30 p. m. Wm. A. Clay Secretary-Treasurer of the Club extends an invitation to local citizens to attend.

Mrs. S. S. Pingree, daughter and grand children of St. Louis, Mo., are recent arrivals from the south and are at the log cabin on the Belvedere grounds for the summer.

Mr. Paul Jarks of Manistee was a Charlevoix visitor Tuesday primarily on the interest of Mr. James Quinlan of Grand Rapids, whose petitions were left with friends here. Mr. Quinlan, one of the candidates for prosecutor was for some time in earlier years a resident of East Jordan.

Mrs. Robert Hunter and daughter Miss Ruth, recent guests of Mrs. Hunters' brother, E. E. Wilson and family returned to their home, Chicago, Wednesday.

JACK KELLY STOCK COMING TO CHARLEVOIX FOR THREE NIGHTS

The Jack Kelly Stock Company without a doubt the biggest and best known Stock organization in Michigan will come to Charlevoix for three nights starting Thursday, July 28th, when they will offer the best line of plays ever seen here at popular prices.

Jack Kelly was one of the few managers that did not pay what the depression hit, the last in he will go stronger than ever, and a complete new tent outfit was purchased. Mr. Kelly made two special trips to New York and Chicago to engage his Company and select plays for the summer season and now he has what he considers the biggest and best he has ever had.

The plays the year are selected from the following "The Pay Off", "The Divorce Question", "The Brat" "Easy Feet", "Pat Pifers Place" and the big New York success "Adam and Eva" not forgetting the kiddies for the matinee on Saturday by request "Hucklebery Finn."

The vaudeville is another big feature the pays giving from five to ten acts each evening, and a special orchestra is also carried which will give a special program before each performance.

The "Kelly Show" this year is going to be under the auspices of the American Legion and the Big new tent will be erected on the lot next to the Legion Home, On Thursday night one lady will be admitted free with each paid adult ticket, and the price for this year has been reduced so that it is within the reach of all to let's get together and make this a big "Kelly Week."

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING OF ST. JAMES TWOWNSHIP

At the annual meeting held the eleventh day of July 1932. Meeting was called to order by M. J. McCann, director. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Proposed by W. J. Gallagher that Mrs. J. H. Gallagher's name be placed in nomination for the office of treasurer. Ballot was cast and Mrs. J. H. Gallagher was elected.

Motion made by M. J. McCann and seconded by W. J. Gallagher that a tax of nine mills be spread on the roll for the general fund.

Motion made by James H. Gallagher and seconded by W. J. Gallagher that we have a commercial High School for the ensuing term.

Treasurers accounts were examined and found to be correct.

Motion made by M. J. McCann and seconded by W. J. Gallagher that the meeting adjourn.

MARION CENTER NOTES

The Charlevoix M. E. Aid Society met with Mrs. Geo. Meggison last week Tuesday. Twenty eight were present. The hostess served refreshments.

A little daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nixon. She will answer to the name of Kristine. Mother and daughter are both doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolka of Chicago are visiting Mrs. Bolka's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fesek.

Mrs. Myrtle Herrington of Detroit who has been visiting relatives here and in Charlevoix returned to her home Saturday evening.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Marion Center Grange served supper Saturday evening at the Grange Hall to the Rural Mail Carriers and their wives. There were about fifty present.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Wickersham and children called at the Geo. Meggison home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bodin, daughter Grace and a sister of Mrs. Bodin visited at the Eckland Bros. home last week.

Mr. Geo. Meggison bought a $400 proven Jersey sire from the herd at Oakland Farms near Ann Arbor. Mr. Preston brought him up returning the next day. His daughter accompanied him on the trip.

MANY ENJOY TRIP TO B. I.

WEATHER IDEAL AND EVENT CONSIDERED SUCCESS

The excursion to Lake Charlevoix via the Steamer Ossian Bedell last Sunday to Beaver Island was another happy event comparable to the Fourth of July celebration in that the romantic hand following the event were practically the same and that is "clean, orderly and successful" all of which the evidence in the near warrants.

The day was ideal and those who failed to brave the dangers of seasickness can now regret that they did not take the trip. The Steamer "Ossian Bedell" was loaded to full capacity and proved to be admirably adapted in just such excursions.

A bounty of both the trip over and back was the disbarging and taking on a passenger out in the lake the exchange being made by boat from the Steamer "Ilyanith."

Upon arrival at St. James the boat was welcomed by hundreds of the islanders. Their hospitality will be long remembered and their sightseeing trips by automobile were appreciated by members of the Legion.

Many of those making the trip enjoyed picnic dinners in cool and shady spots in the pine woods near the village while others availed themselves of the famous dinners at the hotels in St. James.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the bugle and drum corps which was interspersed with selections by "Tiny" on his accordion. Considering the fact that a number of the corps was unable to be present their exhibition both on board and landing and marching on the island, was very commendable and their entertainment much enjoyed.

The return trip was even better than the trip over in the morning and no difficulty was experienced in getting the passengers aboard and leaving at the appointed time. On this trip entertainment was furnished in the form of dancing which was enjoyed by a large number. And apparently to furnish a fitting end to a glorious day the sun set in the west in all its glory and a short time later the full moon rose over Charlevoix welcoming the crowd home.

Nor was this all of the welcoming for when the boat docked it seemed as if the entire city of Charlevoix was present to see the Legionnaires, their wives and families and other excursionists land. And it is hoped that no one was disappointed in the fact that the landing proved to be the close of another "clean, orderly and successful" Legion event.

A tango party drew a large crowd to St. Mary's hall last Thursday night which proved to be both interesting and entertaining to everyone present. Tonight at the same hall a Bunco party's to be given and this, no doubt, will draw another goodly attendance and procedure and equally good time for participants as did the one of last week.

Ladies' of St. Mary's parish have arranged an excursion on Lake Charlevoix for Sunday afternoon, July 24th. The S. S. Bedell has been chartered for the trip and is scheduled to leave her wharf at 1 o'clock returning about 8:30.

Miss Sadie Dunlevy of Chicago spent the week end with her sister Mrs. Earl Miller and family. Monday she continued her trip to St. James, her former home, where she visits relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Boyle and sons, Miss Bernardine McCauley of Beaver Island, following a visit of some days with Charlevoix friends, returned home Wednesday.

A family party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bechtold Tuesday evening in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Bechtold's father, Mr. Fred Hoffman. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Bechtold and daughter Mary Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and daughter Betty Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Edward Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Jimmie, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and daughter Dorothy Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and daughter Betty Lou, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and daughter Shirley Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and daughter Patricia Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Jerry, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bechtold and son Tommy, Mr. and Mrs.

GINSENG IMPORTANT ITEM OF COMMERCE

Crop United States Grows but Does Not Use.

Washington.—"Ginseng's peculiarity with the Chinese seems to defy failing markets and political disorders, for last year more than a quarter million pounds were exported from the United States to Hong Kong," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Ginseng has been an item in United States commerce since Colonial times. The first American cargo knot that cleared New York for Hong Kong in 1784, carried ginseng. The Chinese drink ginseng tea for its tonic quality. Though we came to and sell it, the tea has never been sighted reported in the United States, and very little is consumed here.

"Ginseng is a plant that grows from 8 to 20 inches high, has small-shaped leaves, bears greenish-yellow blossoms in mid-summer and red berries in the fall. It thrives in mountain areas of temperate North America and Asia. The aboveground portion of the plant is not utilized. It is the thick root that enters commerce.

"Long before Marco Polo passed down the Indus river, ginseng, an also a favorite tonic among the noble by and wealthy people of China. The poor could not afford to drink the brew. It was once worth its weight in gold. Four years' amounts were aged along for proper trend.

"Most of the early virginal ginseng grew in the mountains of Korea and Manchuria. Every year' was owned in the ruling houses. Korean kings derived most of their revenue from ginseng roots. Manchurian rulers waxed rich.

"Magic has much to do with ginseng price fixing. The more a root is shaped like a man, the more valuable it is on the Chinese market.

"Ginseng played an important part in colonial politics in the Seventeenth century. Massachusetts, seeing their supply of wild ginseng depleted, made laws to protect their plants against the raids of southern Chinese. Protection of ginseng concerns was one of the reasons for the laws which excluded all Chinese from the domains of the Manchus. Operations of ginseng smugglers, however, persisted.

"Chinese prefer the wild ginseng, although the American humans named desert the difference between the wild and cultivated roots. With the depletion of the colonial wild ginseng supply, the Australian colonies readily found a market for the roots which grew at the back doors of their villages.

"Perhaps the first American ginseng cultivators were trappers who discovered the plants while making their rounds. Later search for the plant led professional hunters into the trackless American forests. Men digging limped open up new regions to the Colonists.

"Wild ginseng thrives in mountain regions from Minnesota to Maine and southward to the Gulf coast. As in the Orient, domestic wild roots bobbing scarce, and high prices paid for the roots led enterprising Americans to establish farms. Some growers have profited from ginseng cultivation, but many fortunes also have been lost. It takes from six to seven years of ex pert care to develop a mature root. Some domestic ginseng farms have been established in the woods where the wild roots thrive; others have been established in clearings but in open areas the farms are roofed so that only one-fourth of the day's sunshine will strike the plants.

"Most of the ginseng exported from the United States today is of the cultivated variety."

STRANGE BONE AILMENT OF GIRL IS PUZZLE TO DOCTOR

Eleven-Year-Old Miss Has Had Many Fractures.

Chicago.—Suffering from a strange ailment which has kept her a semi-invalid since she was three years old, Mary Meidlejah, eleven years old, of Homer, Minn., has returned to her home after treatment in a Chicago hospital designed to make her bones less brittle.

Mary has suffered so many bone fractures in the first eight years that her parents have lost track of them. At least 25 or 30 fractures are recorded by X-ray pictures, however, her physician, Dr. Frederick Harvey, said.

Doctor Harvey is engaged in research work on Mary's case at Northwestern university. Mary returned to her home from the North Chicago hospital where she was treated for a broken right arm after physician in Duluth, Minn., had failed to mend the break.

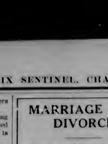
MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.



We were all surprised a few years ago when Walter and Bessie were married. They were quite children at the time; they had known each other only a few weeks, and their acquaintance had in no sense been intimate. Their marriage was a matter of sudden impulse, and they had gone off without announcement or knowledge of their friends. They were headstrong, both of them, each determined to have who he wanted without regard to right or reason. They stayed on through college, as many young people do after they were married, and graduated. No one seemed to concern himself as to whether they were getting on together ill or otherwise.

The messenger last night announced that she was saving for dessert the chief surprise she was at an end; frankly was the ground she stood, Neither she nor her rival had the slightest conception of marriage, and the cars was they could see on of the middle that had made of their was diverse and diverse setting sail in different directions.

There is a great deal being said now in the state of Nature about divorce easier, so that those who rush hypersensitive and thoughtless into the most sacred and holy relationship which unites persons human beings and with the obligations which they assume as to a solemn responsibilities and the obligations which they assume as to a sacred, contract being signed by his father, James C. Murphy.

Battle of Silence

Cleveland.—Judge Edward C. Ford sought a divorce from his wife, Ruth, on the grounds that she had not spoken to him for six years, Mrs. Ford filed a cross-complaint admitting the allegation, but said that her husband had refused to speak to her for four years previous to that.

POTPOURRI

Peculiar Candles

Bertain Alaskan tribes use a tall white fish called the eulachon for manufacturing about 15 inches in length, for burning purposes. When dried, it will burn like a candle when it is forced through it. Wheat, planted in the spring, feeds. This is probable because of the superior thinness of the fish. The fish is also considered very good eating.

Responding to Partner's Original Suit Bid of One

THE basis of all successful conpractice bidding depends upon partner thinking in terms of "our hand" instead of "my hand." When your partner makes a bid, listen to him and try to visualize his holding. Register a mental picture of it, see how it fits with yours. Hear everything the opponents have to say. And then endeavor to cooperate with your partner in arriving at the declaration that would be made if each could see the other's cards.

First—Trump length and honors.

Second—Length cards and honor tricks in side suits.

Third—Ruffing tricks produced by short suits.

The most vital question in considering a suit raise is whether or not your partner's bid may succeed on the number of tricks expected by your partner. Bridge experts, in counting tricks, look to your tricks and remember that you must not raise your partner's bid suit and forgotten that you have had at least four small trumps or the equivalent by an ace, or a king, or a queen.

The point to this strongest rule is apparent when you realize that your partner's bid may contain not more than four tricks. If, in view of the fact that you lack trump support, you raise on the assumption that he can go on with his bid suit, he may stop at the point of high contract with his opponents disastrously in control of the trump situation. Holding good trumps, and your partner's bid suit rocks, but a dominant in trumps, may cause him to be doubled, and in a raise.

Should your partner, without assistance, rebids his trump suit, you may if holding justifiable values raise him with the one small trump or two, but no lower as good as a queen. In short, one strong lone trump, and general expectancy is sufficient to raise a small suit.

If your partner, nonsolicited, rebids as high as three bid, or makes an opening bid of three or more, practically no trump support is needed for a raise, but your holding must contain trump support when rebid is a previously long evolving of three after an opponent's bid.

The trump length and honors are valued thus:

Trumps	Tricks
Three small or less	0
Four small	½
Five small	1
Six small	2
Aid for ace or a king	½
Aid for queen	¼, sometimes 1

In side suits which have not been mentioned by an opponent, high cards and length are valued the same way on the ascending hand as in the hand of the initial bidder, that is by honor trick values and length values.

But if an adversary has bid a side suit he aids in estimating the value of guarded honors and tenaces in his suit according to whether you are sure or under the average.

When holding four or more trumps, the ability to trump side suits is a tremendous asset in your hand, and in assessing hand which might fine trumps, the ability to ruff a suit for the first lead is worth, at least three tricks, as is worth a queen in trump tricks, and a doubleton one. With fewer trumps those short suit values will be somewhat reduced, as will also be seen from the following table.

Holding	2 short suits, or 3 cards in the short-suit, should be counted:	With 3 cards in a long suit	With 4 or more cards in long suit
A double-ton (a two-card side-suit)	½ trick	1 trick	2 tricks
A singleton (one card of a suit)	1 trick	2 tricks	3 tricks
A void (not any of a suit)	2 tricks	3 tricks

Brook Farm Experiment

The Brook Farm institute of Agriculture and Education was composed of a stock company of nearly 70 members. The organization had a farm of 200 acres at West Roxbury, Mass. Among the members were: George Ripley, Charles A. Dana, James Freeman Clarke, Margaret Fuller and Nathaniel Hawthorne. Some of the frequent visitors were: Ralph Waldo Emerson, Theodore Parker and Bronson Alcott. The experiment lasted from 1841 to 1846. The Brook farm was a failure, but it was important in intellectual results. Waning enthusiasm and a disastrous fire hastened the dissolution in 1856.

"I couldn't have done half so much for it. It hadn't been for the doctor," Shad answered.

Saturday morning Shad went up to the bank for the mail and needed provisions. He received a letter from Colonel Blake which said:

"My dear boy: I have some good news for you. You left your fishing rocks, back to your tramps and remember that you must not raise your partner's bid suit, and forgotten that you have had at least four small trumps or the equivalent by an ace, or a king, or a queen.

Beauty of Waxed Floors

There is nothing like wax for finishing the modern floors. When the boards have been stained and the pores filled with a filler, floor wax can be spread over these and polished to a satin surface, which can be repaired at any time without removing the furniture. Wax allows the wood to mellow as it ages and each additional application of it adds to a slow growing beauty that improves with time.

Shad's face began to redden.

"To me?" he asked.

"To you. It will give you a liberal education and a start in the world which that is done."

Shad had grown very serious. His eyes were a little moist when he said: "I can't see what I've done to get all that money."

"For a boy you've done pretty well. Three times your life has been in danger. You're a good boy and I want to help you along."

"I won't take it unless I can do what I want to with it. I've thought it all over."

"What do you wish to do with it?" "Give it to Bumpy Brown."

"My boy, the plan is a credit to you," the lawyer answered. "I expected that some like idea would cause to your mind, knowing you as I do. Let me make a suggestion. At present Bumpy would not need so much. If it should be necessary later we could help him. Let's part half of the sum out at interest and give the income to Bumpy. Use the remainder for your education. If you intend to take Bump to get a year or two of schooling you could do it."

"I suggest that you put five hundred dollars in the St. Lawrence County bank in Brook's name to be used for clothes and board and also tuition in the Canton union school. Later, if advisable, you could do more for him."

Shad rose from his chair. "It's fine of you to help a boy on my account," he said. "I know that you hate pity. There are many pretty girls here who would like to know you. I think that you should learn how to dance and you ought to go to the parties."

The letter filled him with a shining happiness.

"I guess that I've been pretty mean to her," he said to himself.

Scientists Unable to Explain "Cosmic Rays"

For many years scientists have been trying to find the source of penetrating power which are found to reach every part of the earth's surface. The most powerful X-rays are completely stopped by less than a quarter of an inch of lead. Cosmic rays, as they are called, pass easily through 10 feet of lead. What are they and whence do they come?

It is known that they come from outside the earth, for a decrease is obtained when detecting apparatus is used in the Southern hemisphere and also Sir James Jeans believed they were caused by the annihilation of matter at the very confines of the universe. Dr. Robert Millikan held the opposite view. He believed they were brought about by the creation of matter, and he called them the "birth cries of matter."

These rays can now be counted automatically by means of an amazing electrical device known as the Geiger counter. They duct through a vessel filled with electrified gas, and as each particle arrives it causes a click to be uttered by a loudspeaker. Intensive research in connection with cosmic rays is being carried on, and interesting discoveries may be in store.

Making Hektograph

Mix together one part of glue, two parts of water and four parts of glycerine, allowing the mass to cool and set to a shallow pan. Paper may be removed by stimulating surface with piece of cardboard. The letter or sketch to be duplicated is written or traced on a sheet of heavy paper with an aniline ink. When dry it is laid on the pad, with inked side down, and subjected to moderate pressure for a few minutes. It is then removed and the blank sheets are laid carefully over the pad and pressed down. Usually six to 80 legible copies can be made before the operation must be repeated.

Get Best Quality Hay From Alfalfa

Proper Methods in Cutting Will Increase Value of the Crop.

Dr. R. D. Lyon, in Agricultural Extension, Ohio State University, writes:

With between 45 and 50 per cut of the season's alfalfa hay production obtained from the first cutting, it is advisable to make every effort to harvest high-grade hay from this cutting.

In raking, leafing and moving the falls it is best to use a speed that will be consistent with obtaining well-cured hay with the largest possible percentage of leaves, tweedying in the swath, too large windrows, and the use of a rake when the hay is extremely brittle, are all dangerous practices and may result in poor quality hay. After the hay is first wilted it will cure more rapidly in small windrows than in the swath, and will be more uniform in color and leafiness.

The second crop may turn yellow, due to the presence of a little insect known as the leaf-hopper. These leaf-hoppers congregate the stems of the alfalfa and suck out the juice. Because of this insect's activity during the first half of July, it is best to make the second cutting between July 24 and 31. If the second cutting is made in the middle of July when leaf-hoppers are active, the low third growth to be dewarfed and the plant to be reduced.

The last, or third cutting, will not worken the stand if it is properly timed. Experiments at Columbus show that two cuttings of alfalfa averaged 2,530 pounds of hay, but three cuttings yielded 2,700 additional pounds of cured hay. This cutting is best made the week of September 2 to 10.

Alfalfa Draws Heavily on Fertility of Land

So much is said about alfalfa getting its nitrogen from the air that its natural requirement is frequently overlooked. As a matter of fact, alfalfa is one of the most exhaustive crops so far as mineral fertility is concerned. A four-ton crop of alfalfa hay removes twice as much potash and phosphorus as a 50-bushel wheat crop, or somewhat more than is contained in both the grain and straw of a 75-bushel corn crop, to avoid removal, four tons of alfalfa hay is equivalent to over 500 bushels of potatoes or 30 tons of cabbage. Poor growth and vigor of alfalfa is frequently due to phosphate or potash starvation. Few crops respond so profitably to adequate fertilization as does alfalfa.

A good time to fertilize alfalfa is right after the first cutting. The fertilizer can be broadcast, and then dressed on before the rains. The entire time will not injure the alfalfa, but on the contrary, may be beneficial in reducing or eliminating grass. Not less than 200 pounds per acre of a fertilizer high in phosphate and potash is recommended. On soils that are particularly potash deficient, larger applications may be necessary.—Missouri Farmer.

That New Fence

Thinking of replacing an old fence or building a new one with three strands of barbed wire? Better consider seven wire ropped by barbed wire, with the fence will turn hogs and sheep as well as cattle and horses.

The use of seven wire makes it possible to supplement dairy farming with hogs, because it will fence corners and sizable fields with sheep; to harvest corn and small grain with those animals.

Hog tight fences have made it possible for many farmers to do away with special pasture for swine. The hogs graze the same field of alfalfa that is to be cut for hay; they run in the small grain and harvested time, with very little shrinkage in the grain yield. A Nebraska farmer reports that he has used it to fatten 400 hogs from fields where hogs have been was supported continuously from the time it is ripely green until it is ready to harvest.

Control Animal Parasites

Parasites that are particularly harmful to young animals can be controlled by proper sanitation and methods. One of the best ways of controlling parasites is to rotate pastures. Horses, cattle and swine can be rotated on the same ground. Parasites which sheep can be used subsequently for horses and swine, but should not be used for cattle as some of the same parasites attack cattle that attack sheep and goats. To date we know no method will destroy all kinds of parasites, but these can be kept in control through careful management of flocks.—Prairie Farmer.

Agricultural Hints

Foot-and-mouth disease recently appeared in California, but at latest report was confined to hogs.

A land renter should select a farm equipped with a silo, because on such a farm he will make more money both for himself and his landlord.

Young trees planted in soil will seldom make satisfactory growth unless adequate fertilizer to some form is supplied.

A well-composted soil, careful management, and a 10 by 18-foot mulch greenhouse will enable a grower to raise 20,000 to 30,000 plants each year at minimum expense.

If jaks up to 24 sheep in provide enough pit to string one first-class lawn-tennis racket.

Such a few easter lessons into a mulch pile, if that "sulfuel forced" animal is yielding your lawn. Mules are very fond of easter beans. The beans are fatal to the mules.

FIRST-CHOICE or SECOND-choice

Why do you suppose that Goodyear Tires lead all others in public preference by better than two to one?

Why do you suppose that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind—and have for 17 years?

They must outsell all other tires in the world because they outrun them on the road.

On a straight quality basis, then, it certainly looks like common sense to buy FIRST-CHOICE tires.

Most of the best things on the market naturally cost more than the second-rate.

But here's the amazing fact about tires:

You can get the safety, the quality, the extra life and trouble-free mileage of the world's greatest tire at no extra cost.

Think that over when someone tries to high-pressure you into buying an unknown or doubtful bargain.

Just ask him this simple question: "Why should I pay good money for any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more?"

VILLAGE HAS HAD ITS DAY OF GLORY

Old Tadoussac Now Quiet Summer Resort.

The oldest white settlement in America, and once the center of the American fur trade, the quaint little French Canadian village of Tadoussac, on the lower St. Lawrence river, is today a quiet Canadian summer resort.

Nestling among the foothills of the blue-draped Laurentian mountains at the junction of the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers, the village itself is still living in the past, the natural beauty of its surroundings and the quaintness of its people attracting each summer a large number of holiday-ers who are seeking to leave behind the rush and bustle of modern life.

Where around Tadoussac is a long and romantic history. Here Jacques Cartier, the first explorer of New France, landed in the summer of 1535, and there are numerous tales of visits by those fierce sea rovers, the Vikings, at a much earlier date. Tadoussac, with its natural protected harbor, was long used as a whaling station by the Basques and Bretons who were the first to form a settlement there, and it was in 1599 that the first house in Canada was built.

At the opening of the century, Tadoussac became the center of the fur trading industry, which extended as far as Labrador and Hudson bay.

The saying, "The only good hawk is a dead hawk," has been proven false by modern biological studies. Some hawks, of course, prey at times on poultry and valuable game birds. Many, however, live mainly on the pests, insects, and other destructive forms of wild life.

It is not easy to distinguish between the harmful and harmless species of hawks, that in itself being good reason for erring, if at all, on the side of protection. In general, the economic status of the various species of Argentines, harmless hawks have broad wings and wide, rounded tails, and the harmful ones have relatively long tails and narrow wings. Study of the appearance and habits of the hawks in any section should enable farmers and sportsmen to tell which are the ones to shoot and which are those to protect.

Woman's Chief Charms Not to Be Purchased

The month or a photograph of the magnificent. Someone has said that there are two things that can be purchased with money—a watch and a woman. But a watch is not to be depended on for the time of day, and a woman's charms do not last a month and make even a casual observer believe it is exact.

Youthful Orchestra

One of the youngest orchestras in America, led by a talented five-year-old boy, has been formed in Seattle. Ten children, ranging from three to seven years of age, make up the group under the capable direction of Ethen-Ann Belsby. The children use violins one-eighth and one-quarter of the normal size. A small cello also is used. Jackie Wrenne, five, conducts the orchestra and Jackie La May is master of ceremonies, making all announcements.

Governor Sterling's Joke

Gov. Tom Sterling tells this one with a chuckle:

"I had been training the Imperial private farm, some thirteen. They furnished the wild a car and as a present of five dozen to Houston.

"'Certainly, sir.'

"'You will have enough time?'

"'Oh, yes, sir, I have seven years.'

Twice Told Tales

John Masefield, the poet laureate of England, has written a story brought back from England by a young reporter.

"I called on Mr. Masefield," the reporter said, "two years ago, and told him a story about Mary Pemberton. I called on him this summer and told him the same story. I forgot that I'd told it before.

"When I finished he asked:

"'That's a good story, but, sadly, if you tell it to me again I shall have to tell it to you.'"

NAVAL PROPOSALS

As was to have been expected, the constructive proposal of President Hoover for one-third reduction in armament is meeting with quibbling and delay abroad. Any program of the kind, simple, and easy to understand, always stands with the disapproval of most of the European diplomats. The reason is easy to find. While these diplomats would not object to some minor reduction, each wants it brought about in a way that will give his country some advantage over all the rest of them. None is willing to make a sacrifice, which might give the other fellow any advantage or an even break.

The result statement of the British navy heads in a case in point. While praising the Hoover program for its high motives and agreeing with it "in principle" the British naval experts there go ahead to state their objections. Among other things it is declared that because of Great Britain's far flung colonial possessions it is impracticable for her to reduce the number of her naval vessels below a certain point. Then the fallacy in the British argument is disclosed. While unable to reduce the number Great Britain is willing to reduce the size of her ships.

Their program is calculated not only to protect British interests but to give the British navy a distinct advantage over that of the United States. While Great Britain has far flung colonial possessions she also possesses far flung and widely scattered naval bases. And because she has these bases she does not need capital ships of as large size as those required by the United States. With her many naval bases British ships can put in all over the world for refueling and the replenishing of supplies and munitions of war. For this reason she does not require ships of large tonnage. On the other hand, Uncle Sam, without these bases must, in case of trouble, load his ships for long cruises, and warships of small tonnage are therefore comparatively valueless. If Great Britain therefore could get an agreement along the lines outlined above, she would, with an equal number of ships not only have parity with the United States but a distinct superiority over the United States. This is of course the foundation of British naval policy. Great Britain not only wants a navy second to none, but one which is potentially superior to that of any other nation in the world. It may be true that she does not fear or expect war with the United States and that such a combat is "unthinkable." But British vision extends further than that. In case of war between Britain and another power, with a superior navy John Bull can impose and enforces any rules on the high seas that he pleases and there will be nothing that Uncle Sam or any other nation can do about it, except write him another note.

A RESPONSIBLE PEOPLE

It is amazing how little wild talk there has been during the depression on the part of labor and the political parties of dissent.

There have been no strikes, no threats of reprisals. Labor, speaking generally, has shown a disposition to bear its share of the burdens that have fallen on all alike. Widespread unemployment and an unavoidable drop in the average wage scale—a drop which has largely been compensated by lower commodity prices—have not shaken the faith of an overwhelming percentage of workers in the stability of the government and the ability of industry to work its way out of its troubles.

THE FOUNDATION OF PROSPERITY

When national publications are appearing at from one-half to one-third of their inflated, pre-war size, the Byron (Texas) Times, published by Harry Hammond, at Byron, California, comes out with its 1866-page 1932-33 deluxe development edition showing the record of progress that is being made in Central California.

It would pay anyone to read this edition just to see that the future of the United States does not depend on the stock market or the politicians—its destiny lies in the hands of the producers of the products which provide necessities for our 125,000,000 population as well as a large part of the rest of the world.

This special edition pictures in minutest detail the activities that maintain the payrolls, provide the food and clothing and furnish the taxes to maintain government.

California owes a debt of gratitude to Editor Hammond and his able co-workers who have brought to the front such a record of assets upon which the future and prosperity of this nation rest and will go forward.

A PRINCIPLE JUSTIFIED

"As we consider the activity of stock fire insurance companies during the past three years," said a leader in the insurance industry, "and to this add our accumulated experiences and knowledge, I like to think that the economic upheaval which we are passing through is merely an incident in the day's work of our business, which stands as the basis of credit for commercial enterprise.

"While present conditions are tremendously important to most of us as individuals, so far as our industry is concerned, they are the risks which arise over a period of years and become part of the statistical record upon which our business has been built. Such periods produce facts which when properly classified and interpreted, and averaged up over a long period of time, furnish the rock foundation of seasoned experience upon which stock fire insurance companies are built. A depression such as we are witnessing is an ordinary business hazard which we have to meet just as much as the periodic conflagration.

"That stock fire insurance has considered just such possibilities as the present, and kept itself ready to meet them, is to me a glorious record."

THE WAY TO REDUCE CASUALTY COSTS

Control of rate making in all lines of casualty insurance is in the hands of the public. That means, not only automobile rates, but burglary, owners' landlords' and tenants' liability, plate glass, boiler and machinery and other similar coverages.

The awakening is evidenced by the fact that various communities throughout the land are turning to accident prevention and law enforcement campaigns, while still others are investigating ambulance chasing lawyers, unethical doctors and dishonest claimants generally. New Jersey, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Maryland and California are among the states where these accident prevention campaigns are now under way.

While some states and communities have thus signified their realization of the gravity of the accident problem, many more sections must awaken before there can be a substantial reduction in the cost of necessary insurance protection. When every citizen deliberately makes up his mind to drive more carefully in his automobile, to provide proper protection for his business establishment and his home, when he can supply his stores, his hotels, theatres and apartment houses and tenements with approved safety devices, the situation will show vast improvement.

TIME TO CLEAN HOUSE

The new Federal tax bill is in effect and the public is beginning to pay on every hand to maintain a wartime cost of government in sorely depressed peace times.

Various states are in the same position as the Federal government.

Within the last five years, according to a list recently issued, 122 cities in the United States, along with 104 counties and improvement districts, have defaulted on principal or interest of their bonded debts. Since that list was issued, Chicago has announced default on $960,000 of bonds and interest, along with statement that there is a delinquency of $99,000,000 in 1936 taxes for Chicago and Cook County.

The people begin to realize that public indebtedness which they pay by taxing themselves, is due largely to burdens which they themselves demanded or encouraged.

Cities have been loaded down with innumerable "services to the public". A study of these innovations has been made for Detroit by William Anderson, and his findings are equally applicable to practically every larger city in the country.

Detroit was chartered in 1824 and from then to 1861 established 17 city activities which were fundamental functions of government for all the people.

From 1862 to 1880, it added 14 other functions, largely indispensable.

From 1881 to 1900, it added 34 functions, many of which have developed from governmental functions into special services for special classes.

From 1900 on, more than 100 functions have been added, covering almost every conceivable activity from operating industries in competition with private citizens and taxpayers, to furnishing social services of all descriptions.

Most of the activities were worthy in purpose, but a pyramiding of governmental luxuries does not answer the question as to what happens when extravagant tax expenditures and a multiplicity of public servants and bureaucratic activities become impossible for property and income to bear.

Many families are now doing without luxuries which they enjoyed during the abnormal prosperity of a few years ago. They are eating simpler food, buying plainer clothes and using their automobiles longer. Government must do the same thing. Public officials should realize that they no longer have the same tax resources to draw on, any more than the private citizen has the same income he had a few years ago.

Taxation budgets have been balanced by increased taxation, rather than by increased economies and reduced governmental overhead. This process must be reversed and budgets balanced by bringing government expenses and taxation within the ability of the people and industry to pay, without hardship, out of normal peace time income.

AN EASY CHOICE

The future of agriculture is dependent on the choice the individual farmer makes today—whether he cooperates with his fellows, for the common good, or whether he continues to do business as a separate entity in a world in which cooperation, in all lines, grows steadily more necessary.

The latter course means continued low prices, a declining market, general demoralization of his business. The former course means eventually prosperity and a sound and progressive agricultural structure.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litchert

In his speech of acceptance at the Chicago Democratic National Convention, Governor Roosevelt is quoted as saying:

"Our Republican leaders tell us that economic laws—sacred inviolable, unchangeable, that those laws cause panics which no one could prevent. While they prate of economic laws, people are starving. We must lay hold of the fact that economic laws are not made by nature. They are made by human beings."

Without going into the politics of the situation one can find serious reasons for taking exceptions to the Governor's statement on economic laws. If these are made by human beings rather than by nature then it would be possible for human beings to annul them. Yet in every season of panic—and panics are caused not by economic laws themselves but by the violation of these laws by puny human beings—we have to learn all over that the efforts of man to change the natural economic law are futile. If Governor Roosevelt's statement that economic laws are man-made is true, then we ought yet to devise a means of repealing the law of supply and demand. Numerous efforts to do this have been made by national and local legislatures in the past—not only in the United States but in nearly every country in the world, and in each instance the effort has been a failure. For a time, in some cases, it may have been apparent that the natural law had been altered, but in each instance the reaction has come and has come so relentlessly that the nation which has sought to repeal nature's law has been worse off than before the attempt was made.

One economic law provides that if we go into debt heedlessly, borrowing more than we can pay, we must suffer in the end. This law applies to nations as well as individuals. When everybody goes into debt contracting games and starts spending money recklessly, we have at first good times, and an increase of values, and the economists call it inflation. Then comes the inevitable reaction and we have panic and depression. This is exactly what has happened in every civilized country of the world during the past ten years. Now this law regarding running into debt is not a human one. We doubt if anyone can devise a way to repeal this law, and bring about a condition in which the individual or the nation can borrow and spend as much as it pleases without sooner or later bringing the inevitable reaction. If he can do so then he will indeed be a benefactor to mankind.

The fact is that our fundamental economic laws are not made by man, but are inevitable in their effect. As we obey them we prosper and as we disobey them we suffer. No politician and no statesman has yet found a way to get around them. They are as eternal as the ten commandments.

BEAVER ISLAND NEWS

The steamer Beaver gave an excursion from the Island to Petoskey on Monday, the occasion being Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. A large number of our people took advantage of this opportunity for an outing.

The new Beaver Hotel, M. J. Bonner, proprietor, is now "wide open" for summer guests. A very pleasant informal opening was given by the proprietor last Thursday evening, and a sumptuous repast served to guests present.

Rt. Rev. H. J. Richter, bishop of the Grand Rapids diocese spent Saturday and Sunday of last week on the Island, confirming a large class at Holy Cross church on Sunday and another class of Indians at High Island on Monday, returning to Charlevoix on the evening boat. The bishop was ably assisted by Rev. Fr. Zugelder and Rev. Fr. Innocent.

Hon. Henry S. Noe, of Indianapolis, a member of the National Republican committee, and one of the foremost leaders of the party in the country, is the guest of his parents, Gen. and Mrs. John C. Noe at their northside home.

The scribe made a trip to "the Beavers" Monday on the popular steamer Beaver, taking dinner at the new hotel Beaver. Capt. Bonner's new hotel is a surprise. It is a great little house—modern in all respects, and deserving the patronage. The reliable old Gibson House is still dear in the hearts of all visitors to the Island. Greater, not better, accommodations were needed on the Island, and Capt. Bonner has supplied that want. It has 25 sleeping rooms, is nicely finished and neatly furnished. The Beaver Islands summer trip is bound to become popular.

LINDSAY PARK

Mr. F. W. Stevens, a Grand Rapids civil engineer has been here the past week staking out what is known as the C. & W. resort plat, purchased last fall from Jas. R. Dixon and since added to by other purchases. That portion of Charlevoix will hereafter be known and hailed as "Lindsay Park."

Although it is generally spoken of as the "C. & W. M." Resort grounds, the fact it, the owners are Chas. M. Heald and Wm. Alden Smith. The plat embraces besides the Dixon farm, the "Mather place," lying on the state road at the northeast extremity of the Dixon farm; the Cruickshank lot, and the Bell lot in the same vicinity. The latter two although a part of the plat, are not included in the syndicate property. The entire plat embraces about 120 acres, lying within the boundaries of the state road, the railroad and Dixon and Chicago Avenues.

The grounds are divided into 400 lots, 50x125 feet in size. The division of the grounds as shown by the plat, is a most admirable arrangement, and will eventually make that portion of Charlevoix the most beautiful within its limits. A boulevard is laid out along the edge of the entrance intersecting Chicago avenue near the Club House, and the State road on the opposite side of the grounds. Seven 66 foot streets run parallel with Chicago avenue, and two streets that width run a right angles with them.

The second street from Dixon avenue is to be the highway to the freight depot, and will follow, nearly, the present private road to the Dixon place. Work on this street is to be begun at once, and the terrace at the Dixon place graded down and graveled. It will practically be an extension of Dixon Avenue to the freight house. The new portion of the street will be graveled the entire length at once.

As is well known, a prominent feature of the project is the erection of a large resort hotel. Much speculation has been indulged in as to the probable location of the hostelrie. The somewhat surprising information is given that it will be erected on the Mather property. It is a triangular piece of land lying on the state road opposite the intersection of the "Mt. Macinaw road". Yet we are certain that time will justify the choice. It lies just above the railroad track, well located for a special station, overlooks Pine Lake, and will be on the proposed boulevard. Very little can be learned yet as to the details of the hotel project, more than that its erection is determined upon—probably next year.

Auxiliary to these resort plans, is the purpose of General Manager Heald to improve the company's property all along the lake front. A graveled roadway will be constructed just below the terrace for general traffic in connection with the railroad. The sand waste between the two depots and the lake will be transformed into parks and graveled walks, and every spot not occupied by buildings or tracks, or pond by vehicles, will be made as attractive as the genius of the landscape gardner can devise. The city waterworks will be extended to the grounds and be made to contribute their share to the work of beautifying the lawns and flower beds.

The work of beautifying, of course cannot be begun, until the more practical necessities of business are provided about the company's premises; but another spring will see the inauguration of the projects we have outlined, and the well known reputation of the C. & W. M. management is a sufficient guaranty that everything will be done on a scale of generous proportions.

It is self evident that "Charlevoix the Beautiful" will be made more beautiful by the gentlemen at the head of this enterprise; and that it may prove profitable to them as well as to us all, is the earnest wish of every citizen of Charlevoix.

James Cagney and Joan Blondell are reunited again for the first time since their appearance in "Illegal Cargo" in the starring roles of "The Crowd Roars," Warner Bros. thrilling special production coming to the Palace Theater next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Appearing in support of Cagney and Blondell is a large cast including Ann Dvorak, Eric Linden, Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee and a score of racing drivers among them the Indianapolis Speedway champions Billy Arnold and Lou Schneider.

The drivers acted also as technical advisors on "The Crowd Roars," assisting director and author Howard Hawks in securing accurate race-track scenes. Hawks' best-known previous works are "The Dawn Patrol" and "Scarface."

"The Crowd Roars." Cagney appears as a champion driver whose daredevility on the track wins him the adulation of the sport fraternity and the grandstands. After rising to the heights he goes to pieces by causing the death of his relief driver and hero friend during a grueling race. Incidental to the race, Cagney had quarrelled with his young brother, portrayed by Eric Linden, to whom he had taught all the tricks of the speed trade. His brother had become almost as famous as he and had fallen in love with Joan Blondell, who here portrays the role of a race-track follower. Cagney's anger at his brother should mix with the same kind of women with which he had formerly associated drives him to discharge him, after losing the important race in which he was the cause of his friend's death.

Eventually Cagney sinks to the depths and is unable to secure even a mechanic's job in the driver's pit at the big Indianapolis races. An accident enables him to pilot his brother's car, after his brother, a favorite in the race, had been disabled. He did rest for the track and driving ability return to him and he drives to victory with his sweetheart, who had been instrumental in his comeback, looking on.

"The Crowd Roars" is replete with all the action, thrills and accidents of the speedways. During its filming fourteen cars were wrecked in nine major accidents and seven men were sent to the hospital. All this action has been caught by the special camera car, equipped to film the exciting scenes at the speed of 125 miles per hour.

"The Crowd Roars" has been hailed by New York critics as the biggest thrill in several years, surpassing even the air thrills of "The Dawn Patrol" which Howard Hawks also directed.

TENDER, NOBLE, ROMANTIC, ROUGH FOUR LOVER TYPES!

There are four types of lovers, among American men.

That you have on the authority of blonde young Wynne Gibson, featured with George Bancroft in "Lady and Gent", a Paramount picture which comes to the Palace Theater Friday and Saturday.

What with Leap Year and summer nights on hand, Miss Gibson let herself give some thought to the subject. And when she had it clarified, she explained it somewhat as follows:

"First there is the tender lover. He is a virtual slave to the woman he adores. He is never, even for an instant, unkind or harsh. He tries to anticipate her every wish, and fulfill it before she can express it.

"Second, there is the noble lover. He is the kind who is willing to give up family ties, a chance to make good in his father's brokerage office or anything else, to win the girl he loves.

"Then there is the romantic lover. He must have a moon, sighing pine boughs and soft music in the distance to put him across. This type usually has to digest a couple of volumes of James Branch Cabell before a 'date.'

"And last, but certainly not least, there is the 'civilized caveman'—the masterful lover. Most of today's popular screen lovers are of this type. There are many girls who would tell their intimate diaries, their best evening gowns, for an hour with a man of this type than there are songs about the moon."

Miss Gibson in "Lady and Gent", demonstrates her own liking for the last type by sticking with virile Geo. Bancroft.

TALKS ON REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

Mrs. Armstrong's talk on the Republican National Convention before the W. C. T. U. meeting held in the Community Room last Friday afternoon was much appreciated and very enlightening as it gave many details lacking in the newspaper accounts.

The particulars of the midnight session and the effort of the wets to stampede the convention were of special interest. The speaker regards the prohibition plank adopted as essentially favorable to the dry's but considers it was deplorable that at a time when so many important issues demanded constructive attention—especially economic questions—that the wets forced the emphasis upon prohibition repeal. And they had nothing better to offer than beer in their country's hour of need. A plea was made for the young women on to study politics, attend conventions, etc.

Mrs. Jas. Meggison conducted the devotionals and Mrs. Lois Campbell read a sketch of the life of Anna Adams Gordon closing with reasons once given by Miss Adams why members of the W. C. T. U. should wear the white ribbon—"It's a bond of fellowship, a plea for purity, a pledge of total abstinence, a prayer for home protection, an emblem of patriotism and a protest against the drink habit and the liquor traffic."

Much satisfaction was expressed with the results of the effort put in to decorating the float and training the girls to sing patriotic songs for the parade July 4th.

Announcement was made that Judge Ray Gillespie of Sault Ste. Marie will oppose Frank P. Bohn in the Republican primaries for the office of U. S. Congressman and Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace will seek the same office on the Democratic ticket. The fight to hold national prohibition centers in electing dry Congressmen and every candidate should declare himself publicly on this question.

Announcement was made that the petitions regarding the Womans' Congress in 1933 are at the Postal Telegraph Cable Co's. office in the Brownersky building and women were urged to call and sign the same.

Other announcements: July 22, prayer meeting at Mrs. Rife's; July 30, bake sale; Aug. 9, District picnic at Gorham Beach; Aug. 12, local picnic in City Park.

E. E. WILSON HAS NEW ROCK GARDEN

Rock gardening is fast becoming the most popular form of specialized gardening today, and Mr. E. E. Wilson, 124 Belvedere, is one of the few summer residents of Charlevoix to be the proud owner of a beautiful, naturalistic rock garden.

This garden was planned and constructed by C. J. Hudson, Jr., and S. T. Van Trees of Chicago. These young men are on the staff of the world famous Garfield Park Conservatory in that city, and are well known throughout the middle west for their work in the horticultural field. Mr. Van Trees is the designer of the enormous flower beds in the 15 parks of the West Park system. Mr. Hudson is known as the most popular radio lecturer on garden subjects in the country. He is heard three times a week over stations WGN, KYW and WLS, where his talks are enthusiastically received from listeners in 18 states. He is constantly in demand by garden clubs as a lecturer on any subject in the horticultural field. Both these men have had a great deal of practical experience in gardening as well as a scientific training in this field.

The rock garden constructed for Mr. Wilson could be termed as a true boulder garden. It embodies nature's principles, as all rock gardens should of a firm foundation, lack of regularity in the placing of the rocks and plants, the impression of unshakable stability, the rocks sunken so that only one or two faces of them are showing, and a background of evergreens to complete the picture. This garden also illustrates the principle of the boulder garden in nature in that it is made up of gently rolling slopes instead of perpendicular walls and sharp crevices. The whole garden, although a small one, appears as a little gem in the corner of Mr. Wilson's yard as it displays its beauty to its owners and their guests.

To those interested in seeing this rock garden, Mr. Wilson invites them to inspect it.

Mr. H. E. Fowler, who recently spent two weeks with his son Forrest Fowler and family at Benton Harbor, returned Friday afternoon.

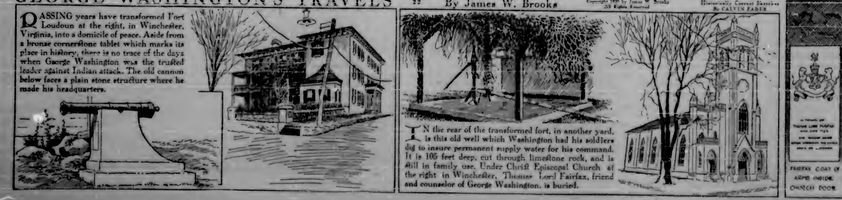
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks



PASSING years have transformed Fort Loudoun at the right, in Winchester, Virginia, into a fortress of peace. Aside from a bronze cornerstone tablet which marks its place in history, there is no trace of the days when George Washington was the trusted leader against Indian attack. The old cannon below faces a plain stone structure where he made his headquarters.

IN the rear of the transformed fort, in another yard, is this old well which Washington had his soldiers dig to insure permanent supply water for his command. It is 105 feet deep, cut through limestone rock, and is still in family use. Under Christ Episcopal Church at the right in Winchester, Thomas Lord Fairfax, friend and counselor of George Washington, is buried.

FARM POULTRY

GROW MORE CAPONS AS FARM SIDELINE

Surplus Cockerels Do Well for the Purpose.

BY ROY E. GRADSTONE, Head of Poultry Husbandry Department, Kansas State College.

Nothing is more appetizing on the family table than a well grown and finished capon, and they may be sold readily on local markets.

The surplus cockerels on a farm may be used for this purpose. However, only well-developed birds should be used. If vigorous, robust, worry-free birds are used, they may be grown out into heavy capons that bring good prices. Never use a leghorn for this purpose but use such breeds as the Rocks, Orpingtons, Cornishas, Cornish, Wyandottes or Jersey Black Giants.

Timing the caponizing operation is necessary. The best markets exist about Easter and this avoids putting the capons into competition with turkey at Thanksgiving and Christmas. To have birds ready for the Easter market, caponize them about July 1 to 15. This will give them time to develop long combs and to go through the intensive fasting period which follows such a bird in from 10 to 14 days.

Best Results Only for Careful Poultry Raiser

The properly balanced ration accomplishes wonderful results when fed to stock that is rightly bred, well managed and correctly housed.

Houses and equipment, such as brooders, feed hoppers, drinking pans, etc., that are sufficient to accommodate 500 chicks will not take care of 500. Satisfactory growth cannot be made under such conditions. Growing stock needs lots of feed; provide a good grain feed and a good growing mash to insure as the birds can get it.

The condition of a carcass when it is marketed depends almost entirely on the way the bird is cared for up to the time it is killed. This means the way in which it is grown and the way it is fattened for market.

A poorly grown bird will not take on weight satisfactorily; its digestive organs have not developed sufficiently to handle the more or less concentrated feed that is fed during the fattening period, nor does the bird have the vitality to stand up under this fattening process.

Don't Mix Old and Young

The Bible tells us it is unwise to put new wine in old bottles. Today a modern roadrunner will not run and to attempt to raise young chicks in old quarters, a still more unsatisfactory practice is to attempt to put chicks in quarters occupied by old stock. It is a senseless task to raise young and old together. The conditions are not satisfactory. The result is creating only unfavorable suggestions such as worms and parasites and the chicks will become badly infected with them. Again the baby chick doesn't get an opportunity to eat. They eat very carnous eat but are crowded under foot. If one wants to successfully raise young birds then away from the old hens and raise on clean, fresh ground. Losses from rats are much less apt to occur if the chicks are located some distance from the farm buildings.—Missouri Farmer.

Fight Lice

Hens like to dust themselves. A poultry remedy quite a few like. But the method is not desirable for controlling lice in the poultry house. When hens are working in the dust baths, the air in the poultry house is filled with dust for the owner and it seems as if colds are more prevalent. Some birds when they contract are often filled with dry dust.

The poultry man is more apt to control lice if the hens are crated at least twice a year and with a little time, attention or sodium fluoride treatment. If you do not wish to catch the hens, use the tricresine sulphate (Black Leaf 40) on the roosts at night.—Indiana Farmer Farmer's Guide.

Poultry Notes

It is estimated that a chick will consume two pounds of feed during the first eight weeks of its growth.

Since production the first year is usually 15 to 30 per cent higher than in later years, the loss of pullets during that time, discard the poor producers, and keep the best ever for the air feed, and adapted the mouse to the wants."

The song was first sung by Anna Maria Tree at the premiere of "Clari" at Covent garden in London on May 8, 1823. The song was an instantaneous success. More than 10,000 copies were issued by its publishers in London within less than a year after it was first sung there and it yielded them a profit of more than half a million dollars. And yet the author of the song received only a mere pittance from this sum. The publishers did not even place his name on the title page nor did they even send him a complimentary copy of his song which was so much to become immortal! But that was not an unusual experience for the composer. For Payne's life had been a series of successes and failures, a strange combination of affluence and poverty alternately.

Payne was born at 33 Pearl street in New York city in 1791, the sixth child of William Payne, a school teacher. His mother was the daughter of a Jewish family, named Isaacs, who lived in Hastings-upon-Ings, Ireland. It was this powerful Long Island community which was "Home, Sweet Home" to Payne during his boyhood and there today stands the house which is said to have been in Payne's thoughts when he wrote the song. As a matter of fact this house was not owned by Payne's father but was rented by him, while he was principal of the Clinton academy in Southampton, from the Mulfords, a family that was in continuous possession of it from 1751 to 1910 when it was sold to Gerritsve H. Bank of New York city.

While John Howard Payne was still very young his father moved to Boston where his formal education began. He was a precocious child but an especially diligent scholar and very early he developed a passion for the stage which alarmed his father. For in those days actors had a very low estimate on society and the theater was considered a veritable sink of iniquity.

In Boston the elder Payne was a teacher of elocution and the son inherited and learned all that the other Payne could offer. In his sixth teens Payne constructed an amateur playhouse, assisted by a friend, and they were in hearty for private theatricals.

Master Betty, actor of old England and then in vogue for his interpretations of stage characters, became Payne's idol. It was his ambition one day to win even greater acclaim and the parents viewed this growing love for the stage with alarm. It must be owned that at thirteen, Payne was packed off to New York to work in a counting house where his smile until his death, had sold a desk.

Such an occupation held little interest for Payne. Fortunately remaining at work, he devoted his spare moments to publishing a second paper known as the Thespian Mirror. As the name indicates it dealt with the stage, and the bright and clever reviews of dramatics to be found in it caught the interest of New Yorkers. William Coleman, editor of the Evening Post, investigated the journal, and Payne's secret was out.

"Why 'tis a boy of fifteen!" excitedly commented those who had wondered at the identity of the Thespian Mirror's clever literary critic. Hunted him, and so much success for one so young naturally began to go to Payne's head. Interested friends decided that he must receive some schooling, and a patron was found in Eleazar Ives, of the college Schenectady.

Up the thirteen he went and began a new phase of life; one that lasted only two years. He lived with the head of the institution, one Doctor Nott, and enthusiastically began another paper, known as Pastime, which was an immediate success. But poor Doctor Nott regarded himself quite unable to discipline his pupil properly. Payne often disappointed for days at a time and was otherwise morally lax. His handsome, his talents had been recognized and he was eager to begin his stage career.

This opportunity came after the death of his mother, when his father fell into financial difficulties. Payne left college and returned to New York, seeking a role in the theater. In 1809, at the age of eighteen, he appeared as Norval in "Douglas," one of Master Betty's famous roles and achieved astounding popularity. Audiences flocked to see him, and the play encountered equal success in Boston, Philadelphia, Richmond, Charleston and Baltimore. Most of the money he received went to pay his father's debts.

But despite this success Payne's father wished him to give up the stage and the young man acceded to the elder's wishes. He consented to found a school but it was a dismal financial failure, so again Payne turned to the stage, acting in Shakespearean drama in Boston and elsewhere. Finally in January, 1813, encouraged by his brother, Payne sailed for London to seek a stage career there. But an unexpected event delayed his theatrical debut abroad. England and America were then at war and Payne was arrested as a spy and thrown into prison. It was two months before his friends, among them Washington Irving, were able to secure his freedom from his British jailers.

Soon afterwards Payne was introduced to Sir John Kemble, the great English actor, who in turn introduced him to Mr. Waterland, chairman of the board of managers of Drury Lane theater. As a result Payne made his first stage appearance in London in "Douglas" on June 24, 1813, and showed a triumph similar to the one he had stirred in the same role in Jerusalem. He also acted in other English cities and is said to have established a record by performing for 100 consecutive nights, taking the party of 20 characters.

Early in 1814 the new manager of the Drury Lane theater sent Payne to Paris to write English translations of French plays and this marked the beginning of his career as a playwright. The first play he wrote was "Accusation" a melodrama in three acts successfully produced. It had a long run, but the theater was already in financial difficulties and the upshot was that Payne not only failed to receive a penny for his work but actually lost $2,000 which he had invested in the production.

Undaunted by this experience, Payne arranged with the Covent garden to write and act in "Adelgitha" at $400. Soon afterwards he wrote "Brutus" for Edmund Kean, a notable English actor who was then beginning to become in public favor. The play was a remarkable success, running for 50 nights and raising the profits to thousands of pounds, but Payne received only 200 pounds for his play. Soon afterwards he wrote another play called "Thaddeus, the Orphan of Geneva," which was proclaimed the best dramatic piece of art written for the English stage since Shakespeare's time. But so lacking in business ability was Payne that he received very little financial benefit from this masterpiece.

Then more he was sent to Paris by the Drury Lane theater under the management of Charles Kimball. It was then that he wrote "Clari, or the Maid of Milan," which, as has already been stated, gave to the world his immortal song. Despite the fame which this song brought him, Payne was soon in financial difficulties and a diminishing interest as producer and manager landed him in debtor's prison. He said he was out with playwriting done within its prison and finally returned to America in 1832 almost penniless.

I'd once the saying about a prophet being without honor in his own country was proved untrue. For New York turned out to honor him with a benefit celebration at the old Park theater where he had scored his first triumph in the role of Norval. The performance, with Edwin Forrest as Brutus and Fanelle Kemble also in the cast, brought $2,000 in the sum then boosted. Other benefits were given in different cities for Payne, who was truly back in "Home, Sweet Home." But he did not return to the theater. It was out of his life, and his most enterprise was in behalf of the Cherokee Indians, whom he desired to save from oppression.

A love affair is mentioned at this time with a Miss Mary Hardin of Athens, Ga. She was young enough to have been his daughter, and just how serious the affair might have been is a matter for debate. He was known to have sent her a copy of his "Home, Sweet Home," in his own handwriting, and interest over this trivial passage; but the decisiveness has disappeared. He never married. Other romances in his life have been hinted, one with the widow of the poet Shelly.

The Cherokee Indian work, which occupied much unpaid concern on Payne, took him into political fields, and he was early in evidence about Washington, where he contributed to the "Democratic Review," with Whitman, Hawthorne, Longfellow and Bryant. Never efficient in finances at this time were not an exception to the rule, and his problems was solved by an appointment as United States consul at Tunis, in 1842, under President Tyler. He was traveling in 1847, but went back in 1851, and died there less than two years later, in 1852.

The body of the man who had sung so sweetly of his native land was buried at Tunis, beneath a slab sent from America. But the story of Payne was not finished, for 30 years later his coffin was brought to the United States and entombed in the Oak Hill cemetery at Washington, through the efforts of William R. Corcoran.

A movement was erected there, and two other monuments to his memory stand; one in the shape of a gateway at Union college, the other a fountain four in Brooklyn, N. Y. But the real monument in the hearts of his countrymen is the home on the village green at Easthampton, Long Island where the house knocker on the door tells the thousands of visitors each season "is this actually every year that this is "Home, Sweet Home?"

The Mill near "Home, Sweet Home"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS just one hundred years ago that the song who had made the phrase "Home, Sweet Home" immortal came back to his homeland. For it was on July 20, 1832, that John Howard Payne returned from his self-imposed exile in Europe. There the splendor of success had truly "dazzled to cast" for there, despite his triumphs, he had also known extreme poverty and imprisonment for debt. So his homecoming was all the sweeter because he came back to his native land to receive the acclaim of his fellow-Americans who honored the penniless composer with great festivals in New York and in Boston.

Since that day a century ago the fame of John Howard Payne has spread to all corners of the world, for the song which he wrote, perhaps more than any other ever written, has a universal appeal. It has been translated into every language and sung in every country under the sun. Simple of melody and homely of words though it may be, some of the greatest singers of all time have been proud to include it in their repertories, for it is the one song which is sure to reach the hearts of mankind, no matter under what color of skin that heart beats.

Because Payne's fame rests so entirely upon this one song, Americans are likely to forget—if indeed they know, at all—that he had other claims to distinction, any one of which would entitle him to a place in the list of American notables. At the age of twenty he was dashing off his own first stage, a young actor who had leaped into fame overnight. But the fame of Payne, the actor, was no greater than the fame of Payne, the intimate friend of such literary notables as Washington Irving, Sir Walter Scott, Lord Byron and Thomas Moore and of such statesmen as Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and William L. Marcy.

He might have been remembered as one of the great playwrights of his time, for he was the author of no less than five operas, nine farces, 21 dramas, six comedies and eight tragedies. But the characters are his name would have passed into oblivion had it not been for a song which he wrote for one of his operas. That song was "Home, Sweet Home."

In 1823 Payne, who was dividing his residence between London and Paris and traveling all over the Continent, wrote a play which he later converted into the opera called "Clari, or the Maid of Milan." The music was written by Sir Henry R. Bishop, composer and director of music for the Theater Royal in London, but it was Payne who gave Bishop the idea for the music. He tells of his inspiration for this song as follows:

"I first heard the air in Italy. One beautiful morning as I was strolling alone amid some delightful scenery, my attention was arrested by the sweet voice of a peasant girl who was carrying a basket laden with flowers and vegetables. This plaintive air she trilled with as much sweetness and simplicity that the melody at once caught my fancy. I accosted her and after a few moments' conversation I asked for the name of the song, which she could not give me, but having some slight knowledge of music myself, barely enough for the purpose, I requested her to repeat the air, which she did while I jotted down the notes as best I could. I was little air which engrossed the words of 'Home, Sweet Home,' both of which I sent to Bishop at the time I was preparing the opera. Bishop liked the air as well as I did, and adapted the music to the words."

The song was first sung by Anna Maria Tree at the premiere of "Clari" at Covent garden in London on May 8, 1823. The song was an instantaneous success. More than 10,000 copies were issued by its publishers in London within less than a year after it was first sung there and it yielded them a profit of more than half a million dollars. But poor Doctor Nott regarded himself quite unable to discipline his pupil properly. Payne often disappointed for days at a time and was otherwise morally lax. His handsome, his talents had been recognized and he was eager to begin his stage career.

This opportunity came after the death of his mother, when his father fell into financial difficulties. Payne left college and returned to New York, seeking a role in the theater. In 1809, at the age of eighteen, he appeared as Norval in "Douglas," one of Master Betty's famous roles and achieved astounding popularity. Audiences flocked to see him, and the play encountered equal success in Boston, Philadelphia, Richmond, Charleston and Baltimore. Most of the money he received went to pay his father's debts.

But despite this success Payne's father wished him to give up the stage and the young man acceded to the elder's wishes. He consented to found a school but it was a dismal financial failure, so again Payne turned to the stage, acting in Shakespearean drama in Boston and elsewhere. Finally in January, 1813, encouraged by his brother, Payne sailed for London to seek a stage career there. But an unexpected event delayed his theatrical debut abroad. England and America were then at war and Payne was arrested as a spy and thrown into prison. It was two months before his friends, among them Washington Irving, were able to secure his freedom from his British jailers.

Soon afterwards Payne was introduced to Sir John Kemble, the great English actor, who in turn introduced him to Mr. Waterland, chairman of the board of managers of Drury Lane theater. As a result Payne made his first stage appearance in London in "Douglas" on June 24, 1813, and showed a triumph similar to the one he had stirred in the same role in Jerusalem. He also acted in other English cities and is said to have established a record by performing for 100 consecutive nights, taking the party of 20 characters.

Early in 1814 the new manager of the Drury Lane theater sent Payne to Paris to write English translations of French plays and this marked the beginning of his career as a playwright. The first play he wrote was "Accusation" a melodrama in three acts successfully produced. It had a long run, but the theater was already in financial difficulties and the upshot was that Payne not only failed to receive a penny for his work but actually lost $2,000 which he had invested in the production.

Undaunted by this experience, Payne arranged with the Covent garden to write and act in "Adelgitha" at $400. Soon afterwards he wrote "Brutus" for Edmund Kean, a notable English actor who was then beginning to become in public favor. The play was a remarkable success, running for 50 nights and raising the profits to thousands of pounds, but Payne received only 200 pounds for his play. Soon afterwards he wrote another play called "Thaddeus, the Orphan of Geneva," which was proclaimed the best dramatic piece of art written for the English stage since Shakespeare's time. But so lacking in business ability was Payne that he received very little financial benefit from this masterpiece.

Then more he was sent to Paris by the Drury Lane theater under the management of Charles Kimball. It was then that he wrote "Clari, or the Maid of Milan," which, as has already been stated, gave to the world his immortal song. Despite the fame which this song brought him, Payne was soon in financial difficulties and a diminishing interest as producer and manager landed him in debtor's prison. He said he was out with playwriting done within its prison and finally returned to America in 1832 almost penniless.

I'd once the saying about a prophet being without honor in his own country was proved untrue. For New York turned out to honor him with a benefit celebration at the old Park theater where he had scored his first triumph in the role of Norval. The performance, with Edwin Forrest as Brutus and Fanelle Kemble also in the cast, brought $2,000 in the sum then boosted. Other benefits were given in different cities for Payne, who was truly back in "Home, Sweet Home." But he did not return to the theater. It was out of his life, and his most enterprise was in behalf of the Cherokee Indians, whom he desired to save from oppression.

A love affair is mentioned at this time with a Miss Mary Hardin of Athens, Ga. She was young enough to have been his daughter, and just how serious the affair might have been is a matter for debate. He was known to have sent her a copy of his "Home, Sweet Home," in his own handwriting, and interest over this trivial passage; but the decisiveness has disappeared. He never married. Other romances in his life have been hinted, one with the widow of the poet Shelly.

The Cherokee Indian work, which occupied much unpaid concern on Payne, took him into political fields, and he was early in evidence about Washington, where he contributed to the "Democratic Review," with Whitman, Hawthorne, Longfellow and Bryant. Never efficient in finances at this time were not an exception to the rule, and his problems was solved by an appointment as United States consul at Tunis, in 1842, under President Tyler. He was traveling in 1847, but went back in 1851, and died there less than two years later, in 1852.

The body of the man who had sung so sweetly of his native land was buried at Tunis, beneath a slab sent from America. But the story of Payne was not finished, for 30 years later his coffin was brought to the United States and entombed in the Oak Hill cemetery at Washington, through the efforts of William R. Corcoran.

A movement was erected there, and two other monuments to his memory stand; one in the shape of a gateway at Union college, the other a fountain four in Brooklyn, N. Y. But the real monument in the hearts of his countrymen is the home on the village green at Easthampton, Long Island where the house knocker on the door tells the thousands of visitors each season "is this actually every year that this is "Home, Sweet Home?"

LANGUAGE CLEW TO ALL PAST HISTORY

Why Archeological Work Is Important.

To some it may seem foolish for a man to spend weeks and months recording the pronunciation of words of an aged Indian who recalls a language which will vanish completely with that person's death. That language is completely strange to the descendants of those who used it are now speaking English or Spanish. To the uninitiated, it is the mere meaningless gibberish.

Yet the American Council of Learned Societies reports with pride that one research worker has nearly completed records of the Southern Caddoan language, that another is planning together a record of the nearly vanished Mohican dialect of the Eastern Algonquian and that still another has written forest upon a number of Indians to inquire stiff upon the Cayuse language which it was thought vanished for years ago.

Such work is more than a pastime or a hobby. To archeologists and others interested in American past it is of vital importance. Native languages form one of the most valuable means of tracing movements of prehistoric America. Pottery, weapons, jewelry, basketry, dances and architecture all are closer to events in that forgotten past. But language is a thread running through them all. Ancient America, the Inca and Eskimo, tied to lower-class Irish language, each fundamentally different from the others in grammatic construction and phonation. Some of them bind dialects. Some even had separate forms for the use of men and women. How complete that was and how great an aid it can be to the delver in prehistory may be realized by remembering that Eskimo and Asia combined have only about 12 linguage stocks.

In trading the movements of ancient Americans, scientists can make reasonably accurate guesses from evidence they dig from ground village. But there are many open links. Occasionally the student of native languages can close those links. Words or the pottery sherds show it or not, if one-time inhabitants of them moved to Pennsylvania, the language will show it. If the language can be studied. If the language of the Mound Builders of Ohio were available for study, for instance, it might reveal similarities to the language of the Mayans and the Aztecs to prove a relationship which many archeologists have suspected but have never been able to prove.

This interest in Indian languages is not new. The Spanish priests gathered Indian words in Mexico as early as 1537. Roger Williams wrote and had Indian languages to New England in the 1600s. John Eliot prepared the famous "Indian Grammar Begun" in 1666. Thomas Jefferson in 1791 made an effort to secure vocabularies of Indian dialects. In the Louisiana purchase the United States fell heir to nearly fifteen languages that only a second cousin to a stockbroker called up the bank to arrange for a phone to anthropology.

Racers Paced by Robot

Like the mechanical rabbit that runs the whippets in a dog race, a robot athlete is used to set the pace for the track men in eighteen states. Known as the "Iron Man," the mechanical contrivance is a device which is set to run at speeds ranging from 10 to 30 miles an hour. It is equipped with a loud gong which sounds every time the robot has gone a quarter of a mile. The engine is so arranged that it can be

J. M. HARRIS FILES PETITION

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY NOMINATION AT PRIMARY

Filing of a nominating petition by Attorney J. M. Harris of Boyne City, Monday for the office of prosecuting attorney on the Republican primary ballot, through which he becomes a candidate for nomination for Prosecuting Attorney at the September primary election, came as a surprise as well as a source of satisfaction to a large number of Charlevoix county electors.

During past months at infrequent intervals, the name of Mr Harris has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the office of prosecuting attorney, however when approached on the subject in past months he failed to respond favorably to the proposition. A persistent urge on the part of friends from various parts of the county finally induced him to review conditions past and present, resulting in a change of front and in view of urgent requests and demands of his friends he has, as herein stated, filed his petition with the county clerk as a candidate for this important county office.

In recent months there has been but little talk about candidates for the office of prosecuting attorney. Practically this same condition prevailed two years ago, when, without opposition, the nomination fell into the lap of the present prosecutor, making for him his third consecutive term.

Mr. Harris filed his nominating petition Monday and then only at the solicitation of numerous electors who feel that he is the logical man to assume the duties incident to the legal department of county business for which he has special qualifications, due to years of active practice as a leading attorney, aptitude for handling business affairs and knowledge of county business generally.

Mr. Harris requires no introduction to Charlevoix county electors. He has been a permanent resident of the county for more than fifty years, during which he has been prominently identified with public affairs as well as interested in the development, progress and upbuilding, not only of his home city, but the county generally. This taken in connection with his ability as an attorney; his standing in the community where he resides, his reputation as a public spirited citizen and leader in all progressive matters; his character as a substantial outstanding citizen amply justify the conclusion that he is the logical candidate, put forth by his friends and supporters.

LOCAL YOUTH WALKS IN HIS SLEEP, FALLS FROM WINDOW

Bernard Foster, 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, occasionally does somnambulistic stunts one of which he pulled off early this week when he walked through a second floor window and fell to the ground without being awakened.

Mrs Foster noticed the lad when he took the drop and a few minutes later succeeded in "bringing him out" of his sound slumber, returned him to his room uninjured where he was again tucked safely in bed to collect his rest period.

OF INTEREST TO LOCAL DAIRYMEN

The Hulstein fraternity of Michigan will gather at Traverse City State Hospital, August 18th, for their Annual Filde Day and to pay tribute to the memory of their World Record Cow, Traverse Colantha Walker, who still holds many records for milk production. Colantha in her nine lactations, made over 200,000 pounds of milk and over 7,500 pounds of butter fat, a feat no other cow has ever done in a like number of lactations.

O. E. Reed, Chief of the Bureau of Dairying, of the United States Department of Agriculture, has been secured as Chief speaker for the day, along with A. J. Glover, editor of Hoard's Dairyman; Prof. E. L. Anthony, of the Michigan State College; H. W. Norton, Superintendent of Advanced Registry for the Hulstein Breed; and others.

The day will consist of judging contests by 4-H Club members, demonstration by outstanding judges, and Hulstein luncheon in general.

Farmers and business men are invited to attend and take part in these meetings and discussions, and inspect the herd which has been recognized for years as one of the World's greatest producing herds. In fact ten years on the National Association Honor Roll, this herd has won 2,407 points as owner and 2,795 points as breeder, and only one other herd of the breed has equalled this showing as both owner and breeder.

WHITECAPS REJUVENATED

TEAM IS RE-ORGANIZED AND BREAKS LOSING STREAK

By Newman

After losing two games to Ellsworth last week, it began to look as though something would have to be done to put new pep into the local independent baseball team. The Ellsworth Business Men's team beat the locals 11 to 7 in a loosely played contest on Tuesday, and then the Hinkydinks cleaned the local boys' clocks by a 19 to 9 score on Friday. This made the team's record stand at seven games to six games lost after it had hung up five straight to start the season.

To start the rebuilding process, Bob Sterritt was made manager, and he immediately started in to procure stronger players. Some new men were available for Sunday's game with Advance at Whiting Park, but some players who will probably prove great assets to the team, were unable to play Sunday, but promise to play in the future.

The boys who played Sunday worked together nicely, getting plenty of hits themselves and holding Advance down until the game was won. After that, they eased up and let Advance score some runs. The final score was 16 to 12. The Charlevoix team's base running was good, and they broke up many of Advance's attempts to steal. Herb McRoberts, catcher, got four hits and three runs. Sterritt, pitcher, got four hits and four runs. Helms, first base, got four hits and four runs. Bob Gordon, second base, got four hits and three runs and played a fine game in the field. His best fielding play was the breaking up of a double steal With only a slim chance of getting a man out at second, Gordon pegged the ball to the catcher to get the man trying to steal home. This was his first game with the team, but he seems to be fully capable of handling any position in the infield. Carl Beattie a newcomer at shortstop, and Newman, third base, each got two safe hits and scored one run apiece. Arnold, Syrrow, and Sharrow played the outfield, but none scored. Arnold reached first base three times and the others once. Sharrow made a splendid catch for the only potent credited to the outfield, but each fielder made one assist apiece.

Charlevoix scored twice in the first inning, three times in the third, once in the fifth and six times in the sixth, to take a twelve to two lead over Advance who did not like Sterritt's pitching. Advance scored once in the third, on one hit, a stolen base, and an error. They scored again in the second on one hit and an error. After that, they went out in one, two, three order for four straight innings. Charlevoix scored four runs in the first half of the seventh to take a 16 to 2 lead. Sterritt then eased up, letting the batters connect with the ball for a change. He gave them six runs and then began pitching again, retiring the side. Charlevoix batters also eased up, scoring no more runs in either the eighth or ninth inning. Advance scored four in the eighth on fielding errors, but Sterritt struck out two in the ninth and made one ground out to end the game.

The team now seems to be on the way to obtain revenge for some beatings they feel were undeserved. They tackle Ironton Sunday. Charlevoix has won two out of three from this team losing the last game by a close score.

TWO MORE FARMS ARE LANDSCAPED

Two more farm homes will look much more attractive next spring than they do at the present time. Mr. Gregy, landscape specialist from the Michigan State College spent the day of Wednesday, July 20th, in making plans for "Home Beautification." The farm homes of E. E. Capping, Hay Shore and Ken Kinnster, East Jordan, were landscaped and plans left to be carried out in the Spring.

Time has to see only three or four of the homes already beautified to appreciate what a difference the following out of the suggestions of a floriculture expert makes. The rest of the day was spent in making suggestions to city owners and in visiting one or two of the farm homes already beautified.

To really appreciate Mr. Gregg's work, the next time you are near one of the following farms stop in and see what has been accomplished: W. S. Straw, Charlevoix, Howard Stephens, Burt Lumley and Ken Gardner, Boyne City. The few dollars spent makes a world of difference. Why not decide right now to have your home beautified next year?

CHARLEVOIX AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY PLANS MEETING

Several meetings recently held by parties interested, for the purpose of rehabilitating and reorganizing the rather dormant Charlevoix Agricultural society have made some progress, received much encouragement such as justify in the minds of the executive committee in charge of affairs, making preparatory arrangements for opening the grounds and conducting an association meeting this year, this to be conducted along improved lines over past years but with the usual line of exhibits, racing entertainment features, etc., as heretofore.

The Society will continue with Henry Bolding, president; Jess Smith, vice president; F. H. Crowell, secretary and B Milstein, treasurer.

For members of the executive committee, Dr. C. J. Winter will be the chairman and members of the committee are arranging a premium list that soon be ready for distribution. This will carry rules, regulations, by-laws and in general conform to like premium books of preceding years.

Some changes will be made in awards given and it is probable that admissions to both the grounds and grand stand will be materially reduced.

Dates for holding the meeting have been set for September 14, 15, 16.

A strenuous effort will be made to insure success not only by special exhibits and fine entertainment, but to make the meeting a success financially.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. O. P. North a daughter, Sunday July 24th.

DEATH FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF DISASTROUS FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the residence of Glenn Holecheck at Norwood Saturday night, together with the major part of the household equipment, furnishings, wearing apparel, etc., and a few hours later Mrs. Holecheck passed away after suffering severe burns, the cause of which was not determined.

Mrs Holecheck was brought to the local hospital where she died about one hour after entering for treatment, but whether her trouble was brought on by excitement, shock or some other source is unknown.

She attended the Charlevoix grade schools, later graduated from Traverse City high and continued her student work at the Charlevoix County normal and later attended and graduated from Central State Teachers College, Mt. Pleasant and has had experience as a teacher at times for three years. She is well known here where for eight years she was with Earl A. Young, later with the Credit Bureau and at present holds a position with the Charlevoix County Bank.

MR. OTTO W. BISHOP CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR

Mr. Otto W. Bishop, candidate for State Senator to succeed Senator Calvin Campbell, was a Charlevoix visitor Tuesday in the interest of his campaign.

Mr. Bishop lives at Alpena. He is a long time resident of that city where he is popular both as a citizen and business man. He made some strong contacts in Charlevoix with parties interested in politics, made some friends and received encouragement by party members who are in a position to help him in his campaign. Mr. Bishop's announcement can be found in this issue of the Sentinel.

HON. WILLIAM McKEIGHAN HERE LAST THURSDAY

Hon. William McKeighan, mayor of Flint and candidate for governor, spoke to an audience of several hundred local and summer residents last Thursday from the bandstand at the corners of State and Mason streets.

Mr McKeighan carried a personal appeal to the "common people," stressing this point to the limit to impress the audience with his plan of relieving the taxpayer from the burden imposed by their state tax items. He also discussed in some extent his 14 point platform, advocated extensive reforms in state government, which if put into effect and carried out would prove highly beneficial by way of reduction in the white mane burden, taxes which have been heavily increased from year to year for the past two decades, therefore, if Mr. McKeighan succeeded in putting his message across successfully, it is within the range of possibilities that he picked up a few votes on his Charlevoix trip.

VISITORS' DAY AT UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN BIOLOGICAL STATION

On Sunday, August 7, from 2 to 6 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, the Biological Station of the University of Michigan will hold its annual visitors' day to which the public is cordially invited. There will be educational exhibits of animals and plants of the region as well as exhibits of class work and investigations on various biological problems.

The Biological Station is located on the southeast shore of Douglas Lake, Cheboygan County, on the old Cheboygan-Petoskey road, thirteen miles from Cheboygan. The roads from Cheboygan, Mullet Lake, Topinabee, Brutes and Pellston will be well posted with Biological Station signs. There will be plenty of room to park, help in parking, free guide service, and free admission to all places of interest.

The Biological Station is a division of the University of Michigan. It was established on Douglas Lake in 1909 and has held an 8-week session every summer since its foundation. Its students get full university credit.

In 1909 all classes were held in an old log cabin called the Log Laboratory. Here also research and administrative work were carried on, and here was the postoffice, library, and all supplies and equipment. Students and faculty lived in a few tents and got their meals with the Engineers at the dining tent located on the hill near the present flagpole. That first summer there were 2 faculty members and 14 students. From this humble beginning the Biological Station had grown to be the largest freshwater biological station in the world.

The physical plant has grown from the one log building and half dozen tents to a village of 120 buildings, 11 of which are used for laboratories and 92 for living quarters. The remainder include the administration building where the offices, stockroom, store, photographic rooms, and the dining room and kitchen are housed, and the club house, library, assembly room, garages and barber building. This summer 94 students (46 men and 48 women) and three visiting investigators are enrolled. Students come from 23 states and two from China.

DELEGATES TO STATE MEET

TO BE HELD IN KALAMAZOO ON AUG. 21ST, 22ND, 23RD.

The main matter of business transacted by Leslie T Shapton Post No. 298, American Legion at its regular weekly meeting Tuesday evening was the election of delegates to the 1932 State Convention of the Legion at Kalamazoo, August 21st, 22nd, and 23rd Lee C. Allard, Shirley H. Henry and Fred V. Tyler were chosen as delegates to represent the post and G. P. North, Lee W. Powers and Clarence B. Waghorn as their respective alternates.

Wednesday evening is the date of the next Legion lunch, when at which Fiene Eckhardt, Jault heavyweight, will be matched with Bob Cadillac champ Bud Clute, well-known Boyne City fighter, will take on a Golden Glove champion from Muskegon reckoned and other fighters at the match will include Hopkins of Petoskey, "Hardrock" Ager, Charlevoix's lightweight, boxer and several other regular contestants. The Jack Kelly Stock Co., also opens its three night stand in Charlevoix on Thursday evening and the Steamer Ossian Bedell will leave at 9 and 11 o'clock for the dance barge "Keuka" returning at 1:00 with Westaff's orchestra furnishing the music.

Plans for the state convention are progressing favorably and letters and literature have gone out to all of the posts in the state and the matter of Charlevoix's claim for 1933 will be kept before them from now until the Kalamazoo convention, where the matter will be decided.

In the realm of welfare work the post wishes to thank Mr. Lewis C. Reimann, director, and the other officers of Camp Charlevoix for the potatoes that the camp donated to the Legion for distribution among the needy of the community.

A large number of local and summer citizens attended the Hagenbeck and Wallace Shows for either the afternoon or night performances at Petoskey Monday.

MARIAN NIXON RISES TO COVETED ROLES

It would be difficult to state definitely just who is the happiest girl in Hollywood at this particular moment but probably it's Marian Nixon. Ever since her youth, Miss Nixon has been in motion pictures as long as most of the present day stars, yet it was only a year ago that her own career shifted into high gear.

Beginning with "Chasing Rainbows," in which she played the lead for Fox Films nearly a dozen months ago, Marian Nixon has been getting toward the heights.

"After Tomorrow" with Frank Borzage directing and Charles Farrell as the hero, was a long upward step, and her recently completed task, "Assistant Daddy," in which she appears opposite Warner Baxter, was another lift. Her latest production is "Echoes of Sunnybrook Farm", a drama in the moment vein of Mary Pickford's best remembered vehicle, on July 30th and 31st, Sat at the Palace Theater.

It's a glorious feeling, and a great responsibility at the same time," Miss Nixon says. "It's the greatest chance I've ever had and I've grabbed for it."

Alfred Santell, who directed "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," feels that this contemporary will use a Lew Marian Nixon in this picture. Kate Douglas Wiggin's story was put into screen play form by S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levien. Planned as one of the studio's outstanding productions of the year, it was filmed on an elaborate scale.

STATE DEPARTMENT NOTIFIES LOCAL OFFICE ON LICENSE REDUCTION

The Charlevoix branch of the State Department located in the information booth on Bridge Street, has just received official notice that, beginning August 1, 1932 and continuing to December 31, 1932, one-half the regular tax on all 1932 motor vehicle licenses sold from this office will be collected. This reduction, of course, does not refer to transfers of title and license plates, operator or chauffeur licenses, duplicate plates, and to any kind of duplicate license. These latter will remain at full price. When purchasing plates, be sure and bring your certificate of title. All commercial cars and trailers must be weighed and application accompanied by official weight certificate issued by one of the three accredited scales in the city.

A New Memorial to the North Pole Discoverer

REAR ADMIRAL R. E. PEARY

The Proposed Monument at Cape York

The Arctic Wastelands

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

LOOK down from the top of the world! Now that's a romantic angle from which to view the earth. Next time it went around the universe Col. Edwin M. Hartridge, commander of Capt. Bob Bartlett, and its destination was Cape York, Greenland, 50 degrees north. On one of the high cliffs at cape York, the expansive acres of the party will erect a monument, rising 50 feet in the air and layering to a shoulder-width of 25 feet. Level with the midnight sun and set in a beacon in stone which will shine for miles over the Arctic regions. This monument will be a memorial to one of the greatest Arctic explorers in history, the man who discovered the North Pole, Admiral Robert E. Peary of the United States navy.

One of the members of the party will be a woman, Mrs. Henry Minot Sheffield, famous sheet musician her as the "snow bird." For this daughter of the explorer was born on the ice-cap, during a winter when even the air was frozen, and went on the historic dash for the North pole with her father, Admiral Peary, and her mother, Josephine Diebitsch Peary, at her side. Mrs. Sheffield, who is now 33 years old, was named Marie Ahnighito Peary, after the Arctic region. Through the years and vicissitudes she has remained a favorite of Eskimos and sent back all their baubles whenever she made a visit to the Arctic. They already are clamoring to see Ahnighito Peary. On February 22, 1909, she married Henry Minot Sheffield, who was then a member of the crew that rescued the Greely expedition in the Arctic, and during the next four-of-duty in Central America spent all his leisure studying Indian life and collecting. Now he received leave of absence to see out his theoretical theory by a direct attack on the pole.

His next trip, 1927, was such another reconnaissance of the ice cap. He went north up the Greenland coast to within a few miles of Etuha Kent Knox's old home and proceeded with three companions on a sledge trip across the island. At a point 150 miles from cape, he sent two companions back, they having finished their mission of carving records food for the two who were to make the trail dash. He completed the overland journey on July 4, 1927, united a cut 4,000 feet high to get down to the sea, making on the outward journey nearly five miles a record for such conditions. In returning to camp he struck directly across the ice-cap, traveling by latitude of 5,000 feet and traveling 500 miles.

In 1902, accompanied by his wife he returned to Greenland, and on the ice-cap Marie had her first birthday party.

"In the early days of the Arctic," he said, "we would never be well again, for many years of the summer heat in the months of August, or sail, spread on the keel of our tiniest home in Maine. We would sail in to some island in the line of vision and we would be ashore in a canoe or tender, starting the ship channel. We had our shotguns and rifles and ammunition and as a grown man and daughter came had been spent within sight of it in the Arctic regions. It was for such that a smaller harbor would do and again spread sail.

However, when Peary sold in 1909 and sent the Roosevelt to Arctic regions, he found that the summer he finished in spite of his short months, he remained with his family in the Arctic regions. He planned to remain there for two years, but he did not return to the Arctic regions. His wife and child and the rest of the party returned to the states. From Eskimo neighbors he got four volunteers and, accompanied by dog sleds to the west coast and his two companions he started home by the land route. He had to go to the east coast, where it was easier to follow his track.

At this spot where the observations determined the North pole in by Peary planted the American flag, given to him by his wife before they left home for that purpose. The cabin of his old ship remained, and the provisions he found there were added and moved to the cave. Then, Peary, accompanied by observations, rest and preparations for the long journey back.

On March 1 Peary sets out to circumnavigate the regions of the Arctic. He plans a trip to the north pole, and then to Cape York, where he will be met by the Roosevelt. Then he will go to Etuha Kent Knox's old home and proceed with the entire party to Sydney, where he was welcomed by the people of the city. Then he will go to Boston

QUIT KICKING AND GO TO WORK

Continual bewailing about reduced earnings of many corporations is doing much to prolong the depression, intimidate the individual and drive money into hiding.

Why shouldn't corporation and private earnings fall below the peaks of two or three years ago? We were then living under abnormal conditions.

When an automobile salesman without any capital could open an expensive show room and sell automobiles as fast as he could get them, we were not living in normal times. When a bond salesman without any practical experience, capital or knowledge of the intrinsic value of the securities he handled, could open an office equipped with expensive furniture and ornamental rugs, and sell securities, bonds, stocks, etc., to a clamoring public, and make money faster than he ever dreamed of, ordinary caution should have warned anybody conditions were not normal. When a real estate operator could take practically worthless land and sell it at fabulous figures which no normal crop value could justify, it should have been self-evident that there was something wrong. And so on through every line of industrial, agricultural and financial activity.

During ten years of inflation, countless persons came to think that by their own ability and shrewdness they were creating wealth for themselves by speculation when, as a matter of fact, most of them were creating nothing and saving nothing while they lived in a fool's paradise which they thought would last forever.

The majority of persons have more today than they had in pre-war times but they complain about having less because they are making comparisons on a false basis.

This is true of individuals and it is true of companies. Industrial concerns expanded beyond normal requirements. They have endeavored to maintain operations on an inflated basis which cannot be done because there is no longer any artificial demand to maintain such production.

All over the nation, one-man industries and one-man farms are starting again on a deflated basis. You can drive through the country and see little "shacks" springing up on cheap land and in the far-away places. The occupants of these little homes are going to produce their living and gradually make a little surplus. The big farmers who bought high-priced land on the strength of high-priced crops, as well as the peak prices and built up peak overheads, are all going to have to readjust themselves to the basis of the man who is starting at the bottom today. The laboring man who enjoyed wartime wages for the past decade is in the same boat.

The same inflation that affected industry and the individual also affected government and taxation, and government is among the last to recognize conditions and readjust its minimum expansion accordingly. The trouble with government is that its managers (our public officials and public servants) will not reduce their own functions voluntarily. The reduction will have to be forced by a tax-weary people who, after they have adjusted their own personal and business affairs, will turn to their governmental problems which in a large measure they have permitted to expand, by their own indifference, without check during the past decade.

Emphasizing the term "hard times" has become more or less a racket indulged in by a growing army of theorists who would remedy our ills through schemes which try to create employment at public expense, thereby further discouraging industry through exorbitant taxation, thus creating more unemployment. Most of our economic doctors are afraid to state in plain English that we are on a new basis; that products of all kinds will be selling at pre-war prices; that a large part of our unemployed are going to have to make employment for themselves at wages more nearly what they received before the war. Many of the jobs they enjoyed will never return because the conditions that produced them are gone forever unless we start another world-wide war, which would be a terrific price to pay to stimulate employment.

It may be hard medicine to take but it is reality and the sooner we recognize the conditions and adjust ourselves to them, the sooner will we conquer the depression by merely returning to more normal standards of living.

THRIFT-FORESIGHT-STABILITY

Sales of ordinary life insurance during May, although experiencing the general downward trend of business, held to a high level. In every working day of the month the people of the United States purchased about $25,000,000 of new insurance. The average policy being about $2,000, this means that over 8,000 people daily bought life insurance for the first time or increased their holdings.

There is a new attitude toward life insurance abroad in the land that is revolutionizing the saving habits of millions of citizens. Where they once regarded life insurance only from the standpoint of protection for dependents, they now have an understanding of its worth as a safe, dividend-paying investment.

Today life insurance is being bought to build up estates shrunken by stock losses. It is being bought to protect not only one's dependents but one's self against the future.—more insurance is paid to living policyholders than to beneficiaries. It is being bought as a stable investment which cannot be shaken by any business depression imaginable. And it is giving our people a realization of what real thrift and foresight means.

BLAME RESTS ON ADULTS

Education of motorists in traffic safety is still in the little red schoolhouse stage of development, in the opinion of Harold G. Hoffman, Motor Vehicle Commissioner of New Jersey, who believes that adults are largely responsible for the slow progress of safety training.

Although good work has been done in instilling safety codes in the young, Commissioner Hoffman comments, "Our efforts in teaching safety to children cannot come to full fruition until we have been successful in bringing to the adult motorist, a full sense of responsibility to his own children and others. We must engender, too, a general and wholesome respect for the motor laws designed to promote safety on the highways and insist upon their equitable enforcement.

Commissioner Hoffman also points out that while younger children have demonstrated an aptitude to assimilate safe practices, the older ones, now in high school and college, have not shown the same tendency.

"Statistics show," he says, "that these youngsters are notoriously unsafe drivers, and for the tragic accident record of youth, I am convinced that our high schools and colleges must acctpt a large share of responsibility. The high schools prepare those boys and girls for various activities of life; but when it comes to an activity that we are sure most of them will take up, that of driving a car, they do comparatively little.

"Education in the traffic field is universal in its application. Too often we are tempted to confine consideration of it to children, and even to the motor vehicle owner and operator, forgetting that the automobile manufacturer, the motor vehicle administrator, the highway engineer, the legislator, and even the corner traffic cop always must go on acquiring new and more useful knowledge."

INDESPENSABLE FOODS

When the family budget must be curtailed, the amount of care exercised in buying foods must be increased.

Certain foods are essential to the health of both adults and children. Among these are cereals, citrus fruits, leafy vegetables, eggs and—most important of all—first-quality milk.

Milk in its various forms contributes more than half the total calcium consumed in the ordinary American diet. It is the greatest of the bone builders. According to health authorities, better health is often enjoyed by thin children who have been properly fed with milk and fruits, than by children of normal weight who over-indulge in filling and fattening foods.

BACK TO SCHOOL MOVEMENT

With millions of unemployed the closing of our schools and colleges for the summer vacation is an aggravating problem already of serious proportions. What are the young people going to do? What should they do?

For any who can possibly finance it, further education is clearly the best plan. The boys and girls now ready to leave the grade schools should go on to high schools instead. They can study typewriting or bookkeeping or learn a trade. Instead of tramping the streets looking for jobs that don't exist, they should be using their time to good advantage. They should be acquiring a vocation. Then when the inevitable up-turn comes they will be ready for a better job.

College students should carry on. College graduates should return to their campuses for professional training which will fit them to better earn a living in the coming days when livings will be easier to earn.

COOPERATIVES

More than a million and a quarter farmers are members of cooperative associations which have been assisted under the agriculture marketing act of the Government. But we don't hear anybody kicking about that, as they do about the bankers who have been able to carry on business and discharge their obligations to their communities with the help they have received in government loans.

A GOOD COMMUNITY HOBBY

A good community hobby is the fire department. And it is a hobby that pays every citizen dividends.

The days when second-rate "assembled" apparatus and untrained or partly trained volunteer personnel, were adequate, have definitely gone. Fire hazards grow greater every year. Increased use of power, petroleum products and machinery of all kinds in homes and in business, means that a fire has a better chance to start.

Good fire departments are the community's insurance against disaster—and, from the standpoint of value, are as essential as a fire policy. Tremendous strides have been made in the development of standard apparatus—apparatus capable of operating for hour after hour, under the most difficult conditions, without loss in efficiency.

Shrines In American History

LINCOLN SPEECH MEMORIAL GETTYSBURG, PA.

A tall gaunt man from out of the West came to this place with a listless tread weighing heavily upon his soul. With tongue made vibrant by the anguish in his heart and with eyes of hope lifted toward the blue vaulted heavens above he broke into an audible prayer which the world knows as Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg. That prayer has been answered and the new Nation for which he prayed has become the crowning achievement in self government among nations of the earth. The tractor who passes here may well reflect upon this memorial as a shrine among shrines in American history.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank F. Litschert

A great many people who follow the securities markets expressed their surprise when the announcement of the virtual cancellation of reparations at Lausanne was not followed by a quick and enthusiastic rise in the stock market. They recalled the fact that the announcement of the Hoover moratorium proposal in June, 1931, was greeted by a sharp rebound of the market and had anticipated the same result following the announcement of success at Lausanne. But it is barely possible that some of the so-called insiders in the market sensed the fact that the announcement of the reparations settlement at Lausanne had some large sized strings attached to it.

These strings are now becoming visible to the naked eye. The so-called gentlemen's agreement entered into by the creditor nations, and the sharp disagreement as to what it meant, now being aired by the statesmen of Great britain and France—are ample evidence that the trouble is not yet over. The statement by Premier Herriot that this gentleman's arrangement means that there will be no final settlement until Uncle Sam has cancelled the war debt has had its reverberations in the United States. Even the pacifying statement of Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, to the effect that the agreement meant no such thing, has failed to calm the troubled waters. Sentiment in the United States against cancellation is well nigh universal, and it took the calm and lucid letter of President Hoover to Senator Borah to quiet the diplomatic tempest in the United States.

While there is undoubtedly a disagreement between M. Herriot and Mr. MacDonald as to the general terms of this "gentlemen's pact", this agreement should not be taken too seriously. It is to be remembered that M. Herriot gave up a great deal of "paper reparations" at Lausanne and it would be difficult for him to face the home folks with the statement that he had cancelled reparations but that France must continue to pay her international debts. The French people are thrifty and such a pronouncement, no matter if justified by world conditions or not, would undoubtedly end in the fall of the Herriot government. For this reason M. Herriot is vigorously stating for home consumption, that nothing is settled yet unless Uncle Sam takes action for scaling down debts. It is to be remembered that statesmen often have to make statements for home consumption which are not as rabid as they seem. This fact is generally better recognized in Europe than in the United States for the reason that our diplomats having fewer fussy neighbors to deal with generally say and propose about what they mean.

It would seem to the ordinary observer that Uncle Sam is now in a pretty good position so far as the international debts are concerned, and will remain so, unless he turns his trumps over to Europe, which he is not apt to do. For, no matter what M. Herriot says about it for home consumption, the reparations question is pretty well settled. Whether the Lausanne agreement is signed or not, it is well understood that Germany will pay no more reparations. It is even doubtful whether she will finally be able to pay the one cent on the dollar provided for in the agreement. The European nations will eventually then be faced with the task of paying Uncle Sam or defaulting, unless Uncle Sam decided to play Santa Claus, which he seems to have no intention of doing at this time.

Speaking of the stock market, however, there is undoubtedly another reason why it failed to respond more vigorously to the Lausanne settlement. The fact is that the principal thing hindering our economic recovery is not the European situation in the United States. If Uncle Sam can get his own affairs straightened out and get the home fires to burning brightly again the European situation will not seem so important. The international bankers have been telling us that the trouble was all due to reparations and war debts. The action of our markets in ignoring the Lausanne settlement proved that the effects of European conditions on the United States have been greatly over-emphasized. The internationalists want us to forget the home market which consumes ninety-four per cent of our products for the six per cent foreign market, or rather the trade ninety-four per cent home market to Europe for a chance to add a couple of points to the six per cent foreign market. But the American people see through this false reasoning and are not going to be taken in by it.

CHARLEVOIX

Thomas W. Brown, an attorney of Traverse City, recently made a cruise throughout this northern portion of the region, and in a lengthy letter to the Grand Traverse Herald has the following to say about Charlevoix:

Beautiful Charlevoix! Fit theme for the poet's fancy, and worthy subject for artist's skill! Thy wooded hills and placid lakes with the blue heavens bending above them as if in silent benediction, will long linger in our memory as a pleasant dream.

After such an introduction it is needless to say that we fell in love with Charlevoix. The two short days of our stay there were devoted to sight seeing. On the morning of the 6th our old friend Frank Wood, who seemed to be on good terms with every one we met treated us to a drive through Charlevoix and its suburbs. Indeed, Frank, throughout our whole stay entertained us right royally. First we saw the village. It claims to have a thousand inhabitants and probably it has. (It has 1200—Ed.) Certain it is the Charlevoix can justly boast of its many residences, and the attractive grounds, which in most instances surround them. It is the loviest village of the lakes. It is the queen of summer resorts. The buildings and cottages of the Chicago and Kalamazoo resorts are permanent additions to the village. The cottages are such in fact, as well as the name. The designs of most of them are attractive and unique. They form a village by themselves. The high grounds on which they are built are handsomely terraced, and a beautiful view can be had from their summit of Round and Pine Lakes and the hills beyond. These remarks apply particularly to the Kalamazoo resort, which so far is ahead in the race with its Chicago competitor.

Round Lake is quite a curiosity. It is about half a mile across in any direction and so deep that will safely float the largest craft that sails the lakes, almost up to the water's edge.

It is a magnificent harbor and is perfectly safe for small boats. On a pleasant afternoon, especially if there is a light breeze blowing, this miniature lake presents a gay and beautiful appearance. Small crafts of every kind, from the plain rowing boat to the more pretentious yacht, dart over its surface. The scene reminds one of a Venetian carnival. It is like a fairy scene, almost too beautiful to be real. Of course we too had a sail on Round Lake. Our visit would have been incomplete without it, and as we glided along, the breeze filling our sails, the water gently splashing against the sides of our boat and mingling with the sound of girlish voices and the music of their laughter, we banish from our mind our business cares, and for one short hour we live an ideal life.

But a truce of sentiment. Life is real, even at Charlevoix, and so we found ourself one pleasant afternoon, upon one of the numerous fast little steamers that ply up and down Pine Lake leading in the direction of Ironton. We had a delightful trip. Upon arriving at Ironton we found that the romantic and practical were queerly blended. The scenery was grand. We ought to add that there is an excellent farming country surrounding Pine Lake and that the soil in the immediate vicinity of Charlevoix is apparently rich and productive. This is not an advertisement, but an honest expression of opinion.

At no distant day we propose to revisit Charlevoix and make a more extended stay. The stranger within her gates is treated as a friend, and is ever welcome. The people are social and generous, as well as enterprising and prosperous. We left Charlevoix with regret. Our thoughts of Charlevoix will be ever filled with bright fancies and pleasant recollections.

"THE MOUTHPIECE" AT PALACE THEATRE AUGUST 2 AND 3

Warren William, stage hero on the screen a little more than a year, reveals the stuff of which stars are made in "The Mouthpiece," a Warner Bros. picture which will be at the Palace Thrater August 2 and 3.

William, dashing swashbuckler of "The Honor of the Family," breaker of hearts in "Beauty and the Boss," has a role in "The Mouthpiece" which fits him like the proverbial glove. It gives him a chance to demonstrate the great dramatic talent which made him a legend on Broadway and the charm which brings him thousands of new fans in each city in which he is seen.

"The Mouthpiece" deals with the tragic fate of a great legal light who sends an innocent youth to the electric chair in an excess of prosecuting zeal. He learns his ghastly error too late. His conscience destroys his value as a prosecutor. In a revulsion of feeling he turns to the defense of persons accused of crimes, bringing all the energy and skill that had won him fame as the criminal's nemesis to the defense of those same criminals.

It is powerful drama all the way through, modern and up to the moment in theme. There is stirring action, highlighted by intense scenes in the death house and the courtroom. There is also a dominant note of romance all through the story, the "Mouthpiece" being a man who loves recklessly and is loved by reckless women.

The theme of "The Mouthpiece" is well handled, two directors collaborating on its production, James Flood supervising the dramatic situations and Elliott Nugent coordinating the dialogue with the action.

The cast is also excellent. Sidney Fox, diminutive star of "Strictly Dishonorable," plays the featured feminine lead. Aline MacMahon, whom you remember as Edward G. Robinson's spiritual sweetheart in "Five Star Final," plays a very important role in a somewhat similar capacity.

"The Mouthpiece" is a picture with a topical value which exposes the hidden practices of lawyers who work outside the law. Every man, woman, and child will enjoy it, both for its dramatic exposure of "inside stuff" and for its reckless romance. We urge you not to miss it!

INFERIOR EGG NOT SOUGHT BY BUYERS

High Quality Production Is Demanded.

(By H. H. ALP, Dairy Extension Specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.)

Fertile eggs caused by keeping roosters in the flocks during the warm summer months have been mainly responsible for bad egg losses which in 1929 cost producers of the state an estimated $5,000,000. In addition to eliminating roosters, if farm flock owners would adopt a few practical and simple practices, much of the poor quality of Illinois eggs could be overcome and market demands for eggs from this state improved.

Eggs should be gathered twice daily in hotter will, three times daily in hot weather. Frequent gathering helps prevent chances to heat or cold; it saves cracking and breaking of eggs and it reduces the proportion of dirty eggs.

Before being cased, eggs should be candled, because egg cases, pails and crates built in any kind that already in the eggs. The cases of eggs should be held in a cool place, a temperature of 42 to 50 degrees being best. The moist forms the cellar is the best location for it is comparatively free from strange periods. If it is free from strong odors will not be too damp.

Eggs will keep better and will be easier to sell if they are kept clean. Chicken houses also litter. Dirtyshell quarters are a common cause of dirty eggs. There should be 2½ to 3 square feet of floor space for each hen. A shortage of nests also causes broken and dirty eggs, as hens will go to the habits of egg eating and of laying eggs on the floor. There should be one nest for each five hens.

Feed Mixtures on Which Chickens Will Thrive

A good mash feed for chicks, when fed in the chick brood, is mixed as follows: 100 pounds of ground yellow corn, 100 pounds of wheat bran, 100 pounds of wheat flour, 75 pounds of wheat shorts or middlings and 50 pounds of meat scrap.

When the chicks do not have access to green leafy feed, five pounds of alfalfa leaf meal should be added to each 100 pounds of the mash, says the Dakota Farmer. If meat and bone scrap is not used, five pounds of bone meal should be included to each 100 pounds of the mash. The use of alfalfa leaf meal or meat scrap in the feed of thrifty growing chicks is important, however, and should not be kept permanently.

Successful Pullet Raising

Finley Morey grains and 4-H club work at Ohio has outlines in an interview on his Ashe Virginia, Indiana, Illinois.

During their period she fed 300 pounds of wheat, 300 pounds of bran, 300 pounds feed mix composed of two bushels barley and one and a quarter bushels wheat. Wire which mixed, oyster shells and three pints of cod-liver oil, feed corn, bran and skimmilk was fed. an average of 21 cents a dozen, or 4 cents above market price. This left a net return of $21.74 or 22 cents a pullet.—Capper's Farmer.

Mash and Milk

Mixing a part of the dry mash with milk and a part with water for a wet mash dry mash greatly increases the palatability of the poultry ration. Experiments at Ohio State university with a blend of the same brand kept under identical flock conditions and fed the same rations, with the exception that part of the ration was fed wet in one case and in the other case all the rations was dry, showed an increase in production during the year of 24 eggs per bird.—Prairie Farmer.

Feather Picking

The taste of blood spots frequently pieced quilts is probably what keeps fowls picking at each other after scratching has started them. Letting them get away from each other by cutting the flock out of doors is the most certain method of stopping the practice. Tar may be daubed upon any bleeding point about the coop or head to discourage the attackers. Handling fellows and injury that breaks the skin, it may be from accidents or attacks.—Rural New Yorker.

Let Sun Shine in

On warm days the fronts of poultry houses should be thrown open so that the sunlight may get into the house and on the birds. It will help keep the flock strong and healthy in addition to keeping the house dry. Sunlight not only aids in improving the health of the flock but also tends to promote laying and in hatches the shell strength of eggs. states F. W. Henderson, Iowa State college poultry specialist. Thin shells often result from insufficient minerals.

Avoid Overcrowding

Overcrowding may help in fatting about cannibalism in chicks. As they grow rapidly, see that they do not become overcrowded. As soon as a chick has been picked as badly cut it bleeds, it must be removed from the flock at once. Catching and removing the offenders will help correct this habit. Hanging food above the chicks heads helps to distract their attention and keep them from picking. Frequent feedings and the use of small feeding pans are good, too.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

Copyright 1932 by James W. Brooks. All Rights Reserved. Historically Correct Sketches By CASTLE FARRA

IN picking up historic odds and ends en route, the traveler is directed to Fort Frederick, fifteen miles west of Hagerstown, Maryland, on U. S. 40, frequented south at Indian Springs, in Big Pool on the Potomac River. This crumbling entrance is one of the scarred reminders of anxious days on the Colonial frontier. Washington visited here while in Command at Winchester.

TURNING in the saddle for a moment to survey Washington's travels as a youth in Colonial service, his perilous mission to Fort Le Boeuf in 1753, his surrender with honor at Great Meadows July 4, 1754, and his heroic conduct under Braddock in 1755 move swiftly in review as he approaches, final action at Fort Duquesne.

HARD beginnings often make easy endings. It had fallen to the lot of Washington, at 21, to uncover French designs for older heads to prevent. But Fate willed otherwise, and on November 24, 1758, the French, having had enough of this persistent youth, abandoned Fort Duquesne and set it on fire. Washington raised the British flag on the ruins, rode to Williamsburg, resigned his commission, and prepared for his wedding to Martha Dandridge Parke Custis.

Lieut. Massie Takes Up Sea Duty

This was Massie's first assignment since his return from Honolulu where he and three other Americans stood trial for the murder of Joe Kahahawai, a Hawaiian, died in the war is seeking his sister, Mrs. Georges Wallerstead, now seventeen, was brought up by the Germans as a civil prisoner. He has no idea where his parents are, for he was taken from them when he was three years old.

Marcelaide and his sister Madeleine were picked up as orphans by officials at Lens. They proved they had been in various parts of France searching for their parents, whom they had not seen since the outbreak of the war.

Eugene Henri Capin, from Chauny, will receive an inheritance if he can be found. Official records show that his father was killed at Verdun in 1916.

There are thousands of similar cases. Twenty convents have been found to their children in recent months, but the percentage of reunions 13 years after the war is pathetically small.

WAR CHILDREN SEEK LOST KIN IN FRANCE

Thousands, Ignorant of Their Names, Ask for Help.

Paris.—Thousands of war children separated from parents, brothers and sisters during the world months are still seeking members of their families 14 years after the armistice. Their ages range from fourteen to nineteen years. Most of them were too young to remember their names or where they lived when forced out of their homes by raids or bombardments.

Several times a year the Society of Wards of the Nation at Saint Quentin publishes lists of the children to its care.

Lakeville Jeanne, for instance, lost at Cambrai and now twenty years old, can remember that his mother was taken to a hospital just before the Germans entered his home town. He has not seen or heard of her since.

CANADA PAYS TRIBUTE TO GEN. WASHINGTON

Neighbors Honor Memory of Our First President.

Washington—From British Columbia on the Pacific to Newfoundland on the Atlantic, Canada is actively participating in the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth, according to official reports received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission. Throughout the length and breadth of the land fitting exercises have been held or are slated to pay tribute to the memory of the first President of the United States.

In Toronto the American Women's club, with the co-operation of the Toronto post of the American Legion and the office of the United States consul general, held a Colonial dinner and ball in the Royal York hotel. Dr. George W. Locke, chief librarian of the Toronto public libraries, delivered an address on Washington. Doctor Locke was introduced by Emil Sauer, United States consul general at Ottawa. The event attracted wide attention in the Toronto press.

Bear No Grudge.

A service conducted by Rev. H. R. Grant in Saint Andrews church at Fort William was dedicated to George Washington. The editorial column of the Times Journal of that city noted the occasion with approval and said, "Present-day Americans bear no more grudge against George III of England than Englishmen bear against George Washington."

Under the auspices of the Anglo-Saxon Women's club of Vancouver a birthday luncheon was held in the Hotel Vancouver.

Interesting in its spontaneity is the project planned by the Memorial University college in St. John's, Newfoundland. A request from the college for material and information on George Washington has been forwarded to the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission with the explanation that students at the institution wish to prepare essays on the life and career on the first President of the United States. The college also plans to present a drama written around the life of George Washington.

Also of the most pretentious of all the Canadian programs in connection with the bicentennial celebration was carried out in Kingston where an international held in the Hotel La Salle under the auspices of the American Women's club opened the observance.

Lasting Friendship.

The speakers referred to the cordial relations between Canada and the United States and expressed the belief that such sentiments as the George Washington bicentennial celebration result really in a better understanding between these two English-speaking countries of North America.

The Kingston Whig-Standard paid high tribute to George Washington. The article concluded in the following words: "Old antagonisms have been forgotten. Canada and the United States have existed side by side for a century without form or substance and this Washington bicentenary observance will further cement the friendship that has existed for years between the two countries."

Receptions and programs in honor of George Washington have also been held in Montreal, Winnipeg, Sault Ste. Marie, and other places. Service clubs throughout the Dominion have observed the bicentennial celebration in various ways, and radio talks have enlightened George Washington.

Woman "Dies" Twice in One Afternoon

New York.—Mrs. Aurelia Redfern, forty-three years old, was declared dead twice in one day.

Early in the afternoon, she soon an unlikely collapsed from a heart attack, and was declared dead for other witnesses.

Three emergency crews, responding to her husband's call, worked over Mrs. Redfern for forty minutes and finally succeeded in reviving her. Meanwhile, friends and neighbors knelt in prayer on the street outside the home.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Redfern again collapsed and all efforts to revive her failed.

THE STORY OF McMINN

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I'd like to tell briefly the story of McMinn with the hope that it might help some other boy or act as a deterrent of some indulgent parent who is tempted to make life too easy for his child. I've just come from talking to McMinn, and I feel pretty low in spirits for there wasn't really very much that one could say to him. He seems to have played mental his cards and lost.

McMinn has never done anything that he found unpleasant or difficult. His father is rather a prosperous business man who lives in one of the suburbs of a great city and who goes off in the morning usually before the boy is up, and who comes home at night tired and too much taken up with other things to give the boy much attention. Mother has had the direction of the boy, and she is so fond of him that whatever he shows a desire for she gets him immediately, for there has never been any need of economy in the McMinn family and no tendency toward prudence in it.

McMinn has never shown any particular interest in study. He was sent to a fairly private school at first, but he did not do well there, and so was transferred to the public school where he finally made the grades to enter high school. His preparatory school record was rather a hectic one. He had all sorts of experiences—being kept behind two or three high-grade preparatory schools in New England, and then back in high school again to graduation two years later than the average boy does and even then with only a mediocre record.

And then McMinn came to college. He had really never studied much; he found no joy or satisfaction in study. He was wasting, but he put no attention to the wasting, and, of course, he has failed hopelessly.

What is he to do? he asks me. He has no background or preparation for college work, no idea of what it is all about. He would make out sadly at almost below. He would have a hard time to get a job unless he got it through his father's influence, and he has developed habits which it will take him years to break if he ever succeeds in doing so.

Postal Robberies More Than Double in a Year

Washington.—Postal robberies during the current fiscal year have increased to more than double their total number. It has been revealed by the Post Office department.

Although bandits and holdup men have been unusually active, it was stated in the report, other kinds of postal law violations have decreased slightly, with the result that total arrests by department inspectors have this year been lower than during any year since 1923.

One theory advanced as to the cause of the increase in robberies is that the depression may have driven unemployed men to stealing. Another is that the bandits may have discovered a new source of revenue in the small branch post offices run by store proprietors.

Major robberies involving thefts of $5,000 or more this year are expected to total more than 75. The figure in 1931 was 16, which was 3.1 per cent higher than the average.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Use kerosene to clean white enamel or porcelain bathtubs and bowls.

To save polishing forks and spoons wash them in hot soapy water immediately after use. Dry them with a soft cloth.

To remove grass stains try rubbing lard or butter on the spot and let stand a few hours. Also wash in the usual way. If stain does not disappear, repeat.

To keep brass pulles and handles mentioned rub a raw potato over them after they have been cleaned. This will keep them bright for several days.

When washing greasy dishes add a few drops of ammonia to the water. The work will be more quickly and thoroughly done.

When cleaning your refrigerator use one teaspoonful of salt to two quarts of cold water. This will keep the drain pipe clean and free.

Boiling Water

The boiling point of a liquid depends upon the atmospheric pressure of the immediate locality, and is therefore not uniform. At sea level the boiling point for water is 212 degrees F. The atmospheric pressure diminishes about one degree for every 550 feet altitude. Thus on Mount Blanc, 15,000 feet above sea level, the boiling point is 185 degrees F.

HEMP'S LARGE PART IN HUMAN HISTORY

Has Well-Merited Title of King of Fibers.

Hemp found its way into the home of billions more than 5,000 years ago, and for centuries was the King of Fibers. Today, cheaper fibers are competing with hemp in the cordage factory.

Hemp, when stripped out of eight-foot stalks, is creamy white in color. With the manufacture of cotton cloth and the development of machine spinning, hemp met a severe rival that thrived it when machines, the coconut fiber which grew, which is called Manila, hemp," was cheaper, would float, and did not require the application of lye. Hemp cloth lacks warping lowed to imitate jute and waste cotton, and 20 years ago cut and manufacturers now substituted cotton for half jute warping for hemp.

Hemp is a cousin of the mulberry tree and a native of the East. About 2800 B. C., when a Chinese emperor taught his subjects to cultivate hemp and to make cloth for clothing, hemp has frequently appeared in its home country. The Chinese also ate the seeds and extracted an oil from the plant.

Hemp followed civilization were ward. Before the discovery of the Indians, Aryans and Persians were cultivating hemp for drugs, which they learned to extract from the plant. The Scythians took hemp with them to Europe 2,500 years ago. Herodotus describes ancient North Africa raising the plant and the strength of its fiber. Hemp is the strongest of all fibers brought to this side use and the seeds consists of the Mediterranean regions.

Hemp invaded the Western hemisphere in 1545, when some Indian Spain reached Chile. North American Indians to cultivate hemp shortly after the Puritans settled in Massachusetts. But the northern colonists were unsuccessful with their plants. Hemp laws requiring the hemp to be grown were issued by the governors of colonial Virginia. Last, earlier Duke, was the center of a large hemp-producing region during the Revolution.

First Rural Free Mail Back in 1896

Rural free delivery of mail was limited from the suggestion of Postmaster General John Wanamaker, who inaugurated it in his annual report for the fiscal year 1891.

The following year on January 5 Postal officials at Michigan were allowed a pilot in the house of representatives with an appropriation of $40,000, was made small, after what the first experimental rural mail delivery service was established at Halltown, W. Va., with a population of 2,000 and a route of 23 miles.

The results were so satisfactory that soon service after the establishment of the first routes the service was found profitable to so extend that by next three years there had 1,000 in operation.

Among the Bible citations was this message: John 14:6, "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."
Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 322): "Wise understanding changes the standpoints of life and intelligence from a material to a spiritual basis, we shall gain the reality of life, the control of soul over sense, and we shall perfect Christianity, or Truth, in its divine Principle."

THE MACHINE AGE SPOILS A PROPHECY

By H. L. RUSSELL
Advisory Council, Agricultural Counselors, American Bankers Association.

A NOTED British scientist forecast fifty years ago that by 1931 all available wheat land in the world would be under cultivation and if the yields per acre could not be increased beyond that which then prevailed there would be a world shortage. The average yield then was 12.7 bushels per acre. During the last seven years, the world average has been 14.1. On the 576,000,000 acres in cultivation this increase would amount to almost a half billion bushels more production than the world attained at three years ago. In place of dire distress due to shortage, we have had dire distress due to surplus.

H. L. RUSSELL

Wheat farmers have shown no great inclination to curtail materially their output; perhaps a 10% decline can be gained with 20% reduction in acreage. This unwillingness, or perhaps inability, to adjust production to current needs makes the price of the staple hard to solve.

Not only are we now growing more wheat per unit of land, but acreage has been very greatly extended, in twenty years Canada has increased acreage 250%, Australia almost as much. Another significant fact is the remarkable increase in the yield per acre which now threatens our ruin. Argentina has increased acreage 250%, Australia almost as much. Another significant fact is the remarkable increase in the yield per acre which now threatens our ruin. More vegetable and fruits are used than formerly. The reduction of 1.9 bushels consumed per person per year from the last generation now states nearly 150,000,000 bushels less acres than was formerly required.

Machines Increase Supply.

The father that has started the most potent influence in this rising world flood of grain has been the rapid development of the machine. The old days of the cradle reaped from thirty to fifty bushels a hand; now by means as sure of grain. Then came the binder era, which reduced the grooms to four or five hours per acre. Now the combine does the work in forty-five minutes per acre.

Where it used to cost ten cents a bushel merely to thresh the grain, the modern combine cuts and threshes at a cost ranging from 2 to 5 cents a bushel. With this reduced cost of production, the possibility of acreage expansion is tremendous. Lands previously regarded as valueless except for grazing have recently come into competition with the older wheat belts.

The Russian Effect

Within the past two or three years another disturbing element has come into the picture. Soviet Russia is attempting a comeback fraught with possibility that cannot yet be fully ascertained. Russia is eagerly utilizing the very latest of scientific knowledge to enlarge her agricultural possibilities. With feverish anxiety she is literally pouring millions into the expansion of her university research institutes experimental stations and breeding farms. Her scientists are combing the earth for new crops and new methods. No country in Europe is manifesting more interest and activity in laying hold of the best science wherever it may be found.

Russia is a nation that has announced that the wheat yields reported on the huge state farms known as the "trusts" ran last year as much as it bushels to the acre. On this single farm the crop harvested is reported to have been 3,565,000 bushels. A single farm of 427,000 acres under government control and mechanized as far as present energy can be applied is a new factor in the world's problem.

There can be but little doubt that the Russian situation may yet assume quite a different attitude from what obtained even in pre-war days.

Bankers Hold Farm Conference

A "feeders' conference" was held by a state bank at Yankton, South Dakota, attended by fifty bankers. The conference stresses the feeding of low price wheat and barley, and marketing it through livestock. Later, booklets on the feeding of wheat were distributed among the farmers, and a feeders column was carried in the local paper each week.

"We have had more success with the conference and with the feeders column in the local paper, than with any other undertaking we have had," the bankers said. "As a result there is about three times as much livestock being fed out in our territory than ever before. We plan to hold other similar conferences the coming year."

The benefits of civilization exist because of the capital accumulated by those who have gone before. Through accumulation of capital our great railroads have been constructed, our public utilities have been built and our mills, office buildings and homes have arisen.

Judge F. A. Ruegsegger announces in this issue of the Sentinel that he is a candidate for renomination. He has filed his nominating petition as required under the statutes and asks for your support.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN ENTERED POLITICS A CENTURY AGO

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Political issues troubling American voters today are much the same as those which Abraham Lincoln discussed one hundred years ago in his maiden political speech, it was revealed here by Dr. Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation.

"This year marks the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's first political speech to the voters of Sangamon county, Illinois," Doctor Warren explained. "He was then 23 years of age and was a candidate for the state legislature.

"A study of that document, which is on file in the Foundation's library here, reveals that Lincoln devoted his speech to a discussion of many issues which are still being kept alive today by local politicians in all parts of the country. For example—road building, public education, usury and the activities of 'loan sharks,' railroads versus waterways, and revision of existing laws."

Doctor Warren, who has devoted his life to a study of Lincoln here and the preservation of historic spots in Emancipator's life, was appointed director of the research foundation when it was organized here and endowed four years ago by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company. He quoted as follows from Lincoln's speech, delivered in Springfield, March 9, 1832:

Attacks "Loan Sharks."

ON ROAD BUILDING—"That the general assembly appoint commissioners whose duty it shall be to lay out a road from the termination of the Illinois and Michigan canal northward to the state line, and cause the same to be opened in the manner prescribed by law for laying out state roads, and that the sum of $—— be appropriated for the purpose."

ON PUBLIC EDUCATION—"That every man may receive at least a moderate education, and thereby be enabled to read the history of his country and other requisites by which he may duly appreciate the value of our free institutions, appears to be an object of vital importance. For my part, I desire to see the time when education will be, by means, morality, sobriety, enterprise and industry placed within much more general than at present."

ON USURY—"It seems that we are slaves to hire as an end to this baneful curse, but a remedy is within our power, if all stockholders rate of interest could there be a law made fixing the limits of usury."

"Regarding the railroads versus waterways controversy, Lincoln favored improvements on the Sangamon river so that it would be available for transportation rather than the project of building a railroad," Doctor Warren said. But his argument was solely because the former project was less expensive.

"This first address of the man who was destined in less than 30 years to become President of the United States was brief and almost excessively modest for a man seeking office. It closed with these words:

Favors Waterways.

"'Every man is said to have his own peculiar ambition. Whether it be right or not, I can say, for one, that I have no other so great as that of being truly esteemed of my fellow men, by rendering myself worthy of their esteem. How far I shall succeed in gratifying this ambition is yet to be developed. I am young and unknown to many of you. I was born, and have ever resided in the most humble walks of life. I have no wealth or popular relations or friends to recommend me. My case is thrown entirely upon the independent voters of the country; and, if elected, they will have conferred a favor upon me for which I shall be unremitting in my labors to compensate. But if the good people in their wisdom shall see fit to keep me in the hickgrass, I never have too familiar with disappointment to be very much chagrined.'"

Lincoln was defeated and did not become an assemblyman till 1834.

Dedication of the new postoffice building at Boyne City will be made Sunday, July 31 at 2 o'clock. Members of the American Legion will be in charge of the program. Congressman Frank P. Bohn will act as government representative and post master J. R. Dean for Boyne City.

THE CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

"CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL" — "THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN MICHIGAN NORTH OF TRAVERSE CITY." — "THE CITY ON THREE LAKES"

Volume 63 — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1932. — Number 15

LOCAL LEGION POST HONORED

TWO MEMBERS ELECTED TO DISTRICT OFFICES SUNDAY

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of the American Legion has been honored by having two of its members selected for the leading offices in the organization of the Lower Eleventh District of Michigan for 1932-33. At the district convention, held in Boyne City on Sunday, July 31st, Lee C. Allard was elected district commissioner or commander and Fred V. Tyler becomes district adjutant or executive officer of the organization, which comprises thirteen Legion posts and nine counties of the lower peninsula. Guy Greene of Alpena was elected alternate commissioneman, was endorsed by the convention for the office of state vice commander for which election will be held at the coming state convention in Kalamazoo the latter part of this month.

Joan Blondell and Stuart Erwin head the featured cast with Zazu Pitts and Ben Turpin.

As the clerk in the country store who is ruffled for his highfalutin ideas about acting, Erwin is seen in a characterization that lifts him to the greatest heights of cinematistry he has ever attained. Audiences are bound to live with him the hardships, the disappointments and the final thrills which he experiences when he goes to Hollywood, with his hardearned savings—and makes the grade there in a way that he had never dreamed of in his wildest flights of fancy.

Joan Blondell is the hard-boiled "double" for a famous star who sympathizes with Erwin and gets him his first chance to act before the Hollywood cameras. Helen Jerome Eddy is his small-town girl friend whose eternal faith in his abilities spurs him on to make sacrifices that would otherwise have died a-borning.

Ben Turpin furnishes gales of laughter as the successful comedian who has been very suspiciously like Ben Turpin himself. This is the first time he has played the role of Ben Turpin imitating Ben Turpin. And he outdoes himself!

Others in the cast of this spendid comedy-romance-drama are: Patricia Sellon, veteran character actor; Florence Roberts, Ruth Donnelly, Frank Mills, Polly Waiters, Arthur Hoyt and Dina Templeton.

A CHALLENGE TO THE YOUNG PEOPLE

During the past forty years tens of thousands of young men and women of many nationalities and denominations have been given free training for Christian service at home or abroad offered by The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. More than 2,000 students enrolled in its Day and Evening Schools last year. While for certain special courses a high school background is required, and college training desirable, yet grammar school training will admit to its General Course English is taught to any deficient in its use.

The Bible ranks first in all Institute courses, but instruction is furnished in such subjects as Sunday School Administration, Daily Vacation Bible School, Gospel Music, Public Speaking, Home Economics, Hygiene and Manual Training. In special courses are offered Theology, Homiletics, Church History, Apologetics, Hebrew, Yiddish, Greek, and medical subjects for foreign mission work.

There are three terms a year—Fall, Winter, and Summer, but students may enter at any time. An illustrated catalogue will be mailed on request. Address, 153 Institute Place Chicago Avenue Station, Chicago, Illinois.

Mr. Hylan J. Heaton of Boyne City, candidate for sheriff, was a business visitor in Charlevoix Tuesday.

HOLLYWOOD'S DRAMA IN STUART ERWIN'S NEWEST PICTURE

The real Hollywood, its heartbreaks, its glamor, its wild striving for story-book success, its tinsel and fanfare, its comedy—as seen through the eyes of hundreds of our young men and women who have been there to try for fame and who have failed—or won.

That's the picture which Para mount brings to screen audiences at the Palace Theater with the opening there of "Make Me a Star," on Friday and Saturday next.

Based on the internationally famous real-life novel by Harry Leon Wilson, "Make Me a Star" gets to the humanities of America's film capital in a way that no story has ever done before.

Like "Touchdown!" which probed the heart of American football—and "Skippy" which glimpsed the fun and pathos of childhood, "Make Me a Star" tells its story in a way that brings joy and heart-tugs to all who will behind it.

Dr. Gray of Petoskey was endorsed for state delegate to the national convention at Portland, Oregon, with Shirley B. Henry, commander of the Leslie T. Shapton Post for the coming year, as alternate.

The program at Boyne City, Sunday, commenced with the dedication of the new sixty thousand dollar post office by Congressman Frank P. Bohn of the eleventh congressional district. He was gracefully introduced by Albert Sarasin of Boyne City and was followed by Postmaster Deane, who accepted the building in the name of the city of Boyne City. The speeches were short, but to the point and well delivered. The building is a handsome affair inside as well as out, and represents the last word in up-to-date post office construction.

The business meeting of the convention occurred at two p. m. and was followed by the usual parade, in which four bugle and drum corps participated. The banquet, held at five p. m. in the high school gymnasium was well attended. The speakers were A. J. McDougall of Gaylord, the man who rescued the "Lost Battalion"; Congressman Frank P. Bohn, Judges Fead and Butzel of the Michigan supreme court and Judge Joseph P. Murphy of Petoskey, candidate for Congress.

The next district meeting will be held at East Jordan, at a place and date to be determined later.

ARLEN AGAIN HAS AIR PILOT ROLE IN "SKY BRIDE"

When Richard Arlen takes to the air in "Sky Bride", his newest picture for Paramount, it will be his first appearance in an aviation film since "Wings" the production that started him on the road to screen fame.

It was "Wings" that installed three players in the fore ranks of film prowess. Like Arlen, Gary Cooper and Charles "Buddy" Rogers greatly increased their following through their performances in the picture. Twice more "Wings," fancy has appeared in air pictures, in "The Legion of the Condemned" and with Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time." "Buddy" played the chief role in "Young Eagles" following his air debut in "Wings."

Arlen is thoroughly at home in the air. He was a combat pilot with the Royal Flying Corps during the World War. "Sky Bride" unites once more Arlen, Jab Cobb, and Charles Bickfeldt, who featured in "Touchdown." Virginia Bruce has the feminine lead and Robert Coogan, child prodigy of "Sonny," has an important part.

DETROIT - CHARLEVOIX PICNIC ON BELLE ISLE SATURDAY, JULY 30

July 31, 1932.

The Sentinel:—
The Detroit-Charlevoix Picnic on Belle Isle Saturday, July 30, with Pot Luck Lunch at 6 p. m. drew a friendly, happy crowd, and we were very glad to see some faces here we were not at the party which was held on May 12th this year. Every one seemed to thoroughly enjoy the opportunity of once more talking over old times in Charlevoix.

Before the Picnic broke up the suggestion was made that the Detroit Charlevoix Club and also the Flint Club cooperate with the Charlevoix Board of Trade in designating and planning for one "Grand Home Coming Week" in 1933, preferably the week of the 4th of July when everyone who possibly can get to Charlevoix next year can set their plans for that special event. There is no doubt but that an Annual Home Coming Week would prove a real treat and a benefit to everyone and to Charlevoix.

The following named were those attending the Picnic. Mr. and Mrs. Nat Burney, nee Lila Shrier; Mr. and Mrs. G. Bolhan, nee Ilorla, Kate and daughter and Mr. Bolhan's mother; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bettes; Francis Carl, Don and Dirk; Miss Alice Bentley; Dr. and Mrs. Cline; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Campbell from Jackson; Rev. and Mrs. P. Dewey Ehle; Mr. and Mrs. Forest Fowler from Benton Harbor; Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Lenox; Mr. Wm. Lennox; Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Lyngklip, Mary Alice, Jack and Bill; Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin, nee Mary Jones; Mr. Harry McHugh; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Marting; Mr. Bud Nordrum; Miss Grace Papineau and mother; Miss Fannie Powell; Mr. and Mrs. Riley and family, nee Norma Sherman; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Scraggie, Dr. and Mrs. Thad T. Smith and son; Mr. and Mrs. S. Burton Smith, nee Gladys Ehle and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Stafford and family; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Vandermade; Miss Dorothy Vandermade; Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Wicks and Miss Helen Wicks; Mrs. Laura Zeigler.

The Detroit - Charlevoix Club is continually discovering new people and as fast as addresses are obtained they are added to the mailing list. We want this list to grow and we are asking every one to assist by sending in the names of those who have not thus far received any invitations, as we will need them for that "Grand 1933 Home Coming Week"

Yours truly
Wm. Archie Carey, Sec.-Treas.
4740 Cortland Ave. Detroit.

SHERIFF DAVE VAUGHAN DIES

WEDNESDAY AFTER PERIOD OF CRITICAL ILLNESS

Sheriff Dave Vaughan, for some months past more or less indisposed and since Saturday last critically ill at his residence passed away Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock and since thereafter the residents of the county had the information that Mr. Vaughan was dead.

Mr. Vaughan was elected sheriff of Charlevoix County in the campaign of 1926, reelected in 1928 and again in 1930 and was nearing the end of his third consecutive term in the office of sheriff at the time of his passing. At which time he held an unprecedented record for conscientious attention to official duty.

He is survived by Mrs. Vaughan, one sister, Mrs. Mary Buckwheat and two brothers, John and William Vaughan, the latter three of Boyne City. Mr. Vaughan's home for many years preceding his election as sheriff of same which time he has been a resident of Charlevoix.

Arrangements for the funeral service has not been made at this writing, but it is probable that it will be under the auspices of Boyne City Lodge, F. & A. M. and at Boyne City.

VANDAL STEALS AND BURNS CAR

TAKEN FROM LOCAL GARAGE TUESDAY NIGHT

Some one as yet unknown, forced the doors of Francis Gallagher's garage sometime Tuesday night and drove away with his comparatively new Plymouth sedan.

Following a search for the missing machine in which Mr. Gallagher was engaged and a part of the sheriff's force enlisted the car was located just off the main trunk line U. S. 31 some six miles southwest of Charlevoix, stripped of the major part of easily removable accessories and practically a mass of ruins as the miscreants after stealing the equipment had applied the torch to the denuded machine.

The Sedan has been used only a short time by the owner Mr. Gallagher, in his taxi business hence spells for some real material as well as serious handicap to him in handling his business for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam O. Sorensen are occupying Mrs. A. E. Wood's Clinton Street residence for a few weeks, they having leased their State Street cottage for the balance of the summer season.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LAWS ON GRADES OF GASOLINE SOLD

Recommendations are to be made by the department of state to the 1933 legislature that it enact laws setting up standards for the various grades of gasoline, being offered to motorists.

The only regulation which Michigan now has, is the law prohibiting "fraud and deceit in the sale of liquid fuels, lubricating oils and similar products." But this law does not give the motorist any knowledge of the type of gasoline he purchases, and it is possible for any number of different brands of liquid fuels to be offered to Michigan motorists as gasoline.

There are, in general, three standards for gasoline. These are high test, standard and competitive. At present it is possible for gasoline of exactly the same automotive energy to be sold by one company as high test and by another company as regular grade gasoline. Each company now sets its own standards.

With standard gasoline specifications set by the state, motorists would be certain to receive the type of gasoline paid for. State standards and specifications would make it difficult to sell blends of kerosene and other liquid fuels as motor gasoline. Any substitute of liquid fuels can be enforced as this it is deceptive to the motorist.

HOTEL MEN TO GET STATE POLICE PROTECTION

Hotel men of the state are going to get the protection of the state police to apprehend skippers, bad check artists, and thieves, according to James L. Williston, Chairman of the protective committee of the Michigan hotel association. The facilities of twelve central headquarters of the state police in Michigan and the radio-equipped court cars will be at the disposal of hotel men who have heretofore been at the mercy of professional crooks.

The hotel manager will report a description of the crime and the criminal to the nearest state police headquarters and that information will be broadcasted to the scout cars immediately by radio and a warrant for the arrest and conviction of the object issued at once.

"The state" said Oscar G Olander, Commissioner of the Department of Public safety," is now prepared to give the same protection to the hotels as it has been giving to the banks. The plan has worked very successfully in apprehending bank thieves".

LOCAL STORE BURGLARIZED EARLY WEDNESDAY A. M.

The store of L. F. Adams and Son was burglarized at an early hour Wednesday morning and as a result of the visit the firm is out about $65 this being the amount taken by the burglars.

From the method used it is probable that the thieves were familiar with the automobile, the place where change was placed upon closing and in this showed intimate acquaintance with various doors opening into the several apartments of the building. Entrance to the salesroom was gained by forcing a lock on the rear door with a screwdriver.

Rev. C. E. Pollock and Mrs. Pollock visited last Wednesday and last Saturday at the local Methodist parsonage. He is now District Superintendent for the Alden-Lansing District, resident in Alden.

The good ship Gilman II, of Cheboygan, cutting this port Monday for a few hours, made a trip up to Lake Charlevoix and returned to Lake Michigan about the noon hour.

Mr. Carleton Baumgardner, St., returned to Toledo, Sunday night after spending several days with his son, Carleton Jr. who is at Camp Algonquin for the season and with his mother at Eureka cottage, corner of Prospect St. and Petoskey Avenue.

INTERLOCHEN BOWL PRESENTATION FOR THE WEEK OF AUGUST 7-13

A startling array of illustrious musicians will grace the musical program of National Music Camp, during the week beginning August 7th, when Interlochen Bowl will offer one of the richest musical programs of the season since Sunday August 14th in particularly blessed, for in the afternoon Dr. Carl Bohrer the eminent musicologist and James Gillette, of Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, will share the conductor's honors in directing the National High School Band, while in the evening the Camp Choirs will give an exceptional performance under the skillful leadership of one of the world's most renowned choral conductors, F. Melius Christiansen, conductor of the St. Olaf Choir, assisted by the National High School Orchestra also under the direction of Dr. Busch. Compositions from the pen of each of the three great conductors will be played and by another company as regular grade gasoline. Each company now sets its own standards.

With standard gasoline specifications set by the state, motorists would be certain to receive the type of gasoline paid for. BASEBALL GAME AT IRONTON PO

The Centennial of a Famous Song

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THIS year marks the centennial of one of our most famous patriotic songs and it was first sung in public on July 4, 1831, special attention was given the Fourth of July celebrations this year. Something New, Indeed Fourteen States are said to have officially adopted as the official song, and Congress is in the unofficial amused custody in that it has failed to do so. Many American hearings if is useful for unfamiliar verses to sing, time is the withering big number. The first Japanese banner Written originally for children's circle, it was early for the singing of "America" to become a traditional observance in our public schools and that is only recently that the national anthem is more often heard throughout the land than the official one.

In fact, it is the desire for a patriotic song which could be used in the public which brought "America" into existence. In 1831 William C. Woodbridge, a noted minister of New York, visited Germany's public schools particularly for the purpose of bringing back any idea which might be adapted for use in the schools of the United States. He learned that every good German knows that music had an important place in the life of the people and in school life as well. Consequently some of the school music books brought back by Mr. Woodbridge were passed along to Lowell Mason, a talented musician and pioneer in the introduction of music in the Boston public schools.

But Mr. Mason was not a student of German. He had the desire to find a patriotic song for use in a twenty-four-year-old theological student at Andover, a young man who had an extraordinary facility in languages. He was asked to make translations from the German, or to write new verses which could be set to the German tunes.

On a dismal day in February, 1832, looking over one of these books, our attention was drawn to a tune which attracted me by its simplicity and pleasing character. It was made for children's choirs," wrote Dr. Smith many years later.

"Glancing at the German words at the foot of the page, I saw that they were patriotic, and I was instantly impressed with the singularly happy of my ideas.

"Opening a sheet of waste paper, I began to write, not in half an hour, I think, the words of the song, as they are sung to-day. I still remember the rapid flow of thought, which seemed to fill me with the national fire of freedom and kindled the sympathies of my heart. I doubt if a new and happier use of words and tune was ever made. The thoughts came crowding into mind almost faster than my pen could move to put them on paper, and I was conscious of no inspiration but that of the occasion and my subject."

Dr. Smith was graduated from the seminary in 1832 and a short time later became pastor of the Baptist church in Waterville, Maine. He was also professor of modern languages in Waterville (later Colby) college. His eyes later known as the church at Newton Centre, Mass., where he was pastor for 12 years. He was for six years editor of the Christian Review, Boston, and for 16 years edited the Missionary Magazine, organ of the Baptist Board for missionary directions. That involved translating languages, of which he could read 12 or 15 easily. At the age of eighty-five years he published a daughter, bringing among a Burmese nun and a Burmese Bible. Dr. Smith because he had begun to master a new tongue.

Doctor Smith died in the promised existence. In later writing books on sunshine and one of long happiness. His son, D. A. W. Smith, became president of a seminary in Rangoon, Burma.

In April, 1895, Doctor Smith was honored with a children's service one afternoon, and an evening meeting in the Tremont Temple, part of the commemorable program. Seven months later, in the fall of the same month he died at his home in Massachusetts. Doctor Smith died peacefully while sitting in his chair.

Although some Americans object to "America" because it has the same tune as the English national anthem, "God Save the King," the fact is that the air is not the air of Englund's national anthem, although it will become so. Arthur and Denmark sing the familiar strains, as well as we who sing "America." The first line of those German words at which Smith paused after he had been attracted by the "simple and natural character" of the music are "Heil dir im Siegerkranz." Switzerland's national anthem begins, "Heil dir, mein Vaterland," while the Danes sing, "Heil dir, dem Linbeerbaum."

There has been considerable dispute as to the origin of the air and concerning this one authority, the Encyclopaedia Britannica, says:

"The most celebrated of all the national airs is the English 'God, Save the King,' which is said to have been first sung as his own composition by Henry Carey in 1740, and a version was sung by W. Chappell (Popular Music) to the Harmonia Anglicana of 1742 or 1743, but no copy is known and this is now doubted.

"Words and music were printed in the Gentleman's Magazine for October, 1745. There has been much controversy as to the authorship, which is complicated by the fact that neither forms of the air and the words are recorded. Nares are as 'Arne' of 1745 attributed to John Bull, who has long been credited with the origin of the anthem; the Scottish claim is supported, to Thos Man, in Harmonicorl's Melismata, 1611; the ballad 'Franklin Is Fled Away' (printed 1629); and a piece in Parcelle's Choice Collection for the Harpsichord (1762). The words or part of them are also found in various forms from the Sixteenth century.

The question was discussed by Richard Clarke Accord of the National Anthem (1822), and has been recommended by Dr. W. H. Cummings in his 'God Save the King' (1902).

"Arne and Bull, in the general opinion of musical historians, divide the credit; but in his 'Miscellanea of England' Frank Kidson introduced a new element. James Oswald, a Scotsman, is to settled in London in 1742, and worked for John Walsh, the publisher of the early copies of 'God Save the King,' and who became chamber composer to George III. What appears to be certain is that 1745 is the earliest date assignable in the substantial national anthem as we know it, and that both words and music had been evolved out of earlier forms. Bull's is the earliest form of the air; Carey's claim to the remodeling of the anthem rests on an unsatisfactory tradition; and, on general probabilities, Oswald is a strong candidate.

"The tune was adopted by Germany and by Denmark before the end of the Eighteenth century. In Germany the words of Heir im Siegeskranz were written to the tune by Heinrich Schumacher. The Danish Hail dir dem Lelbenbaer was written by H. Harold.

As early as 1775 the tune of "God Save the King" was adapted to the air of the lines in America by the Patriots during their struggle with the mother country. A "French Song" of to certain written on the recently blew it, for "a hits of the Hunter," was published in the Pennsylvania Packet of Philadelphia that year as a tribute to sailors of American ships moored at Amsterdam. It began:

God save the Thirteen States,
Long rule the Thirteen States,
God save our States!
Make us successful,
Happy and glorious,
Set Liberty over us,
God save our States!

Grand birthright of our sires,
Our states to be,
Keep we still pure;
Our stately flag unfurled,
The hope of the world
In Power and Light dispersed,
God hold states!

It is said that Smith wrote "America" in less than half an hour and Doctor Tillett, in commenting upon it in "The Methodist Hymnal, Annotated," says: "The author has not the remotest idea that the words he dashed off into hurriedly would ever become a favorite with any lovers of music and song, much less become the national hymn of a great and growing nation. National hymns do not become such by written or their influence of poetic thought and eminence, but because they have in them their indefinable, simple something that goes into the hearts of the people. Grander national songs than this have been written—hymns expressing it in dignity and nobility of thought—but it is doubtful if we shall ever have in America a national hymn more popular with the people than this."

HEARTBREAK HOUSE

By FANNIE HURST

(© by Wallace Nonsmoyer Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

LADY tourists with Bankbooks and misunderstood name with unlimited income to retire and live cheaply in pensions along one responsible coast of the Riviera, are given to sentimentally referring to the gambling casino at Monte Carlo as "Heartbreak House."

Well, there can be no doubt that out of this storied mansion of chance strains of lost and women have climbed to tragedy of one sort or another.

The case of Gentleman Bowes was one that stood out, even on the crowded ledgers of the death duties chalked up the past of the brilliant little principality, which is set like a painted drop-curtain against the incredible foreground of the Mediterranean.

Gentleman Bowes came to Monte Carlo at the age of forty-five, from a home in Colorado where he had amassed a fortune of five hundred thousand dollars in a staple mercantile business. His visit to Monte Carlo was none at less accidental, nothing more than part of a tour along the French Riviera, during his first trip abroad, after his retirement from the business to which he had devoted thirty-five years of his life. It was literally his first vacation, the rather violent one of a man who knew nothing to learn how to play.

In Bowes' case this was difficult. Thirty-five years that included his early boyhood of feeding the mark to a business requiring constant keen decisions and the growing burdens of responsibility, produced a prosperous white, socially timid man wholly unaccustomed to the superficialities of life which had made him a success in business, the unchanged weltanschauung, easy-speaking American, who drifted into Monte Carlo was just one of the unremarkable number of his pleasant fellow.

One week later, however, Gentleman Bowes, as he was dubbed overnight, was not only the talk of the gaming theaters, but the American press, with superlit emphasis in his home city, carried the sweep tragic and dramatic story of a man who has gambled away a huge fortune to the banks of Monte Carlo.

In exactly eight days Bowes had lost to the green baize tables the sum of four hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars. It was one of those spectacular debacles which happen every so often in the little unreal principality at its along the sea.

When he walked into the brilliant gaming salons his first night at Monte Carlo, something inside Bowes' tremulous breast which had never before been struck struck rang. For the first time in a bachelor life of hard work, barren of romance, he had found a new and unexpected pleasure, one which had never even flirted a plucking card, found himself on the stage to be becoming a tragedy of Monte Carlo.

After that, his cause went the way of many others. Bowes, broken, wasted by devastation, leaking the insane and the courage to return home the next fourteen years of his life were to be spent within the white confines of the house of the lost dream.

Monte Carlo has a way of making a book to those stricken with fate. It does not end them off as ruthlessly as the steamship agents do, after the fourteen years of his life, every month, on the first and fifteenth of the month, home there came to the bowed little gentleman living in a back street pension, a check for five hundred dollars, a settlement of five hundred francs. Scarcely enough to keep his body and soul together, but an assurance, at least, of a bed and board and, living dollars a month, for a man whose fingers had once closed over the treasure for fortune, the little stipend was princely dollars. To shut that, he obtained a position as night elevator operator in one of the large hotels. Automatical by then, there is enquiries for the city of Monte Carlo may play stakes at the gaming tables, this disqualified him for the position. But he was fortunate enough, it was as if, after his life by thanks into almost him, desire had fled.

For fourteen years, Gentleman Bowes lived his life there, occasional ly relieved out as a relic of tragedy. His days passed as simply and uneventfully as if he had not thousand his nose to fortune, and was the results of his lifetime come crashing about him like battlements. Every morning, bathed, spotted, nicely creased in gray, quiet as a moth, gentle, still horribly shy, he walked from his narrow little pension to an obscure, even mean street, to a small adjoining square, where for two francs he took his coffee and petit-pain, which constituted joint breakfast and lunch. During the afternoon Bowes, the once important citizen of the thriving Colorado town, loitered about the benches, dawdled an hour in the park during the band concert, retirement to his pension room for refurbishment, dined in a narrow little cafe thing the wharf and reported at night for night duty as elevator man in one of the large hotels.

Grim, tragic, a little horrible, was this life of a man who, in eight brief days, had undone his life time of carefully achieved success.

There, in a life that seemed marked for swift ruin and falls of dueling, a wounds named Angle Fells, a second consists of his mother's, whom he had not but one, died in Kodiak, Iowa, and left him, as her nearest relative, a fortune of two hundred thousand dollars.

Poor Bowes. It could not be said of him that he took the news unblushingly. He stuttered, he paled, he shook his head, nonsensical tears and manifested a very close equivalent to fainting. Amazing with what rapidity his galaxy of friends sprang up about the obscure old man! His departure from Monte Carlo for America was the occasion of quite a local celebration. The press of France and America took occasion to review the case. Gentleman Bowes' name was more come into his own.

It was not without serious mention later that a resuscitated Gentleman Bowes reprimitived, filled with a new sense of responsibility, honesty, friendship, business manner that had always characterized his success, returned to the sense of what had been his regenerate life. Not, however, to Monte Carlo. He was too well known there and to be conspicuous was anathema to Bowes. It was almost as if he had literally crept up his bones and his being stretched. In a petrified gesture, his hair dyed to a slightly black, he returned to Seattle and had Hiram as James F. Squire, there to resume and in a way to revenge.

Within a week, there was a thin patter or talk along the blue skies of Seattle, that a man named Squire, from the Riviera, but the American press, with superlit emphasis in his home city, carried the sweep tragic and dramatic story of a man who has gambled away a huge fortune to the banks of Monte Carlo.

No Tame Rooster Match for Ringneck Pheasant

Equipped with longer spurs than its barnyard relatives, and of a more irritable disposition, the pheasant can wear anything in its class. The farmer's Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island Red, a member of the Gallinaceae family, finds itself soundly trounced after a few passes.

When food is scarce in the winter, cock pheasants invade the barnyard for corn thrown by the chickens. Woe to the rooster which endeavors to usurp the pheasant's privilege of first choice. Immediately the pheasant can wear anything in its class. The farmer's Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island Red, a member of the Gallinaceae family, finds itself soundly trounced after a few passes.

"Heights of Abraham"

The Heights of Abraham took their name from Abraham Martin, a Scotch plan pioneer of Scotch descent. Martin was a pilot on the St. Lawrence river at the time Samuel de Champlain founded Quebec. The city Champlain authorized a deed granting Martin a homestead on the heights and his heirs or cattle and sheep were a common sight on the tableland along the St. Lawrence. Martin's flock grew and soon among the inhabitants as Maitre Abraham.

Modern River "Arks"

While Noah was required to be the first builder of an ark more modern times have found that arks were made by river men, who used them to float logs down stream. Such craft are still manufactured a very close equivalent to Noah's ark. According to Forest Service figures, there are examples of ocean model forcing take-outs of an original bit of one diamond:

"A curious kind of a man!" the doctor exclaimed. "He is ill this morning and has sent for me."

It wasn't now he learned that the girl was at Miss Dawson's.

"How could every one has experienced the same thing. Miss Dawson's tongue is tinder as it is?"

They took up in silence. Shed was just in time for his train. Near the depot he found a little bakery shop at which he put little Blake. He was on his way to the station.

"You are going away," he said.

"How so?"

"Why because you are to eat lunch-ver with Mrs. Blake. Mother wants to have a talk with you. Come on."

"I have got to see your father."

"He will not get here before seven o'clock tonight. He's been to Chicago."

"But I want to go to my room and change my clothes and put on my very best suit of clothes."

"Why all that feeling?"

"I must be dressed like a gentleman. If it was any other girl I wouldn't care."

Ruth blushed. "That's a pretty joke," she answered, looking into his eyes. "Harry and we'll wait for you."

More About the Forcing Take-Out

THE forcing take-out fills a more important need than any other forcing bid in the approach-forcing system. Ely Culbertson, its originator, places it far ahead of the forcing two-bid in importance, and there can be no question that one for it occurs much more frequently than for the original two-bid. How many times when your partner has opened the bid and with one heart, have you held a hand somewhat like the following:

S: A Q J 4 2	H: K 10
D: Q 10 6	C: A 8

Certainly there is a game here, possibly a slam. But should the bid be 2S, and it spades, hearts, diamonds or no trumps? You can only get the right answer by giving further knowledge of your partner's distribution. And you can only be sure of getting this further information by simply bidding two spades, which compels your partner to tell you more about his hand. (Unless the take-out is bid to the second score and is sufficient for game).

SA K 6 5 3	S K 10 9 8
H 9 5 4	H A K Q
D 4 3	D 2
C 6 5	C K J 8 4 3

Even if there is an opposing bid a jump bid is forcing.

When you hold strong support for your partner's suit bid it by the next lowest suit. It is advisable to resort to a takeout when in a shitty bid-dable suit and give your raise on the next round. In this way only can you convey to the quality of your raise, telling him that it is founded on a fine suit and not a raise, but on honor-tricks as well.

A take-out, even when it is forcing, can never be made on an unbiddable suit, it should usually show at least a five-card suit, but occasionally be made on a four-card suit.

By the exchange of the exact information revealed in a forcing takeout it is often possible for a partnership to bid and score a slam which would otherwise be missed. Take the following hand for example:

Here South has opened with one club and West has passed. If South immediately jumps to five clubs, South should pass, as there is no sense in knowing whether North's raise is based on strength or on [illegible] strength, and one cannot count enough of the opponent's honor-tricks for a slam bid. However, the hand is correctly bid by both partners if South's bid be missed. The correct bidding is:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
One Club	Pass	2 Hearts	Pass
4 No Trumps	Pass	6 Clubs	Pass
6 Clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening his take-out by conjunction with the 2 shown by Ingraham's forcing take-out, South can bid the 4 no trumps to indicate that he had come from Ashford. It stopped somewhere near. Probably in the shot at the 5 spade bid, I said to myself, "there is Hoyle." In a little while they walked into the room.

"A curious kind of a man!" the doctor exclaimed. "He is ill this morning and has sent for me."

It wasn't now he learned that the girl was at Miss Dawson's.

"How could every one has experienced the same thing. Miss Dawson's tongue is tinder as it is?"

They took up in silence. Shed was just in time for his train. Near the depot he found a little bakery shop at which he put little Blake. He was on his way to the station.

"You are going away," he said.

"How so?"

"Why because you are to eat lunch-ver with Mrs. Blake. Mother wants to have a talk with you. Come on."

"I have got to see your father."

"But I want to go to my room and change my clothes and put on my very best suit of clothes."

"Why all that feeling?"

Swift as a bolt of lightning the flash leaped upon them and struck their hearts with terror and darkness fell as quickly as the light had risen. For those affrighted cows it was like the flying open of the doors of hell. For only a fraction of a second they were blinded by the glare of its flames. It may have revealed to one of them the fathomless deep of his own wickedness. The girl gave a little cry as they fled. Hidden behind the broad base of the big tree Shad had not been able to see them, but he had seen the light flow itself through the tops and slender columns beyond him. He sat still. Out over the edge of the thicket he could dimly hear a sound like that of smothered sobbing. This for only a moment. Then the sound ceased.

Silence fell again. Not until long after he had heard Miss Spedden's clock telling the hour at midnight did he arise from his station behind the tree. As he did so he took a long breath, how it all came about. If had I can tell him.

They got into the backboard and drove away. Soon after they set out Shad heard a noise.

"I had walked a long time in the darkness when I heard Miss Spedden's clock strike eleven. A little later I heard a train come down the line. I knew that it had come from Ashford. It stopped somewhere near. Probably in the shot at the 5 spade bid, I said to myself, "there is Hoyle." In a little while they walked into the room.

Amity Dunn I came to Colonel Blake's house. I sat down at the table with him and he began a long account of my trend to raise the fairness of my heart.

"Forgive me if I look at you this morning," he said. "I have a reason. It is a sister. There are no flowers. The flowers are all up on the hill."

"I'll be there in a few minutes," he said.

Turning to Shad he announced: "The girl is sick this morning and no wonder. While you fellow your hoss I'll go and see what I can do for her."

The doctor returned, saying: "Her heart is all right, nothing wrong with her. Naturally she is a little hysterical."

He got a sealed envelope in Shad's hands.

Thereon is the photograph of the man who killed Uncle Perry. Please give it to Sheriff Jones when you see come by it. I think that when he looks at this photograph he will know how it all came about. If not I can tell him."

Fine Ships in Days of American Naval Glory

American history often speaks of the "Constitution" as the Old Ironsides and Soldier of the Constitution, the Constitution, the Congress, the President and the United States, which were the greatest ships of their day. The Constitution was built in this city and launched in Philadelphia. The owners were proud of her and were not a little startling away from some point near Smithtown after flowing in the Bay to harbor for repairs, or the gentle severity of Benjamin Franklin, or the great heart of Humphry Brown. Especially I remember the long, slender mast of the Constitution, which was the first floor. Shad tapped on a window pane in accordance with the doctor's request. A moment later Ruth came down the stairs and opened the front door.

"Well, what luck?"

"They came and I guess that I've got the photograph."

"Good work, my lad," the doctor exclaimed as he invited the shoulder of his young friend. "I'll put the camera in my dark room and show you to your bed. You must be tired and hungry. I'll see to do not know what it has to tell us until morning."

Shed went to bed. His excitement kept him awake until the lowing-bird cocks had seen the light of dawn. When he arose at eight o'clock his wounded friend was at breakfast and looked very grave.

"Have you developed the photograph?" Shad asked.

Yes, and it is successful," said the doctor. "It was not developed but I was deeply saddened. The whole tragic story is now clear to me as the street I see through yonder window. I hope that you will not mind if I ask you to let the secret lie with me until it is given to Judge Blake. It is properly his secret. The situation has come to its climax. The time for decisive action has arrived. I am sorry you had better go to the county seat and get to town early in the morning. I will send you a telegram when I am ready to call Blake. Will you please go?"

TO ADVERTISE OR NOT

Gilbert T. Hodges has facts and figures to prove that it pays to advertise even in times of economic distress.

Hodges is president of the Advertising Federation of America, which has completed a study of the seventeen-year records of 120 corporations. Sixty of these corporations annually increased their advertising expenditures in spite of depression at an average of 16 per cent over the previous year.

"Seventeen years ago, many of these sixty companies were small," he said. "Today every one of them is numbered among the foremost business houses of America. They have multiplied their business assets to four times what they were seventeen years ago.

"Last year their combined net profits were three times greater than in the comparatively good year of 1915. This dramatic testimony to the value of an unbroken advertising policy should bring confidence and inspiration to executives who want tangible proof that a courageous program, even in these difficult times, will pay.

"Now let us look at the other side of the picture—the dark side. Let us see what happened to the other sixty companies, the ones that pursued an erratic and unadvertised course.

"When times were good they plunged heavily. When the going became difficult they tightened their purse strings.

"But this policy didn't work. Seventeen years ago every one of the sixty firms in this erratic group was an important national business. Today more than half of them have lost that position of importance. Many have perished."

THINK IT OVER

The public is now being regaled with the news that $10,000,000 will have to be raised to endorse the Hoover-Roosevelt battle for the presidency. In 1928 the two parties spent a total of $16,500,000.

When the politicians of both parties are telling how much money it will take to care for the needy people this winter, it looks like an economic crime to raise $10,000,000 to be spent by the two parties largely in blackguarding opposing candidates.

Let both parties, if they are sincere in their advertised desires to help the needy, donate their millions of campaign funds for relief work this winter. And let the people vote in a normal manner for their political choice, free from the high pressure influence of a $10,000,000 slush fund.

IMMEDIATE TAXATION RETRENCHMENT

In a recent address, a prominent American said: "By borrowing to cover our current governmental expenses . . . we drain the capital of the country into public securities and draft it away from industry and commerce."

In 1913 cost of government was about $1 for every $18 of national income. Now it is $1 for every $5. For every federal income taxpayer there are one and one-quarter persons whose source of income is the government.

The regeneration of the economic life of this country largely depends on decisive, immediate governmental retrenchment.

ACCIDENTS—CAUSES, RESULTS, REMEDIES

The National Safety Council has issued a report entitled, "A Balanced Plan for Reduction of Traffic Accidents." It brings together in brief form the fundamental factors of a problem which affects us all.

The causes of traffic accidents are three-fold: inadequate highways; cars in poor mechanical condition; and untrained, overconfident, reckless or heedless drivers. The results, in 1931, were 33,000 deaths and an economic waste totaling $1,250,000,000. The remedies are streets and highways built to safety standards, education of drivers, pedestrians, children, police and the general public, and stringent enforcement of standardized, reasonable laws.

To achieve accident reduction, the states, cities and federal government must work together. Schools, the automobile industry, transport companies and civic organizations must cooperate. Most important of all, every one of us must do his part.

Automobile accidents can be reduced. The driver who is not heedful of the rights of others, must be punished, and, if necessary, eliminated from the highways. The unfit car must be junked. Hazards that are part of existing highways must be done away with and new highways built to safety specifications. The time has come for action.

WORKING ON THE HIGHWAYS

Without raising their road budgets, many states are greatly increasing the number of men employed on road projects. This is done, not by reducing rates of pay, but by shortening the working day and giving part-time work.

Further, it is estimated that there are two employes behind the job to furnish the materials for each man actually engaged in road work.

Road work is easily the best available means of employment "relief." More of the road dollar goes to labor than any other construction dollar we spend. Most important, money expended for roads is not to be confused with funds simply appropriated to give temporary aid to distressed families. There is not a state in the country which is adequately supplied with good roads and the money spent is a definite, profit-making investment for the future.

Good, weatherproof, bituminous surfaced roads, suitable for modern traffic, can now be built for less than five thousand dollars a mile. At present prices, roads are on the bargain table, and when we build them we are doing much to solve the most important of all our problems—that of unemployment.

TWO MONTHS' WORK FOR NOTHING

How would the average citizen like to work 61 days without any pay whatever?

The answer is that he wouldn't like it at all. But that, in effect, is what he is doing. Sixty-one days' work out of each year is required to pay the cost of government. In 1924 it was 46 days, and in 1913 about 25 days.

The ratio is constantly rising. Carried to the inevitable conclusion, it means that in the not-too distant future, the taxpayers will be working for the taxeaters all the time, and for themselves not at all. Every time a new bureau is created, every time a new department comes into existence, a little more of the money we earn finds its way into the Treasury.

As President Hoover has said, to continue on the tax road we are traveling is to impoverish the nation. In the last 16 years the cost of government has increased nearly 150 per cent. The results are found in hoarding of capital, industrial retrenchment, unemployment. The tax issue, in all its phases, is one of the most important problems the American people have ever faced.

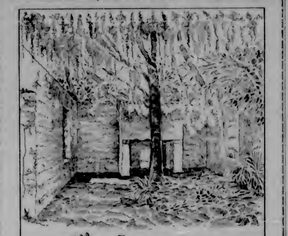
FAITH - PATIENCE - COURAGE

In an article on the severity and extent of the depression in this country, the Manchester, England, Guardian says: "Under all these trials the American people have behaved with admirable fortitude and patience."

That is a fine testimonial to the temper of our people. They have, perhaps better than any other people in the world, borne inescapable burdens without losing either faith or courage. They have realized that drastic, thoughtless action is not necessary—that, in the normal course of events, our problems will be solved. They have put shoulders to the wheel and have lent every resource to meeting the exigencies of depression.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS



WHEN FLORIDA WAS A REPUBLIC

Once upon a time there was a Republic of Florida and here (at far from Jacksonville, the traveler will come to the ruins of "the White House" built with oyster shells and occupied by John H. McIntosh as president from 1812 to 1815. The tree before the fireplace shows Nature's disregard of Man before.

COPPER DESERVES CONSIDERATION

Owing to the accumulation in this country of large stocks of copper and to the low rate of consumption, the imposition recently of a tariff of four cents a pound on the metal, is not likely to cause any early appreciable increase in the price of copper, according to Walter Lyman Brown, mining engineer.

While the new import levies have been criticized by economists as marking a step backward, it seems as if there is justification for some duty to protect a home industry such as our copper mining. Apparently none of our American mines can operate at a profit at recent prices and only a few could make any real profit even if the whole four-cent tariff were added to the present price.

This virtually means that our mines could not exist in the face of unrestricted competition from foreign producers operating with cheaper labor, in view of the overproduction and oversupply which seems ahead of our own industry for a few years at least.

FIGHT THE "UNCONSCIOUS ARSONIST"

In the United States there are many agencies, public and private, working unceasingly for fire prevention, thus making the lives of every man, woman and child safer.

Our national fire loss approaches $500,000,000 a year—a figure which cannot be justified, and is the result of abysmal ignorance, carelessness and neglect of one's duty as a citizen. But without the work of the fire prevention agencies, the loss would have been many times as large. They have labored for sound building codes and hundreds of towns and cities have responded. They have labored for better fire departments—and today the average American fire-fighting unit is the best in the world, both in apparatus and personnel. They have labored to make the public understand the A BC's of fire prevention—and many people have taken advantage of the opportunity offered, and made their homes and places of business safe from fire.

COOPERATIVES GROW

Cooperative marketing continues to grow steadily, thus making possible the orderly distribution of agricultural products, strengthening the farmer's position in the terminal markets, and developing a credit system which will make the farmer more independent.

During the 1930-1931 season cooperatives handled nearly $2,500,000 of farm products, according to the Federal Farm Board. More than 1,250,000 farmers of the nation's total of 6,000,000, are members of cooperative associations. Some 12,000 separate cooperatives are in existence. California ranks first in the volume of cooperative business, with Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and New York following in the order named.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The free trade internationalists in the United States when they dust off the old argument about balance of trade and exhibit to the public with the pious assertion that foreign nations cannot buy our goods unless we buy an equal amount from them, and that the allied nations cannot pay their war debts unless we take it in imported goods, only display a lack of knowledge of the real situation. Something of this knowledge can be gained from figures recited in a recent address on our invisible exports, by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, figures which show the hollowness of the free trade argument.

Dr. Klein estimates that, despite the lessened business in 1931, our invisible exports benefitted other countries to the amount of a billion dollars. Invisible exports included "those so-called invisible payments, such as tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, charitable contributions and freight and shipping accounts—those payments which, when taken together, may make all the difference in the world in any argument regarding tariffs, or war debts or trade balances," says Dr. Klein.

For example, according to Dr. Klein, American tourists in 1931 spent $110,000,000, in France alone, a great deal more than France actually paid us in our war debt in 1931. Again Italian immigrants to America sent back home during the year $26,500,000 in savings which is more than twice as much as Italy paid on the war debt. In tourist expenditures Americans sent abroad in 1931 the sum of $570,000,000, while foreigners traveling in the United States left only $112,000,000 so that the balance in favor of the rest of the world was $458,000,000 in tourist trade alone. To all countries immigrants in the United States sent out $172,000,000 in savings, which was a clear gain to Europe because nothing came this way from American emigrants abroad.

But this is not all the story. Charitable, religious, educational and scientific institutions in the United States during the year sent $39,000,000 abroad for philanthropic purposes. And yet they tell us that Uncle Sam is the shylock of the world! Again Americans paid to foreign shipping interests in freight charges $72,000,000 more than we got back in such charges from foreign interests using American ships. Other items in this "invisible account which favored Europe during the year include international transfer of funds by insurance companies, payments for advertising in foreign fields, motion picture royalties, receipts and remittances by international communication companies and the purchase and sale of electrical power across the Canadian border.

To sum it all up, Dr. Klein's figures show that regardless of the purchases of American goods abroad, and of foreign goods in this country, Uncle Sam sent abroad a billion dollars more in 1931 than he got back from foreign nations in the way of these invisible services noted above. In calling attention to the importance of these invisible accounts in making up our "balance of trade," Dr. Klein well says:

"If we are to get a true and just comprehension of our position, we cannot confine our attention to the movements of materials that can be seen and touched, tangible merchandise and hard gold and concrete capital transfers. We must not make the mistake of a well known politico-economic analyst who declared recently that our international obligations are settled by shipments of either goods or gold.

"He left out a third item just as important as the other two, but more elusive, more difficult to tabulate, namely, services as listed in the numerous classes of 'invisible payments,' the many items which are not obvious and easily identified in international business.

"The 'invisible items' are the ones not regularly recorded in the reports of custom houses or the statements of banks or business firms; they represent the abstract and intangible but very real values. Often these tangibles radically alter the complexion of a situation; they refute and overthrow many short-sighted contentions."

All of which is true. The next time one of our internationalist friends starts quoting figures of our exports as a reason why Europe cannot pay its debts to us unless we lower our tariff just come back at him with some of Dr. Klein's figures on our "invisible exports." The effect will be instantaneous and may be even a little enlightening.

LOSS, FIVE BUCKS

Norman Boyd of Bates and Clyde Way of Rapid City lost a five dollar investment Wednesday afternoon when a car for which they had just paid this amount, was totally wrecked when it stalled on the Pere Marquette crossing south of Acme and was hit by a locomotive.

The car had no tires and the boys were riding on the rims. At the crossing they say the rails caught the rims and turned the wheels into the track. They left the car stuck there and started for help. While they were gone the Pere Marquette train came along and completely ruined their five dollar investment.—Record-Eagle.

TO ADVERTISE OR NOT

Gilbert T. Hodges has facts and figures to prove that it pays to advertise even in times of economic distress.

Hodges is president of the Advertising Federation of America, which has completed a study of the seventeen-year records of 120 corporations. Sixty of these corporations annually increased their advertising expenditures in spite of depressions at an average of 16 per cent over the previous year.

Seventeen years ago, many of these sixty companies were small, he said. Today every one of them is numbered among the foremost business houses of America. They have multiplied their gross sales to four times what they were seventeen years ago.

Last year their combined net profits were three times greater than in the comparatively good year of 1914. This dramatic testimony to the value of an unbroken advertising policy should bring confidence and inspiration to executives who want tangible proof that a courageous program, even in these difficult times, will pay.

Now let us look at the other side of the picture—the dark side, let us see what happened to the other sixty companies, the ones that pursued an erratic and uncharted course.

When times were good they plunged heavily. When the going became difficult they tightened their purse strings.

But this public didn't work. Seventeen years ago every one of the sixty firms in this erratic group was an important national business. Today more than half of them have lost that position of importance. Many have perished.

THINK IT OVER

The public is now being regaled with the news that $10,000,000 will have to be raised to conduct the Hoover-Roosevelt battle for the presidency. In 1928 the two parties spent a total of $15,500,000.

When the politicians of both parties are telling how much money it will take to care for the needy people this winter, it looks like an economic crime to raise $10,000,000 to be spent by the two parties largely in blackguarding opposing candidates.

Let both parties, if they are sincere in their advertised desires to help the needy, donate their millions of campaign funds for relief work this winter. And let the people vote in a normal manner for their political choice, free from the high pressure influence of a $10,000,000 slush fund.

IMMEDIATE TAXATION RETRENCHMENT

In a recent address, a prominent American said: "By borrowing to cover our current governmental expenses . . . we drain the capital of the country into public securities and draft it away from industry and commerce."

In 1913 cost of government was about $1 for every $15 of national income. It is now $1 for every $5. For every federal income taxpayer there are one and one-quarter persons whose source of income is the government.

The regeneration of the economic life of this country largely depends on decisive, immediate governmental retrenchment.

ACCIDENTS—CAUSES, RESULTS, REMEDIES

The National Safety Council has issued a report entitled, "A Balanced Plan for Reduction of Traffic Accidents." It brings together in brief form the fundamental factors of a problem which affects us all.

The causes of traffic accidents are three-fold: inadequate highways; cars in poor mechanical condition; and untrained, inexperienced, reckless or heedless drivers. The results, in 1931, were 33,000 deaths and an economic waste totaling $1,250,000,000. The remedies are streets and highways built to safety standards, education of drivers, pedestrians, children, police and the general public, and stringent enforcement of standardized, reasonable laws.

To achieve accident reduction, the states, cities and federal government must work together. Schools, the automobile industry, transport companies and civic organizations must cooperate. Most important of all, every one of us must do his part.

Automobile accidents can be reduced. The driver who is not heedful of the rights of others, must be punished, and, if necessary, eliminated from the highways. The unfit car must be junked. Hazards that are part of existing highways must be done away with and new highways built to safety specifications. The time has come for action.

WORKING ON THE HIGHWAYS

Without raising their road budgets, many states are greatly increasing the number of men employed on road projects. This is done, not by reducing rates of pay, but by shortening the working day and giving part-time work.

Further, it is estimated that there are two employes behind the job to furnish the materials for each man actually engaged in road work.

Road work is easily the best available means of employment "relief." More of the road dollar goes to labor than any other construction dollar we spend. Most important, money expended for roads is not to be confused with funds simply appropriated to give temporary aid to distressed families. There is not a state in the country which is adequately supplied with good roads and the money spent is a definite, profit-making investment for the future.

Good, weatherproof, bituminous surfaced roads, suitable for modern traffic, can now be built for less than five thousand dollars a mile. At present prices, roads are on the bargain table, and when we build them we are doing much to solve the most important of all our problems—that of unemployment.

TWO MONTHS' WORK FOR NOTHING.

How would the average citizen like to work 61 days without any pay whatever?

The answer is that he wouldn't like it at all. But that, in effect, is what he is doing. Sixty-one days' work out of each year is required to pay the cost of government. In 1924 it was 46 days, and in 1913 about 25 days.

The ratio is constantly rising. Carried to the inevitable conclusion, it means that in the not-too distant future, the taxpayers will be working for the taxeaters all the time, and for themselves not at all. Every time a new bureau is created, every time a new department comes into existence, a little more of the money we earn finds its way into the Treasury.

As President Hoover has said, to continue on the tax road we are traveling is to impoverish the nation. In the last 16 years the cost of government has increased nearly 150 per cent. The results are found in hoarding of capital, industrial retrenchment, unemployment. The tax issue, in all its phases, is one of the most important problems the American people have ever faced.

FAITH - PATIENCE - COURAGE

In an article on the severity and extent of the depression in this country, the Manchester, England, Guardian says: "Under all these trials the American people have behaved with admirable fortitude and patience."

That is a fine testimonial to the temper of our people. They have, perhaps better than any other people in the world, borne inescapable burdens without losing either faith or courage. They have realized that drastic, thoughtless action is not necessary—that, in the normal course of events, our problems will be solved. They have put shoulders to the wheel and have bent every resource to meeting the exigencies of depression.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

WHEN FLORIDA WAS A REPUBLIC

Once upon a time there was a Republic of Florida and here not far from Jacksonville, the traveler will come to the ruins of the "Wide House" built with oyster shells and occupied by John H. McIntosh as president from 1812 to 1815. The tree before the fireplace shows Nature's disregard of Klein fortune.

COPPER DESERVES CONSIDERATION

Owing to the accumulation in this country of large stocks of copper and to the low rate of consumption, the imposition recently of a tariff of four cents a pound on the metal, is not likely to cause any early appreciable increase in the price of copper, according to Walter Lyman Brown, mining engineer.

While the new import levies have been criticized by economists as marking a step backward, it seems as if there is justification for some duty to protect a home industry such as our copper mining. Apparently none of our American mines can operate at a profit at recent prices and only a few could make any real profit even if the whole four-cent tariff were added to the present price.

This virtually means that our mines could not exist in the face of unrestricted competition from foreign producers operating with cheaper labor, in view of the overproduction and oversupply which seems ahead of our own industry for a few years at least.

In the United States there are many agencies, public and private, working unceasingly for fire prevention, thus making the lives of every man, woman and child safer.

Our national fire loss approaches $500,000,000 a year—a figure which cannot be justified, and is the result of abysmal ignorance, carelessness and neglect of one's duty as a citizen. But without the work of the fire prevention agencies, the loss would have been many times as large. They have labored for sound building codes and hundreds of towns and cities have responded. They have labored for better fire departments—and today the average American fire-fighting unit is the best in the world, both in apparatus and personnel. They have labored to make the public understand the A B C's of fire prevention—and many people have taken advantage of the opportunity offered, and made their homes and places of business safe from fire.

COOPERATIVES GROW

Cooperative marketing continues to grow steadily, thus making possible the orderly distribution of agricultural products, strengthening the farmer's position in the terminal markets, and developing a credit system which will make the farmer more independent.

During the 1930-1931 season cooperatives handled nearly $2,500,000 of farm products, according to the Federal Farm Board. More than 1,250,000 farmers of the nation's total of 6,000,000, are members of cooperative associations. Some 12,000 separate cooperatives are in existence. California ranks first in the volume of cooperative business, with Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and New York following in the order named.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The free trade internationalists in the United States when they dust off the old argument about balance of trade and exhibit to the public with the pallus assertion that foreign nations cannot buy our goods unless we buy an equal amount from them, and that the allied nations cannot pay their war debts unless we take it in imported goods, only display a lack of knowledge of the real situation. Something of this knowledge can be gained from figures recited in a recent address on our invisible exports, by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, figures which show the hollowness of the free trade argument.

Dr. Klein estimates that, despite the lessened business in 1931, our invisible exports benefitted other countries to the amount of a billion dollars. Invisible exports included "those so-called invisible payments, such as tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, charitable contributions and freight and shipping accounts—those payments which, when taken together, may make all the difference in the world in any argument on regarding tariffs, or war debts or trade balances," says Dr. Klein.

For example, according to Dr. Klein, American tourists in 1931 spent $110,000,000, in France alone, a great deal more than France actually paid us in our war debt in 1931. Again Italian immigrants to America sent back home during the year $26,500,000 in savings which is more than twice as much as Italy paid on the war debt. In tourist expenditures Americans sent abroad in 1931 the sum of $370,000,000, while foreigners traveling in the United States left only $112,000,000 so that the balance in favor of the rest of the world was $458,000,000 in tourist trade alone. To all countries immigrants in the United States sent out $172,000,000 in savings, which was a clear gain to Europe because nothing came this way from American emigrants abroad.

But this is not all the story. Charitable, religious, educational and scientific institutions in the United States during the year sent $39,000,000 abroad for philanthropic purposes. And yet they tell us that Uncle Sam is the shylock of the world? Again Americans paid to foreign shipping interests in freight charges $72,000,000 more than we got back in such charges from foreign interests using American ships. Other items in this "invisible account which favored Europe during the year include international transfer of funds by insurance companies, payments for advertising in foreign fields, motion picture royalties, receipts and remittances by international communication companies and the purchase and sale of electrical power across the Canadian border.

To sum it all up, Dr. Klein's figures show that regardless of the purchases of American goods abroad, and of foreign goods in this country, Uncle Sam sent abroad a billion dollars more in 1931 than he got back from foreign nations in the way of these invisible services noted above. In calling attention to the importance of these invisible accounts in making up our "balance of trade," Dr. Klein well says:

"If we are to get a true and just comprehension of our position, we cannot confine our attention to the movements of materials that can be seen and touched, tangible merchandise and hard gold and concrete capital transfers. We must not make the mistake of a well known politico-economic analyst who declared recently that our international obligations are settled by shipments of either goods or gold.

"He left out a third item just as important as the other two, but more elusive, more difficult to tabulate, namely, services as listed in the numerous classes of 'invisible payments,' the many items which are not obvious and easily identified in international business.

"The 'invisible items' are the ones not regularly recorded in the reports of custom houses or the statements of banks or business firms; they represent the abstract and intangible but very real values. Often these tangibles radically alter the complexion of a situation; they refute and overthrow many short-sighted contentions."

All of which is true. The next time one of our internationalist friends starts quoting figures of our exports as a reason why Europe cannot pay its debts to us unless we lower our tariff just come back at him with some of Dr. Klein's figures on our "invisible exports." The effect will be instantaneous and may be even a little enlightening.

LOVE OR A CAREER?

By FANNIE HURST

EVERYWHERE about her, ever since she could remember, she had heard the bright patter about economic independence of women.

It was wonderful to belong so irrefutably to a world of women which had asserted the right to venture on challenged into certain fields of work, duties, activities hitherto reserved for the exploits of men.

If anyone had said out and asked Emmie if she were a suffragette, her reply would have been evasive, non-committal and unobtrusively not quite honest.

One did not have to be an alarm and uncomprehending ass anywise as that! Emmie did not intend to let herself get "serious minded" about it. Those were the girls of women who defeated their own ends, vanquished the men and silenced the women.

Emmie was not particularly concerned about the vote, even as a symbol to the much heralded emancipation. Women's suffrage meant nothing. Not much! All very well and good for those women who wanted to risk their looks and their figures and their disposition, putting noses to the grindstone, to get jobs introduced and themselves defeated, yet coming home one half to an empty room worked by women even magnificent for the job.

Secretly independent is Emmie! She had a pleasant, isolated flat (rooms) decking a wall of mulberry and the mauve of a fire somewhere over which she seldom cooks in the office merry dinner party, or doing something a week, and who paved unofficial confidence in and sometimes contentment in ease with the investment dollars of the single breadwinner. She may hesitate now to cajole in their full on the economic advantages of a good salary as independent assurance of tenure and a pleasant apartment in which she will be alone, home and crowns in exquisite with judgment and style.

It was not surprising that a young woman in her position, good looking in a pretty, boyish sort of wonder the artless sort of way, she because she could afford to dress well, alert because she had talents and coolers for in town, books, concerts and theaters, mixed them twice, say thrice, before she considered anything so drastic as matrimony.

Meeting, even into romances which tempted her emotionally, some thing—at which to look sideways. Her position was so right. So secure. So free. Even a marriage that bettered materially was grossly liable to pitfalls.

But it so happened that the opportunity of marriage which presented itself to Emmie was not one to bother her position in the worldly sense of the word.

Thomas Meighan's earnings were and a charming laissez faire. This last, she told herself, his unsparing capacity to let tomorrow take care of itself, was what was going to stand in his way of an affluent big game and success in life. But just the same, it kept him sweet and mischief and gentle in the way that was so appealing to her.

For three months Emmie dallied with the idea of marrying Thomas, torn between the conflicting elements of what was undoubted attraction; her practical knowledge of his shortcomings, her dread of the monotony of what a routine life would mean; and her knowing some of the folly of throwing away her freedom and even mute independence.

In the end her judgment, and what she called her common sense, and her distaste for the semblance of the routine of comparative poverty, worked up against what she called her school girl romanticism, and one morning, in the middle of May, Thomas received the letter which permanently severed their professional engagement.

Afterward, as Emmie told herself, she refused to wish either she had written it or wished she had not. All very well and good for those women who wanted to risk their looks and their figures and their disposition, putting noses to the grindstone, to get jobs introduced and themselves defeated, yet coming home one half to an empty room worked by women even magnificent for the job.

Thomas Meighan's earnings were about the same as Emmie's and his work in a large Middle West city would have made it impossible for Emmie to continue here in the East. Besides, Thomas had certain comfortable ways of his, was set-and-set about what he wanted where Emmie's activities were concerned.

All well and good for women to go out into business and careers after marriage. Thomas was the last person to have an attitude about it he assured her and would do make any bones about his attitude in the matter. Let the wife care for a home itself. But for the first year or two at least, at least, Thomas wanted Emmie in his home after that—well, time to talk about it.

Neither was Thomas the one to flicker about the fact of coming home. He wanted them and he wanted them while he and Emmie were still young enough to relish gayety with their love spring. All in all, it looked as if Thomas' idea about the first three, two to be responsible so willing to let his career itself, was greater well laid out.

Life in a Middle West city, as the wife of a big-salaried actor of the dramatic form, was not the glamorous picture Emmie had drawn for herself on those occasions when she let her mind reach into the future toward her own progress. And that statement was one who had certain reactionary views that were rather frightening.

In the abstract it could scarcely be said that the opportunity to marry Thomas Meighan was the only one that should have attracted her remotely except for one great factor.

Emmie was in love with Thomas Meighan in the way she could with the smiles with thrill, as the husband of her household, the father of their children, the deep down confident of every aspect of her life. He had qualities that fit into every one of these.

Vigor, gentleness, intelligence and a charming laissez faire. This last, she told herself, his easy-going capacity to let tomorrow take care of itself, was what was going to stand in his way of an affluent big game and success in life. But just the same, it kept him sweet and mischief and gentle in the way that was so appealing to her.

ARE WE BARBARIANS?

The attempt of the allied governments to hitch together the cancellation of reparations and debts owed to the United States by entering into a more or less secret "gentlemen's" agreement at the Lausanne conference made it necessary that President Hoover, in order to disabuse the minds of European statesmen as well as our own internationalists of any cancellation ideas, issue a statement in which he said that the American policy regarding war debts had not been changed. Nowhere did this statement of the American President kick up more indignation than that in France. An example of the trend of French opinion on President Hoover's statement and the American position was given by La Liberte, French Nationalist paper, as follows:

Verily Pontius Pilate was not more cynical or more callous. What was the Lausanne conference if not a direct and logical consequence of the Hoover moratorium? How this government, which obeys gangsters, which capitulates helplessly before thieves and assassins of babies in cradle, dare to assume such a height of moral authority that it thinks it can dictate to Europe and France?

Such is the French outburst when it is suggested that after securing billions in territory and money from the defeated central powers, they pay something more on their debt to Uncle Sam. The very suggestion that we want any nation to pay its debts indicates that we are uncivilized! That we are even decadent as a nation, when we must upon believing in the sanctity of international obligations!

When we hearken back in memory a little more than a dozen years and remember how these same French newspapers were calling on us frantically to hurry, and when we try to visualize what sort of tune these same French newspapers might now be singing if Uncle Sam hadn't hurried, we marvel that barbarous and decadent Americans could have done so much.

The more we read of Washington the more we think that he was right. You will remember that he said something about there being no such thing as permanent alliances and friendships among nations. This is especially true when one nation to the greatest creditor nation on earth, but only have we vaster national wealth, not only have we an unprecedented supply of gold, but we are richer in experience, richer in inventive brains, richer in scientific knowledge, richer in machinery, richer in productive facilities, richer in managerial skill, richer in discovered mineral and oil resources, richer in transportation facilities; richer in every material

By JAMES W. BROOKS

MOUNT VERNON

In all America there is no other home quite like this. Across its threshold the visitor steps back into the mid-eighteenth century. From grandroom to garret, its furnishings and memorabilia bespeak the nobility of its central figure. As though he had gone but for a day, he bids his neighbors enter and be welcome. And how they come, these neighbors! Increasing thousands as years go by, drawn in gratitude to the hearthstone of this nice and unselfish councillor to his own and succeeding generations.

$109,000,000,000, or not far short of $1,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Policies in force total 127,800,000 . . .

Our total national wealth, estimated at $329,700,000,000, is greater than that of a dozen Continental European countries combined.

The income of the American people comfortably exceeds $1,000,000,000 a week.

The per capita income here is far greater than in any other land.

There are still six or seven persons gainfully employed for every person idle.

No fewer than 25,800,000 automobiles are owned by Americans . . . This total is almost three times the number owned by all the rest of the world.

Americans possess far more telephones (19,500,000) than all other countries. . . . Radios . . . multiply . . . over 16,545,000 . . . unapproached by any other people.

How many new domestic mechanical refrigerators have been sold, bought, would you guess? A grand total of full 3,750,000, at an estimated expenditure approaching $2,000,000,000 . . . In no other part of the globe do many of the homes enjoy such a luxury—Americans are rapidly coming to regard it as a necessity.

A recent survey of 29 typical small towns revealed that 71 per cent of the inhabitants owned homes, that 88 per cent had electric light, 72 per cent had baths, 51 per cent had electric washers, 55 per cent had radios, 41 per cent had vacuum cleaners.

There are more families in America than in any other land that can afford to and do send their children to high school and college. In no other land do so many average families have the means to enjoy foreign travel. . . .

The movie still attracts a weekly average attendance of 75,000,000 . . .

The percentage of our agricultural population who, despite deflation, are acquiring domestic comforts, conveniences, labor-saving devices, improved machinery, the use of better roads, is constantly increasing.

Today more than 700,000 farms are electrified, representing an increase of 400 per cent in eight years and the total is being swelled rapidly.

In industrial communities hard manual toil is being steadily abolished by the introduction of machinery. Each American worker now has at his command five horsepower, a record not even remotely approached outside our boundaries.

The average working-day a generation ago was ten to twelve hours. The standard in this generation is eight hours. . . The work-week used to consist of six . . . days. Now it is five and one-half days, with the five-day week coming into vogue.

Never in the past was America so well fixed as it is today to resume an epochal forward march. Not only have we changed from a debtor

WHISPERERS AND CHISELERS

Much has been accomplished to discourage the chiselers who have slaughtered quality to make possible sales at low prices, but little, if anything, can be done to reform the whisperers who go about spreading dismal stories, most of them either prevarications or exaggerations.

In all parts of the country not only banks but department stores, hotels and all sorts of business concerns are quietly reported to be insolvent and ready to fold up in the majority of instances there is no foundation of truth in the whisperings, but they have the effect of making the depression worse than it is.

One of the conditions precedent to recovery is healthier minds and more hopeful dispositions. The moral is to discredit what the scandal mongers say. There has been enough of real depression without making a bad matter worse by senseless chatter.

Perhaps it will not be long before there will be equally spurious whispers of the millions of money of that person made on the Stock exchange. If there must be whispering, let it be optimistic.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

COUNT YOUR CHANGE

There's no argument in this editorial. It's merely a collection of facts, incontrovertible, eloquent facts that confound those who profess to see America slipping down into a state of effortless despair . . .

Total bank savings today exceed $29,000,000,000, equal to more than $1,000 for every family in the land. Savings depositors number 52,000,000 nearly two per family.

The number of Americans owning stock has increased almost 40 per cent since 1929. A group of 102 companies which had 5,839,036 stockholders at the end of the boom year had 7,675,143 stockholders at the beginning of this year.

One company alone today has over 665,000 stockholders, a gain of more than 195,000 since the boom. This company has assets exceeding $3,200,000,000 . . .

Our total stock of gold is $4,000,000,000. No other country ever possessed so much. Britain, for example, has only $588,000,000. Currency in circulation aggregates $5,464,000,000, or $706,000,000 more than in the boom.

Last year $16,500,000,000 worth of new life insurance was written.

Total insurance now carried is estimated at

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The statement of Senator Borah advocating a revision of the European debts under certain conditions, has had the effect of reviving the debate on this all-important question. It is apparently the opinion of the Idaho Senator that such revision ought only be agreed to if it can be shown that the American people would benefit by increased world trade and prosperity in a degree sufficient to justify the scaling down of the European war debts. That such a qualifying condition for reviewing the debts is a commendable one, goes without saying. But that it will be difficult to convince the American people and the members of the United States Senate in advance that such a scaling down of debts would result in a gain rather than an added burden, also goes without saying.

The contentions of the internationalists that debt cancellation will restore prosperity and usher us into another golden era have to be taken with several ounces of salt. They point to the virtual cancellation of German reparations, by the allied governments, and assume that we ought to do the same thing about debts. But the cases are by no means parallel. In the first place reparations were exacted from a fallen enemy by a victorious foe, and they are only being cancelled because the allied governments realize the futility of trying to collect anything more from prostrate Germany. But the money loaned to the allies was a regular loan made in good faith. It was a friendly transaction, and it was not executed under duress, not even under the duress of war, because practically all of the unpaid part of the debt represents money loaned after the armistice was signed.

And while Germany is being forgiven reparations solely because she can pay no more, there is no evidence that the allies cannot continue to pay interest on their debts to Uncle Sam, without greatly injuring their economic fabric. They are still spending out enormous sums in preparation for the next war, and the condition of the two greatest nations which owe us money is by no means desperate. Great Britain is gradually getting her financial house in order and France with the greatest per capita gold reserve in the world has lightly by the depression. In been touched comparatively fact, based on capacity to pay, France is better able to pay now than she was when the debt settlement was made a few years ago.

There is no question that Europe does not want to pay on the war debts any longer, and perhaps she will not continue to pay many years longer. But this does not mean that Uncle Sam should cancel the debt. To do so would be only to let Europe "off easy" without having to go through the stigma of repudiation. Such a situation would put Europe in much better position to borrow from us when the next war comes. But if the debts were repudiated, not forgiven, the warring nations may have a little more difficulty getting money from Uncle Sam the next time they engage in their more or less popular sport of making war.

When Europe is spending so much for preparation for war there is little ground for saying that she is staggering under the burden of debt payments to Uncle Sam. And there is little reason to believe that a cancellation of debts would greatly change the world economic situation except to add additional burdens on to the backs of American taxpayers. It is quite conceivable that the money which the European nations saved on debt payments would be diverted to battleships, regimental and other supplies. This would benefit nobody but the munitions makers, and certainly we do not want to heap more taxes on the average American for any such purpose.

After all Europe's troubles at the bottom are political rather than economic. What the dark and bloody continent is suffering from most is Polish corridors, Bessarabias, Macedonias, and other political disputes too numerous to mention. If these questions could be gotten rid of, together with the accompanying tariff barriers, Europe's economic troubles would be on a fair way to solution. But, it will be answered, they cannot be eliminated. Well, if this is true, the economic situation certainly cannot be cured by such half way measures as debt "cancellation" and opening the American markets to the cheap labor of Europe and Orient.

Thirty Years Ago

J. M. Studebaker, a member of the famous South Bend wagon firm, is at the Inn.

Next Thursday is the day! And it will be a day to be remembered. The Sugar Company, acting in conjunction with the Construction Company, propose to make the corner-stone laying of the factory an event long to be remembered. It will be an epoch-marking day, for it officially inaugurates a great industry, an industry that not only will affect the future of Charlevoix, but one that belongs to the farmers of the region contiguous to Charlevoix. Come to town Thursday, August 21st, meet your United States Senator Burrows, your Congressman Darrah and your neighbor over in the next township. The executive committee of the celebration have engaged Newell's Military Band, of Grand Rapids. This is one of the leading bands of Michigan and will prove a great attraction. At the corner stone exercises vocal music will be furnished by a quartette composed of Miss Florence Smith, of Charlevoix, soprano; Mrs. M. K. Stannard, of Detroit, contralto; Mr. Jacobs and Dr. Wicks, of Charlevoix, tenor and basso respectively.

Forty Years Ago

The Charlevoix Driving Park Association has filed its articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State.

Independent of the regatta crowd Charlevoix is full to overflowing this week. The town is stopping over with an influx of humanity. All hotels are full; summer boarding houses are in good demand; private citizens are as thick as fleas at East Jordan, and about every train and boat brings more.

Fifty Years Ago

Some of our soldier boys are talking about organizing a post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The residents of Machinac "point with pride" to the house on the Island in which Senator Ferry was born.

THAT MONEY PROBLEM

International agreement as to a fair ratio between the values of gold and silver would do much to restore world trade to its former levels, raise purchasing power and release money into the channels of industry. A feasible answer to this question grows more important daily to the world and particularly the United States with its vast mineral resources.

COOPERATIVES PRACTICE COOPERATION

The American institute of Cooperation is holding its eighth summer institute at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, New Hampshire, to consider and discuss cooperative policies, commodity sales, buying problems and every phase of current development in the field of agricultural cooperation

The Institute is controlled by 36 participating organizations and is particularly interested in the following objects:

1. To collect and make available a body of knowledge concerning the cooperative movement in America and other lands; 2. Clarify thought as to what the cooperative movement really is and bring about more harmony and unity of action among organizations directly or indirectly connected with cooperation; 3. To train and develop leaders and workers in the cooperative movement; 4. Assist educational institutions throughout this country to improve their teaching courses in cooperation and their investigational work; 5. Focus the spirit of the cooperative movement as a means of community and national development.

How to work together has long been a problem of agricultural producers, and leaders in the cooperative movement are setting a splendid example for the farmers to follow as they meet in round-table conferences and seek to better apply the underlying principles of cooperative marketing as a whole.

If citizens in all walks of life, as well as producers interested in forwarding the cooperative movement, would join in considering the questions before the Institute, tremendous headway would be made in solving problems of production and distribution, which are not alone of agriculture but harass the minds of industrial leaders as well as consumers.

Contract No. 1, of the River Improvement, has been awarded to Henry Morgan, Esq., of this village. The contract provides for the completion of the present pier five feet higher, and the filling thereof with stone three feet above the water. Mr. Morgan is to receive 40 cents per linear foot for timber work; $2.00 cubic yard for stone, and 20 cents per lb. for iron. The work will be completed within sixty days. Other contracts of piling, dredging, etc., will be let immediately after the completion of this one. This fairly commences the work, and we hope to see to leging until nine feet of water is secured in Pine River.

We have inadvertently neglected to notice the pleasing improvement made by Willard A. Smith, in his weekly, the Charlevoix Sentinel, by the addition of one column to each page. It is with pleasure we note this evidence of Will's success and the more so when we remember that it was in the office of the Statesman, and in our employ, that he received his initiation into the mysteries surrounding a Printer's Devil.—Marshall Statesman.

Mrs. Edward K. Shanahan, and son Robert, following a visit of two months with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Their visit here was made during the transfer from the west to the East coast.

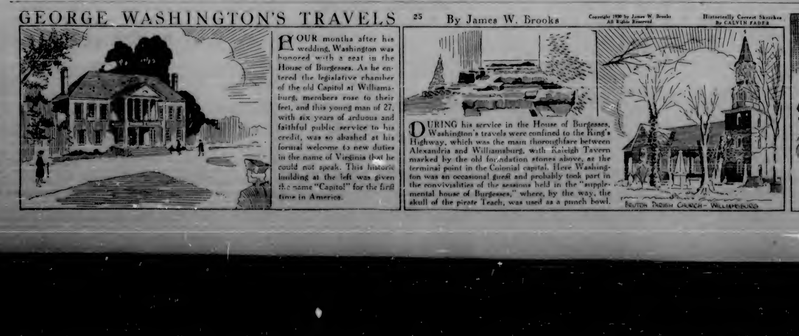
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — By James W. Brooks



FOUR months after his wedding, Washington was honored with a seat in the House of Burgesses. As he entered the legislative chamber of the old Capitol at Williamsburg, members rose to their feet, and this young man of 27, with six years of arduous and faithful public service to his credit, was so abashed at his formal welcome to new duties in the name of Virginia that he could not speak. This historic building at the left was given the name "Capitol" for the first time in America.

DURING his service in the House of Burgesses, Washington's travels were confined to the King's Highway, which was the main thoroughfare between Alexandria and Williamsburg, with Raleigh Tavern marked by the old log addition stones above, as the terminal point in the Colonial capital. Here Washington was an occasional guest and probably took part in the convivialities of the sessions held in the "ample mental house of Burgesses," where, by the way, the skull of the pirate Teach, was used as a punch bowl.

"You did, my dear," he calmly replied.

"Then—" she commenced.

"One moment, my dear," he interrupted; "just as I entered last night the clock was about to strike eleven, but I stopped it so that it should not wake you."

The Last Year of the Revolution

Fort Boonesborough

The Blue Licks Monument

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER, 1781. Northward through Maryland, through Pennsylvania, through New Jersey, New York and New England speed horsemen, and sleeping village and farmhouse awaken to listen wonderingly to the cry that rings through the night: "Cornwallis is taken! Cornwallis is taken!" So the six-year struggle for freedom is ended and George Washington and his ragged Continentals have triumphed at last! The Revolution is over!

Such is the picture which the school histories have painted in our minds. But the impression they have given us that the surrender at Yorktown meant the dawn of peace and the prosperous beginning of a new nation is only a half-truth. True it is that 1781 was the last year of the Revolution in the main theater of war—the Atlantic seaboard. But there was one people in the new nation who were to know another year of the horrors of war such as their eastern neighbors had never known.

To the scattered border settlements west of the Alleghenies there had not yet come a "winged Victory with smooth brow" therefore to teach us to forget the holocaust," because the year 1782 was to be a repetition of 1777, the "year of the bloody sevens," and again, virtually deserted by those governments to whom they had a right to look for aid, the pioneers in the Ohio valley, especially those in Kentucky, must crouch behind the log walls of their stockaded forts with the savage war-whoop ringing in their ears and a shower of Indian arrows and bullets whistling over their heads. So in its gaunt-centennial year, we Americans should not forget what those pioneers of ours who won the West for us suffered and endured in 1782, the last year of the Revolution.

It opened with an affair which must ever be a blot on our history. Ten years before, David Zeisberger and John Heckewelder, Moravian missionaries, had founded three settlements, Salem, Gnadenhutten and Schoenbrunn on the Tuscarawas river in Ohio, for the Delaware Indians who had accepted Christianity. During the Revolution these "Moravian Indians" tried hard to maintain a strict neutrality but this attitude won them enemies on either side. The British charged them with aiding the Americans and it is true that they did aid them by reassuring captives from hostile Indians and by warning the officers at Pittsburgh of impending Indian attacks. But as time went on the American side began to suspect the "Moravian Indians" of being pro-British. The hostile Indians used the Moravian towns as convenient "halfway houses" when starting on or returning from a foray against the Kentucky or Pennsylvania settlements and there they got shelter and refreshment which the "Moravian Indians" dared not refuse them.

Finally a party of Pennsylvanians led by the notorious Col. David Williamson, set out with the avowed intention of wiping out the Moravian towns. They arrived at Gnadenhutten on March 7, 1782, and gathered the unsuspecting Indians in two houses, the men in one and the women and children in the other. Then they told the Indians that they were to be put to death.

The next morning the butchery began. Williamson's men entered the cabins and one bloodthirsty pair in death like the defenseless women and children—only one small boy escaping the massacre. "More than a hundred scalps have passed since this deed of revolting brutality; but even now a hot man's blood boils in his veins at the remembrance," writes Theodore Roosevelt in "The Winning of the West." "It is impossible not to regret that fate failed to send some strong war party of savage avenge into parts of those infamous cowards, to inflict on them the punishment they so richly deserved. We know that a few of them were afterward killed by the Indians; it is a matter of keen regret that any escaped."

But, as so often happened in the history of our Indian warfare, retribution for this dark deed fell not upon the guilty but upon the innocent. Wild with rage over the slaughter of their brethren, the Delawares rallied to their aid the Wyandots and other Indians allied with the British and waited for a good chance for revenge, which soon came. In May a body of 480 Kentucky militia and volunteers gathered at Pennsylvania and Virginia militia gathered at Mingo Bottom on the Ohio and prepared to march against the Wyandot and Shawnee towns on the Upper Sandusky.

The commander of the expedition was a Virginian, Col. William Crawford, a personal friend of Washington's who had won a reputation as a brave and active officer in the Continental army but who was bitterly assailed for leadership against such an enemy as the Indians he was ordered to crush. Crawford hoped to surprise the Indians but enemy scouts discovered his force soon after its started and Indian spies followed every movement of his army.

On June 4 Crawford reached one of the Wyandot towns but found it deserted. He marched on to find another and encountered a small force of Indians and Canadian rangers under the command of Captain Caldwell, which had been sent by the British in Detroit to aid the Indians. There was a sharp skirmish with Indian aids joining any advantage, although Crawford had the superiority in numbers. The next morning, instead of forcing a battle and crushing the enemy, Crawford's army lay idle. Caldwell also was sitting in daily expectation for he was expecting reinforcements. They came in the afternoon in the person of 100 Shawnee warriors.

At the sight of this Crawford's sullen troops to waive and Crawford realized that the only course left for him was to retire from the field. This night his force began a hurried and disorderly retreat. In the darkness the troops became scattered and when morning came there were only about 200 left together in one body. Crawford was among those missing and—Col. David Williamson, perpetrator of the Gnadenhutten massacre, who was second in command, shirked the retreat. If poetic justice had been at work it would have been Williamson who was leaving and Crawford who was in charge of the disorganized remnants of the command back to safety to Mingo Bottom.

But Indeed Colonel Crawford, Pioneer Knight, the surgeon of the command, and nine others were captured by the Indians. All except Crawford and Knight were killed at once but these two were taken to a Delaware town for torture. Crawford was burned at the stake and Doctor Knight was forced to watch the sufferings of his friend. Crawford is said to have appealed in vain to Simon Girty, the white renegade among the Indians, to end his sufferings by shooting him, but Girty either could not or would not heed his plea. Later Doctor Knight managed to escape and after wandering in the woods for 21 days reached Fort Pitt in safety.

Encouraged by their success the Indians appeared in large numbers on the Upper Ohio and fell upon the settlement of Hannastown, Pa., which they burned and captured or killed 20 of the inhabitants. Then the partisan Captains McKee and Caldwell assembled a force of 1,100 Indians, the greatest single body of savages ever brought together during the Revolution, for an attack on Wheeling. But while they were marching thither their heroine alarmed by a report that George Rogers Clark was leading his "Long Knives" north to attack the Shawnee towns.

So McKee and Caldwell marched to meet him but upon reaching the Shawnee towns discovered that the alarm of those Indians was groundless, it having originated in the accustance of an armed galley-boat at the mouth of the Licking river. Most of the Indians shouting a characteristic Indianese, continued to go over further on the expedition but Caldwell and McKee managed to keep together some 500 Wyandots and Lake Indians and with these and their Detroit rangers set out to invade Kentucky and to attack the five small stockaded settlements in Fayette county.

On August 15 their advanced before Bryan's Station, the northernmost settlement in Fayette county, which was defended by less than 50 men. The story of the brief siege of Bryan's Station is one of the classics of Kentucky history. Included in it is the story of its heroic women who took their lives in their hands to bring pails of refreshing water drawn from the spring which lay outside the fort and who, gambling that the Indians would not spoil their chance for a surprise attack on the fort by molesting them, went digging down the path as though to enemy were near although they knew that savage eyes looked out at them from every bush along the road. Included in it, too, is the story of young Aaron Reynolds. When Nathan Reed, tried to get the defenders of the fort to surrender by shouting them that reinforcements with artillery were on the way and that no quarter would be given if the savages stormed the fort, Reynolds sprang to the top of the walls and replied to the renegade, telling him that the enemy of Bryan's Station feared neither their artillery nor their artillery but that if Girty and his followers gained entrance to the fort Reynolds and his friends would scorn to use their rifles but would drive them out with sticks.

After the failure of attempts to set fire to the fort, the enemy withdrew. Meanwhile messengers had been sent to the other stations asking for help and by the evening of August 17 a force of 176 men had assembled at Bryan's Station. From Boone's Station came that famous Kentuckian at the head of his men, among them his youngest son, Israel; from Lexington and McGeorge's and Mccee's Stations came the men under John Todd and from Harrodsburg came those under Colonel Trigg and Majors Mcgary and Harlan. Many were traveled coming from Logan's county under Colonel Logan, but the Kentuckians decided to hasten the invaders at once without waiting for Logan.

Then began the pursuit which was to end in the famous Battle of Blue Licks, fought on the banks of the Licking river on August 19, 1782. There the rash counsel of a hot-headed officer prevailed over the wisdom of Daniel Boone and precipitated an attack which ended in disaster. For the flower of Kentucky's manhood fell that afternoon, of approximately 180 men, 67 killed outright or murdered as they were wounded and seven captured of whom only four died at the torture stake.

For a time it seemed that Kentucky could not recover from this crushing disaster. Then George Rogers Clark, who had seemed to be suffering from a strange lethargy during this critical year, awakened to his old-time energy. He sent out rangers to all the settlements calling upon all able-bodied men to rally for a blow at the Indians. Again the magic of his name asserted itself and in a few days he had gathered together a force of more than a thousand mounted riflemen. On November 4 he led the banks of the Ohio and started north to Chillicothe, but by attacked and burned the Miami towns.

The text to the season of the burning of "cold weather was very great," writes Roosevelt. "They were utterly cut down and destroyed, an act such a proof of the power of the whites, coming as it did so soon after the battle of Blue Licks. The expedition returned in triumph, and the Kentuckians completely regained their self-confidence; and though for two years longer Kentucky suffered from the inroads of small parties of savages, it was never again threatened by a serious invasion."

So the disastrous last year of the Revolution ended in triumph. But even more important than the fact of triumph over savage foes was the importance of the events of that year to the future history of America. For when it came time for the peace commissioners to make the treaty which ended the Revolution it was the commands of George Rogers Clark in the Old Northwest, sending with his expedition in 1782, which strengthened the hand of the American commissioners in demanding that the western boundaries of the new nation should be the Mississippi river and the Great Lakes and America was assured of her inland empire.

Modern Contract Bridge — By Lieba Hatterstee

No. 12.

No Trump Take-Outs of a Suit Bid of One

WHEN the next player passes after your partner's opening suit bid of one, you must try to keep the bidding open if you have a fricndly hand for your bid. With no fit, a little suit, and with your trick-and-a-half divided between two suits a one-suit response of one no trump should be given if he understands the format. Your partner will not misinterpret such a takeout for a strength response, but will realize that you are merely giving him the courtesy of keeping the contract open in case he has additional values or another suit which he is eager for a second chance to show. A take-out with one no trump is always a quite definitely weak response.

Holding as many as 13 honor tricks with no assistance and no solid suit, using the yardstick mentioned, you would take your partner out of his suit bid with a jump to two no trumps.

The jump to two no trumps is not forcing. While it is a strong encouragement for him to go on, partner may pass, and should do so unless he holds additional major strength or values not sufficiently shown. When you find in your own hand the 9 honor-tricks necessary to constitute the yardstick encouragement for game at no trumps (a total of 26 honor-tricks) and have decided that a no trump takeout is your best choice, you must have the courage to jump to game yourself, not timorous it to your partner's imagination to do so.

Taking Out When You Hold Trump Support

Whenever your partner opens with a minor suit bid of one, even though you hold strength or length in that suit, do not consider allowing the bid stand you are sure you would not be having justified in taking it out with a raise with or a no trump. Even an overcall in a second minor is better than to assist partner, while not immediately interesting the situation, such a takeout may eventually lead to a more favorable bid. The difficulty of overcalling a hand in the five-odd tricks necessary for game in a minor must always be kept in mind. Even when holding assistance support for your partner's minor suit, a raise should be the last, not the first thing to consider.

With a four, three, two, three distribution, which permits no doubling, minor or ruffing tricks it is usually advisable to take your partner out of a major suit even when you hold adequate trump support. To illustrate, suppose your partner opened with one spade, and this was your hand:

♠ 8 6 5 4 ♥ A J 4 ♦ K 10 7 ♣ K 9 8

Even with your 2½ honor-tricks you could barely count sufficient playing tricks for a single raise. To show the full strength of your hand your only logical response would be two no trumps.

Such takeouts are not unusual. It often happens that the responding partner, while having more than sufficient honor strength to keep the bidding open, is lacking in sufficient playing tricks to support his partner's bid. In such a case the only recourse is a no trump takeout, either a negative response or a higher bid according to the count of honors in your hand.

What Better Proof Than This Could Be Wanted?

Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant and economist, had been presented at the Cosmopolitan club that roots prosperous as an incomparable hostess to significant.

"But who keeps on with their guests?" he asked us. "The thing is an evident on its face as Santa's marvelous.

"You see, Santa is married—but what proof have you? an employer asked.

"Well, we small an employee. 'I saw Santa making a night-coach last Sunday morning, and there was a young woman on one side of him and an old woman on the other and as I passed the young woman said: 'You've come home to that conclusion night Saturday's nights running, you fool.' And then the old woman chipped in with, 'Do, for goodness' sake, Ethel, make him put somethin' thousand on his wife before his dies or he's gone completely.'"—Detroit News.

BABY "WENT TO ALMOST NOTHING"

Then Eagle Brand saved the day!

"We are sending you a picture of our daughter, Alice Ann," writes Mrs. Joel Buttgereit, 128 Arch St., Verona, Penn., "to show you what Eagle Brand has done for our baby when three other baby foods failed.

"Our baby weighed 9 pounds at birth and went to almost nothing. Then we tried Eagle Brand, and with her first feeding, she seemed satisfied. She started to pick up right away and at eight months weighed 26 pounds and had 8 teeth.

"Writing could never express our gratitude for what Eagle Brand has done for our baby."

Great English Traveler

Sir Richard Burton was the first Englishman to enter Mecca, the first to explore Somaliland, and the first to find the great Lakes of Central Africa. He was so skilled in the lore of the desert that he could travel almost anywhere among the natives without detection. Of the many books written by this famous traveler, the most remarkable is his translation of the "Arabian Nights." After his death an unpublished manuscript translation of the "Scented Garden," from the Arabic, was burned by his widow on account of its pornographic content. The destruction of this paper has been considered by some as a mistake. The devoted wife of Burton arranged a pilgrimage made for him in the form of an Arab tent of skins and camels.

Repairing Royal Tapestries

Repairing the famous tapestries in Hampton Court palace, England, has been going on for nearly twenty years. It may take four or five skilled workers two or three years, at a cost of about $10,000 in wages, to mend one piece 20 feet by 18 feet.

"Spirit" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all churches of this denomination throughout the world on Sunday, August 7.
Among the Bible citations was this passage (Rev. 7:12): "Saying, Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen."
Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p.97): "The more material the belief, the more obvious its error, until divine Spirit, supreme in the domain, dominates all matter, and man is found in the likeness of Spirit, his original being."

AMERICA'S WORLD RESPONSIBILITIES

By H. J. HAAS

President American Bankers Association

H. J. HAAS

WE are in a changing world, with many new financial problems for which we have no precedents, and many old problems which have so changed as to be unrecognizable. American bankers have been called upon to help world affairs to their new trills of business and finance. We may expect these calls to be more, not less, serious in the future than they have in the past. We are the world's financial leader and we must accept this responsibility with it.

Let us look at the future with confidence. Never was our organization a more welcome asset than, perhaps as never before, it is a necessity to mutual aid, but this is the great leader and everybody we have some use of it. As it is with individuals, so it is with nations. They gather and hold much sorrow in the 12 years of its existence to treat some new form of organization to meet new needs. Let us not lose it in the hard days of 1931-1932 and the present.

I venture to state that in each of these periods there were those who had doubts of the future but as we look back we see that each time we have demonstrated that country recovers, to go faster and stronger than ever. To panic is to destroy and to mistrust brings fear never founded on reason. Confidence is the basis of all commerce, we live on the highest standard of living of the world, we should and will regain the leading by that standard.

Many of our people are better prepared financially and intellectually to cope with hard times than ever before. We have been in the past, so why not in the future? We are in the finest financial mood and condition such as to awaken public optimism as to the dangers of idle gossip about a moratorium's inviting limitations."

What Can Be Done

America must address itself to the task of solving many of outside aid from legislation. The only resource left for the producer on a reduced price level is to produce his goods at reduced costs, and nearly every farmer can likely put into force a few economies in production. Farmers must produce as largely as possible the materials they use and get away from cash purchases until prices come down proportionately on the things they buy. The cheapest way in the farming business is to raise your own feed and not let the other man get your billets.

INDUSTRY SEES HOPEFUL SIGNS, BANKERS TOLD

MOTOR SUPPLY IN HANDS OF PUBLIC FALLING OFF

Twelve Million Years Less Transportation in Nation's Car Inventory Than Considered Normal, Manufacturer Tells Financiers

DETROIT—Confidence in the future of automobile manufacturing and the return of prosperity to the country was expressed by Alfred P. Sloan, president of the General Motors Corporation, recently told the American Bankers Association convention that consumers in the country will be buying more motor cars next year.

"Depression during the winter months is a very important thing," Mr. Sloan said. "In the car now going out of use is somewhere in November or January and February we will be buying at least as many and probably more than we did this past year.

"Just how to gauge the outlook for next year's market, the corporation executive said, is up to each business man in accordance with his own individual circumstances.

"We are in the habit of looking at the business cycle not merely as an automobile but as transportation as a whole. Since cars, automobiles and equipment as all sorts of transportation. Then by following up records of transportation society we get a grasp of the factors which ought to be a factual inventory of transportation in the hands of the American people, and whether there are more or less motor cars than might be considered reasonable. According to our figures, there are about twelve million years less transportation in the inventory at the present time than has been considered normal since 1919.

"The Outlook for Business

"Consequently, if we retain the same purchasing power in this country, it is quite evident that in the first six years of business there will be a rush to replace that inventory. In developing this graph, I put some dat very strongly that every third year is a big automobile year. The biggest automobile year was 1929 when 4,587,000 cars were produced for American consumption. This year the industry will produce somewhere between 1,500,000 and 1,800,000 cars. As 1932 is three years after 1929, if somewhere 2000 million cars were normal we could be sure we would do 4 thousand in business because the third year is the time when the bulk of the replacement takes place.

"We added that there are factors at work that make it uncertain how big the year will be. Important that "normal is being launched from such confidence and 1929 taken away some purchasing power that we would otherwise have, while family incomes are getting out an average of changes in income conditions, which study shows that purchasing power for the automobile, like a good many other things, will be knocked down." As a result, he said, it was necessary to measure what statistically would be a big year against a practical consideration of the curtailment of expenditures which is going on and determine how big the year will be under these circumstances.

"From a long haul standpoint, regardless of how many automobiles are sold in 1932, we are sitting up a big business for the future." Mr. Graul said. "There will be fewer automobiles sold in 1931 than will go in the scrap heap. With 12,000,000 cars gone out of the inventory, nine percent more gasoline was used up to August 1, 1931, than was used in 1926. With fewer automobiles, the people must have been running them faster and longer to consume the additional gasoline. This means that we have some 25,000,000 people working hard to make a fine business for our industry when there is an economic recovery.

No False Optimism

"I am not attempting to create any false optimism—I am not speaking without a statistical background. Using the last same as can, we have drawn conclusions from the figures we have, and I am willing to make the statement that as far as the conduct of our business for the first half of 1932 is concerned, we shall set the dollars somewhat higher than the actual tons of 1931. We are willing to set our advertising budgets and our selling expense on that kind of indices. With economic conditions as they are, and since the obsolescence is so great and we have such an low in this year's sales, we figure that the first half of 1932 must necessarily be better than was the first half of 1931."

CHARLES B. GALE DIES HERE FRI.

FOLLOWING ILLNESS OF SEVERAL MONTHS DURATION

Mr. Charles B. Gale for upwards of a dozen years a resident of Charlevoix died Friday noon, his death following an illness extending over a period of some months, but at no time until within a period of a few hours before his death, considered as critical or even moderately serious by either Mr. Gale or his friends, therefore the sudden announcement of his death came as a surprise to the general public, while comparatively few persons placed faith in early rumors that "Mr. Gale died suddenly" nor did they believe until full confirmation of the rumor had been made.

Mr. Gale for a term of years until comparatively recent months, was connected, either as bookkeeper or manager or both with the Charlevoix Hardware Company now in the hands of a receiver appointed by the court. Some time ago he was relieved of his duties since which time his health has gradually failed. Angina pectoris is assigned as the cause of his death.

Mr. Gale was about 70 years old. He was a native of Michigan and his birthplace was Allison. Here he spent the early years of his life and received his education, later years, many of them, prior to his coming to Charlevoix were spent in the mining regions of northern Michigan.

For a term of years Mr. Gale was active in promotion of winter sports in this region and as Chairman of the Winter Sports Committee made an honest effort to establish sports of this kind as a successful annual event.

Mr. Gale was a bachelor and his only immediate survivor is Mrs. H. L. Iddings who came from Cleveland to attend the funeral service, held Monday at Brookside Chapel, with Revs. G. Russell Parker and W. W. Hurd officiating.

The body was placed in a vault following the ceremony, where it will rest until some time in October, when it will be taken to Albion for interment.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR HERE EARLY THIS WEEK

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Eastman of Chicago arrived here early Monday morning on board their yacht C-Minor, they then summer home at Mc-Gregor Bay, Canada, where they have been spending their vacation for several weeks. They were en route to Chicago and left here early Tuesday morning.

Mr. Eastman is considered one of the well known 100 piece Edison Symphony Orchestra, at Orchestra Hall, which has been under his supervision for fifteen years.

Mr. Eastman conducts many bands and orchestras in Chicago and is also Assistant Vice President of the National Broadcasting Company, and has been very prominent in many musical circles in European countries, also Consular agent to Russia.

The following are recent arrivals at the Elston cottage: Miss Clara Daugherty, Miss Cora B. Schutt, Miss Helen Schutt, Mrs. Sam Mark, Bucyrus, Ohio; Mr. Ray Stone, Miss Bell Stone, Miss Marion Stone, Miss Ethel Swartz, Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. Joe E. Reap, Captain David Emerman, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Suddard, LaGrange, Ind.

The office of the Department of State in the information bureau will be closed from noon, Saturday, August 20th, until one o'clock of Wednesday, August 24th, during the absence of the branch manager, who is a delegate to the 1932 state convention of the Legion at Kalamazoo. The information bureau will be in charge of Miss Marian Tyler.

POTATO GROWERS TO STUDY NEW DISEASE —"YELLOW DWARF"—

Of great importance to all producers of potatoes is the announcement that Mr. J. H. Muncie, Plant Pathologist, of Michigan State College, has been secured to discuss diseases and their control on Tuesday, August 23rd.

Within the last few months a new disease, "Yellow Dwarf", has completely wiped out potato fields in the central part of the state. From field after field the men will not get their seed back, hence it is to our welfare to eliminate this disease from Charlevoix County.

In order to acquaint potato growers with "Yellow Dwarf" and other diseases a series of three meetings will be held next Tuesday, August 23rd.

The first meeting will be held at the farm of W. E. Straw Tuesday afternoon at 1.45 o'clock which is located 1-2 mile south of Belvedere Golf Links, Charlevoix. The second at the farm of Lester Hardy, Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, which is located on Deer Lake road about 6 miles south of Boyne City. The last meeting will be in the Ironton Grange Hall the same night at 8:00 o'clock.

No doubt Mr. Muncie will have considerable illustrative material with him to assist in the identification of diseases. During the afternoon you will see diseases right out in the field, while in the evening more time can be spent in discussing conditions in regard to potatoes.

If Charlevoix County continues to uphold her potato record it is necessary for all potato growers to become acquainted with this "Yellow Dwarf." Remember these meetings are for table stock growers as well as certified seed producers.

Be sure to come.

BARNARD WINS FROM WHITECAPS SUNDAY AFTERNOON

By Newman

In a contest played Sunday afternoon on the local South Side ball diamond, the smooth working Barnard baseball team took the measure of the local Whitecaps.

The final score was 14 to 8, but the two teams were evenly matched except in the second inning when Barnard scored 7 runs. This team scored 3 more in the third and sixth innings and made up with 1 in the eighth.

Charlevoix scored 1 in both the second and third innings, 2 in the fourth, and 4 in the sixth. Each of Charlevoix's fielders, Joe Shores and Jake Yemmons, combined to produce most of the Whitecaps runs.

Barnard made 22 hits compared with Charlevoix's 20, but they were so well bunched together that they accounted for six more runs. Every Barnard player scored at least one time. Joe Stutzman pitched a fine game, but he received much better support from his infield and outfield than Bob Berritt did. It certainly seemed as though the Barnard team had some nice signals, as the base runners always picked the right time to run, getting two bases on singles practically every time. These two teams will meet again on August 28.

Sunday the Whitecaps will play the Ironton team. These two teams have played four games, with each winning two. Charlevoix hopes to get the rubber game, but Ironton will certainly put up a good fight. We hope it does not run to fisticuffs, as has happened in another game that Ironton engaged in. Both teams will be on their toes the full time. Innings: Game starts at 2:00 p. m.

Senator Calvin Campbell and son of Indian River accompanied by Editor Al Weber of Cheboygan were Charlevoix visitors Monday afternoon. Mr. Campbell is a candidate to succeed to the position now held by him therefore it is a safe bet that his visit was primarily in the interest of his candidacy for renomination.

Mr. and Mrs. Gayle D. Clifford, the former publisher of the Eaton Rapids Journal, spent the week end in Charlevoix, guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Winder, at the Hotel Charlevoix. They returned to Eaton Rapids via the motoring way Monday.

CHINOOK SALMON REPORTED CAUGHT IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX

Report of the capture of a ten pound Chinook Salmon from Lake Charlevoix by Nicholas Green, 12 year old Boyne City youth has been reported to the Department of Conservation. An attempt to make definite identification of the fish from a photograph will be made.

The boy was fishing with Frank Kent, also of Boyne City, for Mackinaw Trout when he caught the fish.

Chinook Salmon were planted in the Boyne River millpond by the Department of Conservation in June, 1217. At that time 3,000 salmon fingerlings were placed in these waters but no definite reports have been received of the fish until the report received this week from Boyne City. The Department is eager to obtain information as to salmon found in any of Michigan's waters and suggests that any fish believed to be salmon be sent to the Institute for Fish Disease Research, University of Michigan for positive identification.

Lake Charlevoix, where the reported salmon was taken is now providing sport for increasing numbers taking lake trout by trolling, many trout weighing from six to 20 pounds are being taken from the lake.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON COMING TO PALACE

Additional evidence of the versatility of Edward G. Robinson, as a master delineator of human types is provided in his latest starring vehicle for First National Pictures, "Two Seconds," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Thursday.

In previous film roles Robinson has appeared as gunman, gambler, editor and oriental. He has always been a stone-hearted man, dominating men and events with an inflexible will and daring which carried all before it. In "Two Seconds" however, he portrays John Allen, a hard-working iron worker who is a victim of circumstances.

As Allen, Edward G. Robinson makes a radical departure from the characters he has been giving American picture audiences, beginning with "Little Caesar" on through "Five Star Final" and "The Hatchet Man." The actor himself regards the character as the most difficult he has been called upon to portray since his entrance into pictures. Metropolitan critics have hailed Robinson's performance in this picture as one of the brilliant achievements of the dramatic season.

The aggregation of players assembled for the production offers an excellent example of the care with which First National pictures are cast. Even the smallest parts have been entrusted to experienced and able actors.

Preston Foster, who has the role of John Allen's buddy, plays the same part that he created in the New York production. His first few days work in the picture made such a deep impression upon the production heads of the studio that he was immediately signed for an important role in another picture and given a term contract.

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE HERE LAST SATURDAY EVE

Hon. Joseph F. Murphy, Emmet County, candidate for nomination for Congressman from the 11th Congressional District on the Republican ticket spoke to a good size audience Saturday night and at its conclusion left a favorable impression as to his ability as a speaker and knowledge of the principles represented both by himself and his party, therefore it is probable that he strengthened his position locally in the contest in which he is engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Gayle D. Clifford, the former publisher of the Eaton Rapids Journal, spent the week end in Charlevoix, guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Winder, at the Hotel Charlevoix. They returned to Eaton Rapids via the motoring way Monday.

LEG. DELEGATES TO STATE MEET

HOLDING SESSION IN KALAMAZOO STARTING SUNDAY

The daily appointed Legion delegates to the Legion State Convention in Kalamazoo from Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, will leave late Saturday or early Sunday for the convention city to carry on their efforts to secure the 1933 State Convention for Charlevoix.

At the meeting Tuesday evening it was decided to send a male quartet to represent the local post in the musical contest which will be a feature of the convention activities and it is hoped that they will also be able to take part in some of the programs at the state meet.

The present indications show the Northern half and the southeastern quarter of the state as favorable to Charlevoix for the next annual meeting of the Legion.

A boxing show, under the management of Ernie Ekkleduffer of Newberry, otherwise known as the "Fighting Dutchman", light heavyweight champ of Upper Michigan, will be staged on the Charlevoix Legion grounds at 8:30 p. m. on Thursday, August 25th. The performance will be put on for the benefit of the Legion bugle and drum corps and the Charlevoix unemployed.

The main event will be a battle between Ekkleduffer and Walter Banks of St. Louis, Mo., entered challenger, at 163 and 168 pounds respectively. There will also be a semi-windup of six rounds between Jack Cone of Petoskey and Bill Tryon, Boyne City, both contestants weighing in at 154 lbs. A special event will be Pug Cluff of Boyne vs. Harry Hopkins of Kewaunee at around 120 lbs. A preliminary of four rounds will be fought by "Hardrock" Ages of Charlevoix and Joe Senno, a Charlevoix Carmen at around 120 lbs.

Other preliminaries will feature the bill.

DANCE BOAT SINKS IN LAKE CHARLEVOIX SUNDAY

The Keuka, Captain James H. Gallagher, owner, went down by the head Sunday and now rests on the bottom of Lake Charlevoix in about seven fathoms of water.

For some weeks the Keuka has been at anchor about 1,000 feet from the south shore and about one mile from the west end of the Lake where she has been used on several occasions for dancing parties.

The Keuka was riding safely Saturday with no evidence that a few hours later would find her in the bottom of the lake. Nevertheless somehow happened and the boat went down. There was some cause for the changed condition, but at this time the reason is indefinite and a subject of conjecture on the part of the public.

Congressman Frank P. Bohn was a Charlevoix visitor Wednesday and during his visit met a considerable number of local friends, who have supported him in past campaigns and express their intention of being for and with him in his candidacy for renomination at the September primary. After spending a few hours here he continued his trip south to meet political friends in Antrim County.

Mr. Albert A. Wilbur arriver here from Cheboygan Sunday, making the trip in response to a message informing him of the illness of his brother, Mrs. O. E. Wilbur who suffered a stroke of paralysis two or three days earlier. Mrs. Wilbur's condition is somewhat improved and there is evidence that she will continue to improve steadily in the future.

Mrs. Louis Sharpe made a trip to Ann Arbor, leaving here Saturday, to see her son Junior who is in the U. of M. hospital for treatment.

W. C. T. U. HOLDS OUTDOOR MEETING IN CITY PARK

The annual outdoor meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the City Park last Friday beginning with a picnic dinner at 1 o'clock. There were thirty-four present.

The program opened with the flag salute and singing the national anthem Mrs. Zachery read "The American's Creed." Mrs. Wm. Poole conducted the devotional service. Mrs. Lambert rendered a suggestive article entitled "Are Angels Shy Does Her Bit."

The assigned topic — "Campaign Issues and Candidates" was in charge of Mrs. Saltonstall who conducted a Round Table discussion of the records and platforms of those seeking nomination at the primaries September 13th.

An interesting diversion was created when Mrs. Rauch introduced a new song "to an old tune"—"Dryer Than We Used to Be Thirteen Years Ago" which everyone sang with action.

Announcement was made of the next meeting which will be held September 7th, also of the District Convention September 20 and 21, at Central Lake.

GARDEN LOVERS MAY HEAR FLORICULTURE LECTURES

Care and management of house plants, soils and fertilizers for flowering plants, care of lawns, annuals, perennials, insects and diseases, bulbs, and propagation, are some of the subjects that will be discussed by Prof. R. Krone, Extension Specialist in Floriculture from Michigan State College, at a series of flower lectures to be given in the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City on Thursday, August 25th.

These lectures will be of particular interest to the ladies, city as well as rural, who are interested in making their homes attractive by the use of flowers, bulbs and shrubs, and in learning the proper sprays, cultural and soil conditions necessary for their growth and development.

The first lecture will be at East Jordan Library, on Thursday forenoon, August 25th at 10 o'clock.

Charlevoix Court House on Thursday afternoon, August 25th at 2:00 o'clock and Boyne City Library on Thursday night, August 25th at 8:00 o'clock.

A cordial invitation is extended to all garden lovers and especially to any group of women studying flowers and to all contestants in any Home Garden Project or City Beautification Project that is being sponsored by different communities in the county.

AIRPLANE BEING USED TO TRANSPORT FISH

Lake trout and other desirable commercial species caught along the north shore of Lake Michigan are now being sold in the Detroit markets the same day through an airplane service inaugurated recently.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kauffman and daughter Betty of Fowlerville, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Kauffman of Chester township, Antrim County were Charlevoix visitors Saturday. Mr. E. J. Kauffman was a Charlevoix resident, some twenty years ago.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dix—on a girl, Friday, August 12.

Mr. E. A. Nordhaim of Chicago spent some time in Charlevoix early this week on business.

Mr. William C. Severance, Judge of Probate in Antrim County was a business visitor in Charlevoix Tuesday.

CONSERVATION DEPT. REPORTS REDUCTION IN FOREST FIRE DAMAGE

Indicating what it considered a remarkable story under 1931, the Division of Forest Administration of the Department of Conservation today issued comparative figures showing the number of fires and acres burned over through Michigan for the period preceding July 20 in the two years.

While by July 20, 1931, the state reported 2,231 forest fires that burned over 187,282 acres, in the same period this year, only 1,726 fires have been reported with but 39,382 acres burned over.

Unless the unexpected happens between now and the close of the forest fire season early in November, the 1932 season will show about half of the damage done that was recorded for the previous year.

Nearly normal precipitation during the early summer months and increasing care on the part of the public when using fire in the woods are being credited by the Conservation Department for the season's low forest fire loss. The fact that the wooded areas of the state now have larger number of campers, hunters, and cottagers than ever before would normally tend to increase the forest fire hazard, it was said.

The Department also believes that the recent pay cut of from 30c to 15c per hour for fire fighting assistance may have reduced the temptation of many to smoke flies to get jobs putting them out. The number of fires reported as of incendiary origin have dropped considerably this summer.

So far this season only eight fires have been reported in Charlevoix County.

NOVEL SHRUB IN BLOOM AT CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERY

The Butterfly Bush or Buddleia well deserves its name when it is in full bloom, for its flowers have a fragrance which seems to be attractive to that attractive bundle of butterflies of all sorts. A row of many of these magnificent plants is now in full bloom, for its flowers have a sweet aroma not to be forgotten, and one that attracts hundreds of butterflies of all sorts. A row of many of these magnificent plants is now in full bloom at the Charlevoix County Nurseries.

The shrub itself is of great value for home ground plantings, and for its mid-summer bloom, which characteristic is seldom found in our garden shrubs. This plant is also often called the Summer lilac because of the resemblance of the color and formation of the flower heads to those of the lilacs. The colors of the flowers are a delicate lilac color with reddish centers. Thousands of these are arranged on long graceful spikes two and three feet in length. The bush grows to an average height of 4 and 5 feet, and is very bardy. The leaves, too, are beautiful with their silvery undersides and drab green above.

The Buddleia often listed in catalogues as a hardy perennial, while it is really classed as a shrub because of its hard, woody growth. It receives its classification, as a perennial in some catalogues because the entire top growth of the bush dies down to the ground every winter, and then sends out new growth the next summer. The roots, though, are perfectly hardy.

This shrub, and many others of equal beauty, are now on display at the Charlevoix County Nurseries, and everyone is invited out to inspect them at any time.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED

Exploding of an oilstove at the home of "Bobs" Beaver, 1007 South Bridge street Saturday noon, was the signal for calling the fire department to that location. Active work on the part of household members placed the fire under control before the department arrived at the scene. The fire damage was negligible.

Mr. J. I. Quarnby motored up from Lansing Friday, spent the night here and Saturday made the St. James trip, where he spends about ten days with friends on Beaver Island.

GRAND FINALE TO 1922 SEASON

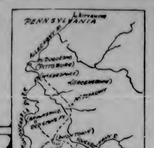
SUNDAY, AUGUST 21, LAST DAY AT INTERLOCHEN BOWL

Interlochen Bowl with its kaleidoscopic array of famous personalities and home and go throughout the summer succession. Edwin Franko Goldman, one of the most important realities of the season, for the last Sunday, August 21. At the afternoon concert Mr. Goldman, conductor of the internationally known band that has made and has many years since established itself in the hearts of all New Yorkers through weekly radio-music concerts on the mall in Central Park, will direct the National High School Band in its last concert of an outstandingly successful season. Mr. Goldman will present a program replete with interesting features for the least of which in local interest will be the popular "On the Mall" which he wrote for the own Band and which Interlochen used to which it was written by Ray Dvorak, a faculty member, in 1930.

It is expected that Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, will arrive from his European holiday in time to conduct rehearsals and the concert of the National High School Orchestra at the farewell program in the evening, of the same day. In addition to the symphony and other compositions the Liszt "Prelude" which were heard at the closing number at the 1926 concert and have become a traditional "day revival" for the last National Music Camp concert each year since then, will conclude the evening.

Come to Interlochen—Music of the finest with conductors whose fame is long since established throughout the world is played for you by talented and youthful organizations composed of high school pupils from thirty states of the union

Fort Necessity and Fort Frederick



Capt. George Washington

The Reconstructed Fort Necessity

Gen. Braddock

Ruins of Fort Frederick

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Not the least fascinating of all the celebrations held during this, the Washington bicentennial year, was the dedication last month of a stockaded fort in a mountain wilderness near Uniontown, Pa., as a national shrine to the thrifty of his country. For this little fort, consisting only of a log cabin circled by a log stockade was Fort Necessity, where on July 3, 1754, George Washington began the military career which was to place his name among those of the great captains of all time and where, as the famous Voltaire expressed it, was fired the "cannon shot in the woods of America which set all Europe ablaze."

Paradoxical as it may seem, the fact remains that Washington's brilliant career began there in failure rather than in success, and Fort Necessity witnessed the one time in his career when he surrendered to an enemy instead of receiving the surrender of an enemy. Hence for a brief mention of the affair in our school histories, the affair at Fort Necessity is one little known to most Americans. For more than 175 years the scene of this historic melting point was known only to a few scholars.

But now Fort Necessity has come into its own and becomes of easy access to it by way of Route 40, the national highway. It is expected that thousands of Americans will visit it every year. Some time ago the state of Pennsylvania purchased 314 acres, including the site of the fort, and the federal government has appropriated last year another $10 preservation as a national historical monument. The first job has been constructed exactly as it stood on that fateful day 178 years ago. A large brick tavern standing at the roadside, as well as a shop and the fixed latent siege line is being reproduced and will be used as a museum. Plans to reconstruct the fort and to remodel the museum have been raised by private sources, notably the American Legion and its auxiliaries.

The affair at Fort Necessity had its origins in the clash between the British and the French for the control of the interior of the North American continent. To safeguard their claim to the Mississippi and ohio valleys and to check the westward expansion of English settlements beyond the Alleghenies, the French had erected a fort at Presque Isle, now Erie, Pa., but their Fort Le Boeuf at French Creek and fort also around the Detroit trading post of Vincennes at the junction of the Wabash and Ohio rivers, and Fort Duquesne at the junction of the Monongahela and Ohio rivers.

In 1720 Gov. Robert Dinwiddie of Virginia ordered George Washington, then but twenty-one years old, to warn the French commander to leave the Ohio valley on the ground that the French were their encroachments upon British soil." When Washington returned with the information that the French had the intention of giving up their forts, Dinwiddie decided upon more active action. Late in the year 1753 he sent a party of men under Captain Trent to build a fort at the forks of the Ohio, where Pittsburgh now stands and to hold it against any attacks which the French might make.

Both North Carolina and the home government had promised aid to the expedition but when no troops had arrived by the last day of March, 1754, Governor Dinwiddie decided and his 500 Virginians to proceed to the ohio, "there to help Captain Trent build forts and to defend the possessions of his majesty against the attempts and hostilities of the French."

Meanwhile Trent with the company of 33 men had encountered a stockade at the forks. But in April, a force of 1,000 French had arrived on the scene and made them prisoners. They were promptly released and allowed to return home without harm. Washington, arriving in their aid, met the returning fort builders at Wills Creek, where the present city of Cumberland, Md.

By this time the French had extended Trent's work and pushed it to a rapid completion, calling their stronghold Fort Duquesne. Here had been gathered a considerable force of Canadian French regulars and Indian allies, a detachment from which set out to attack Washington's advance. On May 28, at the head of a scouting party, Washington stumbled upon the small French scouting party. The Virginians immediately fired upon the French. Ten were killed, one wounded and 21 taken prisoner. Among the French dead was Jumonville. As will be seen later, his killing was to become an "international incident" and for the first time (but not the last?) it was to make the name of George Washington well known in foreign capitals. Incidentally, it was to cause in little anxiety in the mind of King George of England, although he could not then have realized how soon a young colonial named Virginian was to cause him two decades later as the head of a "rebel army" which was challenging the might of Great Britain.

The news of this encounter was carried to Fort Duquesne and the commander immediately sent out a force under Coulon de Villiers, a brother of Jumonville, to attack the English. Washington withdrew to Great Meadows, where he erected a fort. Although the place was unfit for defense being surrounded on three sides by higher ground, which was heavily forested and afforded good shelter from which the enemy could fire down upon the defenders of the fort, Washington's force was so weakened by lack of ammunition and other supplies, that he considered it impracticable to retreat further. Hence the name of Fort Necessity was so appropriate of his desperate plight.

A contemporary account of what followed has been discovered recently in the chancellor of the public library in a copy of the South Carolina Gazette for August 22, 1754, which reads as follows:

"Williamsburg, Va., July 19.—On Wednesday last arrived in town Col. George Washington and Capt. James Mackay, who gave the following account to the house of burgesses and Council: Upon advice that the French had erected a fort at the forks of the Ohio, the governor of this colony ordered a body of men to be raised and sent to the place, and Mr. Washington was appointed colonel of the regiment, and Capt. Mackay commissioned to raise an independent company, which he did, and marched to the place of destination, where they found that the French had erected a fort and had a body of men there, and that they had taken prisoners a party of men that were sent to reconnoiter their motions, and had killed the commander of them, a brother of Jumonville, to attack the English. Washington withdrew to Great Meadows, where he erected a fort. Although the place was unfit for defense being surrounded on three sides by higher ground, which was heavily forested and afforded good shelter from

CONEY ISLAND WAS WARNED

Coney Island is internationally known and famous as a resort. When a large area in the heart of the pavilion and boardwalk sections burned recently, universal interest was stirred.

Business men and residents of Coney Island might have seen the handwriting on the wall in the report issued by the engineers of The National Board of Fire Underwriters in 1929 after their survey of New York City. The report states in part:

"The major portion of Coney Island lying between Ocean Parkway and Thirty-seventh St., possesses a conflagration hazard of pronounced degree. It has a potential to rival the hazards involved and consumed. A fire once well started and fanned by a brisk wind might easily result in the devastation of a large portion of the section." In recent years hundreds of cities and towns have been surveyed by engineers of the National Board which endeavors to serve the public by fostering safer conditions. In many instances the recommendations have been followed, making the communities safer places in which to live.

Where life and property are at stake it is foolhardy to disregard the investigations and advice of experts.

THE LURE OF SPEED

Speed, while one of the blessings of modern life, is also one of its greatest curses. Applied to industry, transportation and commerce, it has advanced civilization to a point where life, while infinitely more complex, seems easier to live.

Yet the benefits of speed have been attended by serious disadvantages, especially as applied to the modern automobile. Statistics of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters show that 15 per cent of all automobile accident fatalities are caused by excessive speed. Last year 32,920 persons were killed and 76,500 injured in 67,080 accidents because of it. What part of all the other accidents which happen daily can be attributed to speeding, is open to conjecture.

What, then, is a reasonable and fair speed? The answer is subject to change even as conditions are. James A. Beha, General Manager of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, says: "Police enforcement authorities should consider all speeds over 45 miles an hour on public highways as approaching the danger point. While in some cases it is not likely to be necessary to enforce discipline for speeds faster than that, 45 miles an hour should be looked upon as a decent standard, departure from which may be considered as generally unreasonable."

It is pleasing to note that automobile manufacturers and makers of automobile equipment and accessories are joining forces with safety organizations to stress "safety" rather than speed as the goal to be obtained. Modern conditions have changed the attitudes of these manufacturers and for the lure of speed they are now substituting the concrete value of safety, in their advertising.

ROAD DOLLARS FOR LABOR

The bulk of the money to build roads is spent for labor, either on the job or in the preparation of materials.

More of the road dollar goes to labor when comparatively inexpensive roads are built than in the case of $40,000 a mile superhighways. The secondary or farm-to-market road is thus the best means of providing employment—and at the same time it is the road we most need. Rural areas have largely been left outside of the good roads movement in the past. Thousands of farms and villages are situated within a short distance of fine modern highways—with no means of reaching them during bad weather.

When all-weather, bituminous surfaced roads can be secured at from $3,000 to $6,000 a mile, road building might be called insurance for social and economic progress in the future. It results in better business, stimulated agriculture, a fuller life for millions of people. And at this time, with material prices at the lowest levels in many years, and with a vast army of men in need of work, it produces better fruit than at any other time within living memory.

DEPUTY TAX COLLECTORS

At the present time the electric industry must hand over to the tax collector more than one dollar out of every four of net earnings. It pays more in taxes than the total cost of the coal needed to make power.

To a certain percentage of our citizens this will have a pleasing sound—milking the corporation to "benefit" the public.

The only trouble is that the electric industry cannot pay taxes except as it collects them from the consumer. It is in the business of selling power. To make and transmit that power costs a certain amount of money. Onto that is added necessary profit. The result is the customer's bill. Whenever costs rise, because of higher taxes, labor or material, these increases are reflected in the bill for service.

The point is that the electric industry does not pay taxes. Neither do the railroads, the insurance companies, the oil industry, or any other business. They are merely made to act as the government's agents, taking money from their customers and passing it on indirectly. We are the ones who struggle under a growing burden of "indirect taxation" and suffer from waste, extravagance and unnecessary activities of government which follow in its wake as more money is continually collected to expand the bureaucratic machine.

WHERE WILL "RELIEF" LEAD

The national budget, according to late reports, has not been balanced, in spite of the highest taxes in our history. It is expected that "relief" measures, involving hundreds of millions or billions of dollars, will eventually be passed. If the present trend keeps up, the working, tax-paying citizen will be in need of relief. It will be cheaper to do nothing than to produce, cheaper to give property away than to own it. And political waste and extravagance continue undiminished.

Fire prevention success depends on a stern public consciousness that will force the careless person to be careful and the ignorant to learn fire caution. Every fire affects every citizen. It raises taxes, destroys employment and business opportunity, despoils neighborhoods and endangers life. We fight the willful arsonist—but we must also fight the "unconscious arsonist," who, through carelessness, is responsible for fire.

FORGOTTEN MATTERS

Recently the manager of a large government-owned barge line stated that last year his system earned $197,000, and in the first three months of 1932 earned $200,000. "This," he said, "has not cost the taxpayers of the nation one penny."

But he forgot to mention that the barge line has free use of waterways that have cost the taxpayers tens of millions of dollars to improve; that many tax millions are spent yearly to keep the channels in condition; that the barge line equipment represents an investment, by the taxpayers, of $25,000,000, on which not a cent has been returned; that his line has terminal facilities which cost hundreds of thousands of dollars a year to maintain. And, perhaps most important, he forgot that his line is tax-free, while all other common carriers must bear extremely heavy tax burdens.

During May the earnings of the railroads—an industry which has not been able to earn a fair return on its investment since the war, and which enjoyed none of the inflated prosperity of 1927-28—fell one per cent, on an annual basis. Railroad employment is at its lowest point in decades and the roads must compete with the tax-free government waterways which are partially maintained by the taxes the railroads pay.

That is a tough situation for the railroads but it's harder on the taxpayers because, as railroad taxes dwindle on one hand, individual taxes climb on the other, to make up the deficits and provide funds for growing activity.

TIMELY SUGGESTION

"One extra slice of bread a day
Will help to keep the wolf away."

Such is the advice of food authorities who share the benefit of their experience with those who would make their food dollars and dimes go farther these days.

One of them is Joseph Wilshire, who became active in the food industry in 1898, and who now, as president of a large company, has 34 years of study upon which to draw for advice. When asked what food is the most nourishing, and at the same time least expensive, he instantly replied, "Bread!"

"There are fifty different kinds of bread," he continued, "and with such variety we can make every meal more interesting. Bread and milk form an almost perfect meal, and it would be hard to find a cheaper meal. Bread supplies the most nourishment at the lowest cost of any of our foods.

"In addition to helping our bodies, the eating of bread helps the rest of the country to break up the depression. One extra slice of bread a day for each person in the United States will mean sixty million more bushels of wheat will be consumed in a year. That will help the farmers and manufacturers, and in turn it will bring better business to all of us. My advice is to eat more bread, and to enjoy more different kinds of bread."

THE VITAL METAL

There is hardly a manufacturing, transportation or communication industry which does not depend, to some extent, on copper.

It is the most essential of all base metals. Electric service, the telephone, railroad transportation, the manufacture of appliances for the home—copper is vital to them all. The part it has played in the industrial history of the twentieth century has been of the greatest importance—and through a long line of preceding centuries copper has wielded a tremendous influence on social and economic evolution.

At the moment, copper is in the doldrums. That is partly due to the general depression, partly to cheap-labor foreign competition, partly to short-sighted tax and legislative policies in some mining states. The depression is passing. And we should take the steps needed to help copper producers solve those other problems which act as a barrier to the industry's natural development.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

Student of international affairs in the United States and elsewhere were much interested in the news from Washington the other day to the effect that nineteen nations of the Western Hemisphere, including, of course, United States, had employed the Hoover "non recognition" doctrine, that was first heard of in the Chinese-Japenese dispute, in an effort to avert war between the South American republics of Paraguay and Bolivia. The adoption of this "non-recognition" doctrine by the leading powers of the western hemisphere, if permanent, will go a long way toward ending all imperialistic adventures in this western world.

The last paragraph of the note dispatched to the two governments, which are at this writing on the verge of war, reads:

"The American nations further declare that they will not recognize any territorial arrangement of this controversy which may be obtained through occupation or conquest by force of arms."

According to news dispatches, the adoption of this now famous doctrine for the purposes of the Western World was perfected in the diplomatic room of the Department of State at Washington where the representatives of nineteen nations had gathered in an effort to prevent war from breaking out on the South American continent. As the United Press puts it "they realized no doubt that they were making history in laying down a policy which may take its place beside the Monroe doctrine."

The application of the doctrine was made at this time for the reason that the bone of contention between Bolivia and Paraguay is the Gran Chaco territory which is claimed by both countries. The bit of territory is a typical tropical jungle but is said to be strategetically important to both nations which covet it as a part of their particular domain, and deny the title of the other country to any part of it.

Aside from the application of this doctrine to the present dispute, the fact that it was drawn up in the State Department at Washington, under the inspiration of the administration of the United States, ought to silence for all time the cheap cries of demagogues in the United States and politicians in Europe to the effect that Uncle Sam is pursuing an imperialistic policy in his dealings with the other American nations. If this policy of refusing to recognize any territorial rearrangement based on force, is made the established policy for settling territorial disputes in the Western Hemisphere, it ought to set at rest any charges of imperialistic designs on the part of the United States.

It can be taken for granted that the United States is the most powerful nation in the Western Hemisphere. The United States above all other western nations has the power, if it so desired, to grab off by forceful means, additional territory on the American continent. The fact that it does not do so, coupled with the fact that it sponsors a policy of not recognizing territorial claims established by force of arms, is the best evidence that we harbor no aggressive ambitions in the Western Hemisphere, or elsewhere. These facts establish a complete answer to the pink and yellow assults occasionally made on Uncle Sam, charging him with being an "imperialist" among nations.

Ye Editor Smith, of Charlevoix, dropped down on us Saturday evening along with Captain and his Beaver. Mr. Smith is always a welcome caller at the Beavers.

On Friday afternoon last while the steamer Beaver was in waiting, St. James people, who were able to be present at the New Hotel Beaver were delightfully entertained as well as instructed by that wonderfully interesting speaker, Prof. G. W. E. Hall of Atwater, Minn., who lectured before the Island branch of the Hay View Reading Circle on the "Passion Play" which he personally visited in the little village of Oberammergau in 1900.

Prof. Hill's style address is singularly striking and from the moment he began speaking till the impatient Capt. Pete's "footing" compelled him to close, his audience was enraptured by the story of the wonderful Passion Play as given by the simple hearted country folks of the little village of Bavaria.

Mrs. Hattie Clifford, formerly of this place, is still residing at Washington, where her son Walter has a position in one of the folding rooms of the Senate, in a recent letter to Major Green, Mrs. Clifford relates an interesting incident. In a conversation with Senator Walthall, of Mississippi, he asked if her husband was an officer in the 16th Infantry. She replied that he was. The Senator arose from his chair, and, bowing with true southern courtesy, said: "Madam, I captured your husband at the battle of Chickamauga." He at once became interested in the matter in which she was seeking his aid, and went with her to other Senators.

WEDDING BELLS

At the Congregational Church at 11 o'clock today, by the Rev. W. H. MacPherson, was celebrated the nuptials of Miss Effie Berdan, of this place, to Mr. A. E. Clayden, of Jackson.

Miss Lottie Mason, the business partner of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Mrs. E. A. Berdan, the bride's brother, was the groom's best man.

The newly wedded couple left on the afternoon train for a two week's trip to Jackson, Wayne and Detroit. They will return to Charlevoix, where of course, they will remain. The business of Mason and Berdan, will continue at the old stand, although a change in the firm name will probably follow Miss Berdan, as a member of one of our most enterprising business houses, has acquired a wide acquaintance and many friends, and it goes without saying that she has the best wishes of all, as has also the fortunate groom, Mr. Clayden, who formerly resided here and where he has always been thought well of.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayden have the editor's blessing which is a good thing to have in the family.

Fifty Years Ago

To those who were of the opinion that the Charlevoix County Congressional delegation was divided, it was perhaps a surprise to them to learn that Mr. Mesch voted on the first and only ballot for Gen. Cutcheon. It is but fair to state that Mr. Mesch was entirely unpledged up to the moment of casting his vote.

Willard A. Smith, the genial editor and proprietor of the Charlevoix Sentinel is a man of many occupations. Not content with getting up one of the best country weekly newspapers in the State, his public spirit edness has caused his elevation to the presidency of the village and his position for his country has been rewarded by the postmastership and the appointment of Signal Service Officer. Moreover, he finds time to manage the Western Telegraph office at Charlevoix and drills and leads the cornet band of the village. Mr. Smith's manifold duties do not appear however, to lessen the attention necessary to the publication of a live local newspaper. — Grand Rapids Daily Eagle.

Charlevoix steamers and tugs seem to be affected by the weather, or some other demoralizing influence. Last week Tuesday and Wednesday, the steamers Morley and Gazelle were laid up temporarily for repairs and now the Morley has laid up for the season; the tug Payne has been laid up for a week with a broken crosshead; the tug Higgie is laid up or has met with a mishap, and the steamer, Nellie Booth, is in the "bone yard" with an unshipped rudder. The steamer Morley's boiler was found Tuesday to be so badly cracked as to make it hazardous to run in her present condition and as it was the owner's intention to put in a new boiler next fall and winter, it was decided to lay her up for the season, and give her a thorough overhauling. She will receive a new boiler, her machinery improved, and her forward cabin taken out to make an open deck for freight. Mr. Holly has no intention to change his plans as to route, and we may expect to see this fine steamer again on our inland waters next season with Capt. "Bob" O'Neill at the bells.

Sixty Years Ago

The Norwood mill, containing only two saws—circular and upright—sawed 19,000 feet of lumber one day last week.

A select party was given at Cooper's new hall, on Monday evening, which was the occasion of much enjoyment.

The Club—The meetings of the Grant and Wilson Club recently organized in this village, increase in interest and enthusiasm. On Monday evening last names were enrolled which swelled the membership to over eighty. The influence of the club, through its emissaries, over the Indians, by the simplification and presentation of facts, has been great. For the first time in their history they will cast a Republican vote for President. On Monday evening the chief, through an interpreter, made a speech, in which he stated that his advice to them in council had been well received and that they would go as a unit for Grant. They look upon the Great Father at Washington as their friend, and they wish him to remain there.

STOCK TRAINING AIDS BELLAMY TECHNIQUE

The greatest difficulty that the average stage actor has to face in Hollywood, according to Ralph Bellamy, who shares with Violet Heming and Alexander Kirkland the leading honors in "Almost Married," new Fox mystery thriller scheduled to open at the Palace Theater Tuesday, is not so much the difference between stage and screen technique as the difference between the small town and the Broadway point of view.

By far the greater proportion of screen audiences is made up of people who live in the country, in small cities and towns. The average Broadway actor on the other hand, is trained to appeal to an entirely different group—that small section of New York City known as the "smart set" and when upon arriving in Hollywood, he is told that the only one he must consider is the former he is greatly handicapped at the very start.

One of the main differences between the two, Bellamy continues, is that New York is interested in the brilliant manner in which a thing is done, while the rest of the country is interested in the thing itself. New York is interested in the wrapper, while the so-called "hinterland" is interested in the contents of the package.

"Almost Married," Bellamy believes, represents the type of story that must appeals to the vast nonmetropolitan audience. Creepy and spine-tingling, the story of two humans caught in the inhuman toils of a mad musician, it is straight drama and entertainment from the beginning to the end.

Revolving around the cunning, spectacular attempts of a demented genius to wreak vengeance on two lovers, it develops into one of the weirdest and most eerie situations that has ever appeared on the screen.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS — 20 — By James W. Brooks

Illustrated by George Hershey for CALVERT FARMS

NEXT, Washington entered upon what he had now begun to ardently hope for—a long succession of pleasant and peaceful years as a master farmer. He had made one attempt before, now it was to be final. He set his hand to the task of broadening his acres, to the enlargement and improvement of Mount Vernon, and to increasing the productivity of his farms.

THIS was one of Washington's docks, built for the handling of grain, tobacco, flour and other products, which he shipped in his own sloop to points on the Potomac. "Buy cotton and you can make within yourselves," was his motto. He made gloves, directed his blacksmiths, wood burners, shoemakers, weavers and in a season mined from the river clear to one-hundred thousand herring, marketing about eighty five thousand of the catch.

POULTRY

QUALITY IN HENS MAKES FOR PROFIT

Rigid Selection Matter of Much Moment.

It is possible to select and breed Leghorns to increase body weight, weight of eggs and number of eggs produced, without sacrificing any of these increases by bring about any of the others, says the Cornell university experiment station in a bulletin recently published.

While it is said to be a normal tendency for the weight of the egg and the weight of the hen to decrease with an increase in the number of eggs laid, selection, the station says, will overcome this tendency. It is said that the tendency was also to lengthen the egg laying period and to put off the time when egg-laying diminishes through the maturity of the hens.

The studies made a careful comparison between strain of high-laying capacity and those of low capacity. The high producers are larger than the low producers, but, nevertheless, it took about twice as much feed to get a dozen eggs from the high producers. When costs and incomes are balanced, the advantage of all is in favor of the pullets from a long line of ancestors selected for egg production. "Given the utmost feed cost, which is about 50 per cent of the cost of producing eggs, or normal conditions as to prices income, there is still an advantage of $1.61 per pullet, amounting, in favor of the high-line bird," the bulletin says.

Poultry House Windows in Summer and Winter

Anyone for the poultry house need no longer be pinned to the same subject as last occasion and a name for the baby in the poultry house books are confined to the front of all summer, says Prof. W. A. Lippincott of the New York State College of Agriculture. Windows in poultry houses are supposed to let in the fresh air and sunshine, and this object is as advantageous in winter but it becomes a badly unsightly pattern on the floor tends to keep the house too hot.

The summer ventilation Professor Lippincott advises having windows on two or more sides of the house. With the windows and ventilating open, the air movement from one side to the other sometimes of the house lower than one of these that does remove dust, odors, and moisture and keeps the house sweet enough.

In this cold, stormy weather in addition to the open front, the windows on the south and east of the house are closed so as to keep out the cold winds. The sun shines in through the glass and warms the house. The windows on the north side are kept open.

Turkey Losses Checked

Experienced turkey breeders have found that many mortalities, including most, if not all, of the losses of young turkeys, are preventable by a number of outstanding precautions and measures as have been.

Tests conducted at the North Dakota Agricultural college show that 69 individually hatched poults could were placed on range ground contributed no losses from diarrhoeal troubles, while 42 brooder poults included from the same lots as the other group and allowed to run with the brooder lost 69 percent previously and by diarrhoeal complaints; 5 out of all lost from with bacillosis. Two of these four poults at the time of succumbing showed characteristics diarrhoeal lesions which killed, leaving only one of the original 42 to get "away" from disease or poisoning.

The mixture of herbs, particularly on shells range to the moisture method to secure the best germicidal properties for chickens—Dakota Farmer.

Clean Shell Important

The clean shell of an egg indicates that it was produced under sanitary conditions. It does no more or any cleaner when eggs after one is once produced and becomes contaminated in the cleanest possible environment. Many of these contagions are necessary for the general health and productivity of the flock. They include dry housing facilities, sanitary precautions, correct nesting arrangements, and feeding practices.—Successful Farming.

Poultry Hints

The period of incubation for duck eggs is 28 days, except for the Muscovy, which is 35 to 35 days.

Crossing breeds or varieties of poultry is not recommended. The birds from the first cross may have the good qualities of both breeds but further crossing will result in a degenerated scrubby flock. . . .

Fifty matured pullets should have good width between the legs to allow the heart, lungs and egg organs to work satisfactorily. In fact, width of back and width between the legs are two essential points to be considered in a good layer. . . .

Thirty breeds of poultry, such as Rhode Island Reds, Plymouth Rocks, and Wyandottes, have been more profitable for the last three years than have the lighter breeds of chickens, according to the east records of some 200 farm flocks. . . .

Over a period of years the cockerels that are held for breeding throughout pens when surveyed in the four years of the system.

In land of certain known will make the same gain as weights as low as ten pounds more W. A. Billings, Missouri university farm. . . .

Keep eggs for hatching stored at low temperatures. At least down to 60 degrees put below as by degrees. High temperatures, that is 70 degrees or more, will slowly reduce the hatch.

Turkey Acquires Noted Mountain

Persia Gives Up All Claim to Little Ararat.

Washington—Part of one of the world's most famous mountains has changed hands as a result of Persia's ratification of a new boundary treaty with Turkey. By the agreements Persia has ceded to Turkey all claim to Little Ararat. Now both peaks, Great and Little Ararat and their common base, lie wholly within Turkish territory, A bulletin from the National Geographic society tells of the finality uncertain whose name is familiar because of its association with Noah and his ark.

Ararat Holy to Armenians.

"Ararat, rich in a region rich from associations of comparable magnificence and height," says the bulletin, "rises so far from the spirited drama has been looked upon not only as a significant landmark, but also as a deity itself. To the south the more unusual peaks of the Caucasus are also seen, while to the known summits of the Elburz range in Persia are but little less prominent, but, nevertheless, it took about twice as much feed to get a dozen eggs from the high producers. When costs and incomes are balanced, the advantage of all is in favor of the pullets from a long line of ancestors selected for egg production. Given the utmost feed cost, which is about 50 per cent of the cost of producing eggs, or normal conditions as to prices income, there is still an advantage of $1.61 per pullet, amounting, in favor of the high-line bird," the bulletin says.

Where Empires Met.

"Approximately seventy miles southeast of the peak of Armenia Ararat rises 12,916 Ararat, 16,946 feet high. The snow line on the Ararat massif is very high—16,000 feet or more. As Ararat is without a white cap like the Caucasus." To the east which also stands 8,000 feet.

"Little Ararat was of unusual individual significance before the World war for three reasons suggested not the least of the Turkish and the Russian boundary meeting formerly entered Little Ararat, as though it the west of into three parts—Turkey, Persia, and Russian. The first two countries, southern shoulder of Armenia Ararat, leaving the entire upper portion of the mountain in Russian territory.

"During the war the Russian Caucasian forces advanced nearly south of Ararat, in 1915 to the Treaty of Kars, Russia and Turkey agreed that their new common, bound of Ararat run about 20 miles south of Ararat, along the river Araxes. Since then Greater Ararat has been entirely in Turkish territory, while the Turkish-Persian line has continued to run through Little Ararat. The recent agreement between Persia and Turkey makes this latter area and a word about the slopes of Little Ararat so that the entire Ararat massif falls within Turkish sovereignty. To complete Persia for this transfer. Turkey has relinquished a narrow strip of territory further south. The adjustments have been made so as not to jeopardize the control of tribesmen living along the border."

OUR ENGLISH SPEECH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is more and more a matter of amusement to me to hear how generally we accept the English ban gauge. It is so in fact wonderful that the illiterate do so; they have had little teaching, perhaps, and then not the best, and they accept it as a matter of fact. We should expect them to wonder.

But it is those who know best (either who write quite accurate English or who have had twelve years of formal drill in English and who obtain often from a home in which English is our language) we should be—and the average graduate who has had four years of formal study of English and in association with those who should set correct standards—I find do not. Those at least should be astonished at the carelessness of their spoken English, or, to be charitable, may we say, commonly inconsistent habits?

I suppose that, to a man who has had an excellent home training, his college and another busy career graduated from college—and he himself, has had for over thirty years a responsible professional experience after he left the halls school—usually certainly to his credit, he will, if he commented his hearers to "cut off" certain practices, be unconscious? But other things more going to happen? he will be conscious of their existence? Or, may we say, commonly inconsistent habits?

I suppose, then

NATION'S FINANCE STANDS TEST WELL

Economic Policy Commission of Bankers Association Points Out How 22,000 Banks Protect Public Interest

OVER 22,000 banks all over the United States are quietly and efficiently serving their communities, helping tide many business enterprises over their difficulties, helping many consumers in many cases, helping create the economic activities that mean payrolls and spending power in their towns of influence, and faithfully keeping the people over the working capital and savings funds of their depositors," the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association says in a recent survey adding:

"It seems wisely strategical to the credit of the banking profession itself, during a period of extraordinary hazard, national economic depression, that vast majority of bankers have so conservatively, so courageously and so sincerely met these difficulties and obligations. The efforts of the strength, the conservatism of agriculture, the stagnation of industry, the break down of trade, the inability of so many to purchase desirable customers to many, many objectives, the inelegant pressure and humiliating requiring new understandings, new methods, have left many millions of our people. Also a large part of the activities of public health improvements has naturally developed through the intelligent advertising of basic products that have to do with bodily care. I refer to the manufacturers and distributors of such things as pure household foods, many forms of medicaments, food products with more wholesome values of nutrition and sometimes with new principles, ideas that have become commonplaces of our daily lives. Many of these things have become a part, too, of the very structure of the personal habits and health of great masses of our people.

If it has been good advertising and sound business for so many of the financial producers to spend millions of dollars thus to broaden and benefit lines of personal hygiene and personal care, it is just good business and good advertising for our banking interests to increase greatly during the next period of prosperity upon better financial habits and statutes of our people."

Bankers above all are interested in stable, wholesome business. They, more surely than any, by waste of sound financial health among the people and most to lose by epidemics of economic maladies such as have swept the country during the past two years.

The man who has to better things been favored with too much credit rather than not enough is finding it is hard to pay his interest now with low prices for his products or labor.

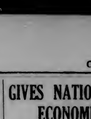
Mr. and Mrs. Dare Burke and daughter of Detroit are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Priest for a few days.

Representative Louis E. Anderson of Northport was a business visitor here Wednesday. He is combining his political activities to the 27th district in which he is a candidate for nomination for state senator to succeed Senator Albert J. Engle, who is a congressional aspirant in the 9th district.

Mrs. E. A. Robinson and son Edward of Boyne City were recent visitors at the home of the formers parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Edwards. 1802 May street.

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association



R. C. STEPHENSON

WE hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and provide more stable business activity. I know no better plan to suggest to insure future prosperity than that every man, every family and every business do-gain cut the coupons (a) down as soon as they are able a program of proper savings as the beginning of sane financial policy.

I know of no better plan than this to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation—that is through a common substitute of individual working saving and saving. And I know of no other plan to give stability to a depression than to build a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business in the two years there are available to spending during depression.

Those who practiced this plan during the past period of prosperity have a security and a protective social position and safety that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones of the row that characterize most unions. If there had been more spending of the dollars since it was more lucrative to put it into other uses it is now there would be less unemployment and less financial distress today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on savings during prosperity, a measure of the unemployment today could be prevented in some way—at least by the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of overtaking their savings. While money have seen their purchasing [illegible] the millions who have not suffered so seriously in regard to the cost of living power of their income. It is to interest to all the state should of the day, one point on the scale with 1926 everybody was out of a job and nobody's business was making anything. Many of our people were able to maintain a normal program of product buying are increasing their expenditures beyond reason.

A Business Stimulus

The sum total of this unprecedented curtailment of spending in an all's people business contributing to the stagnation of trade. By the same token, I believe the resumption of normal expenditure on the part of those who are able to do so would be an important timely toward the summing tion of trade. I do not mean to say that we should have indiscriminate spending merely for the sake of spending, but the very active power of our economic life in the fundamentals of trade, and wants we have that we cannot have prosperity.

I sincerely believe that we are at that point in the depression stage of the business cycle that any sound stimulating influence will start a movement in the direction of a return toward prosperity. So much of the wastage of the old days of affluence has been liquidated, so many mated inefficiencies corrected and such large volumes of our consumers goods have been used up or worn out that the pressure of accumulated purchasing must sooner or later be felt. At that time definitely follow the beginning of the upgrade of a new era of normal business.

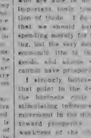
When Government Aids Agriculture

Demand for relief appropriations to organize farming materially from those now in force would increase the impact of economic pressure. To most citizens it is quickly apparent that the most frequently asked-for aid to agriculture is government's simply purchase those farms ready for the market. The basic law of supply and demand have never been personally and immediately applicable. So in general governmental intervention never effectively stimulates prices or even maintains them when the prevailing economic situation obviously shows that conditions are favorable are responsive that price only temporary relief rather than permanent cure. Prices growers may relieve pain for the moment but time surely set at the root of the problem—H. L. Russell

When army worms threatened the crops in Marshall County, Tennessee, information concerning the pests was made available by the College of Agriculture, and bankers immediately took steps to organize a war against the common enemy, calling mass meetings in their communities where concrete facts and helpful recommendations for eradicating could be put before the greatest number of people possible. This timely action saved the destruction of many fields of crops.

WOULD ALTER OUR FINANCIAL HABITS

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association



R. C. STEPHENSON

THE most constructive action the nation can take today toward bringing about genuine stability to our business life is to effect a fundamental change in the mental attitude of the people. Instead of the old mistaken attitude of the middle of all of our previous depressions that quick restoration between wages and profits would be a panacea for all ills, we must now realize that the economic readjustments necessary to bring about a sound and permanent recovery are of a fundamental, structural character. They are economic in character, but they have deep social significance. They involve changes in the habits of the people. They involve changes in the habits of the people. They involve changes in the habits of the people

FEDERAL SUBSIDIES

In the 1931 fiscal year there were 14 states which did not pay a dollar of net taxes into the Federal Treasury—while, on the other hand, the Federal Government paid them $24,000,000 which amounted to $1.78 for every head of their population. In addition, there were 18 other states, representing 35,000,000 people, which made net contributions of Federal taxes of only $146,000,000 plus—less than 7 per cent of total net tax payments. As a result, the 16 remaining states were forced to pay 93 per cent of the Federal tax bill.

The reason is found in the policy known as Federal Direct Aid Payments—simply another way of saying Federal Subsidies to States. The payments are made for a variety of purposes—fighting forest fires, vocational and rehabilitation work, maternity and infancy care, highway work, etc. Some of these are doubtless necessary—others are bureaucratic activities serving no essential purposes.

In 1931 these state subsidies totaled $219,000,000—and in the last 10 years have cost the taxpayers well over a billion dollars. Their tendency is toward steady and definite increases. Further, they tend to increase state taxes, as in most instances the state must match each Federal dollar with a dollar of its own. The temptation to get the Federal subsidy dollar leads to many extravagant tax levies.

Like so many other phases of taxation, the problem of Federal subsidies needs thorough study and direct action. It is one more cause of the staggering burden on the back of the American taxpayer.

STABILIZING THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

During this period of low prices for agricultural products, unorganized milk producers, in their desire to sell their product, have in many cases dumped it on the market without regard to cost of production.

In New York state, where this situation is extremely serious, in an effort to save the dairy industry from complete demoralization, an Emergency Committee of the New York Milk Shed is supporting the program of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association designed to bring under a contract plan 70 per cent of the producers of that territory in order that consumers may be assured of a safe, steady, inspected supply of quality milk at the lowest possible price consistent with some profit to the farmer producing this most essential food.

The milk problem, like that of other farm products, is largely a matter for the dairymen to solve for themselves. A number of cooperative associations, among which the Dairymen's League of New York State has been a leader, have shown that they can produce definite results favorable to the farmer, even in depressed times, without charging the public exorbitant prices.

It is of no advantage to the consuming public to see any branch of the farming industry ruined. City consumers are producers of products sold to the farmers, and when the farmers cannot buy, one of their best markets is destroyed.

In leading this movement to prevent the hysterical dumping of fluid milk into an already glutted market, the Dairymen's League, if it can bring the farmers together under a proved cooperative marketing plan, will be rendering a service to both the consumers and producers which will go a long way toward stabilizing unsound agricultural conditions in one of the most important sections of our country.

As the Emergency Committee work in New York State progresses, the movement will spread to other states and a more solid foundation will be built under our agricultural industry.

THE RAILS MAKE RECORDS

Between 1926 and 1930, a period for which complete data is available, the American railroads made amazing progress in improving their service.

The number of passengers killed declined from one in every 5,500,000 carried, to one in 11,600,000. The number of employes killed dropped from one in 805, to one in 1,553. The average number of freight cars per train increased 34 per cent. The number of tons of freight moved one mile per train hour jumped 48 per cent. Robbery of freight cars—at a time when crime in general was increasing at an unprecedented rate, was reduced more than 90 per cent. Loss and damage to freight went down 74 per cent.

These are but a few of the records made by the railroads in increasing efficiency and economy of operation. They show definitely that the rails have lived up to their obligation as our most necessary and most comprehensive media of transport. The thoughtful citizen, scanning the figures and reflecting on the vital influence of the railroads in the development of all territories and businesses, should realize the need for changes in our transportation policy that will help the industry.

ARSONIST'S CHANCE TO ESCAPE SMALL

In many sections of the United States authorities are making it harder than ever for the arsonist to escape. Exhaustive and painstaking investigations are being made of all fires of a suspicious nature. Added to this, vigilant work is being done by insurance companies through The National Board of Fire Underwriters.

In fires of suspicious origin where loss occurs, payment of the claim may be withheld for sixty days under the terms of the policy, until official police investigation has determined the nature of the cause and established justification for payment of the claim. In plain words, a man in any community today who intentionally burns his property has an exceedingly small chance to escape the law, nor can he expect an anticipated settlement from his insurance for the loss sustained. That is but part of his punishment. He has ruined his reputation, his credit standing in his community and his opportunity for doing future business with reputable business people. Unfortunately, he does not bear his shame alone. His family shares it with him.

The fact that during the last year more than 10,000 lives were destroyed by fire and almost a half-billion dollars in property ruined, is sufficient reason for authorities to cooperate with every scientific means at their disposal in running down suspicious fires that contribute to this tremendous national loss.

ELECTRICITY IN YOUR HOME

Since 1922 the number of homes wired for electricity has more than doubled, and now totals 20,500,000—70 per cent of all homes in the nation. Average domestic consumption of electricity in 1931 was 578 kilowatt hours, as compared with 347 in 1921.

The average consumption is expected to continue to rise at an accelerating rate largely because of increased use of labor-saving appliances. During 1931 appliance sales totaled $613,052,000. Particularly noteworthy gains were made in sale of electric refrigerators and clocks. Even so, only the surface of the field has been touched. At the end of 1931 but 45.5 per cent of wired homes had vacuum cleaners; 40.8 per cent had washing machines; 40.3 per cent had toasters; 5.3 per cent had had ranges. As a consequence, the manufacturers of appliances aided by the utilities, are making intelligent, well directed efforts to stimulate sales and bring to the average home more of the potential advantages of power.

So far as the customer is concerned, increased use of power does not mean a correspondingly larger bill. In the past years the cost has continually gone down as consumption rose. In 1931 the rate was the lowest in history—averaging 5.82 cents per kilowatt hour as compared with 8.5 cents in 1913 and 20 cents half a century ago. Today we can light a home, cook, clean, refrigerate, wash and tell time by electricity for less than the cost of lighting alone in the not-so-distant past.

Increased use of domestic power means more comfort, a higher standard of living, greater economy. What the advent of steam power did to industrial processes in the eighteenth century, electrically powered powered appliances are doing to home life today.

PUT MEN TO WORK

At the San Francisco meeting of the National Editorial Association, a message was received from Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of the General Motors Corporation, which stated that the greatest single task confronting the world today was to find productive employment for those who are out of work. To do so, according to the news story in a San Francisco daily, it is necessary "to take things as they are, not as they should be; to analyze economic facts, base action upon them, and dispel the general lack of confidence."

In every community there exists at least one opportunity to construct or improve some essential public service. Removing the menaces which are responsible for much of the loss of life by building greater safety into highways, could well be considered. Widening roadways, eliminating dangerous curves, alleviating accidents on loose gravel and dirt roads due to skidding, flying stones and dust are among the most necessary objectives.

"The need was never so great, the opportunity never so plainly presented," asserts Dan B. Miller, Managing Engineer, of an Asphalt Co. "Men and equipment are available at unheard of prices. Materials were never so cheap. Take, for instance, the materials which are required to build the type of surfacings used by state highway departments on intermediate traffic roads: crushed rock and gravel can be bought for approximately half their usual cost; asphalts and road oils are the lowest in years."

—AND NOT UNTIL THEN

Most "tax reduction" plans are based on the ancient principle of not letting the right hand know what the left hand doeth. In other words, they shift taxes—and don't lower them.

It is just as painful to take a dollar from one pocket as another—just as painful to pay a new kind of tax as an old one. We will have tax reduction when we force genuine cuts in the cost of running the government—and not until then.

"What shall we use for money?" is a question perplexing most of the nations.

The experience of the last few years has proven that there is not enough gold to carry on the world commerce. Most of the available gold is controlled by France and the United States.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Abraham Lincoln And Present Day Problems

Many of the words of wisdom given us by Abraham Lincoln three quarters of a century ago are applicable to present day problems, according to Dr. John Wesley Hill who writes convincingly on the subject in the current issue of the National Republic under the caption "Abraham Lincoln of Today." In part Dr. Hill says:

"A few years ago, while in Washington, I met that quaint, striking, almost grotesque figure in American politics, Hon. Joseph G. Cannon. It was the night before his retirement from official life.

"In the course of our conversation, I said, 'Uncle Joe, you and I have discussed many of the problems of the day, but we seem to have neglected the question of religion. Do you object to telling me just what your religion is?' Jerking his stogy from his lips, and exuding a column of smoke from his mouth, he exclaimed, 'Not at all, I am proud of my religion. It is simply this. I believe that when God Almighty organized this big corporation known as humanity, He issued its capital stock, and is responsible for the maintenance of its parity, and I'll be hanged if I will part with my holdings in a panic.'

"That was the gospel of St. Joseph. It was likewise the gospel of Father Abraham, who in his early manhood confronted with a crisis which jeopardized his health and peace of mind, took up his pen and wrote a letter to his friend Joshua Speed in which he said: 'My text just now is "stand still and see the salvation of God."'

"It was faith in the eternal which steadied Abraham in the midst of the storm through which he was passing and made him patient, expectant and serene.

"If he were here today he would transcribe the inscription on our coin to the economic sky and write it there in letters of living fire: 'In God We Trust.' God and country were the anchors which held him. 'What is good in the sight of God?' 'What is good before the law?' he asked and answered because of his kinship with the truth, his faith in the right, his repose in the great spiritual realities.

"His ideals and principles are our most sacred, enriching patrimony.

"If we neglect this inheritance it will fall into alien hands. The representatives of agitation and revolution are attempting to appropriate it.

There are over three hundred revolutionary publications in this country which are continually invoking the words of Lincoln in justification of their pernicious cause.

"Lincoln himself anticipated this distortion of his memory, when he said upon one occasion, 'If I should be found dead tomorrow, nothing but my chicanery would prevent a speech being made upon my authority before the end of the week.'

"That prophecy is fulfilled today in shameful misuses of Lincoln's name, in fragmentary and mutiliated quotations of his words, in misapplication of his principles in grotesque immitations of his democracy, in demagogic strutting in his livery, and in shocking caricatures of his character.

"The hour is opportune, therefore, for a Lincoln Renaissance, a revival of his letters, a return to the principles for which he lived and died, 'Government of the people, for the people and by the people,' the divine right of liberty in man, the integrity of the Constitution, the majesty of the law, equality before the law, religious tolerance, racial amity, the substitution of the Golden Rule for the rule of gold, 'A just and lasting peace among ourselves and all nations,' and the solution of every problem 'with malice toward none and charity for all' and 'with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right.'"

Limiting War

In objecting to an editorial in an Eastern newspaper supporting military training for college boys a pacifist writes: "The essential point is this: "If we are to have peace the first thing to do is to eliminate the means of war. Whether this should be done gradually or not is a matter of opinion, but we should begin immediately. The natural point of departure is the schools and colleges. The means to peace is the elimination of the means to war. While we have men to fight there will be war."

Exactly so. The pacifist comes near telling the truth in the last sentence. The truth that he misses is that men will fight when the occasion warrants, whether they are trained to fight or not. The object of training young men in a military way is not only to form a war machine but to give them a high ideal of patriotic duty. And then if war comes, as it may, they will be in less danger of death or injury if they are trained and prepared to meet the foe. When there is hostile contact between a trained force and a raw army of undisciplined troops, there is little argument as to which side will suffer most.

It is to be remembered also that men fought when there was nothing with which to fight but stones and clubs. Later they used spears and swords, bows and arrows, before the modern means of warfare came into use. So it would be impossible to eliminate war, even if every battleship and every gun in the world were destroyed. While there are men to fight we will have war," just as the good pacifist says. So in addition to eliminating all modern implements of warfare we will have to ban the human race itself, if we are to be sure there is to be no conflict.

What the pacifists overlook is that there are two kinds of war, just and unjust. Just warfare is that fought for defensive purposes, when our liberties, our homes, our wives and our children are in danger. All modern statesmen realize the difference between the two kinds of warfare and all efforts of recent years have tended to discourage or eliminate so far as possible, offensive warfare.

But war cannot be eliminated by destroying all the guns and battleships. Continents were devastated and nations destroyed by war long mefore there was a gun or a cannon. The elimination of war will only come about by education and by gradual elimination of offensive armament by international agreement, all nations making equi sacrifices. Any effort on our part to go farther or faster than this would be to commit national suicide.

Farm Population Grows

One of the interesting reports that political scouts are said to be taking to Herbert Hoover is one to the effect that the average farmer, in spite of the depression, and in spite of the low levels to which commodity prices have descended, is no longer so embittered and discouraged as he was a few years ago. There is of course a good reason for this, finding its roots in human nature itself.

Since the depression descended on the urban population in full force, the farmer has come to find out that after all he is not so bad off as a great many other people in the country. He can at least eat and maintain a roof over his head, and can always find some market for what he has to sell.

In the days of industrial prosperity when factories were busy day and night turning out automobiles, radios, electric equipment and so on down the line, the farmer on his visits to the city gathered the impression that everybody was on the road to becoming a millionaire but himself. He saw the shiny new automobiles which were being driven by the factories every day, not only by officials but by workmen, and heard marvelous tales of the high wages which could be obtained by the artisan for seven or eight hours' work. When he contemplated the fact that he, himself, had to work from daylight to dusk for what in many years amounted to little more than a living, after taxes and repair bills were paid, he naturally became dissatisfied because so little of this urban prosperity would trickle on through to him.

But the depression has changed all this. While it has not helped the plight of the farmer, it has brought the man in the city down to a level which has enabled the farmer to extend sympathy rather than to display envy. And finding that the city worker, when factories are closed and there are no markets for finished products, may face not only eviction, but an actual shortage of the necessities of life, the farmer is gradually coming to the conclusion that perhaps he is not so bad off after all.

The truth of this survey is at least partially borne out by the fact that the farm population of the nation has gained 648,000 during the year 1931. There has been a surprising increase in the back to the farm movement especially in the south and west. The boys who went to the city, and the families which moved there a few years ago to get in on the high wages are now gradually going back to the country. In addition a number of city dwellers, like the farmers, are beginning to realize that the country isn't such a bad place after all, since one with a little labor can always get something to eat.

In a statement on this increase in farm population the Bureau of Agricultural Economics recently said:

"The increase in 1931 was the largest and most significant recorded by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in ten years in which the Bureau has been estimating changes in population. For seven years of this period annual decreases were reported and only during 1920 and 1931 were appreciable gains indicated.

In the movement from cities to farms for both 1930 and 1931, and continuing into 1932, were many farmers' sons and daughters who had previously migrated to towns and cities. Many of these upon losing their city jobs have returned to the home farm, many bringing families with them. Some city families have found refuge on the farms of other relatives.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Work on the north side sewer has been commenced, a crew of twelve men beginning excavations yesterday morning.

There is very much regret expressed at the destruction of the three magnificent maple trees fronting the old Aldrich home, now owned by Forest Blanchard. They were transplanted by Capt. Aldrich thirty five years ago and were among the finest in town. Owing to an imperfect knowledge of street lines at that early day, they were placed two feet too far out, and now to make way for a cement walk, they have been ordered destroyed.

Charlevoix after an interval of about ten years is to have a band again. Monday evening a meeting was held and an organization effected. Dr. Wicks is president, Earl Clark, secretary, and Harker Kirby, treasurer. This is just as it should be. There is no good reason why Charlevoix should not have a good band. There is plenty of good musical talent among our young men and we are sure our people will be generous toward such a movement. If we are to have a band let it be a good one, and the only way that can be accomplished is by a public liberality that will insure good equipment and good instruction.

Under the head "Beauty Spots in Nature", very much could be written in a day's visit to Beaver Island and with a camera, some gems of art could be developed. The writer of this spent an entire day there recently and explored ground he had never before covered. Notwithstanding the fact that he has been visiting the Island for a third of a century. Over to the "Nor'ard" but ten minutes walk from the Beaver Hotel, is "the Portage" from which the most enchanting view is obtained. Garden Island stretches out on the other side of a three mile channel while to the left two green spots in the shimmering water a like distance away are Squaw and Whiskey Islands. Then through old Mormon clearings, by sinuous paths, around groves of evergreen, oak and birch; under embowered by ways, we traverse westward, reaching the rock-strewn beach where we catch the first glimpse of High Island, the third and largest in the group; and standing there the vista is one of lovliness. Back you wander by other paths, ever and anon stopping to feast your eyes on some gem in the crown of nature. Hotels are good, and, under ordinary conditions, you enjoy a day at St. James, and its environs. The pioneer visitor cannot forget the homelike old Gibson house, which is as good today as it ever was; the new and larger Hotel Beaver, up-to-date and splendidly located—Beaver Island cares for its visitors, as well as the most fastidious could expect, and you return home on the elegant steamer Beaver refreshed after your day's outing.

The Rifenburg Milling Co. last fall offered a barrel of Iron Duke flour to the person who would make the nearest guess of the date of the first train into Charlevoix. John McNeill, of Marion, made a guess at June 1st, 1892 and last week got the barrel of Iron Duke.

Twenty-five hundred feet of four-inch pipe was ordered Monday for the extension of the water works. Upright avenue will have 265 feet of it; the Charlevoix Lmbr. Co., will have 400 feet of it on their plant; the Chicago Resort grounds will be supplied and the system extended to the depot. Six more hydrants were also ordered—two for Upright avenue; two for the Charlevoix Lmbr. Co. and one each for the depot and the Club House. The laying of the pipe under the river has been sub-let, and the contractors are expected here soon. The power house is about completed and the machinery has been shipped.

Charlevoix has been "bunched." On Monday night, sometime between the hours of twelve and morning, some unknown parties or persons entered the residence of Frank E. Wood, and secured from Mr. Wood's pocket, a roll of bills to the amount of about $100. Of course everybody was asleep and Mr. Wood's clothes were on a chair near the bed. The burg has entered through an unlocked door. It is undoubtedly the same gang that has been "doing" Petoskey lately. No clue.

OTTO W. BISHOP

Otto W. Bishop, candidate for the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket from the 29th Senatorial District of Michigan.

It is particularly interested in the solution of the problems directly affecting the people of this District and state which he believes to be the following.

Michigan's banking laws must be revised to provide adequate protection of bank depositors.

He favors a definite, downward readjustment of the cost of government in State, County, and City, and the consequent reduction shall reflect itself in lower real estate taxes, thus relieving the farmer and small home owner.

He is convinced that the 29th District has not received its just proportion of highway development, and promises to aggressively urge a further highway development in the manner consistent with needs of same and Federal funds available.

LEGION DANCE AND CARNIVAL

AT LEGION HOME SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 3

Saturday evening, September 3rd, has been set as the date of the Legion's farewell carnival and dance at the Legion Home on East Garfield Avenue. Those who attended the affair that was held last summer will remember it with enjoyment and at the time it was urged by many of the summer visitors that the local post repeat this popular entertainment.

This carnival will be the final entertainment of the season and every one is welcome. There will be various entertainment features and the dance floor and music are good.

Monday, September 5th, is the date of the County Picnic at Whiting Park. The Legion will have concessions there and a large crowd is expected if the weather is fine. Plans will be something doing all day.

PROBATE COURT NEWS

A checkup of the work in the Probate Court reveals the fact that there is a constant and increasing volume of business being transacted by the Judges of the Probate Court of the State.

Not only in the increase in number of cases but there is also the same increase in the importance of the cases in those Courts. In Charlevoix County, as it grows older, and more of its citizens are getting to their three score and ten years, there is apt to be a constant future growth in the volume and importance of the business of that Court.

In the past ten years there has been a 30 per cent increase in the number of cases started. The Probate Calendar shows that in 1921 there were 114 cases started and in 1931 there were 146 cases started in the Probate Court in this county.

We also learn from Judge Ruegsegger that, besides the usual Probate of intestate estates there was no wills, he is called upon to draft wills of all sorts, and give advice to those who desire it concerning the preparation of their wills and in matters of the distribution of estates where no will is made, all of which he is glad to give.

That court also has sole jurisdiction of the estates of minors under 21 years of age, and of all estates of insane and mentally incompetent persons, where a guardian is required to handle their property.

Then there is also the matter of appeals and adjudged cases. More than 70 such children have been given hospital treatment, and operations where necessary, in the University Hospital at Ann Arbor, or at the Ford Hospital in Detroit or Blodgett Hospital in Grand Rapids. Some of the children have been sent down three or four times or more, and all without a cent of cost or expense to this county. Of course, only children of poor parents are so treated, who otherwise would be unable to obtain such relief and would likely grow up and later be a public charge.

Not only are they thus given a chance in life to be self-supporting, but there is the satisfaction of being able to say that we have helped these unfortunates to look forward into life with hope and expectation of happiness and enjoyment.

And then there are the Mothers Pensions, those mothers who have lost their husbands, and have children, from 1 to 10 to be cared for. Where they are poor and unable to provide for their children, the law has wisely provided for a pension, to be paid for children under 17 years of age. Charlevoix County has a number of such cases and all require constant monthly checking, which is done personally by Judge Ruegsegger, to guard against loss, or payment to the unworthy.

Judge Ruegsegger has had 76 years of legal training and gives the office his constant personal attention since his appointment by Governor Green in 1930.

which time claims will be heard. It is Further Ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix Sentinel, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

EVERY SATURDAY IS BARGAIN DAY at the
CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERIES

Wonderful bargains in trees, shrubs, and perennials still continue! Something new is offered on our bargain list each week so it will pay you to watch for our announcements for new bargains in garden plants.

We will continue our specials of the last two weeks, namely—Mountain Ash trees, 10 to 15 ft. high, for $1.50 each; Sugar Maple trees, 10 feet high, for 50c each; and the lovely Chinese Delphinium plants for 10c each or three for 25c.

Our new offer this week is the Spirea Anthony Waterer. This is one of the finest shrubs for bloom during the resort season. The plants are loaded down with large flat clusters of deep reddish or wine colored flowers. If the old faded flowers are kept cut off, the shrubs will bloom continually during the entire season. For a medium height planting, these plants are excellent. The price is 50c each.

It will pay you to consult us about our expert pruning service.

THE CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NURSERIES are located 6 miles southeast of Charlevoix, on the top of the hill just across the Ironton Ferry.

GOES AFTER DEBT, STEALS PRINCESS IN "LOVE ME TONIGHT"

A romance between a girl from an aristocratic family and a plain everyday tailor is "Love Me Tonight," a Rouben Mamoulian production, Maurice Chevalier's latest starring picture, which comes to the Palace Theater Friday and Saturday.

Chevalier plays the tailor, with Jeanette MacDonald his feminine lead in previous films, as the aristocratic young lady. Charlie Ruggles, Charles Butterworth and Myrna Loy have the chief supporting roles. Rouben Mamoulian, young director of stage and screen fame, was in charge of the production.

Like previous Chevalier pictures, "Love Me Tonight" is done in a whimsical and humorous vein. Chevalier, the tailor, is good natured and inclined to allow his clients' charge accounts to run. When Ruggles, an irresponsible nobleman, orders and then fails to pay for 16 suits of clothes, he feels it's time to do something about the situation.

So Chevalier trails Ruggles to the castle of his uncle, a duke. Ruggles introduces him as a baron, so that he can remain until funds are forth coming. Meanwhile, Chevalier meets and falls in love with Jeanette. The romance flourishes until Maurice's true identity is revealed. Then she sends him away.

But an amusing and tender climax straightens matters up.

MRS. ANNA PETERSON DIES SUDDENLY SATURDAY

Mrs. Anna Peterson died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E J. Hiller, 304 Antrim Street Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. Heart trouble was given as the cause of her death.

Mrs. Peterson was 76 years old and had been visiting at the home of her daughter a short time before her death.

The body was taken to Grand Rapids Monday where the funeral was held and interment made. Mr. and Mrs. Hiller and Mrs. Hiller's brother, Mr. John Peterson, who resides in Grand Rapids, accompanied the body from Charlevoix to Grand Rapids.

Recent arrivals at Elston Cottage have been reported as follows.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McKinley, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Attricks, of Toledo, Ohio; John F. Todd, and John F., Jr., Indpler, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Shoer, Joseph and Leona Hazelick, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. W. H. Zeff, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Rosen, Muskegon; Miss S. Snow and Miss Kathrine Moore, Dearborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Nyle Jessup, son-in-law and daughter respectively of Mr. and Mrs. Bob MacDonald, after spending a three months vacation here returned to Detroit Monday, where they will resume their duties as educators in the public schools.

Mr. N. H. Broderick motored up from Detroit Friday and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Myers. He returned to Detroit Monday accompanied by Mrs. Broderick, nee Myers, and little daughter, who have been visitors here for some weeks.

Mr. W. P. Vought, mayor at Boyne City and candidate for County Treasurer, was a Charlevoix visitor Tuesday. Your attention is called to his political announcement in this issue of the Sentinel.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nachman of Chicago, are spending their honeymoon by visiting the resort section of Northern Michigan. Two or three days of the early part of the week they were Charlevoix visitors, leaving here for Mackinac Island Wednesday.

"PAINTED WOMAN" PROMISES ROMANTIC SOUTH SEA FILM

A South Seas romance that's "different"—the dramatic and vivid tale of two strong men's rivalry for the affections of a girl of the Far East pivots—this is the colorful theme of "The Painted Woman," which opens next Sunday at the Palace Theater.

With Spencer Tracy, Peggy Shannon, William (Stage) Boyd and Irving Pichel in the featured roles, the picture is hailed as a welcome novelty among the season's screen offerings.

When Boyd, as a trading schooner captain, sails from Singapore for Australia, Miss Shannon goes with him to escape the police, and he puts her ashore on an island nearby to await his return. There she meets an adventurous and reckless pearl-fisher in the person of Spencer Tracy, and the two fall in love, with Tracy finally proposing marriage.

Hearing Boyd's return she refuses him, but subsequently learns of the captain's supposed death, and changes her mind. Soon after the ceremony she finds the report was false, and that Boyd will arrive in a few days. Terrified, she grieves desperately to keep the two men apart and tries to trick Boyd into leaving at once, but her plans are ruined when another island admirer, resentful of her preferring Tracy to him, discloses the truth to Boyd.

The situation results in a highly dramatic climax and one that provides a thoroughly satisfactory ending after many breathless moments.

CHARLEVOIX CO. FAIR TO BE HELD AN EXTRA DAY

Due to the unusual interest on the part of exhibitors and requests by the public, the Charlevoix County Fair, scheduled for Sept. 14, 15, and 16th, will continue through Saturday, September 17th.

This news will be welcomed by thousands who desired to attend at least two days of the Fair. The Fair Board was successful in being able to give the full program Saturday, September 17th, as on the other dates, and the 1932 Fair featuring 25c and 10c admission will no doubt exceed all records in attendance.

MR. HENRY STEIMEL APPOINTED SHERIFF

Mr. Henry Steimel of Boyne City and for some years past one of the deputy Sheriffs, succeeds to the office of Sheriff through appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of former Sheriff Vaughan and will hold the office until January 1, 1933, or until his successor is elected and qualifies. Sheriff Steimel has assumed his duties and hereafter will be the head of the department of county business.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN ON

A general checkup on all automobiles, according to orders from the department of public safety, has been underway for some days and should be completed today.

Chief of Police Jefferies is instructed to take charge of machines and owners where instructions have been overlooked or neglected. Observance of the regulation will prove to be a Safety First program.

Saturday is the final registration day for those who wish to vote at the primary election, September 13th.

Mrs. Geneva Green and daughter Mrs. Hailey of Evanston, Ill., arrived last Friday to spend a few weeks at the formers cottage, 419 Antrim St.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Soule and son "Don" motored to Sheridan Saturday, where they spent the week end with relatives and friends.

Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Mayne and son John of Cheboygan were guests of the Doctor's mother, Mrs. F. W. Mayne and other relatives Sunday.

H. C. MEYER IS CANDIDATE

FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE OF CHARLEVOIX-LEELANAU COUNTIES

Herman C. Meyer was born in Antwerp, Ohio, Oct. 10, 1876, being one of a family of six children—five boys and one girl. The family located at Darlington on a farm about a mile from the city. Herman worked on the farm and attended the ungraded school district until he was 15 years of age, when he went to Aiken to clerk in the hardware store of Ira Brubaker, J. J. Meyer. Before he left Darlington he sold merchandise of that city held him in such closely every customer who came into the store with a view to selling him anything he needed whether it was a one pair of shoes for a child or a new harness for the horse. He accepted this advice at par and has made it the dominant feature of his career ever since. His attributes to fortune a circumstances with his brothers, S. A. Meyer, and partnered his brother's hardware business in Darlington under the firm name of Meyer Bros. A few years later Dr. Ira Brubaker opened a branch store at Hazel City. Five years later they both sold out and went to Valparaiso, Ind., where they operated a year in promoting a business course at Valparaiso University. They then went to Boyne Falls in 1902, where they purchased the hardware and implement stock of A. S. McMahon & Son. The following year they erected a double brick store on Main St., cause fact in commission. A portion of the building is now occupied by Seight and there are many additional tenants for storage and farm implements. In 1907 they added undertaking. This necessitated the securing of a license from the state to practice. He received his diploma from the Barnes School of Embalming and successfully passed the State Examination in 1909 he purchased the interest of his brother and in 1912 he added a complete general stock.

Mr. Meyer was married July 29, 1896, to Miss Lavica Mauer, of Boyne Falls. They have had five children—four girls and one boy—as follows:

Mrs. Achsah Stalker, whose husband will be superintendent of Loud Estate Plantations, Lake Worth, Florida.

Lucretia Herrington, also husband is cashier of the State Bank of Boyne Falls. They have a lady girl and boy—Charlevoix has the regulation family.

Miss Vivian Meyer, who was every the Home Economics Department of the Michigan State College this coming year, Howard Jr., who is a freshmore in Boyne Falls schools.

Mr. Meyer is a member of the Methodist Church of Boyne Falls and has been one of the stewards for many years. He is a member of the Masonic Order, with the Blue Lodge affiliations at Boyne City and with Consistory and Shrine affiliations at Grand Rapids. He was township treasurer six years. When the bank at Boyne Falls failed, he was instrumental in assembling a number of responsible men in the creation of the State Bank of Boyne Falls, which he has served in the capacity of President for the past twelve years. The bank is one of the few banks in Michigan that has placed no restrictions on Savings withdrawals. Every demand has been paid in cash. His experience should be valuable in making laws under his departure.

Mr. Meyer says one of the four advantages of the consolidated school system and largely through his efforts Boyne Falls now has a consolidated school covering the territory formerly divided into two districts. The school has a complete curriculum up to and including high school work, taking accredited on the list of the University of Michigan and all state colleges.

Ten auto busses are required to convey the children to and from school. It is costing the taxpayers only $15 per year per $1,000 valuation. If the old district school method had been continued, the cost for ordinary primary and intermediate courses would be $40.85 per year per $1,000 valuation. Mr. Meyer has written much in support of the consolidated school system and as the result of a very remarkable paper which he read before the Michigan Retail Hardware Association ten years ago that organization officially went on record as favoring the consolidated school. He has also been instrumental in organizing other districts in Northern Michigan, including East Jordan. He was secretary of the Boyne Falls district for ten years.

He points with pride to his twenty-five year membership in the Michigan Retail Hardware Association. In 1930 he was elected a member of the Executive Board and re-elected last February for a term of two years.

Having established an enviable reputation as a merchant, banker, school organizer, citizen and churchman, Mr. Meyer has finally decided to listen to the importunities of his friends and stand as a candidate for the position of Representative in the Legislature in the district which includes Charlevoix and Leelanau counties. His announcement reads as follows:

At the solicitation of his friends, he announces his candidacy for the Charlevoix-Leelanau District at the September primary. He has always supported the Republican principles

WHITECAPS LOSE TO BARNARD "NINE" BY SCORE OF 11 TO 5

Charlevoix's eccentric Whitecaps decided that winning two games in a row would be too hard on their service, and so they lost to the Barnard team Sunday by a score of 11 to 5.

The two teams were well matched in all departments, including hits and errors, so will as being well matched, man for man. But Barnard got their hits in batches and thus managed to score six more than the Charlevoix, as the locals could make only two of three hits in any particular inning. And although Barnard made errors they made them when they didn't matter, and the locals proved the ball away at the most crucial times.

Harriet, Parsons and W. Brow scored all of the locals' runs. Mc Kay, Jr., Mrs. Mark Stewart and son "Jimmy" and one daughter Jane.

They were making a trip to St. Ignace to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Michael Stewart when the car was wrecked by coming in contact with a telephone pole. Mrs. Stewart received the cut and smashed in personal injuries to the three mentioned. All received first aid and were brought back to Charlevoix for further care and treatment in the clinics driven by other members of the touring party.

WARDEN OF CHICAGO CLUB APPOINTED

Members of the board of directors of the Chicago Club of Charlevoix have selected and installed Mr. Otto Krueger as warden to succeed Mr. James J. Gaskin, who for a period of 32 years and until his death filled the position satisfactorily. Mr. Krueger comes from Chicago and has been a regular Charlevoix visitor for many years and has many acquaintances in this region.

He has assumed the duties incident to his new position and as soon as changes and adjustments can be made will with his family occupy the residence provided for the warden located on the club grounds.

There were several applicants for the position some 40 which were made by final race familiar with qualifications and eminently qualified to fill the vacancy. Mr. Krueger however, had the backing of Mr. Frederick H. Gault his employer for the past 17 years, which no doubt was an important factor in the placing of Mr. Krueger in the position.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kallmeller and daughters, the Misses Freda and Katherine of Ann Arbor, were guests over the week end and until Wednesday of Antoney and Mrs. Lillie Shanahan. The several members of the Kallmeller family returned to Ann Arbor Wednesday.

Among the guests were Mrs. Bundy, Miss Bundy and Miss Bell of Detroit. Dr. and Mrs. Burke and family Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Philbrick and family, Mr. and Mrs. Maloney and family of Chicago. Mrs. Dr. Roth of Iowa, Miss Hatch, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Hay and daughter, Mrs. Florence E. Jarvis of Chicago, Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Carolino Soudergreen.

WELCOME RAINSTORM

Now rainfall visited this region Monday morning lasted several hours during which the rainfall was continuous as well as of unusual proportions. The storm came at a most propitious time, did a world of good and no damage.

Mr. Harry Alcock, a Charlevoix visitor for about one week, returned to Chicago Tuesday.

DISASTER PREVENTS HOLDING OF THREE-FAMILY REUNION

A picnic party and family reunion at which the Sowdens, Sowdy and Bottjenos families were scheduled failed to materialize last Friday and proved to disaster for those members of the party when a car in which they were riding left the main highway and landed in a ditch by the road at a point midway between Alden and Bellaire, at 9:45.

The parties injured were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sowdy of Hunchester, Wisconsin, and Mr. and Mrs. Newman of Manistique all of whom were more or less cut by by breaking glass and some minor bruises received when the machine plunged into the ditch.

Other members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Bottjenos, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nowland and son, Ray, Jr., Mrs. Mark Stewart and son "Jimmy" and one daughter Jane.

They were making a trip to St. Ignace to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Michael Stewart when the car was wrecked by coming in contact with a telephone pole. Mrs. Stewart received the cut and smashed in personal injuries to the three mentioned. All received first aid and were brought back to Charlevoix for further care and treatment in the clinics driven by other members of the touring party.

TENTH ANNUAL COUNTY PICNIC

LABOR DAY, SEPTEMBER FIFTH, AT WHITING PARK

All roads lead to Whiting County Park on Labor Day, Monday, September 5, where the Tenth Annual Charlevoix County Picnic will be held. Everyone is cordially invited whether or not anything is doing every picnic of the day. Come early and stay late. Forget your troubles, meet your friends you haven't seen for some time, and enjoy the wonderful outdoors that surrounds us all sides at Whiting Park.

A big feature of the day will be the annual Annual Boys and Girls Summer Achievement Day for the youngsters of the County and Dairy Calf Club held in connection with the Picnic. You will be highly interested in seeing over 600 quality of fruits, vegetables, jellies, jams, meats, etc., on display at least eighty cows from all sections of the county. Eleven different clubs will enter this competition.

In addition there will be 25 dairy calves exhibited by our livestock club members representing 3 clubs. Also fine group of dairy stock will be judges and appropriate ribbons awarded by the various Breed Associations. The judging will start at 2:00 o'clock.

Another feature will be the Annual Governor Summer Show held at Whiting Park for the first time. Over 60 fourgroups from the leading breeds of the county will be exhibited and judged at 2:45 by Mr. A. C. Ballenger, dairy specialist, from Michigan State College. Ribbons will be awarded the winners in the various age classes. You will be absolutely the grandest Governor. Show ever held in the County. Come and see the kind of dairy stock that means success in farming.

At 1:00 o'clock sports and running races of all kinds will begin. There will be several new races that will be greatly enjoyed. Of course, a tug-of-war between the City and County will be included.

Now comes the real redshot baseball games. The first game starts at 2:00 and promises the fastest and Pennsauke teams in thrilling action from start to finish. The players are keyed up to a high pitch, so great fun is in store for you. The second game between the Barnard and Charlevoix Independent Nines starts at 3:30 and will be packed full of baseball. All baseball fans should not miss either several games this season and are in first class condition for the grueling encounters.

HOW TO WRECK A STATE

Practically every state in the union has been faced with innumerable legislative proposals seeking to "help the people" by over-taxing some primarily business or investment. The time worn theory of "taxing the rich to help the poor" has been pretty definitely proven fallacious. Such taxes destroy employment and savings.

When every citizen and every industry is making adjustments to meet a more normal basis of income and expenditures, government departments go merrily on demanding more and levying higher and higher tribute on already over-burdened taxpayers.

The people will get no relief until they curb their own demands on the public treasuries and belittle the tax-spenders, who are their public servants.

Motor vehicle deaths numbered 33,5hh—a new high record. Accidents were the second most important cause of deaths in men, heart disease being first. On the other hand, industrial plants restored employes' injury frequency rates 38 per cent in two years, and railway crossing accidents declined 10 per cent.

In the past decade, industry has made amazing strides in preventing accidents and in lessening their severity. Part of this has been accomplished by improved guarding of machinery. The larger part, however, has resulted from a new spirit of safety first that has been instilled into workers and management alike. Precisely the opposite has occurred on our highways. Recklessness grows, rather than slackens; improvements in cars breeds more deaths and injuries, not less.

What has been done in industry can be done with automobile driving. Just as industrial management disciplines the heedless worker who endangers others, so must the state discipline the heedless driver. If industrial workers can learn the gospel of accident prevention and take it to heart so that it becomes a part of their mental operations, so can the automobile driver learn care, competence and courtesy.

It is time to take drastic action to make our streets and highways safe.

SCHOOLS — A MENACE!

More than half of our schools sought to be torn down!

That is the conclusion reached by T. Alfred Fleming in an article in the Ladies' Home Journal—not because our schools are remiss in their educational duties, but because an extremely high percentage of them are fire-traps.

That will come as a shock to most parents. But, according to Mr. Fleming, we still send millions of our children to institutions that are worse than the little Ohio grammar school where 176 lives were snuffed out in one of the most tragically unnecessary disasters in history. A survey of several thousand schools in different parts of the country a few years ago condemned 37 per cent of them as fire-traps. And, according to the National Fire Protection Association, this proportion is much too low—39 per cent is nearer to the mark. Another survey, of 41 schools in an average city, demonstrated that only six of them were actually fire safe. In the rest the investigators found excessive storage of gasoline, steam pipes touching wooden floor beams, doors opening inward, cartons of paper stored in the boiler room, and so on—all the little faults, resulting from carelessness and ignorance, that are responsible for thousands of deaths each year.

If there is one place where fire prevention should be rigorously enforced, it is in the school. Every building should be protected to the maximum possible degree—every child and instructor should be drilled in the proper action to take in case a fire breaks out. Mr. Fleming's remarks should awaken us to a hazard that cannot be countenanced in a civilized nation.

TRANSPORT FACTS

There is, as a rule, too much prejudice and not enough logic in discussions of the transportation problem.

It is an inescapable fact, no matter how much is said concerning the decline of the railroad, that rail transport is the backbone of the nation's industries.

It is also a fact that there is room for buses, trucks, waterways, oil pipe lines and other means of transport. The problem is how to correlate these agencies so that each may be run on a profitable basis and serve the shipping and traveling public well.

The public interest is the main thing at stake. The people want fast, economical and adequate transport, at reasonable rates. They want great industries, such as the railroad, to maintain a high standard of purchasing and employment. Until the national government perfects a transport policy that affects all interstate carriers impartially in regulation and taxation, the public interest is not served and the stockholders and employes of the railroads are unjustly discriminated against.

WHEN THE PARTIES AGREE

When, in times like these, the two major political parties can agree on an issue, there can be little doubt concerning its importance. That is true in the matter of silver. Both the Republican and Democratic platforms carry planks advocating an international conference on monetary problems, with a view to stabilizing silver.

The word "international" in that sentence should be stressed. No nation can prevent the degradation of silver until other great powers join with it and agree on a cooperative plan. The fact that ruinous silver prices have deprived half the world of a large part of its buying power and brought international trade to the lowest level in decades, points the need for decisive and immediate action.

Every government is interested in silver. So is every business and every citizen. It is a problem of world-wide scope—and at the same time it is a problem which narrows down until it affects the prosperity of every home in the land. Silver also plays an important part in the development of our lead and copper mining industries.

SAPPING THE NATION

In 1913 the total annual tax burden of the country was $2,900,000,000. At present, our ability to pay is less than it was then. Yet in 1930 the total burden reached $12,200,000,000, and it is appreciably higher now. Where, in 1913, the total public debt averaged $43.33 per capita, it now averages more than $225.00.

Congressman McGugin, like other qualified observers, lays the principal blame for exorbitant taxes on the continual widening of government activities. More and more billions are demanded for "relief"—for ventures into business, for subsidies for states. The great bulk of these appropriations can benefit but a small part of the country, and must be paid for by people who get little or nothing in return.

In concluding his address, Mr. McGugin quoted an editorial from the Galena, Kansas, Times, which criticized the habit of many persons, who are opposed to increased governmental activity in general, to ask for it when they believe it to be in their interest, and said: "Let every weekly newspaper in the United States express that thought and sooner or later the people in every nook and corner of this country will be awakened to the need of reducing these governmental activities . . . That is true, and it should be remembered. The country papers of the nation are well fitted to lead in a campaign that will clean the rising tide of taxation and prepare the way for renewed industrial activity and stimulated employment.

ADVERTISING DID IT

Here is what happened to fifty typical business men in the retail trade.

Because "times were dull" twenty-five of these business men cut out their newspaper advertising, and like the ostrich that buried its head in the sand they stood still.

The other twenty-five kept up their advertising, and increased their usual business "gait." Their sales stepped up from 20 to 38 per cent. Printers ink kept the "red ink" off their books.

The classical character described as a "chiel's amang ye takin' notes" investigated the up-and-downs of the business men, and discovered that the twenty-five who advertised had concluded that inasmuch as the National Government was backing the whole Nation with its billions of dollars in resources that it was up to them to back their own communities and its institutions. So, they kept on going, as usual.

It was Wordsworth who reminded us that the man of "cheerful yesterdays" always has his "confident to-morrows."

FARMS WITHOUT HOG OR HEN

The Tompkinsville News is startled at the economic condition of a large percentage of the farmers of Kentucky who applied for federal feed and seed loans this spring, and not without reason.

That 377 of the first 1,000 applicants had only one mule, or no mule at all says the News, might be due to adverse circumstances beyond the farmers' control, but "that 101 of them possessed not a single chicken seems inexcusable." Surely, adds the editor, "not one in ten has been so destitute that he could not keep one hen through the winter to raise two or three broods this summer. It would not take many seasons for a pair of chickens to grow into a flock."

It is a sorry farm and a sorry farmer that has not a single hen to produce eggs and fryers for the market and for home consumption. But what is even more astonishing is the fact that 478 of these thousand applicants owned not a single hog. Even if hogs have been bringing a very low price up to this month, the practice still is widespread of killing hogs on the farm and smoking the family's winter meat supply. The news speaks of a farmer recently buying a pig for a quarter. Yet, only eighty-two of these thousand applicants owned more than ten hogs.

"One cannot help thinking," concludes the News, "that many of those who applied for feed and seed loans were driven to that extremity by their own sorry indifference."

PATHFINDER OF THE SEAS

From Fredericksburg, Virginia there also went out to the ends of the earth a 'Pathfinder of the Seas' to chart the winds and the waves, to establish the first weather bureau in the world, to become the first superintendent of the U.S Naval Observatory and to whom navigation owes a debt beyond computation—Matthew Fontaine Maury. Espousing the Southern Cause, this home was his haven of safety during Civil War days.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

A Multitude of Candidates

In an editorial commenting on the number of names filed for the various offices to be voted on in the coming Massachusetts primary the Boston Transcript says:

"Primary reform may come of its own accord, if the filings continue to present the jumble of candidates listed in Secretary Cook's office yesterday. More than 2,300 persons have filed for only a small fraction of that number of offices for which nominations will be made in the primaries Sept. 20. For the eight seats in the Governor's Council 200 persons seek nomination.

"This is democracy run mad. Out of this welter of aspirants how can any voter mark his primary ballot intelligently? An overwhelming number of these candidates are not even known by name throughout the state, many of them not in the districts they are ambitious to represent. Present officeholders particularly in the state ticket and for Congress, probably will find safety in the numbers of their opponents, and the incumbents may have attained through their service. Incumbents in the primaries may designate themselves as 'for renomination', but this distinction must disappear from the ballots used on election day."

There can be little disputing the argument set forth by the Boston paper. The same conditions hold true in other communities and other states. It was the theory of the primary, when such legislation was generally enacted, that it would give the people a chance to rule. But in a large number of cases it doesn't work out that way. In the first place the people are so fed up on a continual series of elections that they do not turn out as they should and nominations are made by minorities, and often by minorities which win not because of their fitness but their activity. And in populous regions there are so many names filed that the average voter is at a loss in many instances to know whom to vote for, with the result that he marks the greater part of his ballot haphazardly, just to get it over with as quickly as possible.

And instead of becoming the boon of the poor candidate the primary very often defeats him. For the candidate who has the money or the influence to build a big organization and to advertise and send out quantities of literature about himself has a big advantage over the financially poor candidate, especially in populous districts above referred to.

Although the primary was supposed to get rid of the political bosses it has not done so. It has only served to make the bosses less responsive to party discipline. Nobody would, of course, want to go back to the old convention system without safeguards. The man who can devise a workable system, combining what good there may be found in the primary system, with the party convention, will be a real benefactor to his country.

That Northport Indian band should have attended the Charlevoix tournament. The result might have been different. It is a marvelous organization, equipped with a most extraordinary array of musical talent, and exhibiting a technique, rare—very rare. In points of instrumentation and finesse they equal if, indeed they do not excel all white organizations in this section. Attack, marvelous; symphony, enchanting; cadence, paralyzing; expression, very expressive; time, very much so. The battery section was strikingly responsive and the blause section remarkably successful in accentuation. It is a great band.

The plasterers have taken possession of Mr. R. N. Faulkner's fine new Main street residence. When they leave it the windows will be boarded up, and the building will be left until the spring of 1894, as Mr. Faulkner's business in Chicago will keep him there until after the World's Fair. When completed this will be the finest residence in Charlevoix County, and one of the finest in northern Michigan.

The Sentinel takes a lively interest and commendable pride in Charlevoix institutions. It rejoices in the prosperity of its business men; it points with pride to a development in mercantile enterprises surpassing that of any town in Northern Michigan in the same number of years; its boast is that Charlevoix mercantile and manufacturing interests are not resting upon mortgages and the capital of money loaners—they rest upon a bottom, laid by years of pluck and energy. The hum of machinery, as it resounds across the harbor, has a charm for our ears surpassing that of the sweetest music. The whistle and snort of the steam tugs, and the escaping steam of the lake steamers at our docks is a feast for our soul. The clink of the brick trowel, and the sound of the hammer put meat upon our bones, (as it were) and blood in our veins. The panting to and fro of delivery wagons is a pleasant sight to us because it means business. The Sentinel takes pride in these things, because they have come within the period of its existance. The Sentinel has seen a hamlet of a dozen houses transformed into a busy commercial and marine center. We have a right to be proud, and we are prouder yet to know that this is but the beginning of what is to come.

Prof. J. B. Allen, the new principal of the Charlevoix school, has arrived with his family and will this week occupy his residence, recently purchased of Byron See. Mr. Allen has come to Charlevoix to stay. Both Mr. and Mrs. Allen are veteran educators, and the principal will be aided by his wife, who will from time to time occupy herself in the school rooms. It is to be hoped that our people will—in such manner as school patronage always can—assist Prof. Allen in making the coming school year a successful one.

W. H. Porter, of Pine Lake, arrived from Milwaukee on Thursday, bringing with him a full outfit for his grist mill consisting of a turbine wheel; mill stones and smut machine. Mr. Porter will soon be prepared to do all kinds of grinding.

The contract for the erection of the new school house has been let to Messrs. S. M. See and D. C. Nettleton, of this village, who commence the work with a full force of hands on Monday morning. The building is to be 30x70 on good stone foundation, two stories in height, and surmounted by a neat belfry. The conditions of the contract require that the entire completion of the building outside and one room inside for use next winter. The building will undoubtedly be completed next season.

OUR GROWTH

Nowhere on the shores of Lake Michigan can be found a village of fairer promise than Charlevoix. As we look at the Charlevoix of four years ago, that of today, mark its healthy growth, and contemplate what the resources of the region are to make it, we are thankful that our steps have been guided hither. Thus far this season the growth of the village has been remarkabl in its extent and nature. The direct benefit of a portion of it will not be felt immediately, as four out of the many buildings are stores, which will not commence business in earnest until spring. The store of W. C. Newman is nearly completed and has the finest front in the village. Carpenters is a substantial and roomy building and will be an ornament to the lower portion of Bridge street. Harry Newman's bakery, on the same street is under way, and, although small will be finished in neat style. The hardware store of Norris and Stockman, on the corner of Bridge street and "Hoop Skirt Alley," is rapidly approaching completion, and will be occupied next week. The Fountain City House, which was completed this summer, will compare with any House in Grand Traverse, and is gaining for our village a reputation among tourists equalling that of Mackinac. Besides those completed, several residences are in process of construction and others to be built this fall. The school building about to be commenced, will surpass anything of the kind in Grand Traverse. Messrs. Fox, Rose and Buttars are about to build an other large warehouse on Round Lake and are contemplating the erection of another mammoth store next season. The buildings erected this season will constitute fully one-half the village, and we predict a still greater growth next season.

The river improvement now in progress will add still more to the importance of Charlevoix. And while the village is thus advancing, the region roundabout gives evidence of a parallel development. Farms are being cleared up, and good sterling men are coming in, many of them with capital. Wm. Nelson, by the erection of a mill in the eastern portion of the county, will, aided by the railroad, soon work wonders in the development of that section. A gentleman is now in town who intends to erect a mill in some good locality near Pine Lake, for the manufacture of hard-wood lumber and railroad ties. The prospects for an iron furnace at no distant day are no good and the county is just beginning to feel the influence of the restoration to market of the Railroad and Indian lands. This most favored portion of the "Garden of Michigan" is fast rounding up into a region of wealth and its capital into a spired city.

Remember the meeting of the Grant and Wilson Club on Monday evening next.

Remember the meeting of the G. R. & I. railroad is held to the Manistee river.

More Straws—A vote on the proposition of Oneota, on Monday, illustrated the fact that out of 34 passengers on board, 27 preferred the election of Grant, 7 of Greeley, and four out of seven were dark hands.

The surveying party on the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw R. R. have been at Cheboygan recently, and the Times of that place, thinks the road will be built to the mouth of the river, as the best point from which to cross the straits in the winter. The engineer having charge of the line from Otsego Lake to Cheboygan is engaged upon its survey.

of government and for the good four years he served as chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican committee.

He pledges his support for drastic reductions of all state expenses and the reduction of Real Estate Taxes. One thing Dean Lennon advocated during his campaign was a Non-Resident Auto License Tax. He advocated the elimination of passing commissioners and deputies.

Having conducted a successful automobile business in Boyne Valley for the past thirty years and served as President of the State Bank for the past twelve years, together with his knowledge of farm needs he has varied experience, which he thinks the state should acquire him as their Representative at Lansing.

During Mr. Meyer's term as County Chairman, Charlevoix County sent its four annual delegates. Mrs. Maud Armstrong as the State Committee woman and this year sent one to Allencourt, the National convention.

Mr. Meyer has long, especially strong support which he promises to continue and more so if all the signs of his nomination are reflective of such in general and the opposition of no school house. He has made a long and careful study of both state and federal affairs and knows the needs and requirements of the people of his district. With this background of business experience and long experience in several different lines of business, Mr. Meyer will prove to be one of the best state Republican legislators ever developed in a heretofore Democratic county. He promises to be governed by any dictated opinion which does not appeal to a majority of sound and good intelligence. He will not pledge to any faction or group and will not pledge to any pending legislation but will study it carefully and intelligently before voting. Primary election day is Tuesday, September 13th. Remember your vote will be appreciated.

NO BACKING DOWN

Americans who believe in national defense and that includes about ninety-eight per cent of our population, will be pleased with the statement emanating from government sources the other day to the effect that Uncle Sam in the forthcoming Geneva arms conference will continue to insist upon the retention of real American battleships and the eight inch gun cruisers. The policy of "no surrender" to the British attitude will, it is said, be maintained during the informal conversations preliminary to the reopening of the conference during the coming winter.

European nations, it is said, under the inspiration of Great Britain are seeking to cut down the size of battleships to 22,000 tons. They want also, to reduce the size of cruisers so that a six-inch gun will be the limit. In the recent conference the American government was willing to reduce the total tonnage of battleships and cruisers, in agreement with other nations, but was not willing to reduce the size of the ships.

The reason for this difference of opinion between the United States and Great Britain is easy to see. For British purposes smaller cruisers carrying six-inch guns, and small battleships are perfectly practicable. The reason is that Great Britain has so many naval bases scattered over the face of the globe where replenishment of fuel and supplies may be had, that she does not need the larger ships. But the United States, with few naval bases, must have ships of a long cruising radius so that the smaller vessels would be much less useful to us in proportion.

Great Britain claims to want the smaller ships because of the economy involved. But there is just as much economy in building fewer ships as President Hoover proposed. So if John Bull thinks the small ships are just as good as the larger ones, all he has to do is to agree to a reduced tonnage figure, with equal tonnage for himself and Uncle Sam. Then he can build his smaller ships and let Uncle Sam do as he pleases so long as he does not exceed the tonnage figures. Of course, John Bull will not do this. Nor will he agree to eliminate his naval bases so that smaller ships for himself would equal smaller ships for Uncle Sam. So the only thing for the United States to do under the circumstances is to do just what it proposes doing, and that is to hold out for ships that will be of some use to the American navy.

"BUY AMERICAN-MADE"

With sharply curtailed manufacturing operations, reduced wages and general unrest, the time was never more propitious than the present for patronizing home industries.

Forget about irrevelant political issues —the biggest job that Uncle Sam has on his hands right now is selling American-made goods to the American people.

We have 123,000,000 people in the U. S. A. to feed clothe and provide with other necessities and luxuries of life. The people employed in American industry should consider themselves a great committee to boom and boost American made goods.

Industrial leaders can very materially assist the movement by demanding that everything going into the manufacture of machinery and merchandise shall bear the stamp, "Made in the U. S. A."

Furthermore, the government itself can aid American industries and American workingmen by making it obligatory on every purchasing agent and department to buy only equipment "Made in the U.S.A." Strange as it may seem, even the government has been guilty of patronizing foreign manufacturers and foreign producers to the detriment of our own operators and operatives.

We make or produce practically everything needed for the inhabitants of the United States right here in the United States—things that are either as good as any made elsewhere in the world or amply good enough for the people—Millionaire, manufacturer, government officials and workingmen—who make or earn their bread and butter in the United States. Spread the gospel of "Buy American-Made!" It means dollars in your pocket, no matter who you are. —Industry and Labor.

SAFETY

Governors of 29 states and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia initiated a concerted program of automobile accident prevention on August 1st., when simultaneously they issued proclamations or public statements to the citizens of their respective commonwealths, calling upon them to participate in a general movement to safeguard life and limb upon streets and highways.

The proclamations, messages and statements of the Governors in general commend the activities of the press and the many clubs, societies and organizations which are cooperating and spreading street and highway safety principles. They appeal to all citizens, whether driving or walking, to assume and exercise a sense of personal responsibility in making one of the nation's streets and highways. Cooperation with proper officials in local communities and with state traffic authorities was urged as an important element.

Approximately 80,000,000 persons were contacted by the proclamations and statements. These comprise more than 65 per cent of the nation's total population. They include 70 per cent of the total of 34,000 deaths occurred.

It is only by joint action of every individual and agency concerned that the nation can successfully combat the ravages of the misused automobile. Properly handled the motor car is a safe, convenient, expeditious form of transportation. Handled improperly, it is the most destructive weapon of modern life. Greater care on the part of all persons can effect a reduction in the loss of lives which reached around 34,000 last year, with nearly a million persons injured.

Results will be watched with great interest as favorable outcome may establish August 1st as a safety proclamation day and make the month a fixed period for an annual combined effort directed toward the solution of this national problem.

FOREIGN TRADE MIRAGE

One of the excuses which our noisy internationalists make for urging Uncle Sam to join the League of Nations cancel the debts, lower his tariff wall, and enter generally into the European scheme of things is that he will in so doing in so doing increase his foreign trade. Although this foreign trade amounts only to about ten per cent of our total trade, the internationalists seem to think for some reason or other that it is a pot of gold at the end of an internationalist rainbow which will make us all rich in time. They point to the shrinkage in our foreign trade since the depression began and blame it on to our nationalistic policies." They fail to point out that in value our domestic trade has shrunk many many times as much as our foreign trade, that if we can restore the domestic trade the foreign trade will take care of itself.

In this regard it is satisfying to point to the recent address by the American writer, Henry Kitteridge Norton, in which he told the Institute of Politics at Williamstown that permanent recovery for the United States depends on renunciation of the world market for "more intense cultivation of the domestic market."

Doubtless these words were quite a schock to the balmy internationalists gathered at Williamstown, most of whom are used to giving and receiving advice about joining the League of Nations and cancelling the war debts, but it ought to do them some good.

"It is idle for us to pursue further the will-o'-the-wisp of the world market" he said. "Capitalism," he continued, "will raise the standard of living in the United States and increase profits as soon as we realize that we can dispose of our products only among the masses of our own people."

WHAT IF WE HAD THIS LAW?

If our states were suddenly to pass laws similar to those of France, which make a property-owner whose carelessness causes a fire responsible for damage done to other property, fire loss would drop overnight to a new low.

There is not much danger of such a law coming into being. But it would be a good thing if we pretended it already existed, and acted accordingly.

The first step would be to check up on wiring, chimneys and flues. Are they in the best possible condition? Will they pass a rigorous test? Then we would have to lay plans to prevent carelessness with matches, cigars, waste, rags, inflammable liquids and similar "household menaces." If we were putting up a new building, we would see to it that the construction was of the highest standard—the few dollars inferior construction might save would not compensate for possible loss in the future. We would retain the information. It wouldn't go into one ear and out the other as, in too many instances, it does now.

The American is the most wasteful and careless and ignorant person in the world when it comes to fire. He is the most inept in preventing it. It is about time we applied some of our much vaunted American efficiency and intelligence to the fire problem.

THIS PROBLEM OF MONEY

Debasement of silver values has deprived half the world's population of a large part of its purchasing power. It has been an important factor in depressing foreign trade to the lowest level in many years, thus destroying the livelihood of hundreds of thousands of our citizens. It has so disturbed the monetary systems of the world that permanent economic recovery is all but impossible until the problem is solved.

As a matter of fact, there is not enough gold to keep the wheels of international business in motion, and what gold there is, is largely controlled by two countries, France and the United States. The way out is by the establishment—through international agreement—of a fair ratio between the values of gold and silver, thus furnishing us with two money metals instead of one. Both the major political parties have pledged themselves to that. A multitude of business leaders and business associations continue to point out the need for it. The time for definite action has come.

A bunch of nice Charlevoix boys will shake the Charlevoix dust from their feet this week and leave for the Michigan Agricultural College at Lansing. The boys are Will Gagnon, Gale Hines, Arba Cameron, Howard Francis and James Wilkinson—all boys that will honor Charlevoix wherever they go.

There was a peculiarity about a railroad wreck reported last week in Ionia. The locomotive was No. 13; 13 cars were derailed; 13 passengers were in the two coaches at the rear if the combination train; it was on the 13th day of the month, and the accident is said to have occurred at 1:13—still no one was hurt.

The Mackinaw City Village Council renamed old Fort park Wawatam Park and has ordered it resurveyed, after which it will be tendered to the state, to maintain in perpetuity for memorial purposes. The government will be asked to erect and maintain a memorial park to commemorate and mark the spot of the Indian massacre at the old English fort, Michilimackinac, June 4, 1763, one of the bloodiest battles of savage warfare. It will be remembered that on that day the English garrison at the fort, consisting of 93 soldiers and officers had been invited by the Indians to watch their ball game (haggaleay), which was played near the fort. The invitation was accepted. The ball was knocked high in the air and backward and forward and finally fell within the fort. After it rushed 400 Indians and then the butchery commenced. The massacre having been stealthily planned, Indian women had secretly carried into the fort to be used, knives, tomahawks and other weapons of warfare. Only 14 of the English garrison, including Captain Ethington and Alexander Henry, Kinzian, escaped with their lives. The latter was saved by a friendly Indian named Wawatam, in honor of whom the Park was now named.

On Saturday Dor mounted the dod-gasted thing on Bridge street, heading north, not as the crow flies, but in a general sense. He succeeded in driving all the vehicles into the side streets until at the bridge approach he met an omnibus. The driver tried hard to get out of the way, but there wasn't room enough, and our friend and the vehicle met in violent collision, the tongue of the bus striking Dor in the abdomen, dismounting him. Although badly hurt, he reached the Fountain City House, where for a time, he suffered greatly and it was feared that the injury was serious. Although yet confined to his room, he is gaining and will soon be about. There is a moral attached to this incident, which we would apply were it not for hurting Bro. Hampton's bicycle trade.

We learn from Rev. A. J. Hadley, who for two weeks past has been laboring in this interest here, that a Congregational Church is already organized here, and that a council is called of the churches of Traverse City, Northport, St. Ignace, Banks, and special delegate, Rev. Leroy Warren, State Superintendent of Home Missions, for its recognition the 19th of September, public services including sermon, will be held at the M. E. Church on the evening of that day. This enterprise starts off quite strongly, the lot for site of the church having already been purchased on corner of State and Clinton streets. Material for the foundation will be gathered this fall and winter, and building erected in early spring. As acceptable minister is to be immediately found, and services will shortly be regularly held in the school house or hall until the church edifice is completed. The proposed building will be neat and tasteful, with infant class and lecture rooms separate from auditorium, and will cost about $3,000. We are informed that $500 toward the building is pledged by the home missionary authorities of the church. We hope the enterprise may receive the hearty support of our citizens, as it is not only in the direct line of our best moral and social interests, but also serves to improve our village, in which we all take such pride.

The result of the Republican Representative Convention held in this village on Wednesday, was the unanimous nomination of Major Edward H. Green, of Charlevoix, on the 186th ballot—every ballot but the last being a tie vote between Mr. Green and Mr. Ambrose E. Palmer of Antrim County. On the 179th ballot, Mr. Palmer, perceiving that the convention had come to a dead-lock, withdrew his name in favor of Mr. Green. Major Green being called upon by a committee, appeared before the convention.

Major E. H. Green is a resident of this village and Prosecuting Attorney of the county. A graduate of the Law Department of the Michigan University, he is a lawyer of ability, a clear-headed reasoner and cannot but make a successful legislator. He fought through the late war for the Union, entering the 108th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry as a private soldier and for his gallant conduct in the field, he was promoted through the various grades to the rank of Major, and was also promoted Lieutenant-Colonel for meritorious services. As a man he is unimpeachable, as a Republican he is invincible. He will represent the District, ignoring the individual or sectional prejudices which might influence some men. In thus lauding the successful candidate, we would not over-look the fact of the young gentleman for whom the Antrim County delegation so gallantly contended. Andrew E. Palmer is about twenty-six years of age; a resident of Brawstown and is connected with the business of Silkman & Co., of that place.

RE-ELECT

Calvin A. Campbell

OF INDIAN RIVER, MICHIGAN

To the Office of State Senator

From the 29th Senatorial District of Our State, AND SOME OF THE REASONS WHY:

His record speaks for for the best interests of good County. He has been on the job every minute, having never missed a rollcall in last three sessions. He is a fighter for Northern Michigan, for hard-surfaced roads in the North, and for Conservation. At the last special session he fought to the last ditch against the diversion of state highway funds. He was opposed to the granting of millions of dollars from these funds to pay for the extravagance of some of the lower counties of the state, and while unsuccessful was the author of having at least 50% of all of the funds left for new construction, "earmarked" to be spent in the Northern Counties of the Lower Peninsula.

SENATOR CAMPBELL had charge in the Senate of the MINE TUBERCULAR HOSPITAL BILL and succeeded in getting it through the Senate over a strong opposition. This Hospital will be placed in the upper part of the lower peninsula.

SENATOR CAMPBELL also had charge in the Senate of what is known as the "GREEN ISLAND" bill and succeeded in getting this passed against heavy opposition. This legislation requires the State to pay to the Township, for an acre for all lands in the Township taken over by the State for delinquent taxes, etc., which money goes to the support of schools and roads in said Township.

SENATOR CAMPBELL is the author of most all of Michigan's AERONAUTIC LEGISLATION, which legislation among other things requires a 3c gas tax and a franchise tax on aeroplanes, the tax to be used to help build and maintain landing fields in every county in upper Michigan.

SENATOR CAMPBELL also was the leading exponent of the last CONGRESSIONAL REAPPORTIONMENT and it was through his efforts principally that the present law is now in effect. This law leaves all of northern Michigan's Congressional districts exactly as they have been for years, although the present northern Congressional districts only have approximately 50% of the population of the Congressional districts in the metropolitan areas. Senator Campbell stands squarely upon no further reapportionment for the members of the State legislature.

SENATOR CAMPBELL stands for a radical REDUCTION IN STATE TAXES AND RIGID ECONOMY in the whole state government.

To The Democratic Electors OF THE ELEVENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

As a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress from this district, I will appreciate your support and vote at the coming Primary Election.

If nominated, I intend to make a vigorous campaign for the Democratic ticket throughout the district.

If elected, my endeavor will be to do my part in easing the heavy burden of taxes now imposed on the American people, with due regard for the Government's obligations.

I believe that a change in administration will be of great benefit to the country, that the present Republican administration has been tried and found wanting and that a new and vigorous administration is needed from the people in the need of the present.

I stand squarely on the Democratic platform.

LAKE CLAIMS YOUNG VICTIM

BILLIE HOW, TWELVE YEARS OLD, FOUND DROWNED

Lake Charlevoix claimed another victim Monday afternoon in the person of Billie Howe, twelve year old son of Phil Howe who lives at Ironton, only a short distance from the point where the tragedy was enacted.

But little is known concerning the drowning of the lad who left the family home alone some two hours before his body was found and removed from the water.

Billie had returned from school about 2:30 p. m. and soon thereafter went to the lake to enjoy a swim. Remaining away from the house longer than usual Mrs. Howe started to discover the reason for the lads non return. Upon searching at the lake shore Mrs. Howe found the lads clothes but no signs of Billie. Help was summoned, search instituted and the lad's father, who was away from home at the time, notified.

The body was discovered by Geo. Hansen, only a short four feet of water a short distance from the lake shore, some two hours after Billie left the house to take a swim that terminated fatally for him.

Funeral service was held at the Ironton Church Wednesday afternoon and interment made at Brookside Cemetery

HUNTING LICENSES ON SALE SEPTEMBER 15

The 1932-33 small game licenses will be on sale through approximately 1,800 license agents of the Department of Conservation, Thursday, September 15, fifteen days prior to the opening of the season.

In a few northern counties the licenses have been available since the beginning of the week.

The licenses, which for the first time in several years are not accompanied by "buttons" were distributed to the various agents by truck from Lansing.

Mr. Robert Bridge, Cashier of the Charlevoix County Bank, was elected Chairman of group two, Michigan Bankers Association, composed of ten counties in Northwestern Michigan, at an Association meeting held at Traverse City, Monday night. Mr. Bridge succeeds Mr. W. F. Lundborn of Manistee who for the past year has been chairman of group two.

Mrs. Joseph Howard, Mrs. Ray Faulkner, son Ray Jr., and Eddie Zingfeld a personal friend of the latter, made a trip to Sault Ste. Marie Friday where they spent the week end. The three last mentioned returned home Tuesday. Mrs. Howard remaining at the home of her sister for a more extended visit.

Recent arrivals reported from Elston cottage are:

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sharr, Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. W. Heaton, Grand Haven; C. S. Eaton, Grand Haven; Mr. and Mrs. Bosark, Mrs. John Beaton, Edith Bartilman and Franklin Egand, Chicago.

Mr Albert A. Wilbur and nephew, Master George Cline returned to Chicago Sunday, following a visit here over the week end with the formers parents, Captain and Mrs. O. E. Wilbur.

JOAN BLONDELL PLAYS CENTRAL ROLE IN NEW FILM

It was a murder that shocked the nation.

It was "The Famous Ferguson Case."

The new First National feature picture bearing that title is coming Friday and Saturday to the Palace Theater, and if advance reports are true the local public is going to have a plentiful supply of chills and thrills. Also it will get a peep into the real world behind the scenes of newspaper making, as has never before been granted to the great army of newspaper readers.

Joan Blondell plays the central role in "The Famous Ferguson Case"—that of Margie Brooks, a "tush sis-tet" or woman reporter for a sensational paper. She is assigned to write "hob stuff" for her sheet about the dreadful affair at Cantwell when the wealthy banker, Mr. Ferguson of New York, is found murdered under circumstances which point the finger of suspicion directly at Mrs. Ferguson and her close friend Judd Brooks.

All the great newspapers of the United States were represented at the scene of the murder twenty-four hours after it was committed. Clues followed close; a weak district attorney was cajoled and browbeaten into taking one sensational step after another, each day had a new thrill for the front pages.

Wherever "The Famous Ferguson Case" has been shown since its recent release, critics and public have hailed it as the most vivid and pulsing drama of its kind ever issued from a Hollywood studio.

A warm and human love story runs through the exciting progress of the plot. Besides Joan Blondell, the cast numbers among its members Tom Brown, one of the newest Hollywood leading men, Adrienne Dore, Walter Miller, Leslie Fenton, Vivienne Osborne, Y. Carroll Naish, Purnell Pratt, Russell Hopton, Kenneth Thomson and Grant Mitchell, besides many others of equal standing in popular favor. Lloyd Baron directed it.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Boudeman, accompanied by their son, D. O. Jr., after occupying their summer cottage on the Belvedere grounds during the latter part of the vacation season, returned to Kalamazoo early this week.

Postmaster C. B. Meggison and family were guests of Mrs. Meggison's relatives in Flint over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rose, accompanied by their grandson Mason Rose Jr. of Sarasota, Florida, who has been here some months, motored to Saginaw Sunday. From Saginaw the grandson goes to New Hampshire where he enters College on an earned scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson closed their summer home, on the Belvedere grounds, a few days ago and Monday left for their home in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pitcher, recent guests for some days of Mr and Mrs. Bob Sterritt, returned to their home in Muskegon, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Cameron after spending the summer months at their cottage on Burr Avenue, returned to their Chicago home Friday, with other family members.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS

LOCAL NURSERY CONDUCTING EXPERIMENTS FOR U. S. GOVERNMENT

It is of special interest to residents of Upper Michigan to know that the Charlevoix County Nursery is doing some experimental work for the United States Government. The nursery has been selected as a "key" grower station for the testing of hardiness and growth development of various plants sent out by the U. S. Department of Plant Importations.

Among the plants that are being tested now are the new Nettarines which have a very promising future as a popular fruit for table use. The Nettarine is a cross between a peach and a plum. The fruit looks like a large plum with the smooth skin, but tastes like a peach of fine flavor. It is a free stone type.

Hitherto the Nectarines have never been tried out this far north, the plants at the Charlevoix County Nursery show wonderful growth and do not suffer from ever winters true of the plums plants has three fruited out at the present time.

Another interesting plant in the Zelkova sinrata or the Sweiss Zelkova. This is a handsome Japanese tree which grows to a height of 70 feet at maturity. It has a dividing trunk, forming a head like an elm. Among some of the other Japanese introductions are the Japanese Oak, the Ibota Oak and a Japanese Honeysuckle.

Other countries are represented in the foreign plant trial grounds at the nursery. Some of them are the Joint Fir of India, the Juniperus from France, a Siberian Apricot, a New Zealand Plum and Apricot from New South Wales, Australia, pansy trees from Spain and New Zealand, and a Chinese Quince.

Everyone is invited to see these plants in the trial gardens at the Charlevoix County Nursery, 6 miles southeast of Charlevoix.

HOME FURNISHING PROJECT FOR CHARLEVOIX COUNTY WOMEN

Plans have been definitely arranged for the first lesson in the Home Furnishing Project to be held in the Royne City Library on Wednesday, September 21st beginning promptly at 10 a. m. It is expected that at least 25 ladies will be present to receive the first lesson from Gertrude Reis, Specialist in Home Furnishing from the Michigan State College.

In addition to the two leaders, Miss Reis would like the Chairman and the Secretary from each local club to also be present at the morning session. The morning session will be for all of those women and the afternoon lesson just for the leaders. However, if all women from one club come together, it will be perfectly all right to have the Chairman and Secretary also attend the afternoon session.

If there are any districts in the county that have not organized themselves to make it possible to receive this work, kindly let your county agent know and he will be glad to assist in the organization of a club. This work costs you nothing and will prove to be of great interest to you as a housekeeper and home maker.

BRUCKER, DICKINSON, CAMPBELL, BOHN LEAD

Primary Election up to the past. The General Election is just around the corner, but the result of the primary election is a matter of history, which the result of the general election will not in the main be difficult to forecast after an honest candidates are nominated. At least an accurate prediction looks easy at the present time.

Naturally, some candidates met with disappointment by not securing the coveted nomination. Even so there has been no exhibition of a disgruntled nature displayed by any defeated candidate. There has been some talk by other than candidates that some results are displeasing to them and that they will lay their ballot at the general election, since their personal dissatisfaction by voting for some opposing candidate. That is the privilege regarding as to whether or not it is good politics. Then too there is some talk that an effort will be made to defeat some of the regular nominees through the slip candidate process. That on infrequent occasions in the past has proven successful and at other times disastrous to the slip candidate. At this time there are two men who are seriously contemplating entering their names as candidates for election using the slip method, hoping thereby to defeat the regular nominee.

For State Senator, Calvin Campbell the present incumbent also was renominated.

For State Representative Douglas D. Tibbits is the nominee and his winning in a three-cornered contest was perhaps the great surprise of the primary election.

In the county the nominees are:

Judge of Probate, Erwan A. Rogers.

Sheriff, Floyd Ikens.

Prosecuting Attorney, Arthur L. Hosh.

County Clerk, Fenton B. Bulow.

County Treasurer, Joseph Wm. Flanders.

Register of Deeds, Frank F. Bird.

Circuit Court Commissioner, Linn Stanton.

Drain Commissioner, James Simmons.

County Coroner, Dr. F. F. McMillan; S. B. Stackus.

Surveyor, Ed. S. Starks.

For Governor Wilbur M. Brucker was renominated as also was Luren D. Dickinson for Lieutenant Governor.

ENTERTAINS AT BRIDGE

Thursday afternoon Mrs. C. H. Waltemeyer and Mrs. Elmer L. Johnson entertained the following guests at bridge: Mrs. H. Bedford, of Charlevoix; Mrs. H. L. Batel, Montpelier, Ohio; Mrs. Farley, Chicago; Mrs. A. Kennedy of Chicago, Miss B. Odell, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. H. Rosen, Cleveland, Ohio; and Mrs. G. E. Smith of Montpelier, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenfield of Bellaire were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira A. Adams.

DIRECTOR SLOMAN TELLS HOW VOCALS CHANGED PRODUCTION

Interesting a success picture of comedy is like trying to catch a wet eel. Most of them fight shy of the spotlight of publicity. They prefer to have their work speak for them. Then again they are the humans of all the busy people engaged in making pictures. They never seem to relax.

However, if you are curious and interested, you may consult Lloyd Sloman at the Paramount New York Studios where he happens to be employed in his acting work. It was there that the writer had time for a pull and busy at a previous meeting Sammy Lancaster, Richard Arlen and Jeanette Loudoun at their latest picture "Wayward," which comes to the Palace Theater Sunday and Monday.

Sloman believes that intermission in motion picture is all to the good. In fact he says even pictures and a large magazines write appeal for a breather, temporarily, that reason even an integral part of a director's work. Sloman was engaged at the Paramount offices according to his reason, taste functional all that.

To get a picture done in reasonable shooting time, a director must handle his players briefly and efficiently. Minutes mean money on a motion picture set and temperamental people are not conducive to saving money. Most stars in the movies, Lloyd Sloman, agrees with a director as a matter of principle. There seem to be people from the fact that they unfairly thought it was one of their privileges and they resent to exert that to. This Sloman appreciates the director and the set was a comfortable one. This he says all goes efficiently with the actors at ease."

Today players realize that a business combination of managers and actors is the best and there are many fine examples in the state. In the actors all of the five stock members had been seasons around the Bijou. Also the 4-H Club members had their own band which played through out the parade.

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD LAST FRIDAY IN COMMUNITY ROOM

Mrs. Flanders and Mrs. Todd were hostesses and Mrs. Usher leader at the W. C. T. U. meeting held last Friday afternoon in the Community Room.

Mesdames Leonard, Rife, Rauch and Kelderhouse and Miss Mynott were elected delegates to the District Convention to be held at Central Lake M. E. Church September 20th 21.

Mesdames Castle, Leonard, Kelderhouse, Simmons and Rauch were elected to go to the Dale Convention which will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Flint, October 13 to 14.

A school of instruction for women unions followed the meeting at which candidates and their qualifications were discussed.

Nassau Burns motored up from Plainwell Friday primarily to assist Mrs. Burns with the pinning of their Dixon Avenue cottage for the season. With the work completed Mr. and Mrs. Burns return to Plainwell for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bridge went to Midland early this week where they visit their son Mr. Clarence N. Bridge and family for some days.

CLUB BOYS VISIT THE STATE FAIR AT DETROIT LAST WEEK

Lawrence Smith, Chesterfield, Kirtland Palmer, Royce Ulch, Fred Sweeney, East Jordan and Gerardine Hott, East Jordan were the four Farmers club boys who had the opportunity of visiting the Michigan State Fair at Detroit last week.

Lawrence Smith entered the Dairy Judging competition while the other three boys represented Charlevoix County's Crops Judging team. These boys had to compete against similar teams from all sections of the state. In the Crops Judging competition, competing against 21 other boys, Robert Palmer had the fifth highest score, which is a very creditable performance.

In the Dairy Judging competition, accomplishments have as yet been made as to whom the highest boys were but we sincerely hope that Charlevoix Smith will maintain the same place that he has in the past.

In company with County Agent Mellenamp, the boys left for Detroit early Wednesday morning of last week and returned home late Friday night. They all report having had a most wonderful time and saw exhibits that very few boys have had the opportunity of viewing.

The number and quality of exhibits were fully as good as last year and as far as an outsider could tell the attendance was all that could be expected. Especially inspiring was the 4-H Club Parade that took place on Thursday night when fully 250 club members from all counties of the state marched with their club pins on and carrying banners indicating the residency in the state. In the parade all of the five stock members had their banners around the Bijou. Also the 4-H Club members had their own band which played through out the parade.

LEGION TRI-POST MEET SEPT. 20

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED AND APPROVED

Tri-Post Meeting assures the popular meeting. To date planting of Commission County Legionnaires at Charlevoix.

At the session the program for the coming months will be discussed with the committees named as both the county and national conventions report Verbal.

An executive committee including the heads of the various committees, has been appointed by Commander Henry to discuss matters of business and prepare them for presentation at the regular meeting of the post. It is understood that in this way the business sessions can be shortened and a lot of time-wasting discussion of details can be done away with.

The executive committee will also include the chairmen of an auditing committee and to other duties. The committee follows: Harry B. Brown, chairman; William E. Taylor, Vice-Commander; Leo O. Allard, Past Commander; Fred V. Tyler, Adjutant-Perkins; Clarence B. Meggison, Fenton Bulow, Finance, Orrin F. North, Chaplain, visiting; Frank B. Wilkinson, Americanism; Charles A. Hamill, membership; Edward J. Lisle, publicity; Fenton B. Bulow, service; William B. Gray, recreation and entertainment.

The district convention of the W. C. T. U. will be held next week at Central Lake M. E. Church beginning at 1 p. m. Tuesday and closing at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

The state president, Mrs. Thera B. Wheeler of Battle Harbor, will be present and give addresses Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon.

Central Lake Union invites all temperance workers to attend the convention.

Fine, or pillow your Mountain Ash trees at the Charlevoix County Nursery this year at the Dealers Ferry Price and be assured of 12-18" each—Adv. 2111

The Congregational Women's Missionary Society will meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Pearl Brown, 101 Mason street.

AMERICAN COURAGE

While there has been no general upturn in our basic industries as yet, we feel that things are going to get better soon because the old American courage is beginning to assert itself. A few months ago we were plunged into the depths of gloom. At the beginning of the summer we were told that America would soon go off the gold standard and that chaos would result. But it didn't happen. The first rift in the clouds came with the announcement that Europe had taken all the gold it could take from our shores and that Uncle Sam still had plenty for his own use. Then bonds began to strengthen in price, to be followed by a rise in stocks.

Many of the temperamental ones, who had been sure only a few weeks before that we were headed for the dogs financially, began to assert that we were again on the high road to prosperity. But the sober minded people, those who had never lost faith in the fundamental strength of the republic, did not join this procession. They were relieved and satisfied to know that a turn had come in public psychology at least and they felt that sooner or later this would be followed by an upturn in business. There are doubtless yet a few rough places to be surmounted, but with America's courage restored this ought to be comparatively easy. Nothing can be done when the people are despairing. But huge changes do all things.

Although there has been little change in our heavy, slower industries as yet, there is hope to be found in some lines of commercial enterprise. Textiles and shoes are looking up. And one of the sure indicators of better times, and better public psychology can be found in the change in the moving picture industry. One of the men who have been persistently bullish on America has been Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who has consistently refused to become a pessimist. More than six months ago when clouds were darkest he came forth with a statement that so far as his industry was concerned there was no depression which could not be cured by better pictures. Since then the industry has been thoroughly reorganized and it is now climbing the hill again, following a general industrial house cleaning, with substantial reduction in operating costs on every side.

But what is more important to the public, from the standpoint of our economic psychology, the people are once more seeking amusement in something like old time numbers. Major production companies are again on a full schedule, so that thousands of people have gone back to work and the results are showing in the box offices. Reports from points as widely distributed as San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Charlotte, Boston, Kansas City, Albany and Washington indicate that theater attendance is beginning to point back toward normal again.

This is cited as an example showing the changed psychology of the people. Persons who seek amusement are not revolutionists; neither are they pessimists or defeatists. They are people who want to forget their troubles and by momentary relaxation get a firmer grip on life. The financial situation of the theater can be taken as a measure of what state of mind the people are in and what and how well they are doing. An increase in motion picture theater attendance can well foreshadow a general increase in business, one to which the heavier industries should later respond to.

What has been done in this industry can be and is being done in others. Every where manufacturing and distributing corporations have been reducing their overhead, rendering their plants more efficient and better able to show profits when the turn comes. Selling the public something better and more useful than it has had in the past will make any industry win in the end whether it be an amusement enterprise or one which provides clothing or equipment. Offering the people what they want will eventually cure any depression, just as Mr. Hays confidently stated in the dark days of last spring. Mr. Hays' statement, which may have seemed bold at the time, is now proving its truth, all over America.

VOTERS MUST CONTROL TAXATION

In 1927 the major departments, commissions and bureaus of the Federal government cost the taxpayers $1,964,000,000.

In the 1932 fiscal year they cost $3,195,100,000—an increase of 63 per cent. The cost of one department increased 220 per cent in that time —another jumped 117 per cent—two others went up 113 per cent and 106 per cent, respectively.

The most amazing phase of this is that we were in a far better position to pay in 1927 than in 1932. Those were boom days, when extravagance was taken almost as a matter of course. In the last three years businesses and individuals have been forced to cut costs and adjust outgo to reduced income. Only the governmental departments and commissions and bureaus and whatnots have demanded that an unending stream of dollars be ready for them to spend.

The meaning of all this should be clear enough by now. We face the specter of tax bankruptcy. We are experiencing a tax policy that is forcing money into tax-free bonds, throttling business and creating unemployment and distress. Government extravagance and waste strike deep into every pocketbook.

There is but one solution—drastic cuts in the cost of government. There is but one instrument for achieving that—the demand of the people, who pay the taxes and cast the votes. Theirs is the final word. Until that word is spoken emphatically at the polls, the economic future of America must remain clouded by doubt.

RAILROADS AND THE UNEMPLOYED

This modern industrial axiom is especially applicable in the case of the railroads. Eighty-five per cent of the nation's freight is carried by them—and no other agency could carry it as cheaply and as efficiently. Yet inequitably regulated land and water competition has forced railroad retrenchment, resulting in the passing of dividends by many lines, and contributing further to unemployment.

In the single state of New Jersey there are 16,000 fewer residents in railroad employ than there were four years ago, and railroad payrolls to residents of the state have been reduced $27,000,000 annually. It must be remembered that the earnings of railroads cannot be compared to those of other businesses, inasmuch as during years of prosperity stringent regulation prevents them from making even as much as six per cent on their investment.

We are all interested in the railroads, whether we know it or not. They occupy a position of the first importance in the industrial scheme and their prosperity is directly related to the prosperity, or lack of it, of banks, insurance companies and a multitude of manufacturing and producing industries. What happens to the railroads will directly or indirectly, affect us all.

SAVING LIVES—LIMBS—DOLLARS

An insurance company has published a booklet on "What a City or Community Can Do to Save Lives, Limbs and Dollars on its Streets and Highways." It deserves the widest possible attention.

The suggestions it offers fit the needs of the smallest hamlet and the greatest metropolis. They are simple, effective and cost nothing to inaugurate because they touch everybody and would promote cooperative action for the common good. They could be the means of saving thousands of lives that would otherwise be unnecessarily blotted out by accident.

In every community a committee should be formed to take charge of specific activities for promoting street and highway safety. Members of the committee should include the mayor, chief of police, the local newspaper editor, the heads of civic clubs, etc. A speakers' bureau should then be formed to acquaint the public with the accident problem from the standpoint of the community, the state and the nation at large. Posters, radio and motion pictures could all join to bring the message vividly before the largest number of people. Police officers, coming in direct contact with traffic law violators, can do much in instructing drivers in the fundamental principles of safety. Newspaper articles would explain the causes of accidents resulting in deaths and serious injuries.

KILLING THE WORK HORSE

A good many politicians seem to believe that the way to solve unemployment is to levy more taxes on the industries which, if a permanent and sound prosperity is to be achieved, must provide the jobs.

They figure that the way to get more work out of a horse is to load him so heavily that he is unable to move out of his tracks! The people must realize that it is from prosperous industries that they secure employment, and not from industry-killing politicians and taxation.

DO YOUR PART

Beginning with the 1932 Fire Prevention Week, let us determine to cut the American fire waste, which runs about $500,000,000 a year, in half.

That is the suggestion in an article in Safeguarding America Against Fire. The American people could take upon themselves no finer project. In these days of distress, a half-billion-dollar waste is unthinkable, and even that seems a small matter in the light of the fact that fire destroys 10,000 lives annually.

This year Fire Prevention Week will be observed from October 9 to 15. It will open with proclamations from the President of the United States and from governors of states, mayors of cities and other officials. Chambers of Commerce, fire departments, trade associations and state fire prevention groups will give every effort to instructing the public in fire hazards and their elimination. Each of us will have the chance to learn, pleasantly and painlessly! If we fail, we have shirked a duty to the community.

Every fire reaches into every pocketbook—threatens every piece of property in the community—endangers every life. It is a tragic, an unnecessary waste. It is only made possible by thoughtlessness, laziness and ignorance. It can be stamped out by thought and care.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

PIONEER SHRINE IN KENTUCKY

Every turn at Harrodsburg, Kentucky is a page in pioneer life. The weather vane on the Courthouse clock—a woodsman in coonskin cap—will silently signal the traveler that he is coming into a land of romance and adventure. In the replica of Old Fort Harrod will be found household utensils of 1774, and a little school room with backless benches and three books—one a Bible—will grip the hearts of passersby. Truly a pioneer shrine in American history!

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

One bit of satisfactory news which may have escaped a great many people in their concentration on the political campaign now being waged in America is that which came from Tokyo the other day to the effect that Vice Admiral Somura, of the Japanese navy, would sail next month from Yokohama on a good will mission to the United States. According to the Associated Press dispatch from Tokyo his mission "is a result of what high naval officials designate as the 'loose talk'" on both sides of the Pacific concerning the possibility of conflict between Japan and the United States."

That there has been a great deal of talk about such a conflict may surprise those who have not studied the situation. Doubtless a great deal of it has come from persons and newspapers attempting to embarrass the national administration in a political way, and much more of it has come from those who desire to further the interests of Soviet Russia in America, and realize that from the Russian standpoint it would be fine to involve Uncle Sam in some zeal controversy with Russia's traditional enemy, Japan.

Which leads to the question what it is all about? The misunderstanding, such as it is, centers around the Manchurian problem. The Japanese claim that control of Manchuria, either directly or indirectly, is a vital issue to them. They say that Japan's overflow population has been shut out of America, Australia and Canada, and that there is no place for it to go except in the direction of Manchuria. They say further that the Chinese have no orderly government and will not have any in this generation or the next, and that the disordered conditions in Manchuria seriously affect Japanese business and commerce and indirectly the commerce of the rest of the world.

On the other hand the people of the United States have always had an affectionate interest in the Chinese people, because of what seems to be their inherently unfortunate situation. Americans have hoped that the Chinese would eventually find themselves and establish a strong government, thus adding to the peace of the world and the possibilities for foreign trade. For this reason they have resented the incursions of foreign powers into Chinese territory. The present situation was brought about by the Japanese excursion into Manchuria which has led to the statement by Secretary Stimson to the effect that the United States will not recognize governments set up by force.

What makes the situation rather delicate is that Great Britain and France, the two leading military powers of Europe, do not see eye to eye with Uncle Sam in this matter. According to political observers in Europe they are willing for Japan to establish herself in Manchuria feeling that this will go a long way toward pacifying the Orient and will keep Japan so busy she will not be able to interfere with British and French plans or possessions in other points of the Orient. The only European country which is at all apt to dispute Japan's progress is Soviet Russia.

Now those in America who profess to fear a clash between Japan and America claim that when the question is threshed out before the League of Nations it will be found that Uncle Sam is almost isolated in his stand on Chinese affairs, except perhaps for the moral support of some of the smaller countries of Europe. England, France, and Italy, they say, will be disposed to let Japan take her own course and will not worry any if she is involved in difficulties with the United States. They add that the discussion of the situation in the League of Nations is bound to cause a bitterness which may even disrupt the League itself.

While the situation from the standpoint of the United States might be fraught with danger if misunderstandings were allowed to develop on both sides it must not be forgotten that there is no disposition on the part of Uncle Sam to go to war to enforce any sort of policy in the Orient, and this disposition will not change. While America may disagree with other powers about the ethics of the Manchurian situation she is not going to war about it, and it is doubtful whether Japan will attack America over the situation especially in view of the fact that she is already in Manchuria and apparently determined to stay there. But because the situation is delicate it is very satisfying to know that the distinguished Admiral Nomura is coming to America in an effort to clear up what misunderstandings may exist. He can be assured, in the United States of an impartial hearing.

Miss Mattie Bedford returned to Kalamazoo College last Friday. Misses Lottie Cook, Ethel Smith, Clara Blodgett and Gertrude Shapton leave next week for the Mt. Pleasant Normal.

J. W. Harris has accepted a responsible position as civil engineer on a big railroad construction job in Oklahoma and Indian territory and will leave for his new field of work next week. When Mr. Harris settled down here last fall, and entered the real estate business, it was his intention to make this his permanent business home. To this end he erected a cozy home on the bluff. Mr. Harris wants it understood that Charlevoix will continue to be his home and here his family will remain. But the recent offer from his old chief was too flattering to be turned down. There is much regret expressed that he must leave, but nobody blames Jim. Wherever he goes, everybody in Charlevoix wishes him well.

The new residence of L. E. Allen on the South terrace, occupies the most sightly position of any town. From the tower which graces the north front, a view is obtained charming in the extreme. Lake Michigan, Pine Lake, extend to the right and left while below lies the prettiest village in America, with an unobstructed view of both sides of the principal business street. In our opinion it is the finest site for a residence of any in Charlevoix.

Now that the long desired object is accomplished we think Charlevoix is to be congratulated upon her recent accession of the Lakeside Park property. Its nearness to the heart of the village, its beautiful configuration, natural and thrifty shrubbery, and its surf-beating gravel beach, makes it a spot capable of being made one of the loveliest public parks in the State. We have no doubt the village will consider it wisdom to annually appropriate a liberal amount of money toward its improvement.

Sixty Years Ago

A letter was mailed at this office lately to "Travers Celitty", Mich.

The school building begins to assume its mammoth proportions.

Henry Morgan, Esq., has taken a contract of building two cribs, forty feet in length, on the south side of the mouth of Pine River.

Capt. Jas. Pratt has been forced by ill-health to retire from the position of mate of the propeller Manitant, and Capt. I. S. Weimer, of this place, succeeded him.

Through the enterprise of Messrs. Dexter & Noble, of Elk Rapids, a new route of travel has been opened up to that place for the people of the northern portion of Grand Traverse. A short and comfortable ride by stage to the head of Torch Lake, lodging one night at William's Hotel, and a quick but pleasant trip down Torch, Round and Elk Lakes, on the beautiful side-wheel steamer Queen of the Lakes, is our way of traveling "up the bay" hereafter. We had the pleasure of this trip on Monday, and will have occasion to remember it from the real enjoyment which it afforded, and the large scope of country with which it favored our vision. We found the Queen commanded by Capt. Lawrence Newton, and experienced pilot on these lakes and rivers. But first let us describe the boat, which is a model of beauty. She cost about $25,000, is 107 feet in length, is driven by a powerful engine, and can make 12 miles an hour. She has a snug and beautifully furnished cabin, a commodious kitchen and other rooms on the main deck, and a dining room and several sleeping apartments on the upper deck. Our old friend "Sam" Arnold, we found acting in the capacity of clerk, and by whom we were well entertained. Steaming down Torch Lake, which is eighteen miles in length, stopping at various points, we passed through Torch River, rather a difficult stream to navigate, owing to its circuitous route and many sand-bars, through Round into Elk Lake, then through Elk River to the very door of Messrs. Dexter & Noble's mammoth Store. We found at the Rapids many improvements—one in particular, the large and beautiful wharf depot near the shore. This establishment is too well known for us to describe it. After spending about two hours among our acquaintances, we stepped aboard the steamer again and took our back track for home, arriving at the head about eight in the evening. Mr. Noble informed us that their steamboat investment is proving a profitable one, and we certainly know that the benefit to the people is almost incalculable. We hope the day is not far distant when the people of Pine Lake will be in possession of a similar advantage.

I LIKE THE DEPRESSION

I like the depression. No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was to like to eat common, every-day food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high-hat.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half a day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression! I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbor." One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy! I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant-tailor—two and three suits at a time. All of my clothes were good ones, I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit of clothes in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up, and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in one another. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go to a party, I could never locate her, and since there was always a "blonde" or a "redhead" available, I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers' club. We didn't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck up and bifalitin'. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan. When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl into mine. If she came in later it was vice-versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage, and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a half water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels on my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

AMERICAN COURAGE

While there has been no general upturn in our business industries as yet, we feel that things are going to get better soon because the old American courage is beginning to assert itself. A few months ago we were plunged into the depths of gloom. At the beginning of the summer we were told that America would soon go off the gold standard and that chaos would result. But it didn't happen. The first rift in the clouds came with the announcement that Europe had taken all the gold it could take from our shores and that Uncle Sam still had plenty for his own use. Then bonds began to strengthen in price, to be followed by a rise in stocks.

Many of the temperamental ones, who had been sure only a few weeks before that we were headed for the dogs financially, began to assert that we were again on the high road to prosperity. But the sober minded people, those who had never lost faith in the fundamental strength of the republic, did not join this procession. They were relieved and satisfied to know that a turn had come in public psychology at least and they felt that sooner or later this would be followed by an upturn in business. There are doubtless yet a few rough places to be surmounted, but with America's courage returned this ought to be comparatively easy. Nothing can be done when the people are despairing. But hope changes all things.

Although there has been little change in our hearts, wheer industries as yet, there is hope to be found in some lines of commercial enterprise. Textiles and shoes are looking up. And one of the sure indicators of better times, and better public psychology can be found in the change in the moving picture industry. One of the men who have been persistently bullish on America has been Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who has consistently refused to become a pessimist. More than six months ago when clouds were darkest he came forth with a statement that so far as his industry was concerned there was no depression which could not be cured by better pictures. Since then the industry has been thoroughly reorganized and it is now climbing the hill again, following a general industrial house cleaning, with substantial reflection in operating costs on every side.

But what is more important to the public, from the standpoint of our economic psychology, the people are once more seeking amusement in something like old time numbers. Major production companies are again on a full schedule, so that thousands of people have gone back to work and the results are showing in the box offices. Reports from points as widely distributed as San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Charlotte, Boston, Kansas City, Albany and Washington indicate that theater attendance is beginning to point back toward normal again.

This is cited as an example showing the changed psychology of the people. Persons who seek amusement are not revolutionists; neither are they pessimists or defeatists. They are people who want to forget their troubles and by momentary relaxation get a firmer grip on life. The financial situation of the theater can be taken as a measure of what state of mind the people are in and what and how well they are doing. An increase in motion picture theater attendance can well foreshadow a general increase in business, one to which the heavier industries should later respond to.

What has been done in this industry can be and is being done in others. Everywhere manufacturing and distributing corporations have been reducing their overhead, rendering their plants more efficient and better able to show profits when the turn comes. Selling the public something better and more useful than it has had in the past will make any industry win in the end whether it be an amusement enterprise or one which provides clothing or equipment. Offering the people what they want will eventually cure any depression, just as Mr. Hays confidently stated in the dark days of last spring. Mr. Hays' statement, which may have seemed bold at the time, is now proving its truth, all over America.

VOTERS MUST CONTROL TAXATION

In 1927 the major departments, commissions and bureaus of the Federal government cost the taxpayers $1,964,000,000.

In the 1932 fiscal year they cost $3,195,100,000—an increase of 63 per cent. The cost of one department increased 220 per cent in that time —another jumped 117 per cent—two others went up 113 per cent and 106 per cent, respectively.

The most amazing phase of this is that we were in a far better position to pay in 1927 than in 1932. Those were boom days, when extravagance was taken almost as a matter of course. In the last three years businesses and individuals have been forced to cut costs and adjust outgo to reduced income. Only the governmental departments and commissions and bureaus and whatnots have demanded that an unending stream of dollars be ready for them to spend.

The meaning of all this should be clear enough by now. We face the specter of tax bankruptcy. We are experiencing a tax policy that is forcing money into tax-free bonds, throttling business and creating unemployment and distress. Government extravagance and waste strike deep into every pocketbook.

There is but one solution—drastic cuts in the cost of government. There is but one instrument for achieving that—the demand of the people, who pay the taxes and cast the votes. There is the final word. Until that word is spoken emphatically at the polls, the economic future of America must remain clouded by doubt.

RAILROADS AND THE UNEMPLOYED

This modern industrial axiom is especially applicable in the case of the railroads. Eighty-five per cent of the nation's freight is carried by them—and no other agency could carry it as cheaply and as efficiently. Yet inequitably regulated land and water competition has forced railroad retrenchment, resulting in the passing of dividends by many lines, and contributing further to unemployment.

In the single state of New Jersey there are 16,000 fewer residents in railroad employ than there were four years ago, and railroad payrolls to residents of the state have been reduced $27,000,000 annually. It must be remembered that the earnings of railroads cannot be compared to those of other businesses, inasmuch as during years of prosperity stringent regulation prevents them from making even as much as six per cent on their investment.

We are all interested in the railroads, whether we know it or not. They occupy a position of the first importance in the industrial scheme and their prosperity is directly related to the prosperity, or lack of it, of banks, insurance companies and a multitude of manufacturing and producing industries. What happens to the railroads will, directly or indirectly, affect us all.

SAVING LIVES—LIMBS—DOLLARS

An insurance company has published a booklet on "What a City or Community Can Do to Save Lives, Limbs and Dollars on Its Streets and Highways." It deserves the widest possible attention.

The suggestions it offers fit the needs of the smallest hamlet and the greatest metropolis. They are simple, effective and cost nothing to inaugurate because they touch everybody and would promote cooperative action for the common good. They could be the means of saving thousands of lives that would otherwise be unnecessarily blotted out by accident.

In every community a committee should be formed to take charge of specific activities for promoting street and highway safety. Members of the committee should include the mayor, chief of police, the local newspaper editor, the heads of civic clubs, etc. A speakers' bureau should then be formed to acquaint the public with the accident problem from the standpoint of the community, the state and the nation at large. Posters, radio and motion pictures could all join to bring the messages vividly before the largest number of people. Police officers, coming in direct contact with traffic law violators, can do much in instructing drivers in the fundamental principles of safety. Newspaper articles would explain the causes of accidents resulting in deaths and serious injuries.

KILLING THE WORK HORSE

A good many politicians seem to believe that the way to solve unemployment is to levy more taxes on the industries which, if a permanent and sound prosperity is to be achieved, must provide the jobs.

They figure that the way to get more work out of a horse is to load him so heavily that he is unable to move out of his tracks! The people must realize that it is from prosperous industries that they secure employment, and not from industry-killing politicians and taxation.

DO YOUR PART

Beginning with the 1932 Fire Prevention Week, let us determine to cut the American fire waste, which runs about $500,000,000 a year, in half.

That is the suggestion in an article in Safeguarding America Against Fire. The American people could take upon themselves no finer project. In these days of distress, a half-billion-dollar waste is unthinkable, and even that seems a small matter in the light of the fact that fire destroys 10,000 lives annually.

This year Fire Prevention Week will be observed from October 9 to 15. It will open with proclamations from the President of the United States and from governors of states, mayors of cities and other officials. Chambers of Commerce, fire departments, trade associations and state fire prevention groups will give every effort to instructing the public in fire hazards and their elimination. Each of us will have the chance to learn, pleasantly and painlessly! If we fail, we have shirked a duty to the community.

Every fire reaches into every pocketbook—threatens every piece of property in the community—endangers every life. It is a tragic, an unnecessary waste. It is only made possible by thoughtlessness, laziness and ignorance. It can be stamped out by thought and care.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

PIONEER SHRINE IN KENTUCKY

Every turn at Harrodsburg, Kentucky is a page in pioneer life. The weather vane on the Courthouse clock—a woodsman in coonskin cap—will silently signal the traveler that he is coming into a land of romance and adventure. In the replica of Old Fort Harrod will be found hasecked clapboards of 1774, and a little school room with backless benches and three books—one a Bible—will grip the hearts of peaceably. Truly a pioneer shrine in American history!

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

One bit of satisfactory news which may have escaped a great many people in their concentration on the political campaign now being waged in America is that which came from Tokyo the other day to the effect that Vice Admiral Nomura, of the Japanese navy, would sail next month from Yokohama on a good will mission to the United States. According to the Associated Press dispatch from Tokyo his mission "is a result of what high naval officials designate as the 'home talk'" on both sides of the Pacific concerning the possibility of conflict between Japan and the United States."

That there has been a great deal of talk about such a conflict may surprise those who have not studied the situation. Doubtless a great deal of it has come from persons and newspapers attempting to embarass the national administration in a political way, and much more of it has come from those who desire to further the interests of Soviet Russia in America, and realize that from the Russian standpoint it would be fine to involve Uncle Sam in some real controversy with Russia's traditional enemy, Japan.

Which leads to the question what it is all about? The misunderstanding, such as it is, centers around the Manchurian problem. The Japanese claim that control of Manchuria, either directly or indirectly, is a vital issue to them. They say that Japan's overflow population has been shut out of America, Australia and Canada, and that there is no place for it to go except in the direction of Manchuria. They say further that the Chinese have no orderly government and will not have any in this generation or the next, and that the disordered conditions in Manchuria seriously affect Japanese business and commerce and indirectly the commerce of the rest of the world.

On the other hand the people of the United States have always had an affectionate interest in the Chinese people, because of what seems to be their inherently unfortunate situation. Americans have hoped that the Chinese would eventually find themselves and establish a strong government, thus adding to the peace of the world and the possibilities for foreign trade. For this reason they have resented the incursions of foreign powers into Chinese territory. The present situation was brought about by the Japanese excursion into Manchuria which has led to the statement by Secretary Stimson to the effect that the United States will not recognize governments set up by force.

What makes the situation rather delicate is that Great Britain and France, the two leading military powers of Europe, do not see eye to eye with Uncle Sam in this matter. According to political observers in Europe they are willing for Japan to establish herself in Manchuria feeling that this will go a long way toward pacifying the Orient and will keep Japan so busy she will not be able to interfere with British and French plans or possessions in other points of the Orient. The only European country which is at all apt to dispute Japan's progress is Soviet Russia.

Now those in America who profess to fear a clash between Japan and America claim that when the question is threshed out before the League of Nations it will be found that Uncle Sam is almost isolated in his stand on Chinese affairs, except perhaps for the moral support of some of the smaller countries of Europe. England, France, and Italy, they say, will be disposed to let Japan take her own course and will not worry any if she is involved in difficulties with the United States. They add that the discussion of the situation in the league table is bound to cause a bitterness which may even disrupt the League itself.

While the situation from the standpoint of the United States might be fraught with danger if misunderstandings were allowed to develop on both sides it must not be forgotten that there is no disposition on the part of Uncle Sam to go to war to enforce any sort of policy in the Orient, and this disposition will not change. While America may disagree with other powers about the ethics of the Manchurian situation she is not going to war about it, and it is doubtful whether Japan will attack America over the situation especially in view of the fact that she is already in Manchuria and apparently determined to stay there. But because the situation is delicate it is very satisfying to know that the distinguished Admiral Nomura is coming to America in an effort to clear up what misunderstandings may exist. He can be assured, in the United States, of an impartial hearing.

J. W. Harris has accepted a responsible position as civil engineer on a big railroad construction job in Oklahoma and Indian territory and will leave for his new field of work next week. When Mr. Harris settled down here last fall, and entered the real estate business, it was his intention to make this his permanent business home. To this end he erected a cosy home on the bluff. Mr. Harris wants it understood that Charlevoix will continue to be his home and here his family will remain. But the recent offer from his old chief was too flattering to be turned down. There is much regret expressed that he must leave, but nobody blames Jim. Wherever he goes, everybody in Charlevoix wishes him well.

Lake Michigan, Pine Lake, extend to the right and left while below lies the prettiest village in America, with an unobstructed view of both sides of the principal business street. In our opinion it is the finest site for a residence of any in Charlevoix

Now that the long desired object is accomplished we think Charlevoix is to be congratulated upon her recent accession of the Lakeside Park property. Its nearness to the heart of the village, its beautiful configuration, natural and thrifty shrubbery, and its surf-beating gravel beach, makes it a spot capable of being made one of the holiest public parks in the State. We have no doubt the village will consider it wisdom to annually appropriate a liberal amount of money toward its improvement.

Sixty Years Ago

A letter was mailed at this office lately to "Travers Cotty", Mich.

The school building begins to assume its mammoth proportions.

Henry Morgan, Esq., has taken a contract of building two cribs, forty feet in length, on the south side of the mouth of Pine River.

Capt. Jas. Pratt has been forced by ill-health to retire from the position of mate of the propeller Manistee, and Capt. I. S. Webster, of this place, succeeded him.

Though the enterprise of Messrs Deuter & Noble, of Elk Rapids, a new route of travel has been opened up to that place for the people of the northern portion of Grand Traverse. A short and comfortable ride by stage to the head of Torch Lake, lodging one night at William's Hotel, and a quick but pleasant trip down Torch, Round and Elk Lakes, on the beautiful side-wheel steamer Queen of the Lakes, is our way of traveling "up the bay" hereafter. We had the pleasure of this trip on Monday and will have occasion to remember it from the real enjoyment which it afforded, and the large scope of country with which it favored our vision. We found the Queen commanded by Capt. Lawrence Norton, and experienced pilot on these lakes and rivers. But first let us describe the boat, which is a model of beauty. She cost about $25,000, is 107 feet in length, is driven by a powerful engine, and can make 12 miles an hour. She has a snug and beautifully furnished cabin, a commodious kitchen and other rooms on the main deck, and a dining room and several sleeping partments on the upper deck. Our old friend "Sam" Arnold, we found acting in the capacity of clerk, and by whom we were well entertained. Steaming down Torch Lake, which is eighteen miles in length, stopping at various points, we passed through Torch River, rather a difficult stream to navigate, owing to its circuitous route and many sand-bars, through Round into Elk Lake, then through Elk River to the very door of Messrs. Deuter & Noble's mammoth Store. We found at the Rapids many improvements—one in particular, the large and beautiful wharf depot near the shore. This establishment is too well known for us to describe it. After spending about two hours among our acquaintances, we stepped aboard the steamer again and took our back track for home, arriving at the head about eight in the evening. Mr. Noble informed us that their steamboat investment is proving a profitable one, and we certainly know that the location to the people is almost incalculable. We hope the day is not far distant when the people of Pine Lake will be in possession of a similar advantage.

I LIKE THE DEPRESSION

I like the depression. No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was to like to eat common, everyday food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high-hat.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half a day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbor." One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two and three suits at a time. All of my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit of clothes in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up, and I don't mean maybe, I like the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in one another. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go to a party, I could never locate her, and since there was always a "blonde" or a "red-head" available, I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers' club. We didn't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck up and bifalutin'. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan. When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl into mine. It she came in later, it was vice-versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage, and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her feet on my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

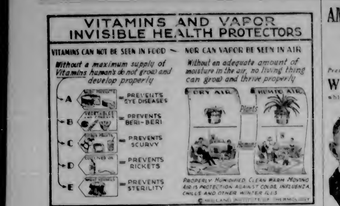
VITAMINS AND VAPOR INVISIBLE HEALTH PROTECTORS

VITAMINS CAN NOT BE SEEN IN FOOD — NOR CAN VAPOR BE SEEN IN AIR

Without a maximum supply of Vitamins human's do not grow and develop properly

Without an adequate amount of moisture in the air, no living thing can grow and thrive properly



VAPOR IN HOME PROTECTS HEALTH

Epidemics of Winter Ailments Laid to Dearth of Moisture Indoors.

SO IMPORTANT are the vitamins to human development and health and happiness that they have become known as life's invisible protectors. Without an ample supply of the vitamin foods would be unable to meet the body's requirements. Some of the common ailments which result from lack of vitamins are rickets, eye diseases, stunted growth, indigestion, scurvy, bad teeth, and sterility. Medical science has proved that without all the vitamins a new animal is doomed to disease, premature death or to the care of disease.

Equally important to life is another invisible protector—an adequate supply of humidity or water vapor in the air. Without air moisture, land will would soon lose all green. Even in humid regions, points out the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland Mich., the air contains a fair percentage of moisture. In fact says the institute there is more moisture in desert air than in the air in most American homes during the heating season.

The dearth of moisture in home air during winter is also attested to the drying out of furniture and interior woodwork, by the inability of home owners to keep plants and flowers for any length of time. And sometimes the institute, it is vividly pictured in the epidemics of colds and other respiratory diseases which afflict the human public every fall and winter.

Because these diseases increase epidemic with the commencement and progress of the heating season, health authorities and air-conditioning experts are of the opinion that the scarcity dry air in American homes and places of work is a contributing factor of no mean importance. They point out that lack of sufficient atmospheric moisture dries out and causes irritation of the delicate membranes of the respiratory organs, giving the germs full opportunity to cause infection. The result is illness from such common afflictions as colds in the head, bronchitis, sore throat, laryngitis, pneumonia, influenza, bronchitis and other related ailments.

As winds bring in moisture laden air the home air becomes almost as much conditioned and atmospheric as that found in the tropics, where the air is filled to the saturation point. Under this condition the human body absorbs moisture from the air instead of releasing it through the pores of the skin. Thus the body is protected against the rapid loss of moisture which results in chill and colds.

Humidifying the air in the home is the only method of keeping the air moist enough to prevent the drying out of the membranes of the nose and throat which are the first line of defense against disease germs. Moisture in the air softens the membranes and makes them more pliable and resistant to

OUR POLICY PROVES WISE

The importance of America's policy of avoiding all entangling commitments and agreements signed in blank, so far as international issues are concerned, was never more apparent than at the present moment. Europe is seething once more. There is great unrest in Germany and trouble in that country could be easily followed by a general European conflagration.

The question of the Polish corridor which cuts Eastern Germany in two, to give Poland an outlet to the sea, was never more acute than at present. There are vague intimations that both Germany and Poland are preparing for a possible conflict. East Prussians are being assured by the powers that be in Germany that they will not be abandoned in case of trouble with Poland, and it is likely that there would have been trouble long before this were it not for Poland's series of alliances with France and some of the smaller countries of Europe.

The question of German equality in armament has again been brought to the forefront in European politics. Germany says that she has waited for years for the allies to disarm as they agreed to disarm at the time the Versailles treaty was agreed to. Now that they have not done so, the German authorities say they will consider themselves no longer bound by the disarmament terms of the Versailles treaty and will commence to arm. There is little doubt that the acute situation along the Polish frontier has brought this armament question to a head once more.

Of course it may be that in making present unqualified demands for military equality, the part playing to the galleries for home consumption, in order to strengthen themselves with the heads of the German government may be in German voters at the expense of the litterites. But nevertheless, the situation is acute, and unless a compromise can be worked out Germany may withdraw from the disarmament conference and the world will be back where it was ten years ago. While neutral diplomats agree that there is some justification for Germany's complaint, in view of the fact that after ten years the other European nations show no tendency to agree to real disarmament as they promised to, yet it is thought that the Germans chose a very unsupicious moment for bringing forth their demands, which are couched more in terms of the German Empire than of the German Republic.

At any rate the situation is a delicate one and Uncle Sam can now be thankful that, owing to the wisdom of the Senate at the time, he did not sign the Versailles treaty and is hence not a party to its provisions concerning the shifting of armaments and territories in Europe and various other parts of the world.

Being out of the whole mess the United States may, at the opportune moment, have a chance to do something constructive in the way of mediation. Were Uncle Sam an interested party his efforts would be much more likely to be viewed with suspicion and hence rendered ineffective.

THE OUTBURSTS OF CLARENCE

The outburst of Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Board of Temperance and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in Cincinnati the other day in which he criticised President Hoover for what he termed the "desertion" of the cause of prohibition and announced that he intended to vote for Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate for President, is an example of the activities of certain extremists who have done the cause of temperance far more harm than good in the United States during the past few years. It was a childish performance at best, and equal to some of the other "Alice in Wonderland" activities luring the present campaign. No wonder it has not been approved by the saner heads of the dry movement.

Brother Wilson does not say in what respect he expects to advance the cause of prohibition by joining the Socialist party, which certainly does not agree with Clarence on the subject of liquor. For the Socialists let it be remembered are in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, favor the taking of the liquor industry under government control with the right of each state to maintain local option within its borders, if it so desires. This platform, we are told, has been approved by a referendum of the socialists themselves.

Certainly Brother Wilson can find little solace in political associates who favor such a program. It becomes evident, therefore, that he has been actuated by that peevishness which is often a fault of intellects which are politically inexperienced.

The older section of our readers will be reminded by this outburst of the old political Prohibition Party of bygone days. While many of its members were sincerely and honestly believers in prohibition, a great many of the leaders and a goodly sprinkling of the joiners became Prohibition Party members because they had fallen out with the Republican and the Democratic organizations, either as disappointed office seekers or as disappointed "minority principle" purveyors, in these parties.

The fact that Mr. Wilson is joining the Socialist party for the time being will probably have no effect on the result of the election Mr. Thomas does not expect to be elected President anyhow so that the accession of Brother Wilson will neither aid nor harm him.

SACRIFICE BY FIRE

The Carthaginians sacrificed their children to the worship of a calf-headed image, in the belief that it would increase their crops and help them win their wars.

The day of such superstitions has gone. But enlightened America is needlessly destroying some 10,000 lives and nearly half-a-billion dollars in property values a year, through fire alone.

The difference in the two examples is simply one of motive. There is no difference in the effect—save that our carelessness and incompetence in handling fire destroys more lives than did the Carthaginians. As a matter of fact, their record is a more excusable one, in that they were a comparatively primitive people, while we lay claim to wisdom.

All through the ages fire has been both friend and enemy to man. To keep it conquered has always been a problem, and it has grown in importance with time. Each step forward in the march of civilization creates new hazards, new dangers. The tragic part is that this has not been accompanied by an equivalent change in our mental attitude toward the risk.

Fire can be controlled. At little expense, either in money or time, we can make our homes and places of business safe. To do that is a double duty, owed both to ourselves and to the community. Every fire affects every citizen—and every time a fire is prevented it benefits us all.

POISONING THE WELL OF PROGRESS

Former Senator James W. Wadsworth declares that one of the greatest obstacles to better times is the tremendous burden of taxation now being carried by the people of this country. He lays down a tax platform embodying the following four principles which are fundamental if the country is to return a "sound and sane government."

1, Immediate reduction of 25 per cent in the operating cost of government; 2, the withdrawal of government from competition with private business; 3, the abolition of all activities by the government which are not essentially governmental, and 4, cessation of Federal aid to enterprises not strictly Federal in their nature.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

A short run down Duke of Gloucester Street in this Land of Eld will bring the traveler to the site of a vanished Capitol. Here Washington once became too embarrassed to reply to a vote of honor accorded by the House of Delegates. One member with a confocus how assured Saying Washington that his great courage was exceeded only by his modesty. The Capitol is being rebuilt upon its original foundation.

FOREST FIRE SEASON NOW APPROACHING

The time of the year of the greatest forest fire menace is now approaching, and it will be especially dangerous this year owing to the drouth conditions existing in many sections of the country. As a result authorities in all wooded sections are urging especial precautions on the part of campers, hunters and other travelers. In an article on "The Forest Fire Menace," in the current issue of the National Geographic, Mr. Ernest McCaffey says, in part:

"In all states of the United States where the timbered areas are of any considerable extent, the danger from forest fires and the destruction from that cause form a menace that looms largest in the late summer and early autumn. Year by year our forests are being terribly depleted by the ravages of these fires, and bushy watersheds in the mountain states are being swept away in thousands of acres.

"Especially is this true when a period of extreme dry weather has ensued. When the months of June, July and August have been unusually hot, brush areas and forest growth along mountain sides, foothills, valleys and river margins become as dry as tinder; and the undergrowth in the forests takes on the same tinder-like condition, and fire from any source fire blown into such material often means instant ignition. Once ignited the fire rushes onward with a speed which far exceeds that of a galloping horse.

"The damage to wooded and brush areas and to the game birds and animals living in those areas is appalling. Nothing can live before such a fiery blast. Small game such as quail, grouse, rabbits, squirrels, young fawns and sometimes full grown deer are caught and either smothered or burned to a crisp. Every year thousands of small game animals are destroyed through the agency of forest and brush fires.

"It is a sad commentary on human carelessness and recklessness that most forest and brush fires have been caused fires. In one year the records of the State Forest Service in California showed that 92 per cent of the total number of fires in that year were caused by the carelessness and recklessness of man.

"The large number of fires which have been traced to the carelessness of smokers, is largely attributable to the pernicious practice of throwing aside half - burned cigarette butts, either along the roadside or in the timber and brush areas. Many of these acts of recklessness can be laid at the doors of campers, fishermen and hunters. Although a goodly portion owe their origin to the inexcusable habit of throwing aside cigarette stumps or cigar butts from moving automobiles and traveling along highways through the mountains, foothills, forests and timbered areas."

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Out in the harbor at anchor all this week, has been the steam yacht Speedy, owned by C. G. Conn, the celebrated band instrument manufacturer, of Elkhart, Ind. Mr. Conn, who is aboard, brought the yacht over from England, where he purchased her. He will lay her up in Milwaukee this winter and in the spring take her back to salt water. During the summer he will cruise about New Brunswick and Newfoundland and in the winter take her to the West Indies and Central America. She came over from England under her own steam via Fayal and Bermuda, and experienced no trouble. She is 150 feet long, built of steel and has twin screws. Mr. Conn made a pleasant call on the Sentinel and surprised us with the information that he was during the Civil war an officer in the first Michigan Sharp Shooters and at the grand review in Washington commanded the company of Indians that was recruited in the Grand Traverse region. Mr. Conn owns the largest musical instrument factory in the world.

The animal which was thus cruelly slain in fragrant violation of the law, was doing nothing to the man, that is, he was not biting or chasing him. The animal had destroyed no crops or property whatever. It was a quiet peaceful animal seeking to domicil harmlessly under the woodshed. The man shot it to pie-ces. It was a cruel and unlawful thing to do and the man who did it should be severely punished. He is a disgrace to the community.

The Dignity of the Anti-Skunk-Killing Law Must be Maintained.

The law prohibits the killing of skunks during the months of September and October, "excepting when they are destroying crops or property." We have positive knowledge that there was a skunk killed on Main Street last week and we know the man who did the killing. For the sake of his family and friends we shall not print the name of the lawbreaker.

The animal has been a government thrust itself deeper and deeper into his pocketbook at a time when national income has been declining. He has seen the creation of new bureaus and commissions when businesses and individuals have found it necessary to cut costs of all kinds. He has seen gigantic Federal subsidies for projects to benefit but a few of the people, but which must be paid for by all. He has seen the bureaucratic machine become increasingly unwieldly, inefficient and expensive.

Taxation is one of the vital problems of the time. It is intimately related to the future of industry, employment, investment of capital, property-owning, and home-building. Excessive taxation is a barrier to every activity of an individual or business. The mounting cost of government is, in effect, poisoning the well of progress.

LET THE PEOPLE THINK

"The government's functions are executive, legislative, judicial," said the Chilton, Wisconsin, Times recently. "Its part in private business should be that of the watchful, impartial, inexorable referee."

This thought is always worthy of repitition. It should come home forcefully to us now. We have seen what government ventures in the realm of private business, either as competitor or regulator have produced—a long list of expensive departments, bureaus and commissions, hundreds of thousands of new employees for taxpayers to support, a constantly increasing tax bill, making necessary advances in old taxes and creation of new ones—all of which has done much to bring on Treasury deficits.

There is no end to bureaucratic ambition, no end to paternalism. Once politics gets its grasp on one field of endeavor, it is only a matter of time before it reaches for others. There is a lesson in this for those short-sighted, and sometimes hypocritical business men who have urged government participation in businesses other than their own. Their business may be next.

Progress demands that government retrench, not only in the cost of maintaining it, but in its activities. An overload of paternalism which has brought economic stagnation to so many other countries can do the same here, unless it is checked.

WHAT ABOUT SILVER?

The most populous nations of the world are on the silver standard of coinage. They know no other medium of exchange. And when the price of silver is debased, as at present, it means that the purchasing power of those countries has been cut to sixty, fifty or forty per cent of its former level. That, in turn, means that the gold standard countries have lost great—and vitally needed—foreign markets.

The "Bank of Charlevoix" is in full blast.

Rev. C. F. Van Auken, of Augusta, Mich., will preach in the school house next Sabbath.

The largest haul of fish ever taken from the lake by Charlevoix fishermen was hauled out one day last week by the Cross boys. About 3,000 pounds of herring.

The Charlevoix Congregational Church was organized Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 19, with a membership of nine. Rev. Leroy Warren, of Lansing, Rev. P. F. McClelland, of Northport, Rev. James Davies, of Atwood, Rev. D. Lawrence, of Leland, and Wm. Gill, of Northport, were present and participated in the exercises. Rev. Leroy Warren preached in the evening. Rev. Mr. VanAuken, of Augusta, Mich., will preach here next Sunday with a view of permanently locating as pastor.

The Charlevoix school opened on Monday morning with four departments and a good attendance. The school starts off under good auspices, and a successful year is certain to be realized. The new room on the west end of the upper story has been furnished and a recitation room provided on the same floor. A new series of text books has been adopted by the Board. The corps of teachers are well selected and competent. Prof. Allen, an old and competent teacher, is principal, while Miss Etta Edwards, who last year taught the primary, is very deservedly promoted to the intermediate department. The first and second primary rooms are in charge of Miss Ella Barry and Miss Nettie Hawken, both young ladies of experience and established ability.

Republican Caucuses

There will be a meeting of the Republican voters of the Township of Charlevoix at the School House, October 4th, 1872 at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of electing four delegates to represent the township in the Republican County Convention to be held at the same place October 5, 1872. All Republicans and those in favor of the re-election of U. S. Grant to the Presidency, are invited to attend.

Archibald Buttars, Robert Miller, Morris J. Stockman, committee.

A Republican Caucus will be held at the house of Alexander M. Ross, in Marion, on Saturday, Sept. 28th, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing three delegates to the county convention to be held at Charlevoix on the 5th of October next.

Editorial

C. H. S. has once more opened it's doors to a group of excited students. The enrollment shows an increase over last year. What is the attitude that this large group of boys and girls is going to take toward the year's work? Are they going to give as much as they take from their school?

Many students are of the opinion that the school owes a great deal to the student. Of course this is true, but we should not for a moment lose sight of the fact that on the other hand we students are greatly indebted to C. H. S. Education is the one thing that cannot be lost and it is through the school that this is obtained.

Through the school the student gains new interests. He broadens his mind through reading and thinking. He gives, he speaks, he acts, he works more interestingly, more skillfully, more efficiently and with greater pleasure. A high school education does not give complete perfection but it starts the student on the right road to success.

Therefore, let us make this school year of '32 and '33 one in which each student endeavors to get full benefit offered by C. H. S. and at the same time by his sincerity in the class room, enthusiasm in extra curricular activities and cooperation in a measure pay back to C. H. S. the debt we owe.

Dramatics

Tuesday night, September 20 was the opening meeting of the Drama Club. The membership this year shows a large increase over that of last year and the students are eager to get started on the year's work.

Dorothy Staley and John Winder related to the group a few of their experiences at Northwestern University, School of Speech, which they attended this summer.

After thanking the Drama Club for their cooperation at the time the scholarships were received, Dorothy told of the girls dormatory facing the beautiful University Campus on Lake Michigan, and of the many good times had there. She also mentioned a few of the persons of interest with whom the High School students came in contact, such as Clara, Lou, and Em, radio entertainers; Barrett Clark, New York dramatic critic and author; Lynn Riggs, playwrite; John Baird, author and expert in make up; also Mr. Demos, Dean of the School, and Professor Leverton, who entertained them at his home at which time he told much of his European studies and adventures. In addition to meeting persons of interest the group was royally entertained by trips to the Aquarium and Field Museum, beach parties and theater parties, recitals by faculty members, dances and banquets. The three University plays at which the high school group were guests were, "Bird Samile," "Life of Man", and "Green Grow the Lilacs."

John explained to the club members and visitors, the schedule of classes and the regular daily routine. The students had every minute planned—classes followed the 7:30 o'clock breakfast until lunch time. While the girls were taking costuming in which they made costumes for the four one-act plays presented by the high school group, the boys learned shop work and provided the scenery for the plays. Following this came production and make-up. After lunch the group were trained in voice and diction. The last class was Theatre Backgrounds. Directly after classes were rehearsals until and following dinner for the plays which were presented by the group.

"Knives From Syria" was a play dealing with Oklahoma life, serious and effective. This play was written by Lynn Riggs as was "Green Grow the Lilacs." "The Artist," a modern play was the second undertaking of the students. The people of Charlevoix will probably remember that this play was also given by the C. H. S. drama club last winter. "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," a farce was the remaining play. This was absolute nonsense and kept the audience in continuous laughter.

The members of the Drama Club are hoping to make this year a great success. They are being considered and with a director full of new ideas and a group willing to learn, the success of C. H. S. dramatics this year calls only for the cooperation of the school and the community.

Commercial

The Commercial Department is exceedingly popular this year in every division. Short land numbers almost 40 students; typing, 160; bookkeeping, 50; and Junior Business Training, 40. Miss Anderson is anticipating a lively winter.

Athletics

Twenty-five young athletes arrived on the gridiron for football practice last Monday. In these Charlevoix High is putting the trust of again carrying Charlevoix to victory. With only four letter men available, Kipke will have to build a team from inexperienced players, but that does not necessarily mean that there will not be a good team. The kind of a team Charlevoix has, depends entirely on the players. If the players go out there and work hard and obey orders it is certain we will have a good football team.

Games have been scheduled with Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Cheboygan, East Jordan, Boyne City, and Manistee.

Student season tickets have been offered for approximately eight cents a game. The support of every student will be appreciated.

Manual Arts

The Manual Arts Department boasts some much needed new equipment including a saw-jointer outfit, lathe, jig-saw, bar folding machine and wiring-burring machine. The boys enrolled in these courses have spent the opening days helping in the placement of this equipment. The students are looking forward to using it, since it is all of the highest quality and best type for wood and metal working.

Mr. Weissenberger's boys are also doing some construction work at the entrance of the back store.

Music

Last week the advanced classes of music made an interesting study of the correlation of art and music. They studied the tone, color and line of several pictures. These pictures were scenes from around Charlevoix. The pictures were especially interesting because they were painted by Mrs. Bush, Mr. Edward Ziegfeld and Mr. Raymond Faulkner, local people of Charlevoix.

Miss Atkinson is very pleased with the large enrollment of her theory class. It is about double the size it was last year. She also has a Senior High mixed chorus of about 45 members.

New song books have been ordered for the senior high school assembly. As soon as they come the students will again enjoy weekly assembly singing.

Last week on Friday the 16th there was held in Boyne City a conference on Religious Education and Leadership Institute. Two speakers were Mr. L. D. Councilor of the State Department. Mr. Kuhn and a number of district boys attended.

All of the officials who were elected last year in school and who were expected to return this year only seven are coming. There are three girls and four boys. Out of these seven, four are out of the state, two are at others schools and one will return next semester to complete work for graduation. However there are more than enough new students and the return of absentees to make up for the loss.

Also there are four post-graduates this year.

There is an enrollment of 60 in the Biology Class. This necessitated the division of the class; then making two instead of the usual one class.

There are two classes in General Science this year. Miss Koch, the instructor. Survey teachers, is taking charge of one of the groups. The enrollees is largely from the Freshman class.

A new subject "World History" has been introduced in the curriculum this year. It is a combination of Ancient and Modern History with special emphasis on the latter. The students are now getting acquainted with their early ancestors.

The High School assembly is ever crowded and many students are seated in the History and Latin rooms.

There are 88 Juniors this year and if this number all graduate next year it will be the largest graduating class for several years. On account of this large number there is a decided increase in American History and English III.

An Appreciation

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the voters of Charlevoix County for the continued vote of confidence that they have placed in me. In all my future undertakings, I shall strive to merit this confidence."

Frank P. Bohn

An Appreciation

Words cannot always express the depths of gratitude one holds at times, and that is my fault today, to tell the readers of the Sentinel and the people of Charlevoix County how I appreciate the vote given to me for State Senator at the recent Primaries. It shall be my ambition to further prove to you that appreciation by my public acts in your behalf if I am elected to the office in November. I feel highly honored in being elected over the splendid candidate that opposed me, and I trust that support you have given me will continue to the General Election, when my name again comes before you for election or rejection.

Very truly,

HOME FURNISHINGS GROUP LEADERS RECEIVE THEIR FIRST LESSON

A general program outlining the duties of the officers of the various groups and a thorough survey of the first lesson of the subject, "Selection of Slip Covers and Upholstery Materials," were presented by Miss Gertrude Reis, Extension Specialist, Michigan State College, to 29 leaders and officers of 15 groups in Boyne City on September 21st.

Greater interest was manifested by the women who started the second year project in Home Furnishings. Mrs. Verna Hartnell, County Chairman, suggested that a county committee consisting of three people be selected to handle any problems that might present themselves throughout the entire county. This committee consists of Mrs. Hartnell, Mrs. Kightlinger and Miss Sidney Lumley.

There will be five lessons in the Home Furnishings project this year, each one offering some practical suggestions for the upkeep of the home. The project is most interesting for actual work will be accomplished in the renovating and refinishing of old furniture, making slip covers; treatment of windows; and selection of pictures.

The second lesson will be given on November 2nd, also under the leadership of Miss Gertrude Reis. It is hoped that more communities in the county will become interested in this project. We might just as well have 15 groups as 15. Any new community has time to participate in this program.

LATE REPORTS SHOW SLIGHT LOSS IN TAXES PAID BY CORPORATIONS

The 1932 corporation privilege tax thus far collected, amounts to $5,202,501. This represents the tax paid by 13,037 corporations.

At the same time last year, 14,482 corporations had paid a privilege tax amounting to $6,495,856.

Analysis of the comparative statements shows that for the number of corporations reporting, the average amount of individual tax remains about equal, but that 1,426 corporations less have made reports this year.

Many corporations have been granted extentions, permissible under the law, while many more have either allowed their corporate powers to lapse temporarily and have announced that they intend paying the tax and delinquency penalties later in the year.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet with Mrs. George Meggison Wednesday afternoon, October 5. All members are requested to be in attendance. Several matters of importance will be up for consideration and Mrs. Hurd will make a report of interest to the society.

INDIANS WIN IN CITY SERIES

DEFEAT STERRITT'S TEAM BY SCORE OF 23 TO 5

By Newman

Bob Sterritt's Independent baseball team got up a game fight in a game played last Sunday to decide the baseball championship of the city but the Indian team won the decision by a score of 23 to 5.

It was not the regular independent ball team which played in this game against the Indians. Sterritt frankly admitted that he was going to make his team as strong as possible for this game, and a number of the regular players were omitted from the line-up. The Indians used practically the same team that has played together all the year, except that two discontented ex-Independents were on the Indians' side in the big game.

On the winning team were Walker, Denemy, Beemer, Amos John, Tuskin, Gill, Guy John, Curt Dilsen, and Morris Dixon. They shifted around in their positions quite a bit after they felt they had the game cinched. Amos John, the starting pitcher struck out the first five men he faced him, and then eased up a trifle, only striking out two more for a total of seven in four innings. He allowed two runs. Beemer then pitched for two innings and had three runs scored against him, but they were unearned, being helped along by frequent errors on the Indian Belvedere part. Denemy pitched two innings and allowed no scores although he was hit hard. Gill pitched the last one and set the Independents down, one, two, three, striking out one and making two assists.

Meanwhile the Independents, composed of Helms, Smith, Sterritt, Parsons Stutsman, B. Cunningham, J. Block, Sr., J. Block Sr., and Cummings with M. Cunningham and Gregory substituting, were having plenty of trouble in stopping the Indians. The Indians scored two in the first one in the second, four in the third, and one in the fourth. They then drove Sterritt from the box with five runs in the fifth. Joe Stutsman took up pitching duties for the Independents from Barnard, and he held the Indians to two runs in three innings. Block, Sr., pitched the last inning, and eight men crossed the plate in that round.

Both teams played spotty baseball, being brilliant at times, but the Indians had most of the brilliance and the Independents had most of the sloppiness. All the Indians played nine games and none should be singled out, but the same cannot be said for the Independents. With the exception of Stutsman's pitching, the best players on defense for the Barnard boys were B. Cunningham and Bob Cummings. Cunningham and Smith had the most luck in batting the Indian pitching, both getting three hits. Every player on the Indian team got at least three safe hits, and Beemer, A. John, and C. Dixon each had six. Beemer led both teams with runs scored with four. Amos John hit the only home run of the game, with Block pitching in the ninth.

These two teams are likely to play another game next Sunday. The idea then would be to play a series of three games, with the championship going to the winner of the first two games. Sterritt, the manager of the Independents, plans on bringing more outside players in, and giving the Indians a closer game next time. The most that can be said is that it is an interesting idea.

Next Sunday is Rally Day at the Congregational Sunday School. Every member of the school is urged to enroll on that day. There will be lesson study the last half hour as usual.

VIOLATION OF GUN PERMIT LAW BRINGS A SEVERE PENALTY

A state law adopted in 1931 which established a severe penalty for violation of the Michigan gun permit law has been inflicted for the first time with a result that Burtis Dillbeck, Mason, is serving a term of 90 days in the Ingham County jail.

The law requires a minimum penalty of 30 days in jail or a fine of $150 for anyone convicted of using a permit granted to carry a gun during the closed season in a game area, to violate the game laws.

Dillbeck was convicted of killing a pheasant during the closed season while he was carrying a gun by right of the gun permit issued by the Department of Conservation. Judge Leo Hall Carr of the Ingham County Circuit Court imposed the jail sentence without giving Dilbeck an opportunity of paying the fine.

Dillbeck was arrested by Conservation Officer G. I. Murphy of Mason.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR REVEREND G. L. MANLEY

Funeral services was held Monday afternoon for Rev. G. L. Manley at Ellsworth, his death being due to injuries received in an automobile accident some two weeks before his death.

Following the accident, Rev. Manley was brought to Charlevoix where he entered the local hospital for treatment. For some days after entering the hospital there was some improvement in his physical condition, such as led relatives and friends to hope for his recovery, however, his injuries proved to be more serious than were at first anticipated, resulting in his death Thursday forenoon. He has resided in Michigan about twelve years. He was born in New York state sixty-four years ago and is survived by Mrs. Manley, two sons and five daughters.

ILLEGAL FISHING IN EAST JORDAN RIVER COSTS FIVE $31.65 EACH

Thirty-one dollars, sixty-five cents each or 30 days in jail was the amount Justice Robert Withers assessed five Antrim County defendants appearing on his court charged with illegal fishing, viz., spearing steel head trout in Jordan river. The defendants were apprehended by officer Pike. There was no trial of the accused as a plea of guilty was entered by each of the men when they appeared in court last week.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The branch manager of the Department of State in the information bureau wishes to announce that, hereafter no license will be issued on a truck or trailer unless an official 1932 weight ticket accompanies the application. Last year's certificate of registration or weight ticket will not be accepted. Commercial vehicles other than passenger cars, must be weighed each year.

Gray's Reef Lighthouse, one of the aids to Navigation on Lake Michigan, entered this port Monday and placed in her berth near the government supply station until Thursday when she sailed for Manitowoc where she will be laid up for repairs. With repair work finished she will return to her Charlevoix winter quarters.

Mr. Tomas Bazot for the past week has been entertaining his sisters, Mrs. Anna Hummel, Mrs. Marvin Davis and husband Marvin Davis; nephew Dickie Ravin and Don Springer. Mrs. Hummel, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Davis and Dickie Ravin are continuing their visit for a few days while other members of the party have returned to Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Parsons left for southern Michigan early this week where they visit friends for three or four weeks.

COUNTY FAIR REPORT GIVEN

AS MADE BY OFFICERS SHOWS CREDITABLE RESULTS

The Charlevoix County Agricultural Society Fair, held in East Jordan, for 1932, is now a matter of history.

After a lapse of one year the question of holding a Fair this year was in the mind of many, some thinking a Fair could be held, while others thought different. A meeting was called of all those who might be interested, and after some discussion the members of the former Board of Directors tendered their resignation, a new Board was then elected, the law which provided for a Board of twelve directors was changed making the new Board of twenty-four members instead of the twelve. The following officers were elected as follows: President Mr. Harry Bolting, of Boyne City; vice president, Jess Smith, of Charlevoix, Secretary, Frank H. Crowell, of East Jordan, Treasurer, B. Milstein of East Jordan.

The outlook for a Fair at this time was none to promising, but after several meetings of the Board of Directors, the sentiment for a Fair seem to grow, a date was set, and when this was done, the general public began to feel there was a possibility of a Fair being held, and began to manifest a great deal of interest in the matter. Realizing that the time was short, each one lent their best efforts to that end and the result was a good Fair was brought forth. And the general verdict is that it was a mighty good Fair.

The Secretary Mr. Frank H. Crowell, threw himself with might and main into the project, day and night found him at work, and the result was that all departments were well taken care of. Too much cannot be said of the fine exhibits of fruits and vegetables, the school exhibits fine when one considers how brief a time they had to prepare, and the fancy work department was in no wise neglected, the stock portion was excellent. The racing event was very good, and the Mid-way clean, and so the general verdict everywhere was, "It was a fine Fair."

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on Friday night, September 23rd, the officers were elected to succeed themselves. The report of the Secretary was very gratifying to all present and is as follows:

Receipts

Received from gate	$1,009.60
Received from state	665.20
Rec. from membership	227.00
Rec. from concessions	666.10
Advertising in fair book	213.00
Grand Stand, lights	105.25
Total	$2,884.15

Disbursements

Premiums	$ 940.70
Horse Races	795.00
Labor	217.00
Miscellaneous	666.69
Secretary Salary	125.00
Advertising	84.00
Total	$2,398.39
Leaving a balance of	$485.76

After such a fine showing it was decided to hold another Fair next year and the date was set for Sept. 11, 12, 13, 14.

Too much cannot be said in appreciation by the Board of Directors for the splendid support given them by the general public, for without such support the Fair would not have been held. And also great credit is due the secretary, Mr. Frank H. Crowell, for his tireless efforts in bringing to pass one of the finest of Fairs.

The Church of God Ladies' Aid will hold a harvest supper at Mrs. Robert Dickins' Friday, October 7th, at 5:30 p. m. until all are served. 25c. 2913

RAM TRUCK WILL SOON VISIT COUNTY

Plans are being rapidly made for the appearance of the Ram Truck sponsored by the Michigan State College and the various sheep breeders associations. On the truck will be included 30 to 40 good pure bred rams priced all the way from $20 to $40.

If you are interested in buying a purebred ram, plan to attend the ram truck demonstrations. It will give us a better opportunity to have on the truck the kind of ram you may want if you will drop a line to the County Agent at Boyne City and place an order for one.

Watch the papers for the date, time and place of these meetings which will no doubt be held the forepart of October.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cremer after spending the summer months at their cottage are leaving for Damariscotta, Maine, their former home, Friday afternoon, where they will make an extended visit. They will be accompanied on the trip by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Walsh.

Mr. T. J. Healy was down in the business district Wednesday afternoon for the first time since Friday of last week, having been confined to his home by a more or less serious indisposition for some days.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Leonard motored up from Chicago Sunday and Monday they were passengers on the S. S. Ossian Bedell for St. James, where they have a cottage. They were accompanied by Miss Grace Aurlam, Miss Grace Fitzsh and Patrick Fitzsh.

REASONS GIVEN FOR PLANTING PERRENIALS IN FALL OF YEAR

The perennial question of fall or spring planting presents itself again. In stocking the flowers in this location, we find many more facts in favor of fall planting than for spring planting, although the latter is not to be discouraged entirely, however.

Most of us still retain the idea that the only time to set out perennial plants, shrubs and trees is in the spring. That is still a perfectly good time, but we can find several good reasons for planting in the fall, as well.

For instance, all of us know how beauty we are rushed in the spring as we try to do everything in the garden at once in spading up soil, planting it up, transplanting, sowing seed and a dozen other things. Why not have a little more time in the spring so that we can go at our gardening in a more orderly manner by doing some of that planting in the fall?

Another great advantage of fall planting is that we really gain another season's growth on our plants if they are planted at this time. Then the plants are dormant, the soil workable, and the ample fall rains pack the earth firmly about the roots so they are ready to respond to the first growing urge of spring. To delay planting until next spring may mean the loss of a full season's growth. Plant this fall!

It is always safer to move plants when they are dormant or resting than when they are actively growing, for they are bound to suffer from quite a setback when the fast growing cell life is suddenly checked by transplanting. Fall, then, is naturally the time when these plants are dormant and will not suffer when their root systems are disturbed. For the best results, plant this fall.

LOCAL NIMRODS ANXIOUSLY AWAITING SEASON OPENING

Local nimrods are anxiously awaiting the opening of the duck and rabbit shooting season now but little more than two week's distant, while big game hunters are making up their parties, making a census of the locality in which they will pitch their tents and such other preparatory arrangements as are necessary in order to have everything in readiness for the first day of the season, November 15, at which time the Conservation Department will be on location or hastily trekking toward some favorite camping spot and hunting ground.

According to present plans the next District meeting will be held in Charlevoix October 6. Members are requested to save the date. Tuesday night is suggested inasmuch as the program for the following Sunday.

A. L. Von Linke of the Charlevoix Beach Hotel has received a summons to the annual convention of the Michigan Hotel Association to be held at Traverse City Friday and Saturday. The Park Place Hotel of that city, one of Michigan's newest hotels, is the host to the convention this year. A two-day program of conferences, dinners and golf matches has been announced by Fred J. Doherty of Ohio, president of the association.

Mrs. L. J. Belanger went to Flint last week where she visits her daughter, Mrs. MacArthur for a short time after which she goes to Ontario where she makes an extended visit with her mother.

According to announcement made by the department of conservation Young's State Park officially closes for the 1932 season tomorrow, Friday, September 30.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Gilbert returned to Detroit Sunday after spending the entire summer months at their cottage on Park Avenue.

Albert Staley and Ira A. Adams were business visitors at Bellaire Tuesday.

LEGION STANDS READY TO AID

WORD RECEIVED THAT FISH WILL AGAIN BE AVAILABLE

Distribution of confiscated fish by Lieut. T. Simpson that last winter proved a success a form of relief more pressing than ever, according to word from Commander Lee C. Adams, prime mover recently in Governor Brucker for his assistance in again arranging the fish from the Conservation Department. Under date of September 22nd, the governor wrote as follows:

"My dear Lee:

I have your letter of September 21st suggesting that the American Legion Post of Charlevoix again handle ready to serve the community by utilizing confiscated fish so as to bring relief to the needy and the unfortunate.

I shall recommend this again for the fall and winter of 1932-33 and see that it is followed up so that you may have the Conservation Department immediately.

May I not take this occasion to again compliment you and the members of the Post, each and every one who has had a part in this worthy undertaking and for the good service you have rendered to that part of Michigan.

With kindest personal regards and best wishes, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) Wilbur M. Brucker."

However favorable the foregoing letter may sound it must be remembered that there is no small amount of work and some expense to the obtaining, preparing and distribution of these fish and while this was taken care of by the past last year it will be impossible for the local post to devote any expense in this or any other welfare matter this year. If these fish are again to be made available the necessary finances must come from some other source.

At some present plans the local post will have a general and formal meeting the first Tuesday of each month. At this time a report of the preceding month and plans for the current and coming months will be discussed. If members find that they can only turn out to meetings once a month that date should be saved for the Legion. The third Tuesday in the school Tyrrent meeting night. Other Tuesday evenings will be taken up with a short business session and a social hour following.

According to present plans the next District meeting will be held in Charlevoix October 6. Members are requested to save the date. Tuesday night is suggested inasmuch as the program for the following Sunday.

SUPT. GERALD BUSH ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Superintendent Gerald Bush, attended the annual convention of the Michigan Conference of City School Superintendents held at the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City Friday and Saturday.

The convention brought together approximately 100 school heads of the state to study educational problems and such related subjects as school taxation and economies in school management. It was one of 15 state conventions held this year in Traverse City.

Tibbarman's Paradise a suited resort on the East Shore of Lake Bellaire in Antrim County announces that a pre-Thanksgiving dinner will be served at the hotel Sunday, October 9 at 1:00 o'clock. Turkey, fish, chicken, game, etc., will be featured on the menu.

Vincent S. Madison after spending the summer months here with his aunt, Mrs. Ira A. Adams, returned to New York City Friday, where he continues his studies at Columbia University.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sisile entertained Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richards of Bellaire Sunday. Mr. Richards is cashier of the Bellaire State Bank and for many years interested in the manufacture of wooden ware.

A DEPRESSION LESSON

The lessons learned from the depression ought not be forgotten, once we are safe on the road to recovery. For us in Texas, and in the South generally, it served to bring strikingly to our attention the fact that our people are too much dependent upon foreign markets.

Taking the United States as a whole, at the very height of prosperity only ten per cent of the country's annual production of wealth is exported. But it is necessary to find a foreign market for more than half of the South's chief product, cotton, and in Texas ninety per cent of the annual crop must be sold outside of the United States. Inasmuch as nearly one-third of the population of Texas lives on cotton farms, that means that the prosperity of our people, or the lack of it, is determined by influences over which we have practically no control. We should seek to change that situation as much as possible.

We are not suggesting that we can escape from the interdependence of the nations of the world. We cannot escape from it. Henceforth, because the world has become a neighborhood, and the future will make it smaller rather than otherwise, the United States will have interests at stake wherever there is economic disturbance anywhere on earth. And the interests of Texas will be a little more directly involved than those of most of the other sections of the country. But interdependence is one thing, and absolute dependence is quite another.

The last three years have served to force upon our attention the brutal fact that entirely too many Texas people are absolutely dependent for their living upon conditions in foreign countries. It is that which we should seek to change. We may "seek" advisedly, because the problem is not a simple one. The direction in which the solution lies can be easily pointed out, to be sure, but the attainment of that solution will call for much wisdom and patient effort, and will take time.

If we are to become less dependent upon foreign countries, obviously we must become more dependent upon ourselves. If we are to do less for foreign countries, we must do more for ourselves. The direction which our effort should take is toward the positive half of that formula. We must seek to become more dependent upon ourselves by doing more for ourselves.—Texas Weekly.

A TAXPAYER'S PROSPECTS

Bureaucracy was firmly entrenched in Europe long before we thought of the word. Today the taxpayers of Europe are paying a terrific price for the vast multitudes of services rendered by their governments. Much of the high taxes goes to pay for the bonded debt incurred during the war, or armaments still maintained, but much also goes for the social insurance and similar functions undertaken more recently.

A Frenchman today pays about one-third of his income in taxes, which number nearly 200. If he has an income of $5,000, is married, and lives in a pleasant apartment, he must pay something like $820 in four direct taxes which are based on his income and his rent, innumerable miscellaneous taxes add another $800 to his tax burden, although he may not be aware of all the latter.

When he goes to the theater one-third of the admission is a tax. If he travels, 28 per cent of the fare is tax, and his hotel bill is taxed. Matches, cigarettes, servants, wines and a host of other levies are subject to excise levies.

We have not yet reached this point in the grim story of American taxation. But we are perilously close to it. Each year has seen the imposition of new burdens, with little or no effort to stem the tide of public spending. Unless a more determined stand is made by taxpayers, they will soon be in the position of their European brethren.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EMPLOYMENT AND GOVERNMENT COST

Some persons argue that drastic cuts in the cost of government will make the unemployment problem still more intense. They reason that the dismissal of employes now drawing a living from the public treasury, would still further contract purchasing power, and cause additional retrenchment.

The effect should be just the opposite. Burnard Baruch points out that an orgy of spending by the government impairs credit and makes the future of money uncertain. Investors are frightened, and those who can afford to spend, hoard what they have. Domestic trade declines and, inevitably, more unemployment results. It is a vicious circle to which there can be no end until we have genuine government economy.

It is self-evident that reasonable and inexpensive government is the friend of employment—excessively expensive government is its enemy.

There can be no question that many industries, which would now be employing men and laying plans for expansion, are retarded by a dread of still higher taxes. They have reached the point where increased tax rates mean bankruptcy. Taxation is the foremost economic issue of the day—because it regulates employment, investment and industrial development.

PROSPERITY ALWAYS RETURNS

During the past few weeks there has been a new spirit of optimism along the economic front. It is not an optimism of the "prosperity is just around the corner" variety. It is instead well grounded in fact.

The seasonal influences have been favorable. Commodity prices have shown a steady upward tendency. Stocks of goods of all kinds are rapidly becoming depleted, nessitating new buying. The outward flow of gold has been checked and reversed. And, finally, conditions abroad have definitely improved.

Best of all, is the feeling of confidence that is growing in the public mind. There can be no recovery without that. And when, along with it, the economic indicators point the right way, we can look forward with a feeling of hopefulness.

THE RUBBISH PEDDLERS

In a recent article in the Atlantic Monthly, John Maynard Keynes, one of the foremost economists of the world, said that "in the United States it is almost inconceivable what rubbish a man has to utter today . . ."

The reason for that is that most public men, particularly those in high office, minimize the intelligence of the public. They have seen themselves and others swept into office on platforms consisting mainly or solely of ancient platitudes, sonorous evasions, polysyllabic misrepresentations, and appeals to local prejudices. They have then acted accordingly.

The public is largely to blame for this condition, not because of lack of intelligence, not because of a laissez faire attitude toward the business of government. If the average well-informed citizen paid as little critical attention to his own business as he does to the public business he would be bankrupt.

There are grounds for hope that present conditions have awakened the voter. They have tended to make us think—to look at government and government officers with new eyes. If they have done that, the depression has been worth its cost. And the result will be that a good many officeholders, whose stock in trade is bunk will be looking for new jobs in the near future.

THE MAN AT THE WHEEL

In an address before the California Committee of Public Safety, R. W. Black, Health Officer of Alameda County, drew some extremely interesting conclusions from a report made by a Michigan psychopathic clinic on drivers arrested for various traffic offenses.

The men were given nervous, mental and physical examinations, and a study made of their previous records. Their arrests were caused for speeding, reckless driving, drunken driving, failure to stop for signals, and similar common offenses. Their median age was thirty.

The examination records of 58 of the men showed that 12 were definitely feeble-minded, that 42 were of inferior intelligence, that 3 had serious physical defects, and 7 had significant defects in hearing and 14 in vision; that one showed an active epileptiform tendency, and that 46 were seriously handicapped by alcoholism. Of the entire number, only 13 were acceptable as drivers, under the most liberal interpretation of the term.

These case histories show, better than words, the reason why the automobile claims 35,000 lives a year. The highways are thronged with cars driven by persons congenitally incapable of driving carefully, competently and efficiently. The reckless and the mentally and physically defective constitute a dangerous percentage of men behind the wheel. Only stringent drivers' examination laws, and the rigid enforcement of modernized traffic codes, can solve this phase of the accident problem.

PURCHASING POWER

The rehabilitation of purchasing power—that force which creates and controls markets—is the greatest of all national needs.

Without purchasing power virtually all trade is dormant; factories cannot buy raw materials nor employ men; no profitable use can be found for transportation equipment; farmers can neither sell nor buy; investments are of relatively little value.

Under such conditions the wheels of commerce must be given unusual impetus.

One of the most practical and productive channels through which this can be accomplished is in carrying out needed public works, particularly the surfacing of additional miles of highways according to the tariffic demand.

At the present time the transportation of farm products to markets and shipping materials out to rural reas is costly and inconvenient. Proper grading of secondary roads and protecting them with an all-weather waterproof surface will reduce haulage costs and add that saving to private incomes.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

"Government in business is unfair competition because it uses the strength of government forces and funds, because it pays no taxes, because it restricts private opportunity, because it is not conducted on the regular and normal business basis, because it increases taxation and reduces the tax source . . ."—W. W. Borden, of the Federation of American Business.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

A TEMPLE OF JUSTICE OF YESTERYEAR

Once upon a time, the official jurisdiction of this old court house, in Winchester, Virginia reached into far Western wilds, the central city of which is now called Chicago. here is no record within its walls however that any sheriff had the hardihood to venture that far on official business.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank Litschert

One of the most forceful pleas to the taxpayers of America to busy themselves in saving the nation from intolerable burdens of taxation and bureaucracy has come from C. F. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, in a leaflet entitled "Time to Call a Halt." Mr. Williams presents the case of the long suffering taxpayer with logic that is unanswerable and point out the mounting dangers to be very fabric of the nation. In pointing out the tremendous increase in governmental burdens during the past twenty years, Mr. Williams says:

"The present paralysis of business with its attendant unemployment crisis is due in large part to the fact that municipal, state and federal taxes are consuming the capital upon which business and industry operate. The load is unbearable and the resulting conditions have become intolerable. Make no mistake about it—increased taxation produces business stagnation and unemployment.

"Here is the situation: In 1912 the cost of government—federal, state and local—was two billion dollars, or 6 per cent of the national income. In 1931 it was twelve billion dollars, or 22 per cent of the national income, and it is headed upward. Where will we land at this rate of increase? One adult out of every ten in the United States is on the public payroll. One day's earnings out of every five goes to pay the cost of government. One dollar out of every three of profit of a corporation or firm goes to taxes.

In paying his respects to bureaucracy and the staggering load it has fastened on the American people Mr. Williams is no less forceful and convincing:

"The government is now engaged in many expensive pursuits that don't come within the scope of government. Small, well organized groups have succeeded in getting appropriations for activities that have no relation to government. In the course of time a small research body becomes a major government bureau with a staggering annual appropriation and with an ever-lengthening payroll of office holders—and how they hold.

"This extravagance cripples all industry. Nobody escapes taxes. When the government taxes industry the tax is passed on to the consumer, and that makes everybody a taxpayer. The government is all of us and each of us. When the government borrows money it does so in your name and mine. We indorse the note and must pay it with interest."

There can be no question as to the soundness of Mr. Williams' arguments and the conclusions he draws therefrom. If the present business depression, which everyone hopes is drawing to a close, can give to the public mind the definite realization that the only real way to lasting prosperity is through economy in government and the paring down and elimination of governmental activities, so far as private business is concerned, it will be worth all that it has cost us.

Already there are indications that the people are beginning to realize that something is wrong and are going about the business of remedying it. Salaries of public officials are being reduced, their number is being cut down and unnecessary public activities curtailed. But a great deal more remains to be done. Bureaucracy like every selfish interest which is firmly entrenched will fight back with all its might and has the ear of a great many self serving politicians. We cannot do the job of reform in an aroused public conscience. The efforts of men like Mr. Charles F. Williams, in arousing this conscience, are invaluable. If their efforts succeed they will be real saviors of their country.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Mr. A. L. Fitch, the rising young Charlevoix attorney and Miss Pearl Greenway, of Fowlerville, were married at the latter place on the 24th. Mr. and Mrs. Fitch are at home in the Crumbaugh cottage, on the north side. The Sentinel extends felicitations.

The Barnard school is preparing a splendid postage program for Thursday 10th. Some valuable history, pictures and relics have been gathered, which together with the good old songs and recitations, will make the day exceedingly enjoyable. A large number of old people will be present. The graves will be decorated with golden rod, flowers and autumn leaves. Later in the afternoon a banquet to the old folks will be given.

Forty Years Ago

Work has at last been commenced on the waterworks pipe under the river. A diver was at work Monday cleaning out a hole in the sand on the bottom of the river for the pipe, and a novel method was adopted. The Sibley steam fire engine was brought to the bank and the diver took the hose down with him and plowed out the hole across the bottom and up the banks. Flexible joints are employed, which are fastened by the diver after the pipe is laid. The pipe will be in this week.

Fifty Years Ago

The material for lengthening the bridge across Pine River has arrived.

Mr. E. Greenway, of Howell, is in Charlevoix looking over the town with the view of starting a flouring mill. This is an enterprise the town needs, and one that could not but prove remunerative to practical men with capital.

The Odd Fellows have commenced the erection of a two story brick building on their lot on Bridge Street. The lower story will be used as a store, while the upper story will be occupied as lodge room. The work will be pushed rapidly to completion.

"Go west young man, and grow up with the country." The editor of the Sentinel is now sojourning for a brief period in Denver, Colorado. During his absence the "devil" will gladly acknowledge the receipt of choice specimens of fruits, pumpkins, etc.

HAZINGS FROM HAYES

The new town located on the Bay Shore near the county line is to be called Triple Rock.

The board of school inspectors has established a library in Hayes, and appointed I. S. Webster librarian. Any person wishing to donate any reading matter to the library is respectfully solicited to do so.

Sixty Years Ago

S. S. Lincomb, Esq., of this village, has exchanged his property here for property at Spring Lake, at which place he takes up his residence. In Mr. Lincomb's removal Charlevoix loses and Spring Lake gains a good citizen.

A Wise Step—A movement was initiated on Monday evening last, which should have been thought of long ago. The Grant & Wilson Club appointed a committee to take active measures to secure and erect a liberty pole in the most conspicuous place in the village. A committee of ladies was also appointed to canvass for funds to purchase a flag. The Club wish it understood that this is not a party matter. The flag and pole are to be the property of the village and are to be used on all public occasions.

Our Public Works—With the appearance of Autumn our public works are making rapid strides toward completion. The breakwater is stallment payments."

There is something of interest here for every American. Nothing so adds to the stability of American institutions and the perpetuation of American principles as widely diffused home ownership. The difference between such ownership and tenancy might well spell the difference between the republican form of government and a bolshevik autocracy.

There is no calculating in mere figures the good that may be accomplished by this home loan bank bill, because a great deal of good cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

RAILROADS AND TAXES

For many years the special object of attack on the part of the demagogues and those who wanted to undermine the fundamental principles of American government was the American railway system. Restrictive laws of all sorts were passed and whenever possible the railroads were entangled in a system of red tape. The result has been finally the crippling of our fundamental system of transportation and the financial embarassment of our own people, not only those who own railroad securities but those who are bank depositors and life insurance owners. Of late there has been a cessation of the attack of the demagogue on the railroads, perhaps for the reason that he saw such a drive was no longer possible and not productive of votes. But a great deal of damage has been done and it is damage which will require some years for repair.

One of the favorite cries of the demagogue was to the effect that railroad profits were inordinately high and that these went into the pockets of the bloated securities holders. He painted a picture in which the entire transportation system was in the grasp of a Wall Street octopus. And yet as a matter of fact railroad securities are owned by the ordinary man all over the country, and by the life insurance companies and other institutions with which the ordinary man deposits his savings. And never has the ownership of railway securities been so widely diffused as at present. As for earning, of course, nobody will have the hardihood to claim that anybody is getting rich out of the railroads in these days.

In view of all this, a statement issued the other day by F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central lines is more than interesting. In this statement the figures show that during the past seventeen and a half years, the New York Central Railroad as now constituted, has paid more than a half billion dollars in taxes.

But that is only half the story. During the same period the railroad has paid in dividends the sum of $365,-701,304. In short, the company has paid in taxes $142,369,941 more than people themselves, and they get it it has paid out in dividends.

Now this half billion dollars in taxes is a dividend which goes to the whether they own a share of railroad stock or not. It goes to pay the running expenses of the state and local governments as well as of the federal government, and it means that the farmer and the home owner and the business and professional man have to pay that much less in the way of tax, if they reside in a county through which the railroad runs, than they would have to pay if the railroad were not there or if it were owned by the government.

Here is one phase of the question of private versus government ownership which is often missed. If the government owned and operated the railroads not only would the stockholders lose the dividends and have less money to spend to help the general business of the country, without getting better service, but the general public would lose a great deal in indirect dividends by the low rate of millions in taxes. And it is to be added, of course, that government ownership and operation would mean even greater deficits than have been piled up in this time of depression.

Let us not forget too that a government deficit is paid for by the taxpayers themselves while the deficit of a private corporation comes out of the dividends of the "bloated" securities holders.

"Man Wanted," the first Warner Bros. picture made by Kay Francis, said to be Hollywood's best dressed star, will be shown at the Palace Theater next Saturday and Sunday.

Her latest picture gives the star an opportunity to display her fashion sense and dramatic ability to an unusual degree, the story having been written especially for her. Miss Francis plays the part of a very wealthy society woman who turns to business as her prime interest, eschewing the idle pastimes of her husband and others in her set. There are, however, many luxurious scenes of fashionable and wealthy surroundings, both in the offices of the magazine the star operates and in her home.

"Man Wanted" was given special attention by the Warners and the care exerted is plainly evident in cast, story, settings and direction.

William Dieterle, often compared to Ernest Lubitsch, director of several Maurice Chevalier successes, went over the entire story for a long period before the picture was put in production, being assisted by Miss Francis. Between the star and the director, "Man Wanted" became a technical masterpiece, a fact being evident at the box-office in other cities where it is shown.

The story involves the infidelities of the star's husband, played by Kenneth Thomson, for resulting unhappiness and the separation which drives man and wife to other arms.

A DEPRESSION LESSON

The lessons learned from the depression ought not be forgotten, once we are safe on the road to recovery. For us in Texas, and in the South generally, it served to bring strikingly to our attention the fact that our people are too much dependent upon foreign markets.

Taking the United States as a whole, at the very height of prosperity only ten per cent of the country's annual production of wealth is exported. But it is necessary to find a foreign market for more than half of the South's chief product, cotton, and in Texas ninety per cent of the annual crop must be sold outside of the United States. Inasmuch as nearly one-third of the population of Texas lives on cotton farms, that means that the prosperity of our people, or the lack of it, is determined by influences over which we have practically no control. We should seek to change that situation as much as possible.

We are not suggesting that we can escape from the interdependence of the nations of the world. We cannot escape from it. Henceforth, because the world has become a neighborhood, and the future will make it smaller rather than otherwise, the United States will have interests at stake whenever there is economic disturbance anywhere on earth. And the interests of Texas will be a little more directly involved than those of most of the other sections of the country. But interdependence is one thing, and absolute dependence is quite another.

The last three years have served to force upon our attention the brutal fact that entirely too many Texas people are absolutely dependent for their living upon conditions in foreign countries. It is that which we should seek to change. We may "seek" advisedly, because the problem is not a simple one. The direction in which the solution lies can be easily pointed out, to be sure, but the attainment of that solution will call for much wisdom and patient effort, and will take time.

If we are to become less dependent upon foreign countries, obviously we must become more dependent upon ourselves. If we are to do less for foreign countries, we must do more for ourselves. The direction which our effort should take is toward the positive half of that formula. We must seek to become more dependent upon ourselves by doing more for ourselves.—Texas Weekly.

A TAXPAYER'S PROSPECTS

Bureaucracy was firmly entrenched in Europe long before we thought of the word. Today the taxpayers of Europe are paying a terrific price for the vast multitudes of services rendered by their governments. Much of the high taxes goes to pay for the bonded debt incurred during the war, or armaments still maintained, but much also goes for the social insurance and similar functions undertaken more recently.

A Frenchman today pays about one-third of his income in taxes, which number nearly 200. If he has an income of $5,000, is married, and lives in a pleasant apartment, he must pay something like $820 in four direct taxes which are based on his income and his rent. Innumerable miscellaneous taxes add another $800 to his tax burden, although he may not be aware of all the latter.

When he goes to the theater one-third of the admission is a tax. If he travels, 28 per cent of the fare is tax, and his hotel bill is taxed. Matches, cigarettes, servants, wines and a host of other levies are subject to excise levies.

We have not yet reached this point in the grim story of American taxation. But we are perilously close to it. Each year has seen the imposition of new burdens, with little or no effort to stem the tide of public spending. Unless a more determined stand is made by taxpayers, they will soon be in the position of their European brethren.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EMPLOYMENT AND GOVERNMENT COST

Some persons argue that drastic cuts in the cost of government will make the unemployment problem still more intense. They reason that the dismissal of employes now drawing a living from the public treasury would still further contract purchasing power, and cause additional retrenchment.

The effect should be just the opposite. Burnard Baruch points out that an orgy of spending by the government impairs credit and makes the future of money uncertain. Investors are frightened, and those who can afford to spend, hoard what they have. Domestic trade declines and, inevitably, more unemployment results. It is a vicious circle to which there can be no end until we have genuine government economy.

It is self-evident that reasonable and inexpensive government is the friend of employment—excessively expensive government is its enemy.

There can be no question that many industries, which would now be employing men and laying plans for expansion, are retarded by a dread of still higher taxes. They have reached the point where increased tax rates mean bankruptcy. Taxation is the foremost economic issue of the day—because it regulates employment, investment and industrial development.

PROSPERITY ALWAYS RETURNS

During the past few weeks there has been a new spirit of optimism along the economic front. It is not an optimism of the "prosperity is just around the corner" variety. It is instead well grounded in fact.

The seasonal influences have been favorable. Commodity prices have shown a steady upward tendency. Stocks of goods of all kinds are rapidly becoming depleted, resulting in new buying. The outward flow of gold has been checked and reversed. And, finally, conditions abroad have definitely improved.

Best of all, is the feeling of confidence that is growing in the public mind. There can be no recovery without that. And when, along with it, the economic indicators point the right way, we can look forward with a feeling of hopefulness.

THE RUBBISH PEDDLERS

In a recent article in the Atlantic Monthly, John Maynard Keynes, one of the foremost economists of the world, said that "in the United States it is almost inconceivable what rubbish a man has to utter today . . ."

The reason for that is that most public men, particularly those in high office, minimize the intelligence of the public. They have seen themselves and others swept into office on platforms consisting mainly or solely of ancient platitudes, sonorous evasions, polysyllabic misrepresentations, and appeals to local prejudices. They have then acted accordingly.

The public is largely to blame for this condition, not because of lack of intelligence, not because of a laissez faire attitude toward the business of government. If the average well-informed citizen paid as little critical attention to his own business as he does to the public business he would be bankrupt.

There are grounds for hope that present conditions have awakened the voter. They have tended to make us think—to look at government and government officers with new eyes. If they have done that, the depression has been worth its cost. And the result will be that a good many officeholders, whose stock in trade is bunk will be looking for new jobs in the near future.

THE MAN AT THE WHEEL

In an address before the California Committee of Public Safety, B. W. Black, Health Officer of Alameda County, drew some extremely interesting conclusions from a report made by a Michigan psychopathic clinic on drivers arrested for various traffic offenses.

The men were given nervous, mental and physical examinations, and a study made of their previous records. Their arrests were caused for speeding, reckless driving, drunken driving, failure to stop for signals, and similar common offenses. Their median age was thirty.

The examination records of 58 of the men showed that 12 were definitely feeble-minded, that 42 were of inferior intelligence, that 3 had serious physical defects, and 7 had significant defects in hearing and 14 in vision; that one showed an active epileptiform tendency, and that 46 were seriously handicapped by alcoholism. Of the entire number, only 13 were acceptable as drivers, under the most liberal interpretation of the term.

Those case histories show, better than words, the reason why the automobile claims 35,000 lives a year. The highways are thronged with cars driven by persons congenitally incapable of driving carefully, competently and efficiently. The reckless and the mentally and physically defective constitute a dangerous percentage of men behind the wheel. Only stringent drivers' examination laws, and the rigid enforcement of modernized traffic codes, can solve this phase of the accident problem.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

A TEMPLE OF JUSTICE OF YESTEREVAR

Once upon a time the official jurisdiction of this old court house, in Winchester, Virginia reached into far Western wilds, the central city of which is now called Chicago. There is no record within its walls however that any sheriff had the hardihood to venture that far on official business.

PURCHASING POWER

The rehabilitation of purchasing power—that force which creates and controls markets—is the greatest of all national needs.

Without purchasing power virtually all trade is dormant; factories cannot buy raw materials nor employ men; no profitable use can be found for transportation equipment; farmers can neither sell nor buy; investments are of relatively little value.

Under such conditions the wheels of commerce must be given unusual impetus.

One of the most practical and productive channels through which this can be accomplished is in carrying out needed public works, particularly the surfacing of additional miles of highways according to the tarffic demand.

At the present time the transportation of farm products to markets and shipping materials out to rural reas is costly and inconvenient. Proper grading of secondary roads and protecting them with an all-weather waterproof surface will reduce haulage costs and add that saving to private incomes.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

"Government in business is unfair competition because it uses the strength of government forces and funds, because it pays no taxes, because it restricts private opportunity, because it is not conducted on the regular and normal business basis, because it increases taxation and reduces the tax source . . ."—M. W. Borders, of the Federation of American Business.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank Litschert

One of the most forceful pleas to the taxpayers of America to busy themselves in saving the nation from intolerable burdens of taxation and bureaucracy has come from C. E. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, in a leaflet entitled "Time to Call a Halt!" Mr. Williams presents the case of the long suffering taxpayer with logic but is unanswerable and point out the mounting dangers to the very fabric of the nation. In pointing out the tremendous increase in governmental burdens during the past twenty years, Mr. Williams says:

"The present paralysis of business with its attendant unemployment crisis is due in large part to the fact that municipal, state and federal taxes are consuming the capital upon which business and industry operate. The load is unbearable and the resulting conditions have become intolerable. Make no mistake about it—increased taxation produces business stagnation and unemployment.

"Here is the situation: In 1912 the cost of government—federal, state and local—was two billion dollars, or 6 per cent of the national income. In 1931 it was twelve billion dollars, or 22 per cent of the national income, and it is headed upward. Where will we land at this rate of increase? One adult out of every ten in the United States on the public payroll. One day's earnings out of every five goes to pay the cost of government. One dollar out of every three of profit of a corporation or firm goes to taxes.

In paying his respects to bureaucracy and the staggering load it has fastened on the American people Mr. Williams is no less forceful and convincing:

"The government is now engaged in many expensive pursuits that don't come within the scope of government. Small, well organized groups have succeeded in getting appropriations for activities that have no relation to government. In the course of time a small research body becomes a major government bureau with a staggering annual appropriation and with an ever-lengthening payroll of office holders—and how they hold.

"This extravagance cripples all industry. Nobody escapes taxes. When the government taxes industry the tax is passed on to the consumer, and that makes everybody a taxpayer. The government is all of us and each of us. When the government borrows money it does so in your name and mine. We indorse the note and must pay it with interest."

There can be no question as to the soundness of Mr. Williams' arguments and the conclusions he draws therefrom. If the present business depression, which everyone hopes is drawing to a close, can give to the public mind the definite realization that the only real safety to lasting prosperity is through economy in government and the paring down and elimination of governmental activities, so far as private business is concerned, it will be worth all that it has cost us.

Already there are indications that the people are beginning to realize that something is wrong and are going about the business of remedying it. Salaries of public officials are being reduced and their number is being cut down and unnecessary public activities curtailed. But a great deal more remains to be done. Bureaucracy like every selfish interest which is firmly entrenched will fight back with all its might and has the ear of a great many self serving politicians. We cannot do the job without an aroused public conscience. The efforts of men like Mr. Charles F. Williams, in arousing this conscience, are invaluable. If their efforts succeed they will be real saviors of their country.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Mr. A. L. Fitch, the rising young Charlevoix attorney and Miss Pearl Greenway, of Foxlerville, were married at the latter place on the 24th. Mr. and Mrs. Fitch are at home in the Crunkshank cottage, on the north side. The Sentinel extends felicitations.

The Harnard school is preparing a splendid pioneer program for October 19th. Some valuable history, pictures and relics have been gathered, which together with the good old songs and recitations, will make the day exceedingly enjoyable. A large number of old people will be present. The grades will be decorated with golden rod, flowers and autumn leaves. Later in the afternoon a banquet to the old folks will be given.

Forty Years Ago

Work has at last been commenced on the waterworks pipe under the river. A diver was at work Monday cleaning out a hole in the sand on the bottom of the river for the pipe, and a novel method was adopted. The Silsby steam fire engine was brought to the bank and the diver took the hose down with him and plowed out a ditch across the bottom and up the banks. Flexible joints are employed, which are fastened by the diver after the pipe is laid. The pipe will be in this week.

Fifty Years Ago

The material for lengthening the bridge across Pine River has arrived.

Mr. E. Greenway, of Howell, is in Charlevoix looking over the town with the view of starting a flouring mill. This is an enterprise the town needs, and one that could not but prove remunerative to practical men with capital.

The Odd Fellows have commenced the erection of a two story brick building on their lot on Bridge Street. The lower story will be used as a store, while the upper story will be occupied as lodge room. The work will be pushed rapidly to completion.

"Go west young man, and grow up with the country." The editor of the Sentinel is now sojourning for a brief period in Denver, Colorado. During his absence the "devil" will gladly acknowledge the receipt of choice specimens of fruits, pumpkins, etc.

HAZINGS FROM HAYES

Mrs. G. O. Scott and daughter returned home from New York last week.

The new town located on the Bay Shore near the county line is to be called Triple Rock.

The board of school inspectors has established a library in Hayes, and appointed I. S. Webster librarian. Any person wishing to donate any reading matter to the library is respectfully solicited to do so.

Sixty Years Ago

S. S. Liscomb, Esq., of this village, has exchanged his property here for property at Speink Lake, at which place he takes up his residence. In Mr. Liscomb's removal Charlevoix loses and Spring Lake gains a good citizen.

A Wise Step—A movement was initiated on Monday evening last, which should have been thought of long ago. The Grant & Wilson Club appointed a committee to take active measures to secure and erect a liberty pole in the most conspicuous place in the village. A committee of ladies was also appointed to canvass for funds to purchase a flag. The Club wish it understood that this is not a party matter. The flag and pole are to be the property of the village and are to be used on all public occasions.

THE HOME LOAN LAW

The objects of the new Home Loan Bank bill were tersely summed up recently in a speech by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who said in part:

"The object of the Home Loan Law is to save old homes and build new ones. When in full operation it will prevent foreclosure of mortgages on vast numbers of homes and permit the construction of new ones by those who are without sufficient money.

"There are 12,000 building and loan associations in the United States with a membership of over 12,000,000 and assets of $9,000,000,000. Of this sum $8,000,000,000 has been lent on small home mortgages. The aggregate of liens on homes in all organizations of this type totals $20,000,000,000.

"I am asked every day to state just how the Home Loan Banks will work to benefit the man who has a mortgage on his home and who cannot pay the monthly installments. There is but one answer:

"When this system is in operation, the association, of whatever type that holds the mortgage on the home can put it up as collateral in a Federal Home Loan Bank, and thus supply itself with cash that will enable it to carry along those mortgagors who cannot meet their installments. It can thus acquire means to make long-ererm mortgages and at a lower rate of interest than the existing ones and in that way sustain a mortgagor until he again begins his installment payments."

There is something of interest here for every American. Nothing so adds to the stability of American institutions and the perpetuation of American principles as widely diffused home ownership. The difference between such ownership and tenancy might well spell the difference between the republican form of government and a hobbled autocracy.

There is no calculating in mere figures the good that may be accomplished by this home loan bank bill, because a great deal of good cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

RAILROADS AND TAXES

For many years the special object of attack on the part of the demagogues and those who wanted to undermine the fundamental principles of American government was the American railway system. Restrictive laws of all sorts were passed and whenever possible the railroads were entangled in a system of red tape. The result has been finally the crippling of our fundamental system of transportation and the financial embarassment of our own people, not only those who own railroad securities but those who are bank depositors and life insurance owners. Of late there has been a cessation of the attack of the demagogue on the railroads, perhaps for the reason that he saw such a drive was no longer possible and not productive of votes. But a great deal of damage has been done and it is damage which will require some years for repair.

One of the favorite cries of the demagogue was to the effect that railroad profits were inordinately high and that these went into the pockets of the bloated securities holders. He painted a picture in which the entire transportation system was in the grasp of a Wall Street octopus. And yet as a matter of fact railroad securities are owned by the ordinary man all over the country, and by the life insurance companies and other institutions with which the ordinary man deposits his savings. And never has the ownership of railway securities been so widely diffused as at present. As for earning, of course, nobody will have the hardihood to claim that anybody is getting rich out of the railroads in these days.

In view of $1 this, a statement issued the other day by F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central lines is more than interesting. In this statement the figures show that during the past seventeen and a half years, the New York Central Railroad as now constituted, has paid more than a half billion dollars in taxes.

But this is only half the story. During the same period the railroad lines paid in dividends the sum of $365,201,304. In short, the company has paid in taxes $142,359,941 more than they themselves, and they get it it has paid out in dividends.

Now this half billion dollars in taxes is a dividend which goes to the states where they own a share of railroad stock or not. It goes to pay the running expenses of the state and local governments as well as of the federal government, and it means that the farmer and the home owner and the business and professional man have to pay that much less in the way of tax, if they reside in a county through which the railroad runs, than they would have to pay if the railroad were not there or if it were owned by the government.

Here is one phase of the question of private versus government ownership which is often missed. If the government owned and operated the railroads not only would the stockholders lose the dividends and have less money to spend to help the general business of the country, without getting better service, but the general public would lose a great deal more in indirect dividends by the loss of millions in taxes. And it is to be added, of course, that government ownership and operation would mean even greater deficits than have been piled up in this time of depression.

Let us not forget too that a government deficit is paid for by the taxpayers themselves while the deficit of a private corporation comes out of the dividends of the "bloated" securities holders.

KAY FRANCIS ON THE SCREEN AT THE PALACE SATURDAY

"Man Wanted" is the first Warner Bros. picture made by Kay Francis, said to be Hollywood's best dressed star, will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Her latest picture gives the star an opportunity to display her fashion sense and dramatic ability to an unusual degree, the story having been written especially for her. Miss Francis plays the part of a very wealthy society woman who turns to business as her prime interest, eschewing the idle pastimes of her husband and others in her set. There are, however, many luxurious scenes of fashionable and wealthy surroundings, both in the office of the magazine the star operates and in her home.

"Man Wanted" was given special attention by the Warners and the care exerted is plainly evident in cast, story, settings and direction.

William Dieterle, often compared to Ernest Lubitsch, director of seven at Maurice Chevalier successes, went over the entire story with a long pencil before the picture was put in production, being assisted by Miss Francis. Between the star and the director, "Man Wanted" became a technical masterpiece, a fact being reflected at the box-office in other cities where it is shown.

The story involves the infidelities of the star's husband, played by Kenneth Thomson, his subsequent repentance and the separation which drives man and wife to other arms.

Service Wednesday 7:45 p. m.
Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, September 25.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Ps. 4:3, 5): "I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p.277): "To all that is unlike unerring and eternal Mind, this Mind saith, 'Thou shalt surely die;' and elsewhere the Scripture says that dust returns to dust. The nonintelligence relapses into its own unreality."

David Manners appears in the role of the secretary who became indispensable to Miss Francis, in business and love affairs. Claire Dodd appears as the vamp who charms Thomson into another infidelity.

The plot presents several new angles hitherto not seen on the screen, handling novel situations in a racy and delicate manner. The action is rapid moving from one beautiful setting to another, reflecting the fast pace and speedy life of modern fashionables in business and society. There is an abundance of comedy furnished by Andy Devine, the young "find" of "The Spirit of Notre Dame." With Una Merkel, Devine contributes a realistic form of humor which drew the favorable comments of metropolitan reviewers.

Other important members of the large cast of "Man Wanted" are Elizabeth Patterson, Charlotte Merriam, Edward Van Sloan, Robert Greig and Betty Farrington.

Manager of the Palace assures the ladies that they will find a delightful story in "Man Wanted," as well as a parade of fashion that will indicate the latest trend of the mode. He assures the men of genuine amusement and lively situations which will prove especially interesting to them, particularly in the case of an exciting pole game which will thrill all lovers of sport and fast action.

THE MACHINE AGE SPOILS A PROPHECY

By H. L. RUSSELL
Advisory Council, Agricultural Committee, American Bankers Association

A NOTED British scientist forecast thirty years ago that by 1931 all available wheat land in the world would be under cultivation, and in the year 1932 no more could be had. Consequently the cost would then be greatly increased and the world standards of thirty years ago, in place of five cents per bushel, we have had five dollars due to surplus.

Wheat farmers have shown no great inclination to curtail materially their output, perhaps a 10% decline compared with 30% reduction in steel. This miscalculation, or perhaps intelligent, human motive production far needs makes the problems all the harder to solve.

Not only are we now growing more wheat per unit of land, but science has been busy developing entirely new methods. Twenty years Canada has increased average 250%, Australia almost as much. Another significant fact is the materials imported into the world. A much more diversified use has developed. Soy vegetables and fruits are used than formerly. The reduction of 1.2 bushels per person per year would more than offset the total increase in the population of the United States nearly 120,000,000 bushels less wheat than was formerly required.

Machines Increase Supply

The factor that has exerted the most influence in the decline in the selling value of grain has been the rapid development of the machine. The day of the cradle resulted from thirty to forty hours of hand labor to harvest an acre of grain. This enabled the farmer to reduce his production to four or five hours per acre. Now the same acre is done the work in forty-five minutes per acre.

Where it used to cost ten cents a bushel merely to thresh the grain, the modern combine cuts and threshes at a cost ranging from 2 to 3 cents a bushel. With this reduced cost of production the possibility of acreage expansion is tremendous. Lands formerly regarded as worthless except for grazing have profitably come into competition with the older wheat lands.

The Russian Effort

Within the past two or three years another disturbing element has come on the heated competition in such a group. As students become more experienced in using the privileges granted to such an organization, more of the qualities of practical citizens ship appear.

Grades

The fifth grade pupils are making leaf booklets. Each pupil is collecting all the different kinds of leaves he can find and pasting them in the book.

All the pupils of the grade building have been examined by the county nurse, and Miss Hazel states that reports will be sent to the parents soon.

From "High School Hustler", Feb. 15, 1907.

"Dr. Wilkinson who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1898, was up and gave the High school a very interesting talk Monday morning about his experience as a soldier. Said he enlisted the same day he graduated."

Get the Things You Want" by Emmett Crozier, in the current number of the American Magazine, and tried some of the tests on the pupils. The results in some instances were unusually high.

The band has obtained new music and is now working vigorously to be prepared to appear for the first home football game.

Manual Arts

Preliminary drawings being completed. Manual Arts classes are ready to begin actual work. The boys are eager to test their skill, and Mr. Weisenberger states that parents may assist by allowing the boys to work on couple jobs around the house.

The boys are also busy building an entry to the high school basement. Mr. Weisenberger is in charge of the construction. This entry is over the door leading to the book store and lunch room. The lunch room is made of part of the basement. It has a cement floor and is well heated and ventilated. This room will be used by all those who carry their lunches in cold weather.

Personal

Mr. Bush attended the Conference of High School Superintendents of the state, at Traverse City last Friday and Saturday.

Joe Borkovsky is back in school after having been in Chicago getting material on the study of the Indians.

Winfield Kirby has gone to Glouster, Mass., to attend the funeral of his uncle.

Junior High News

The Junior High School mixed chorus proved to be a real success in the music department in 1931-32. With the experience of a year's effort to serve as a background, the chorus should establish an enviable tradition for itself. Students are to be congratulated in the opportunity which such an organization offers. In addition to the whole Junior High chorus it is expected that Ninth Grade Mixed Chorus will be organized this year.

The Junior high student council initiated as a representative group a year ago, will undergo the process of formal organization in the near future. Much value is to be gained by such concerted cooperation in such a group. As students become more experienced in using the privileges granted to such an organization, more of the qualities of practical citizenship appear.

VAPORIZED AIR OF MODERN HEATING PLANT PROTECTS HEALTH

WINTER USHERS IN SEASON OF COLDS

Two a Year Average Person's Lot as Result of Dry Indoor Air.

TWELVE colds a year are the lot of the average person and these are usually contracted during the winter heating season, that period when furnaces keep operation indoors. Records for the last five respondents' diaries, headaches, heating and ventilating engineers, and air conditioning experts that the super-dry air that circulates most homes and places of work during winter is in large degree responsible for colds, sinus and other respiratory ailments.

Warmed indoor air is "dry" for the simple reason that winter (cold) air is more dense than warmed air, and contains less moisture than warmed air. According to the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Mich. Winter air of 32 degrees F. has capacity for only one-fourth the amount of moisture that air of a temperature of 70 degrees has; therefore, there is a moisture shortage when the winter air is taken indoors and warmed to 70 degrees. The result is that indoor air is too dry. The warm, dry air quickly dries the moist membranes in the nose and throat, irritating these, creating fertile soil for germs to breed, for bacteria that cause disease.

Furthermore, dry air is usually charged with dust and more germs result this active field for infection. The dust particles, which are the undesirable contents, like to amplifying the infant air with sufficient moisture to offset the deficiency. This is best accomplished by means of coolers humidifiers, heating and ventilating engineers, and air conditioning experts that the super-dry air that circulates most homes and places of work during winter is in large degree responsible for colds, sinus and other respiratory ailments.

REPORT ON STATE CONVENTION

OF REPUBLICAN PARTY HELD IN DETROIT SEPTEMBER 29

Virtually every party leader and office holder of the State was present when Howard D. Lawrence, state treasurer and chairman of the State Central Committee called the convention to order here today at the Cass Technical School.

Rep. Jos. L. Hooper delivered the keynote address, stressing the benefits derived from the Simon-Hawley Tariff Act, replying to the criticism directed at the Act by Democrats.

"They do not mention," he said, "that our foreign trade is but 7 per cent of our commerce. They forget to say that every Democratic representative and senator on the floor fought for higher tariff on articles produced in his home state."

The Democratic party's hope of success," he added, "lies in it's capitalization of the misery of the universe. In two generations, they have offered the country, free silver, free trade and free advice."

"The year they have omitted the free silver and free trade and can only offer free advice. A low tariff will flood this country with cheap foreign goods, produced by foreign labor under economic stress."

A special subcommittee, under the chairmanship of Frank P. Darin of Boyne Resurgence commanded the National platform and especially Fred Hoose's interpretation of it as regards the 18th Amendment. The succeeding resolution was expected to fall short of the expectations of the more rabid wets.

The interest of the anti-prohibition group seems to be centered on getting the support of both major parties, for the State Repeal amendment to be voted on in November. The Democrats have already endorsed the Short Ballot Amendment.

The sub-committee on resolutions favored the Wayne delegation in it's declaration calling for local control of utilities, old age pension, and inclusion of occupational diseases in the workman's Compensation Act.

At a meeting of the State Central Committee Wednesday night, Mrs. C. L. Barber of Lansing was elected vice chairman without opposition. She succeeds Mrs. Jacob Steketee, of Grand Rapids, who was elected national committeewoman last June.

The weight of the womens vote is being thrown various places in the state, politically.

Despite confusion in the reception arrangements, Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, spoke to the convention Thursday.

Quick economic recovery was predicted by Mills today, lauding the work of President Hoover, as having achieved the near impossible, in turning the tide of the business depression.

Heavy attendance marked the convention, few counties being without a full delegation, noticeably so of the upstate counties. The outstanding party men and leaders were Arthur H. Vandenberg, Chase Osborn, Ex-gov. Green, Gov. Brucker, Frank Fitzgerald, Mrs. Jacob Steketee and Mrs. C. L. Barber.

Only good will marked the closing minutes of the convention no opposition appearing to any of the incumbents in the four offices to be filled, Secretary of State, Attorney General, Auditor General, and State Treasurer.

We are indebted to Mrs. Agnes Lorch of Boyne City for the forcing write-up of the Republican State Convention. Mrs. Lorch attended the meeting as a delegate from Charlevoix County. Other delegates were H. C. Meyer, Boyne Falls; Samuel Rogers, East Jordan; Dr. J. Furman, Boyne City; Mrs. R. R. Armstrong and Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson of Charlevoix.

YOUNGSTERS CATCH FINE TROUT IN ROUND LAKE

Two happy fishermen, youngsters, were exhibiting a sizeable trout taken by them from Round Lake Thursday afternoon that weighed 5 1-4 pounds, making for one of the largest steelheads taken with a hook and line in local waters in recent years and possibly is a record for all time in this vicinity.

Other fishermen with elaborate outfits were fishing nearby, but a few perch was the best they could catch, while the kids with something but little better than a bent pin for a hook and ten-cent line for tackle won the prize catch of the season.

"TWO AGAINST THE WORLD" STARS CONSTANCE BENNETT AT PALACE

"Two Against the World" which brings glamorous Constance Bennett to local audiences again under the Warner Bros banner to Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, is said to be the most sumptuously dressed and dramatically satisfying of all the pictures in which she has been starred. Based on the best selling novel of the same name by Marion Hix and Jerry Horwin, "Two Against the World" is a thrilling story of love and murder in high places, of a hungry luring lady who finds herself suddenly face to face with law with the man she loves, as the prosecutor, of a proud girl who dares disgrace and ruin to protect a reputation.

Running all the way from the tenderness of a spoiled child of the rich to the torrid emotions of a disgraced woman in love, "Two Against the World" gives Miss Bennett her greatest screen role to date. If, as has been recently rumored, the Marquise de la Falaise as Constance Bennett will be private life, is to retire shortly from the screen, "Two Against the World" may long be remembered as a thoroughly satisfying opportunity laden vehicle for her swan song.

The picture is lavishly staged and richly dressed, as befits the fame and beauty of the star Miss Bennett herself. Her wardrobe so beautifully gowned. The supporting cast, headed by Neil Hamilton and including Allan Vinnent, Helen Vinson, Gavin Gordon, Walter Walker, Hale Hamilton, Alan Mowbray and Rosco Karns, is of impressive excellence. The picture is directed by Archie Mayo who guided Miss Bennett's first Warner Brothers picture, "Bought," to a tremendous box office success of some months past.

"Two Against the World" is really a vital love story involving a man of the streets and a woman of the classes. Public calamity, the great leveler, intervenes to break down old barriers and build new ones, with the status of the principals reversed before many light moments that are delightful and smartly dialogued scenes, with a courtroom sequence of a dramatic intensity rarely seen before on the talking screen.

FIRST SHOOTING ACCIDENT OF HUNTING SEASON

The first shooting accident of the season insofar as local hunters are concerned befell Jack Bowman, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bowman of East Jordan on Sunday last when he was accidentally shot by his brother, receiving a charge of shot in his hip. The lad was taken to Lockwood Hospital in Petoskey, for treatment.

The wound is reported as being serious. The brothers were duck hunting at the time and this was soon after the duckshooting season opened.

DEMOCRATS ATTEND A PARTY MEETING AT GAYLORD MONDAY

A number of local democratic party members made the drive to Gaylord Monday to attend a party meeting at which Hon. Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, candidate for congress in this district was principal speaker. Those reported to the Sentinel as being present at the meeting from Charlevoix were E. E. Van Ess W. Fiscus, R. F. Bloss, Judson M. S. Benson, Joseph Foster and Ray Whitley.

CLEAN UP YOUR GARDENS THIS FALL IS ADVICE GIVEN

Spring time is always associated with the task of house-cleaning, but the season for home cleaning to the outdoor living room is in the fall. This time is advised not only for the greatly improved appearance of the garden during the winter, but also because of the best preventative against insect invasions next summer.

From now on until freezing weather various plants in the garden will display their rather unattractive flower stalks, barren of flowers and leaves. Few home gardeners realize however, that all these dead stalks are dangerous if left there through the winter, for they harbor destructive insects of all sorts.

In following through the life cycles of such insects, we find that they pass through the winter season in one of two dormant stages—the egg or pupae. Some of the insects winter over in this manner on the ground where they are well protected against hard frosts, etc. The remainder of these destructive insects make their winter homes in the stalks of perennial and annual plants in the garden. These old stalks, usually hollow, furnish ideal protection, too against severe freezing, etc.

It should be on the program of every home gardener to go through his garden every fall and cut off all the dead flower stalks, and burn them. The practice will greatly decrease the number and expense of fighting insects of those bothersome pests in the garden next season.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. BESSIE B. ALLEN

Funeral service was held at Ironton Church, Friday afternoon for Mrs. Bessie Brown Allen, who passed away at Lansing Wednesday, September 28th.

Her maiden name was Bessie Belle Brown, born in Charlevoix July 24, 1911, therefore at the time of her passing more than 21 years of age. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brown who have resided in Ironton for the past twenty years. She was united in marriage with Mr. Glair Allen, December 19, 1931 by whom she is survived; also by two infant sons, Donald Gale and Ronald Dale, also by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brown before mentioned. Several brothers and sisters and many friends.

From early girlhood days she has been, until her removal to Lansing a member and active worker in the Ironton Church, the membership being retained by her until her death.

Rev. R. Russell Parker officiated at the funeral service.

Mr. William Watson motored to Chicago Saturday where he will remain a few days attending to business matters after which he goes to Los Angeles, California, according to his usual custom for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Campbell, motored for some days at the home of Mrs. Campbell's mother, Mrs. Elma H. Cook and other Charlevoix friends returned to Jackson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ingram who recently spent a short vacation at Redjef cottage, returned to Rives Forest, Ill., Saturday.

RED CROSS MEET HELD LAST NIGHT

DISTRIBUTION OF FLOUR AND COTTON GOODS DISCUSSED

What is said to be one of the last meetings of the Charlevoix County Chapter of the Red Cross was held in the Wolverine Hotel in Boyne City Wednesday evening with Mr. Irene Matthews, Traveling Field Secretary of the Red Cross, in charge.

The purposes of the session was to discuss with the distribution of materials for emergency flour, making plans for the distribution of the cotton material that is being received by the Chapter and to make plans for the coming Roll Call.

Mr. Matthews reported that after checking over the work in this county he was very pleased with the distribution and commended very high by all. Close cooperation shown between the Red Cross and the American Legion in handling the matter, counties visited on the present trip, Charlevoix County stood out above as an example of such cooperation. In his remarks he made it very clear that the work of the Red Cross and American Legion has much in common and harmony and cooperation should exist between these two great organizations. He read a communication from the National Commander of the American Legion urging all Legionnaires to support and cooperate with the Red Cross during the coming year.

The matter of distribution of the cotton material that is now being received was taken up and plans presented by Mrs. J. M. Harris which were approved by Mr. Matthews.

Mr. Matthews then pointed out that in the course of the next few months Charlevoix county will have received through the Red Cross, nearly 1500 barrels of flour and 2500 yards of cotton material.

With regard to the coming roll call solicitations show that there is nation wide interest in the Red Cross this year and based on the face of present conditions it is expected that the membership will exceed that of last year. But to insure this it is absolutely necessary for every Chapter to conduct a most intensive campaign this year.

Those in attendance at the meeting from Charlevoix were Mrs. Adah Beeman, local chairman of the Red Cross; Mrs. A. P. Hodge, Treasurer and local chairman of the cotton distribution respectively; and R. B. Hurley and E. J. Kelley, Commander and Welfare Officer of the local American Legion Post.

On the return trip from Boyne City the above named durfare that a blinding snow storm was encountered which was evidently local in character for when Charlevoix was reached the stars were shining.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES CASE

REAFFIRMS DECISION OF LOCAL LOWER COURT

In the case recently tried in Circuit Court in which Isabelle M. Sloan was plaintiff-appellant and Charlevoix State Savings Bank et al. defendants-appellees and an appeal taken by the plaintiff to the supreme court, that august body rendered their decision early this week, affirming the findings of the lower court.

In view of the fact that the case was important and followed closely by a large number of local citizens, we are publishing for the benefit of those interested in the case the findings of the Supreme Court as follows:

THINK TWICE, YOUNG PEOPLE!

In a recent radio address, W. E. Mallalieu, General Manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, observed that the encroachment of government competition into industry was narrowing chances of young people to go into business for themselves.

Criticizing Mr. Mallalieu's viewpoint, a leading socialist newspaper said: "He might better have deplored the fact that the government is so little in business that it cannot guarantee employment to those worthy young people, but must turn them loose in a chaotic world of industry in which they cannot find jobs."

Here we have two schools of thought represented: The first upholds our American theory of individualism; the second, that of paternalism.

Our country reached world leadership thru the freedom of individual initiative. So far our socialist friends have been unable to show the same advancement for the individual through their experiments. Under their theory that the government should guarantee employment to worthy young people, the government would have to take over all business, including land ownership. It could then, in theory at least, regulate production and income. Every citizen would virtually be a ward or an employe of the government and depend upon the public treasury for his "keep." As all government industries are tax-exempt, they would have to make a profit as does private industry, which, in turn, would be handed to the public treasury to be redistributed, with the citizens drawing their living from the public payrolls or charitable institutions.

The fundamental reason for all past failures of government in the field of business, is simply this: Government does not have to make a profit. It can always demand additional sums from the taxpayers to cover inefficiency, carelessness or mediocrity on the part of public servants who are in no way responsible for losses. This condition breeds lack of initiative in the rank and file of public employes for, in the vast majority of cases, they can reap no reward for superior ability. Once we eliminate individual incentive, we have gone a long way toward eliminating progress.

Private enterprise, on the other hand, must be self supporting and make a profit in order to exist and pay taxes to maintain all functions of government. Each business and each individual must strive for efficiency. Every individual has an opportunity to progress according to his ability and latent genius is thereby developed. The record of this nation shows that the achievement of its citizens have benefited the world and given our own people more conveniences, more luxuries, higher wages, more leisure time and more independence than are enjoyed by the citizens of any other country.

Who will claim that if our young people had been "guaranteed employment by the government," we could have shown any such record of progress? We have proof that in other nations which have extended paternalism to the limit, there has been lack of advancement because of restriction of real opportunity and incentive for the individual.

We have been drifting away from the old principle of independence on which our government was founded. We have already allowed too much paternalism to creep in. We have allowed the bureaucrat to gain more and more power over our lives and our businesses. We have allowed our government to become adulterated with a thousand alien theories. In our own laziness about solving our individual problems, we have tried to clothe it with supernatural powers to do for us what we should be doing for ourselves.

We are today paying an exorbitant cost in taxation, for loading the government with hundreds of duties outside the legitimate function of governing. If we obligated our government to "guarantee employment to worthy young people when they leave school," we would assume a burden of paternalism and taxation that would make the cost of government simply staggering and our young people would be the ones who would eventually pay this cost either through destructive taxation, or destroyed opportunities, or loss in self respect which would result when government, unable to collect sufficient taxes to meet its exorbitant demands, would confiscate property in lieu thereof and redistribute it in the shape of jobs or doles to its "dependent," rather than "independent" people.

Yes, indeed, young people, think twice before you ask government to guarantee you a living and make you a ward. Once it does that, the age of individualism is over and the future will hold little hope for human progress.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

Mr. Mallalieu is to be commended for setting forth some fundamental ideas which there is a tendency to lose sight of when political curealls for temporarily disturbed economic conditions, are being hurled at the people from every side.

SOME LEGION PLANKS

So much publicity was given the bonus plank adopted by the American Legion convention at Portland, Oregon, and the plank for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, that comparatively little mention was made of the other planks in the Legion platform.

Some of them, however, are distinctly significant and would have caused a great deal of comment had they not been overshadowed by the resolutions on the bonus and prohibition repeal. For example, the American Legion went on record as opposed to the recognition of Soviet Russia. For some time there has been a subtle campaign to bring about such recognition on the mistaken theory that it would help return us to prosperity, a theory which fortunately has fallen on deaf ears so far as the administration at Washington is concerned.

The Legion resolutions also declare against American adherence to the League of Nations or the World Court. The League is a dead issue so far as the United States is concerned, but there will be another effort to get us into the World Court when congress convenes again. At that time more will doubtless be heard of the Legion pronouncement against entangling foreign commitments.

It is perhaps not so significant that the Legion went on record as against the cancellation of the war debts. Practically ninety-eight per cent of the American people regardless of race or creed are against debt cancellation, and both great political parties are on record against it. But doubtless the resolution of the Legion will be received with tears over in Europe where the professional politicians will say that it is cruel for American vetcrans to go on record as desiring that their comrades across the ocean pay their honest debts.

NEW FARM ATTITUDE ON PROHIBITION

Presumably significant of a rapidly changing attitude among farmers on the question of prohibition, the editors of The Country Home have announced themselves definitely in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

With a rural circulation of nearly 2,000,000 farm families, the Country Home is the first of the important agricultural magazines to take a definite stand for repeal. Hitherto it has been assumed that the great farm population of the United States was preponderantly dry.

"Public opinion even in the small towns and in the rural districts has now shifted against the Eighteenth Amendment," says Tom Cathcart, chief editor of the Country Home. "Politicians are already of this belief—for if they had not reached this conclusion, you can be very certain that both Republican and Democratic platforms would read very differently. And President Hoover in his acceptance speech would not have said that a change was necessary.

"Since both political parties have abandoned prohibition, friends of temperance in the agricultural districts must bestir themselves. It would be tragic indeed if the prohibition experiment should be followed merely by chaos and confusion.

"For more than 100 years methods for control of the liquor traffic have been the topic of heated debate in this country. Scores of laws have been passed to regulate liquor traffic as well as to abolish the saloon, and after a century of agitation and bickering, came national prohibition.

"Now, after a trial of a dozen years, many who formerly were of the belief that the cause of temperance would best be served by national prohibition have become dissatisfied with the way in which the experiment has worked out.

"It is apparent that we are going to have a change. It is now of supreme importance that the original objective should not be lost in the confusion and excitement of the change. Let the nation go forward with its eye on temperance, and not backward to the debauchery of the saloon . . .

"What will come after the bootlegger and the speakeasy depends upon the intelligence and the public spirit we focus upon the problem.

"No matter who wins the forthcoming election, let the next congress lay aside all thought of partisan advantage and name a joint committee, made up of all shades of opinion. Let that committee formulate a plan under which the dry states may remain dry if they like, and wet states may have sane liquor control. This is a reasonable nation; it is ready to move forward; but it will insist on seeing where it is going."

THE COST OF MOTOR ACCIDENTS

According to B. G. Willis, Vice-president of the Fireman's Fund Indemnity Company, the annual economic loss due to automobile accidents is about $2,500,000,000. Some realization of the magnitude of the waste can be obtained by the knowledge that public school education in the entire country costs only $2,200,000,000 annually.

Practically all of the two-and-a-half billion loss is due to three factors—ignorance, carelessness or incompetence. There is no other major cause of automobile accidents. The unavoidable accident is rare indeed. The percentage of accidents due to mechanical failure of the car is small—and in the bulk of these the fault lies with the owner who has not kept his machine in proper condition. The human factor is present in every conceivable mishap.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

IS THE LEAGUE FADING?

Things are not looking so good for friends of the League of Nations in the United States so far as getting Uncle Sam enlisted in Europe's super government is concerned. But that isn't the worst of it. Things are not looking so good for the league in Europe or in the Orient either. Some of the friends of the League are now beginning to fear that unless something favorable happens pretty soon the whole structure may go down in a political earthquake of some kind or other. And there seem to be plenty of earthquakes in the making.

The real trouble lies in the act that the League, and we say this with regret rather than in criticism, has been unable to do the things which its sponsors promised that it would do. Take the case of the Oriental situation for example. The League has been powerless to stop the steady forward march of the Japanese into Chinese territory. It has been powerless to stop the creation of an independent state in Manchuria under Japanese guardianship. All it could do was to appoint a committee to investigate and report back to the League, although every League member could guess what the report would be before the committee started investigating. The big newspapers have kept the public pretty well informed. Now if the League seeks at this late day to block the efforts of Japan to establish herself in Manchuria, Japan will withdraw might well be a fatal blow.

The League is weakened in this crisis by the fact that France is openly sympathizes with Japan and the further fact that Great Britain the other powerful member of the league has so many troubles of her own that she doesn't want to take on any more in the Orient and is inclined to let Japan have her way. Furthermore, Great Britain during the past few years has been inclined to stand more and more aloof from the League either because she desires a weak League rather than a strong one or because she thinks, as is the truth that the League is dominated politically by France.

Another situation confronting the League is the controversy over Germany's proposal to re-arm. The Germans say that at the time the Versailles treaty was drawn up there was drawn up there was an understanding that the allied nations were to disarm. A dozen years have passed and European armaments are greater than ever. Germany has already withdrawn from the disarmament conference. If France insists on an investigation of Germany's alleged secret armaments there is good grounds for believing Germany will withdraw from the League of Nations. This means that Italy will withdraw too, unless Great Britain can bring enough pressure to bear to keep her in and it is doubtful whether John Bull cares enough about the League to exert the pressure. In the meantime the smaller nations looking up the League are beginning to realize its impotency and there is good ground for believing that if Germany and Italy resign some small nations will follow suit. Then with England passive at best the League will become openly what it actually now is, a French system of alliances instituted for preserving the status quo provided by the Versailles treaty. It no longer could claim to be a League of Nations, as sponsored by its authors.

It might appear on the surface that this is of little interest to Uncle Sam who has decided to follow the foreign policy which he has always followed with slight interruption since the founding of the Republic. But the internationalists work in devious ways. In a recent article on the League situation Paul Scott Mowrer, celebrated American foreign correspondent, in a dispatch from Paris makes this assertion: "What actually happens next will depend on circumstances, but there is no doubt that some far seeing statesmen in both Great Britain and France are already looking forward to the possibility of conversations with the next American government, whatever it may be, on the subject of modifying the old or creating a new League in such a way as to make it acceptable to American public opinion."

Americans who have voted several times decisively against American participation in any European system of alliances, will be abundantly able to take care of the situation when it arises. In the meantime it might be proper procedure on the part of the American voter to ask a few questions of the candidates he is supporting. The present administration at the capitol and the Republican party stands committed against membership in the League. The Democratic party formerly advocated such membership and many of its leaders still favor it. Here, however, is a question loaded with dynamite as any party will find which at any time seeks to entice the United States into a new or remodeled League of Nations.

—AND A PLACE TO FISH

More and more each year, Michigan hunters, as they have found themselves fenced out of choice game cover have been clamoring for more public hunting lands, and their demands have had effect. Not only has the purchase of additional lands for game refuges and public hunting grounds been given marked emphasis during recent years, but by route of tax-delinquency—lands discarded by private ownership—and exchange, additional acres are being constantly added to the public domain.

But while this has been going on, the fishermen—and they are just as numerous as the hunters—have been placidly watching the shore lines of their favorite lakes and streams bought up by private interests, have watched court decisions go against them and have permitted session after session of the state legislature to pass without entering an appeal for a place to fish.

While there is enough of anything to go around values are low or non-existent and property owners do not assert themselves. But as the demand begins to increase, values become tangible and owners begin to claim their rights and resent trespass. It is the old law of supply and demand.

The Conservation Commission has realized the situation for some time . . . the Collins-Gerhardt and the Cavanaugh cases were fought to protect the public's interest on fishing waters . . . Your Commission has been withholding from sale public lands having water frontage that fishermen might have further access to lakes and streams. It has been exchanging lands to get water frontage. But so far it has received but indifferent public support.

William H. Loutit, executive chairman of the Commission recently summed up the situation when he told the Commission that "this (shrinkage of public access) has been happening in connection with hunting and fishing and while it may be debated how fast this has been happening and how serious it is, and what can and should be done about it, it is going on, and it is certainly time that we consider the situation and direct attention to it so that we may receive the benefit of all the constructive thought there may be available."

The Commission, by itself, can do little in the way of handling situations such as this. It will require legislative and court action, and to get adequate action there must be definite plans which have the backing of a well informed and widespread public opinion.

It is going to take a lot of cooperation between the public and the commission before a fisherman will be able to legally creep to a river bank between "no fishing" signs and before he will be able to spit from his boat to the shore without committing trespass.

ISLE ROYALE WATERS RESTOCKED WITH FISH BY AIRPLANE SERVICE

Through airplane facilities provided by the Royale Line, operating from the mainland to Isle Royale, the State of Michigan has planted its first game fish in Isle Royale lakes and streams.

Several thousand fingerling brook trout were recently moved from the Watermeet Hatchery operated by the Department of Conservation to the Island's inland waters.

Because of the long voyage necessary with resulting loss of fish; the inaccessibility of the Island's inland lakes and streams; and because in past years there have been but few fishermen on the Island, the state has never considered it necessary or practical to attempt to maintain game fish in the waters on or about the Island through restocking.

Recently, through growing popularity of the Island as a tourist center, it has been found desirable to plant trout and the offer of The Royale Line to carry the fish by airplane was immediately accepted. Within a few hours from the time the fingerlings were netted from the Watermeet Hatchery ponds the fish were planted with the vacuum cleaner, how finally spots and stains can be removed and how fresh the material looks after the lone green given a thorough brushing and combing.

Just recently, improved processes of weaving have been developed so that mohair promises to be more popular than ever. There are now more than 2,000,000 Angora goats in this country and the United States is the largest producer of angora fleece. Automobiles as well as railroad travelers are "riding the goat" for the mohair of yards of mohair are in use as auto mobile upholstery. The material is also finding wide employment in airplanes whose uppers are upholstered in durable, sound-absorbing mohair for beauty, economy and greater comfort.

ALL AMERICA NOW RIDING THE GOAT

The subject is usually associated with more or less unpleasant imitation conversation but did you know that millions of persons have been "riding the goat" on the railroads and have been enjoying the ride?

Every time you ride in a railroad car upholstered in genuine mohair you are literally "riding the goat" for the mohair in the finest of the Angora goat, not cloth, moss or any other of the many strange products that some persons erroneously associate with mohair. There are many reasons why this material was chosen and has been so widely used on the railroad and some of them are eminently interesting because it has taken modern scientific methods to reveal them and they are now. For years people have known that mohair must be a good material or the railroads would not use such large quantities of it. Its more durability and fast colors are by no means the only reasons why it is popular.

Here is one important factor that makes genuine mohair so popular for railroad and auto upholstery use. The fine, erect fibers of the goat's hair actually mesh with the clothing of the person in the seat and so help to hold him in a comfortable position and in some cases prevent slipping off the seat in case of a sudden stop.

At first thought, this does not seem to be so important but it is a vital safety matter, especially in the case of old persons and small children and if you have ever tried to keep a comfortable position in a chair that was too big for you and was covered with the old-fashioned horse hair, for instance, you'll realize some nice points and it is to feel the strong, friendly little fibers of the mohair holding you in place.

Then, mohair doesn't make the clothing shiny as do some other materials or also less wear on them and these are important points in the mind of the traveling man especially as he might find his color drifts considerably lighter if he had to ride on hard, smooth seats on all his journeys.

Every service man and woman knows how easily real mohair is cleaned with the vacuum cleaner, how finally spots and stains can be removed and how fresh the material looks after the lone green given a thorough brushing and combing.

Just recently, improved processes of weaving have been developed so that mohair promises to be more popular than ever. There are now more than 2,000,000 Angora goats in this country and the United States is the largest producer of angora fleece. MOHAIR IS GIVEN 'TUG O' WAR' TEST

Behind the scenes at Sanford Mills, Sanford, Me., the home of mohair velvet or velmo as it is generally known, are strange looking machines and devices of various sorts for testing the fibers before they are woven into upholstery for your furniture and automobile.

One of these is a strength tester. Mohair fibers, the hairs of the Angora goat, are stretched between the two small spools below and (fig. 3a) a lever is released and the spools slowly draw apart while a pencil moves on the paper chart a record of the amount of pull being applied to the fibers. When the needle on the dial has swung far around, the fibers will begin to break and the test is over.

This "tug of war" is applied to the fibers to make sure that no weak spots either in the manufacture of the upholsterers and other fabrics destined for cover of hard service on automobile seats, railroad coaches and scores of other uses. Many of the companies purchasing upholstery supply their own tests to insure the materials get to the ultimate user only if they have passed through several different tests insuring suitable quality and freedom from adulteration.

In addition to the pulling test, there are chemical tests to prove that the dyes used in velmo will not run when the goods are subjected to perspiration or other moistening there are rubbing tests to prove how long the originl fibers of velmo will last and there are other color tests to show that mohair is little likely to fade.

Samples of dyed mohair are left out in the sun for months and then compared to the new materials to show that the colors have not faded. When more really results are needed, powerful lights with rays like those of the sun apply in a few hours the equivalent to many days of exposure to the sunshine to show that the velmo colors retain their natural hues after long service.

The TELEPHONE is a valuable aid in SECURING WORK

Persons who are hired by the day or job find their telephones invaluable as an aid in securing work. They are able to keep in close touch with employers. And, when workers are needed, employers usually call those applicants first who can be reached easily and quickly by telephone.

The person who tries to get along without a telephone may miss work that would pay for the telephone many times over.

IN EMERGENCIES, your telephone is priceless protection, enabling you to summon doctor, firemen or police instantly, day or night.

TWEEDLEDUM AND TWEEDLDEE

Intense activity is seen recently in the suppression of lotteries, though there is none against "speculation" either in the financial marts or on race-tracks. Yet it is surprising how the spirit and desire for gain remains one of the predominating traits of human nature.

The ancients considered lot or chance to be under "divine guidance" and in that way made important decisions, selected public officials and even divided property. Venice made herself rich by lotteries and today they are operating in Italy and elsewhere under government supervision.

Washington, Jefferson and other men famous in our national history recognized the national lotteries as convenient methods of raising funds for making roads, bridges, building schools and other public institutions. Many of the States did the same thing. Virginia is reported to have authorized no less than seventy state lotteries prior to 1820.

Gradually, however, the system fell into disfavor as the theory grew that it was the duty of the State to preserve the morals of the people by suppressing gambling. Yet they had to recognize that all horse-race betting is but a legitimized form of gambling in the last analysis.

Today huge sweepstakes are run for charitable purposes. One managed by the Canadian Army and Navy Veterans for the benefit of disabled ex-soldiers and their dependents, distributes large sums both in prizes and in charity. It has a tremendous following and its subscribers are located in all sections of the United States and Canada. Its "sweeps" are based on great English races, such as the Derby, the Grand National and the Cambridgeshire, to be run late in October. The magnitude of this Canadian sweepstakes is but another manifestation of the unconquerable desire for gain, especially where the small sum risked is partly a contribution to some worthy cause.

The up-and-downs of the Stock Exchange and the misfortunes of a United States Senator placed on trial for his alleged connection with a lottery to aid a fraternal organization have brought many persons to moralize on the speculative tendencies of human beings, and to express their preferences for the ancient game of lotteries and betting on the modern ponies.

John Byron wrote classical lines into poetry about two centuries ago when he observed: "Strange all this difference should be, 'twixt tweedledum and tweedledee'."

TIME TO CALL A HALT

Here is some worth-while talk from Charles F. Williams, President of a well-known life insurance company:

"The present paralysis of business with its attendant unemployment crisis is due in large part to the fact that municipal, state and federal taxes are consuming the capital upon which business and industry operate. Make no mistake about it—increased taxation produces business stagnation and unemployment.

"One adult out of every 10 in the United States is on the public payroll. One day's earnings out of every 5 goes to pay cost of government. One dollar out of every 3 of profit of a corporation or firm goes to taxes. This extravagance cripples all industry.

"Nobody escapes taxes. When the government taxes industry, the tax is passed on to the consumer, and that makes everybody a taxpayer. The government is all of us and each of us. When the government borrows money it does so in your name and mine. We endorse the note and must pay it with interest.

"The inevitable tendency of taxes is to increase. They won't stand still or recede unless there is an organized effort to control their devastating forward march. The present tax burden was built up by organized minorities. It can only be halted or diminished by the vociferous protest of an organized majority."

The only way to stop the rising cost of government is for our citizens to vote NO on every candidate or measure standing for increased taxes through enlarged governmental activity, bond issues and cost burdens to be heaped upon the public.

A STEP TOWARD PROSPERITY

In a recent address, John Hays Hammond urged the rehabilitation of silver as a step toward the restoration of prosperity.

He pointed out that one of the major causes of world depression has been the appreciation of gold in gold-standard countries, and the depreciation of silver in silver-standard countries. The drop of silver from 60 to 30 cents an ounce has reduced by half the wealth and purchasing power of millions of people. Silver has long been the poor man's gold—and in what Mr. Hammond calls the "backward" countries, silver alone is accepted as a medium of exchange.

There is not gold enough to keep the commerce of the world in motion. In addition, the supply of gold from the Rand, which has supplied half the world's needs for three decades, is expected to decline materially. No potentially important gold fields are known to exist. A practical solution is rehabilitation of silver so that it may take its old place in the machinery of finance and commerce.

THE DANGEROUS DRIVING AGE

A serious responsibility rests on parents whose sons and daughters, under the age of 20, drive automobiles. It is their duty to impress upon budding men and women the vital necessity for care, courtesy and obedience to traffic rules at all times.

The most dangerous age for drivers is under 20, according to E. E. Robinson, Secretary of the National Bureau of Casualty & Surety Underwriters. Out of every thousand drivers under the age of 20 last year, 39 were involved in accidents. From 20 to 29, 30 drivers out of one thousand had mishaps; there were 27 in the ages of 30 to 39; twenty in the ages of 40 to 49 and 18 out of 1,000 in the ages of 50 and over.

Automobile public liability and property damage insurance rates are wholly under the control of their policyholders. Stock casualty companies have established by statistics that the record for drivers under 20 last year was 39 per cent worse than the average; from 20 to 29 it was29 per cent worse; from 30 to 39, 3.6 per cent better than the average; from 40 to 49 it was 29 per cent better and in the ages of 50 and over, 36 per cent better than the average. In the ages under 20, accident experience was 64.7 per cent worse than among the drivers beyond that age.

There were 26,410 drivers under the age of 18 involved in accidents, of which 1,270 were in fatal accidents and 25,140 in non-fatal accidents. From 18 to 24 there were 326,690 drivers in accidents which killed 13,000 persons and injured 313,690.

If parents will constantly emphasize to their children the necessity for safe driving and obedience to traffic regulations, it will be reflected in a diminishing toll of deaths, injury and property damage now exacted by the motor car on streets and highways.

THE MACHINE

In a recent article, Dr. James S. Thomas, of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, analyzed the machine's effect on mankind.

Dr. Thomas' deductions are quite different from those of the critics of the machine, who blame it for all the ills of mankind from the flood to the World War. He shows that it constitutes the basis of our modern economic world —that it has liberated men from arduous tasks, not enslaved them; that during most of its brief history, it has created employment, not unemployment; that it has cut down accidents, not increased them; that it makes for wealth, comfort and a finer civilization, not a poorer one.

During a recent period in American history, 12,57,000 people were displaced from jobs because of increased mechanical efficiency—and at the same time new trades and professions, largely resulting from the machine, gave jobs to 13,537,000 persons. Thus there were displaced from jobs 1,537,000 directly and 12,000,000 indirectly. In 140 years we increased our national income from $400,000,000 to $80 billion, and our national wealth from $500,000,000 to $375,000,000,000—because of the machine.

The machine, after all, is simply a medium to make use of natural forces. It is part of evolution—an inevitable step in the march of the world from the Stone Age to the present and to whatever may be in the future. And, after the debits and credits have all been entered, and the cancellations made, it is found that the machine has been the friend, not the enemy, of "the common man."

TAXING THE RAILROADS

The cost of government takes one-third of our national income at present. In the case of some industries it takes a good deal higher percentage than that.

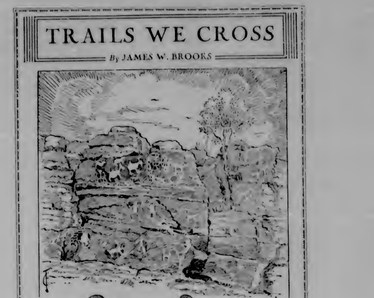
This explains one of the main reasons why many railroads are just one step from the receiver. Government takes more and more of their money—and with that money it subsidizes waterways which take away their business, aids in building roads over which their motor competitors can free from federal regulation, and maintains the bureau which regulates practically every phase of railroad operation, but does not extend similar regulation to their competitors.

Every informed citizen knows that railroad prosperity is essential to general industrial prosperity—that almost every one of us is, directly or indirectly, an investor in the rails—that in normal times they are our greatest purchaser of commodities and employer of labor. We know that they have been given a raw deal—and that no other agency of transport can take their place. It is time the public made its influence felt and demanded legislation that will place all common carriers on an equal footing.

WORTH REPEATING

Those who think the end of progress has been reached would do well to recollect these words of the late Charles Steinmetz, one of the greatest of inventors:

"We call this the electrical age, but it isn't. The electrical age has hardly begun. In that age electricity . . . will do a multitude of things of which we have never dreamed. For the electrical age is yet to come. And it will be a great age."



NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RIRUTES PAID LEGION BY MINISTERS WHO SAW WORK OF CONVENTION

Two addresses in particular made at the recent national convention of the American Legion in Portland, Ore., should make every veteran take a decent amount of pride in the organization. One was made by the Rev. W. H. Rogers, D. D., pastor of Lincoln Memorial Baptist Church in Portland, and the other by Dr. Jacob John, Rabbi of Congregation Sinai, in Los Angeles. Each was a distinguished guest of the convention.

Both speeches are permanent testimonials to the department and sincerity of the real, true Legionnaires who make up the national conventions of the American Legion. The address by Dr. Rogers follows, in part:

By Dr. Rogers

"There are no words of mine that an adequately voice the emotions that have stirred in my soul these memorable days. They have been more to me as days of great honor and rare privilege, days which I have greatly enjoyed.

"I felt sure when the invitation was extended to me and other members of the profession I represent, it was in order to convey to us and to have confirmed his overwhelming confidence in the behavior of the comrades of The American Legion. I feel absolutely certain of that, since my contacts which began with your coming in our city.

"I came, having accepted the invitation in the gracious spirit in which it was presented. I saw and you conquered. Of course, I came with a certain amount of trepidation, for I have heard and read some things before the invitation came. I think that I felt at the time, when the invitation was on my hand, very much like the American soldier in the days of the Great Conflict. He had a little time on his hands while in England, and so he slipped into a cemetery and read a few epitaphs on the tombstones, and he came across one on which he read these words:

"'O Stranger, pause as you pass by;
As you are now, so once was I;
As I am now, so you will be;
Prepare for death and follow me.'

"But in good Yankee fashion he took a piece of chalk from his pocket and wrote underneath those words, these words:

"'Where'er you are I wish you well,
If up in heaven or down in hell,
To follow you I will not consent
Until I know which way you went.'

"After accepting the invitation I made up my mind that as a minister of the gospel I would go to every committee meeting which it was my privilege to visit and to every convention assembly, with a fair mind, free from all pre-conceptions and prejudices. Furthermore, I made up my mind if my judgment should be discriminatory, for I think we need discriminating minds in times like these—and I wanted to be sure of the things that were connected with this Legion Convention, and of the things that were not—of the things that were on the outside and of the things that were on the inside; and I want to say in your presence very sincerely this morning, that I have been welcomed with the finest spirit by every delegate, guest and officer of the convention. I came and am glad I did. I saw, and I have seen a lot. I felt, until I explained my presence, that I was a sort of intruder, but after it was known that I was a guest I was made welcome in the royalist fashion.

"I have even been in the dug-outs and made welcome there. I participated in a good deal of pleasure in the parade of yesterday, and I am sure that I shall not soon forget that splendid pageantry of patriotism, that splendid panorama of Americanism, that great spectacle of manhood devoted to the finest interests of our Nation.

"May I say that I have been profoundly impressed with the demeanor and the behavior of the members of this convention.

"Furthermore, my appreciation has been deepened in the work that you are doing in the matter of your welfare programs, your rehabilitation activities and your philanthropic activities. On every hand I found the whole atmosphere pervaded with a consecration of manhood and womanhood to the highest interests of our nation. I have seen no evidence of disorder or rowdyism in connection with any meeting of any convention or with the parade of yesterday.

"And I am very glad to testify to that. I must not take any more of your time, but I have always looked upon The American Legion as something more than an organization. I have thought of it as a vision, as a great ideal, and I feel more confident of the future security and welfare of our nation since having made the contacts which I have had in this great convention."

The Kerry Seed Co. is fitting up its new pickling room, in which will be installed 40 tables of a new kind. Fifty people will be employed at the warehouse all winter, picking, sorting, and packing the seed peas for spring shipment.

Ice harvest has started in Round Lake, near Washburn's machine shop dock at eleven o'clock Saturday morning. The explosion was heard throughout the village and shook the ground quite perceptibly in that locality. It was seen by several who stated that the water boiled up in a space as large as as a hogshead. Immediately following the explosion myriads of dead minnows covered the surface of the water for a space of fifty feet. The cause of the explosion is a mystery; but the most reasonable theory is that at some time a package or barrel of something was dropped overboard from some vessel, and that gas generated to an extent that caused the blow-up.

The county ticket nominated by the Republican Convention held in this village on Saturday last, is the first local party ticket ever submitted to the people of this county. We think the discontinuance of the past alliance between the two parties is wise and we think this is the feeling of a majority of the Republicans in the county. It is a matter of delicacy for us to commend the ticket, inasmuch as our name has been honored with a place upon it; but we mentally erase our name and say that the choice of the convention was good. From Sheriff to Coroner, they are men who are known to be Republicans and who merit these distinctions. It was gratifying to note the promptness with which the convention turned from the unprincipled and scheming hucksters who presumed to ask for public favor and who are now as prompt to bolt as they were eager for nomination. We honor those gentlemen who, after an honorable defeat, will bow in order a hearty support to the ticket.

Republican County Convention Held at Charlevoix on Saturday, October 15th, 1872.

The Republican County Convention was called to order by Robert Miller, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, Wm. Harris was elected temporary chairman and A. Buttars, temporary secretary.

On motion, W. A. Smith, Hiram B. Hipp, and James A. Keat were appointed a committee on permanent organization, who reported back the following officers: President, Wm. Harris; Secretary, A. Buttars.

On motion, A. G. Aldrich, Joseph Clark and Hugh R. Miller were appointed a committee on credentials, who reported the following delegates as entitled to seats in the convention:

Evangeline, Hugh R. Miller.
Eveline, John Hammond, John Brock, Thomas C. Bird.
Marion, John Ward, Wm. Stevens, Joseph Clark.
South Arm, James A. Keat, Hiram B. Hipp, A. Chaddock, J. H. Lanway.
Norwood, Wm. Harris, Lucius Pearl.
Charlevoix, A. Buttars, M. J. Stockman, A. G. Aldrich, W. A. Smith.

On motion the chair appointed A. G. Aldrich and John Ward as tellers, and the convention proceeded to ballot for county officers with the following results:

Sheriff—Informal, Alanson G. Aldrich, 9; Aruleus Chaddock, 1; Anthony D. Brady, 3; Samuel M. See, 1.

Formal, Alanson G. Aldrich, 14; A. Chaddock, 3.

On motion, Mr. Aldrich was declared the nominee for sheriff.

County Clerk—1st informal, Willard A. Smith, 8; Henry L. Miller, 5; E. A. Cole, 4 2nd informal, Willard A. Smith, 9; Henry L. Miller, 4; E. E. Cole, 2. Formal, W. A. Smith, 11; H. L. Miller, 4; E. A. Cole, 2.

Mr. Smith here arose, and for reasons best known to himself, withdrew his name from the convention as a candidate for the clerkship, and requested his friends to cast their votes for Hon. John S. Dixon, his predecessor in that office. The convention proceeded to another ballot for clerk.

Informal, John S. Dixon, 13; S. M. See, 3; H. L. Miller, 2.

Mr. Dixon was declared the nominee for county clerk.

MOTIONS PICTURES USED TO SUPPLEMENT WORK

Use of conservation motion pictures to supplement work in biology and allied subjects in Michigan's high schools is growing, according to the Educational Division of the Department of Conservation.

A large number of high schools through the state have scheduled all films available for loan by the Department for use during the present academic year. The score of films now included in the catalogue concern several phases of conservation. Five new reels will be released January 1.

SUBSTANCE SIZE OF A PEA LUBRICATES MILE-SQUARE AREA

A REVOLUTIONARY new motor lubricating fluid has been perfected which has a tracklaid ingredient and a highly interactive colloidal (gel-like) substance so finely subdivided that a volume the size of a pea would cover a mile-square surface with a thin self-lubricating film.

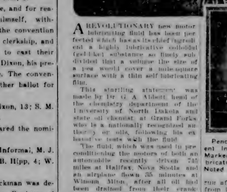
This startling statement was made by Dr. G. A. Albert head of the chemistry department of the University of North Dakota and state of Chemist at Grand Forks who is a nationally recognized authority on oils, following his exhaustive tests with the fluid.

The fluid which was used in performing the motors of both automobiles recently driven 75 miles at Halifax, Nova Scotia and an airplane flown 25 minutes at Winnipeg, Manitoba, after all oil had been drained from their crankcases was perfected by W. V. Kidd the former newspaper man of La Crosse, Wis.

"The colloidal particles of the substance, when introduced into a motor by adding the liquid to the regular crankcase oil, are attracted to the surfaces of the pistons and cylinders, forming a very thin but smooth and uniform lubricating film that absorbs and fills the finer pores and crevasses of the metal," Dr. Albert said. "This lubricating coat wears away as it is mechanically worn off by the abrasive action of the colloidal particles in the oil stream. These particles, which measure less than the finest filters can remove, are electrical charges that serve to repel and prevent them from collecting into large masses and settling out. It is very probable that the fluid also contains some stabilizing agent in small quantity to prevent settling.

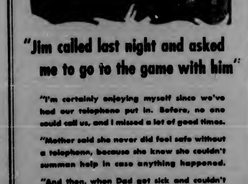
"Those whom a motor thoroughly conditioned with this substance as a lubricant will not have to drain their crankcases for 50,000 miles of operation, or more, by the varieties of the motor are still filled with submicroscopic particles of the latter. As the tracklaid surface is found down those particles are smeared over the protruding metal spots, which strongly attract and hold them in like with a continuous film of lubrication is maintained until the mileage is worn down to the limit of penetration of the particles into the pores.

"Given the physical and chemical properties of the fluid investigated it is reasonable to expect practical engineering tests to show a marked increase in motor efficiency due to better lubrication," Dr. Albert added. "This should cause the motor car, iron reader and I should result in a saving of fuel and in longer life of pistons and rings."



Pencil-eraser Volume of Ingredient in New Fluid Would Cover Marked Area Above With Thin Lubricating Film, Says Dr. Albert, Noted Authority on Oils.

The MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.



"Jim called last night and asked me to go to the game with him"

"I'm certainly enjoying myself since we've had our telephone put in. Before, no one could call us, and I missed a lot of good times.

"Mother said she never did feel safe without a telephone, because she knew she couldn't summon help in case anything happened.

"And then, when Dad got sick and couldn't even call the office, he decided that, considering the value of the service and how little it costs, we couldn't do without a telephone any longer."

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Staff For Semester

Winnfield Kirby, Margaret McCann, Clarence Smith, Dorothy Staley, Lila Tillotson, Edna Wyers.

Pep Meeting

Friday at 4 o'clock our first pep meeting of the year started out with the loud cheering of Red! White! Every-one was enthused and confi-dent over the winning of the game Saturday so gave all their "pep" to their meeting. Homer Struthers gave a short speech followed by one from Supt. Eddie McCann. After that came the well known fight locomotive and the meeting ended with everyone singing "Red and White."

Football

The Charlevoix Football Team, outplaying the scrappy Manistee outfit last Saturday, won in a close exciting game by a score 6 to 0, al-though in winning the game Charle-voix lost a triple threat man. Homer Struthers, who, in the last quarter tore the ligaments loose in his arm, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play again this year. Warren Staples took his place for the rest of the game. Struthers, in the first part of the game, pushed the ball over the line on a plunge. The try for the ex-tra point which was another try at he line was stopped. During the rest of the game the battle waged back and forth, Manistees being held on the goal line from making a touch-down. In the third quarter Struthers hitting a pass from Smith ran about 60 yards, across the goal line but the ball was called back on account of a Charlevoix man blocking from be-hind. Close also made a nice run on a spinner through the line. Joe Smith who played and accomplished his task of taking passes out of the sky, superbly. All in all we were very sat-isfied with Charlevoix's showing and hope they continue going on to other games and winning them like they won Saturday. The seniors made hamburgers and sold them at de-pression price 5c, and anybody will tell you how good they are, so be at the game two weeks from today and eat your fill. This Saturday Charle-voix plays Cheboygan there and the team would like to see a crowd of Charlevoix folks at the game.

Dramatics

At the regular meeting of the Drama Club last Tuesday, it was de-cided to pay dues of 25c for the year to apply to the expenses of the club such as purchasing books, scenery, etc.

Dorothy Staley spoke on the back-ground of the theater beginning with the Grecian period and continuing with the Roman, the Theatre's Dark-est Period from the 6th to the 11th century, A. D. and the Renaissance Period. Next week John Winder is to continue the discussion with the French, the Spanish, the English and the American theaters.

Virginia Nickerson gave a resume of the interesting play "So This Is London." The scene is laid in Lon-gisfield dinner party at her home on Saturday evening.

Home Economics Club

All girls interested in the forma-tion of a home economics club will meet around the campfire following supper and a hike to the beach Mon-day after school. Girls who have had home economics or are taking it at the present time will be welcomed.

The objectives and possible activ-ities will be discussed following the business meeting Monday.

Humor

Those who have frequented the ele-mentary building are familiar with the splendid framed copy of the Ten Commandments hanging just outside the Superintendent's office. A teacher in charge of the Junior High School study hall, wishing to send some pa-pers to Miss Ingalls, asked a seventh grader if he knew where Mr. Bush's office is located, to which she re-ceived the amazing reply, "it is that where the eighteen amendments are?"

The sophomores have been study-ing O. Henry's "Third Ingredient," in which a young lady falls off a ferry boat, a young man jumps in after her, and they are thrown something "like a big white doughnut" by her rescuers. However Jean Graves was not content with the noted author's portrayal of the incident and changed it thus: "Cordia plunged into the deep cold water, and he jumped in to save her. Then someone threw them a big hot dog."

Junior Hugh really had matter to troublesome by: "What you need is a good old fashioned paddling."

Little boy: "Are they anything like the new ones?"

In The Class Room

Miss Blair was hostess to the Home Management Class, Friday after school, at the Tea Gardens on Clinton Street. Her delightful shop is filled with a variety of beautiful vases and accessories which will be in a direct line with the study of interior dec-orating later to be studied in class. Miss Blair served tea by the fireplace and her hospitality and gracious-ness very much appreciated by the class.

Foods Class

The foods class spent several days last week down town in the vegetable and fruit markets preparing for the study of canning and making jelly.

Civics

Under the direction of the Civics Class the high school will conduct its first school election Tuesday will be given over to the registration of the students. Following that will come nomination and election. This plan was very successfully carried out last year.

History

The American History Class is hav-ing a map contest which is both ex-citing and educational.

Manual Arts

The boys have begun work on some of the simpler projects to re-fresh their memories with some of the tool processes.

The lathe is the most coveted ma-chine in the shop. All boys are anx-ious and can hardly wait their turn on this machine which does the work for them.

The boys in sheet metal are be-coming acquainted with the wiring machine through the making of a biscuit cutter.

The electrical unit is engaged in bell wiring, learning the why, regard-ing certain hook-ups.

Some boys as yet are undecided what to make for home, and a little encouragement from the parents will aid greatly in helping them to decide on a project.

Sixth Grade

The sixth grade have health inspec-tion every morning by the pupils, who look at the nails, hands and teeth. So far the reports have been quite favorable. Health booklets are being made and it is hoped they will tend to improve the students habits.

The oral reading and story hour of the sixth grade is delivered by radio. They have made their micro-phone and have chosen Donald Tiller-son and Russel Driggett for the an-nouncers. Their station is called: "The Jolly Pipers' Station."

There will be a grade assembly Fri-day, October 14, at 2:00 o'clock in the gym. This week is fire prevention week and the play "The Trial of Fire" which the 5th and 6th grades have been working on will be pre-sented. The public is invited to at-tend.

25 Years Ago in C. H. S.

The following paragraphs are tak-en from the issue of October 1, 1906 num-ber of the Charlevoix "High School Hustler."

"A high school orchestra has re-cently been organized and certainly will be a good one judging from the musical talent there is connected with it. The following members will make their first appearance Monday next: Miss Merl Bell, pianist; Misses Bes-sie Cohan and Frances Todd, and Messrs. Cooper, Johnson and Taylor, violinists; Messrs. Miller, Partridge, Campbell, and Paddock, Mandolinists and Mr. Sam Levinson, flute. They are "all stars."

"Miss Maud Cross gave a supper Tuesday evening in honor of Lois's nineteenth birthday. Those present were Mayfred Stacke, Winnie Weav-er, Merle Felts, Mabel Weed, Kate Pearson, Mildred Johnson, Grace Barnett, and Mae Felts."

THE PRESENT CRISIS

The present crisis in dealing with the liquor problem is a clear sum-mons to the church to take up anew their basic educatio...al task.

Certain things are so clear that when once men face them they will recognize them as conclusive. Among these facts, so solidly grounded that we believe they can be brought home to any except the most prejudiced minds are the following:

(1) That alcohol is a narcotic poison harmful to the human system. The ultimate issue is not this or that method of control but the nature of alcohol itself.

(2) That the liquor traffic has at says been a terrific social problem. Susceptible of any "control" ade-quate to prevent the gravest ills to society. Certainly the situation be-fore prohibition called was intoler-able and cried aloud for a more rad-ical remedy than any that had yet been discovered.

The crux of the problem is, first, to show that prohibition is really in the interest of the common good, and, second, to induce men willingly to put that common good above all other considerations.

Before me, a Notary Public, in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Ira A. Adams, who, having been duly sworn accord-ing to law, deposes and says that he is the owner of the Charlevoix Sent-inel and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper the circulation) etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in Sec-tion 443, Postal Laws and Regula-tions, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

2 That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock). Florence Smith Adams and Ira A. Adams, Charlevoix, Mich.

3 That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security hold-ers owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mort-gages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) None.

4 That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the own-ers, stockholders, and security hold-ers, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholders or security holder ap-pears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting; is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements em-bracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not ap-pear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securi-ties than as so stated by him.

DEATH TAKES MRS. WILBUR

WIFE OF CAPTAIN O. E. WILBUR DIES HERE THURSDAY

Mrs. Rose Wilbur, wife of Cap-tain O. E. Wilbur, a resident of Char-levoix for more than four decades, passed away early Thursday after-noon, October 13, at the family resi-dence, 103 East Dixon avenue, her death following an extended pe-riod of illness the last nine weeks of which, due to a stroke of apoplexy suffered August 10, was critical.

Her maiden name was Miss Rosella Gertrude Wisley. She was born Oct-ober 11, 1858 at Glastonbury, Conn-ecticut, daughter of Albert and So-phia Hills Wisley, who with their family members located at Northport, Michigan, in 1874. On the 31st day of December 1882, at Grand Rapids, Michigan, she was united in marriage with Oscar E. Wilbur, who survives her. From the time of their marriage until they settled in Charlevoix they resided at Northport. The change from Northport to Charlevoix, where they have since resided permanently, was made in June 1891, making for continuous residence in Charlevoix of more than 41 years.

Mrs. Wilbur was a homeloving wo-man and it was her supreme delight to make her home the finest. Her predominant character-istic, in this her husband and children, their comfort and pleasure were first in thought and action, with attention each as make for the true homebuilder, wife and mother. She was a woman of high ideals in life and such ideals she lived, worked and performed her each and every duty perfectly not only in the family but with neighbors, friends and community throughout her span of life. In this there was sincerity in word and action that made for the complete harmony in her effort, both in her home and community life, each only as is possessed by one with a true Christian heritage.

For many of the last years she was an honored member of the Episcopal Church and it was from the church of her faith in which her funeral ser-vice was held Monday afternoon, with a large attendance of local and old time friends in attendance to pay their last respects to the deceased, at which Rev. Edward S. Dunn officiated.

Besides Mr. Wilbur she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Cala Cline, one son Albert A. Wilbur, two grand-children, Miss Helen Rose Cline, George Oscar Cline of Chicago, and one brother, Charles I. Wrisley of Northport, all of whom were present at the last service.

Friends from a distance attending the service were:

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cline, Helen Rose Cline, George O. Cline and Ad-albert A. Wilbur, Chicago; Miss May Correll, Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wrisley, Coleman, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Wrisley, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Wrisley, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Wrisley, Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Andersen, Mrs. Henry Scott, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Dame, Miss Emma Wilson and Miss Fanny Steele, Northport.

Captain and Mrs. George Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Weston of Tra-verse City; Mrs. George Danser, Judge C. J. Pailthorp, Mrs. Roy Kel-logg, Stanley Kellogg, Mrs. Janet Hawley, Mrs. Elizabeth Rose Foster, Mrs. Abbie Rose Bathrick, Petoskey; Mr. and Mrs. Ervan A. Ruegsegger, Boyne City.

LARGE STEELHEAD TAKEN

Lyle Beaudoin just at present holds the leading position in taking large steelhead trout with hook and line from local waters. Sunday he hooked and successfully landed one weighing 12 1-4 pounds, using arti-ficial bait as a lure to entice the fine specimen to his hook. Monday Mont Withers took the steelhead to a tax-idermist who will mount the speci-men after which it will be returned to Charlevoix and placed on exhibi-tion. This is reported as being the largest as well as finest specimen of this variety of fish ever taken in lo-cal waters.

Republicans making the trip to Pe-toskey to attend the Republican rally and attend the meeting at which Gov-ernor Brucker will deliver the princi-pal address are requested to meet at the court house this afternoon at 7 o'clock from which place the trip will be started. The outlook at present in-dicates that a large number of local republicans will attend the meeting

STATE AND COUNTY REVENUES AND TAXES

Charlevoix County, 1932.
Paid to state:

Weight Tax	$38,792.57
Sex Tax (estimated)	$4,561.29
General Property Tax	23,596.75
Total	$113,886.61
State tax unpaid, 7-1-32	$12,322.75
Returned to County—
Weight and Gas tax	$54,457.28
Highway Maintenance	39,134.52
Highway Construction	24,038.86
Sinking School Fund	16,366.60
Turner Bill Distribution	31,386.92
Maint. of inmates from county and state inst.	29,363.48
Total	$263,747.67
Excess	$149,887.06

For every $1.00 paid, the county received $2.31.

Number of inmates from county, 102. Also received from mail tax $311.85.

"Includes $18,498.78 Township Road Tax Relief.

In 1923 county will receive ap-proximately $82,126.86 from weight and gas tax which will include $25,-123.47 for township road tax relief and $79,506.69 new money from Hut-son Bill.

If the proposed re-apportionment amendment should carry, giving the larger counties control of legislation this policy would be in danger, and this advantage in revenue wiped out. And any change in state administ-ration, such as changing Governor Brucker for the Democratic leader, William A. Comstock, would also be dangerous.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB TRANSFER TROUT FROM REARING POND

Members of the Sportsmen's Club assisted by officials from the depart-ment of conservation transferred many thousands of trout from the lo-cal rearing pond to local streams last Tuesday.

Conservation department officials report that the work done in prepar-ing the local rearing pond together with the attention by way of feeding, etc., of the early plant resulted in fine training in perfect and healthy condi-tion a heavy percentage of the early planting and also heartily endorse the work carried on by local sports-men, all of which was a source of gratification to those enlisted in the project.

RESIGNATION OF MRS. EDNA LOGAN IS SINCERELY REGRETED

The Board of Education, members of the faculty, and students of the high school sincerely regret the resig-nation of Mrs. Edna Logan, teacher of foreign languages during her two years in Charlevoix she has won the esteem of all with whom she has worked, and her many friends join in best wishes for the speedy return of good health.

Mrs. Ray Elizabeth Sawyer of De-troit has been engaged to fill the va-cancy in the Foreign Language Depart-ment. Mrs. Sawyer has her Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degree from the University of Michigan, and additional credits from Columbia Un-iversity. For nine years she taught in Michigan cities: St. Clair Shores, Royal Oak and Ann Arbor.

The school and community are very happy to welcome Mrs. Sawyer as a member of the teaching staff.

Editorial

The following was taken from an editorial in a high school paper writ-ten recently by Charles F. Hamilton of this City. Mr. Hamilton will be re-membered as a former superintendent of U. H. S.

"I assure all students against a group of students I had in Charlevoix ten years ago when I was superinten-dent there. Charlevoix is a summer resort and students each summer work for many of the wealthy resort-ers, either as caddies on the golf links, nursemaids for the children of the resorters or in various other ca-pacities. These contacts teach stu-dents that it pays to be mannerly, gracious, courteous, and respectful.

"Charlevoix students practiced those virtues until they became not only a second nature but it seemed to me original nature itself. They seemed always to do the right thing at the right time and I was proud of them. At Christmas time and other special days even to the present time I exchange greetings with literally scores of these students (now grown to manhood and womanhood) after a lapse of ten years.

"Therefore as I said I measure all students I meet by that idealized group whom I think of as one grand 'gang' of students."

Mr. Hamilton also offered a piece of advice to the Bay City students which could also be of use to us. He says "Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you; might well be your motto. Ev-ery man in every job as we sing in an old football song, might well be changed to 'Every student a member of some worthwhile activity group.' Get the thrill of team play, the 'we' spirit or whatever you call it which impresses one as a fine way."

C. H. S. feels proud of the compli-ment given by Mr. Hamilton and re-cently hopes that if he should visit our school some day he will find as manners, courteous, and respectful students as were here ten years ago.

Editorial

The following letter was received by Mr. Bush from George E. Crothers, Director, Division of University Inspection of High Schools.

"As a result of my recent visit in your school, I have the following suggestions to make:

"I should like to commend you and your staff and particularly the pupils and janitor for the excellent appear-ance of your school plant, both inside and outside. It ought to be easier for pupils to do good work and to enjoy the school in such an environment.

"The supervised recreation period during the forenoons ought to be quite helpful to the pupils.

It is my understanding that you are aware of the inconvenience ex-perienced by the library being sev-eral blocks from the high school.

"The atmosphere of the school ap-peared to be very good, pupils seat-ed in the informal groups during the recitation helped to make the work more natural and useful.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS IN CHARLEVOIX TODAY ON SPEAKING TOUR

Democratic leaders, speaking in the democratic party are making a tour of the county today for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm in the past democratic ranks and without doubt poll the largest party vote for all time in the history.

Among the speakers of the demo-cratic party in addition to the candi-dates and party organizations in the county will be present were: From all portions of Michigan come authentic re-ports of unprecedented activities on the part of democratic party members and these are being heavily augmented by other party members the largest part of whom claim to be lifelong Democrats like G. O. P.

In this as it may demonstrate old and venerable axes are chasing the tree of hope, from the recent evi-dences of reprimandism of a partic-ular democratic political organization.

Resume of political situation is con-spicuous the political situation is strik-ingly similar to conditions in 1896 when free and unlimited coinage of silver to the tune of 16 to 1 and Wil-liam Jennings Bryan were the bones of contention. Then, as now, there was a small amount of dissatisfaction in Republican and other party ranks, with those talented thinking to the democratic standard. Hysterics and fear arose lauding the magnet—and with such the gold standard was la-bel. Voters by the thousands deserted the democratic party late in the campaign making for an overwhelming Republican victory.

TRI-UNIT AMERICAN AUXILIARY MEETING TO BE HELD HERE OCT. 21

The October meeting of the Tri-Unit American Legion Auxiliary will be held in Charlevoix at the Legion Home Friday evening, October 21st.

The main event of the evening will be the combined installation of new officers for the three units of the Auxiliary. The District Committee-man, Mrs. Gladys Chamberlain of Petoskey, and District Committeewo-man elect, Mrs. Kathryn Shields of Cheboygan, will be present to take charge of the installation.

The president of the local Unit, Mrs. George Kelderhouse, urges all members to be present to give the new committeewoman an encouraging reception.

Mr. John Williams residing at 102 Wood Street and who returned from the Pacific coast about four weeks ago, was taken to Ann Arbor Wednes-day for treatment. The na-ture of the ailment and also the treatment to be administered will be determined after Mr. Williams has been under observation for a few days at the U. of M. hospital.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT AGAIN

PRESENT SITUATION RECALLS CAMPAIGN OF 1896

The democratic party of Charlevoix county the last year 1932 will go down in history as being the most active and best organized of any previous organization in the past democratic year without doubt poll the largest party vote for all time in the history.

Among the activities of the demo-cratic party in addition to this re-port were party organizations in the many of the precincts. From all portions of Michigan come authentic re-ports of unprecedented activities on the part of democratic party mem-bers and these are being heavily augmented by other party members the largest part of whom claim to be lifelong Democrats like G. SHAKESPEARE STUDY CLUB HOLD ANNUAL LUNCHEON

The Executive Committee, consist-ing of Mrs. Ira A. Adams, president; Mrs. C. A. Sullivan, vice president; Mrs. R. R. Paddock, secretary-treas-urer, gave a delicious two course luncheon.

The President passed out the year books, which are gems of art, every-one but the club colors of purple no-ticing in a wide range over his body, from heel to shoulder on his back, had practically expended their force before they were stopped by the bus-iness target.

Richard was taken to the hospital for treatment some of the shot being removed by the attending surgeon, Dr. McMillan. Later he was taken to his home to recover from the experi-ence and in this it is reported that his recovery will be speedy and that he will be around as usual within a few days well and ready to go on another hunting expedition.

Mr. Albert A. Wilbur, after spend-ing ten days here, returns to Chicago today.

Mrs. H. L. Iddings, after spending some weeks at her Charlevoix home, returned to Cleveland, Ohio, late last week, where she will spend the win-ter months with her daughter.

Mrs. James Gaskin will spend the winter months in Detroit. She left for that point early this week and will make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Russell Blakeslee while in the city.

RICHARD BERGMANN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE HUNTING

If there is such a thing as a lucky accident Master Richard Bergmann can testify to the same and claim the title of lucky victim.

Saturday afternoon last Richard, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bergmann, in company with his fath-er and a party of local friends while enjoying a hunt for small game on a tract of ground near Hevingway's Point in nature manner was accident-ally shot by a member of the party, who at the time was using a 16 gauge shotgun. Fortunately for the boy was some distance away from the person who shot was fired and the little pellets, many of which pen-etrated the victims clothing and flesh covering a wide range over his body, from heel to shoulder on his back, had practically expended their force before they were stopped by the bus-iness target.

During 1931 fire destroyed approximately 10,000 lives.

Nearly one-third of these were children under ten years of age.

Two-thirds of the total were burned to death in homes.

The total economic loss was $464,638,265.

In order to visualize these facts, compare them with the following:

The annual fire bill is about equal to 75 per cent of the interest on our national debt.

The new excise and miscellaneous taxes recently imposed on us will produce, in a year, very little more than the annual fire bill.

Over 80 per cent of all fires are easily preventable.

Fire is the great destroyer—not only of lives and property, but of employment, business opportunities, community and industrial progress. Of every hundred industrial establishments burned in the last five years, 43 were not rebuilt. The waste was complete and absolute.

The conquest of fire is simply the conquest of public ignorance, laxness and indifference. Each of us owes the community a duty—to eliminate the hazards on our property. We cannot afford the "luxury" of fire.

SILVER—YOUR PROBLEM

The silver problem isn't a distant and remote matter that never touches the life and welfare of the average man. It's everybody's problem—and it's your problem.

Anything that affects international trade, the buying power of nations, and the free flow of commerce, affects every job, every industry, every home. Silver is the medium of exchange of countries comprising half the world's people. When it has a fair value, those people buy goods from other countries and help keep the factory chimneys of all the world smoking. When its value is depressed, as at present, those people no longer have the money with which to buy.

There isn't enough gold in existence to carry on world commerce—and no major additional supplies are known. In a stable world silver must have its place as a money, and its value in relation to gold must be definite and permanent. It's time the family of nations went hard to work on the problem—and when they do that, and solve it, it will mean money in your pocket.

REGULATE ALL ALIKE

On the settlement of the railroad problem depends the jobs of 600,000 men who are normally employed by the rails and are now out of work, the jobs of hundreds of thousands of others in related industries which must retrench as railroad purchases are cut, the savings of millions of our citizens who own railroad stocks and bonds, either directly, or through the ownership of life insurance policies, savings bank accounts, trust funds, etc.

It is an interesting and important fact that both political parties have planks promising the rails a fair deal. They realize that no problem affects a greater number of people. We shan't go far toward bringing prosperity back until we remove the legislative obstacles that, ever since the war, have made it impossible for the rails to "earn a living".

Motor carriers operate, unregulated or half-regulated, over the public highways. Ships ply waterways built and maintained by the government. Oil pipe lines run underground. As a consequence, the railroads must stand by and watch their business decline—while they are prevented from competing on an equitable basis with the other carriers. Every move of a railroad must first have the approval of government officials—while their competitors, for the most part, are not so restricted.

Regulate and tax all transport agencies on a basis of equality. There is the solution to the railroad problem—a solution at the same time to a number of other problems of the moment.

NEW SCIENTIFIC WONDERS

Science again offers amazing new developments to aid human beings. The remarkable progress achieved by scientific investigation in the field of physical therapy was emphasized at the recent convention of the American Congress of Physical Therapy.

Dr. John D. Currence of Columbia University and the New York Post Graduate Hospital staff, described the treatment of arthritis and rheumatism cases through various types of baths prescribed for their individual requirements.

Through these treatments, which were developed by Dr. Currence, seemingly hopeless cases were given comfort and restored to useful life. More than two per cent of our population is said to be afflicted with chronic rheumatic disease.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

LAW OFFICE OF JAMES MONROE

In this ancient building James Monroe planned a quiet career in the practice of law. But fate, or what you will, lifted the knocker on the door and the rest is history—thrice governor of Virginia, special envoy to the courts of Great Britain, France and Spain, negotiator of the Louisiana Purchase, Secretary of State, Secretary of War and fifth President of the United States, a matchless range of public service covering fifty years.

Mountain air can be created in the sick room by a new device which produces synthetically the type of electrically charged healthgiving air found on mountain tops in bright sunshine, radiated by cosmic rays. The machine was recently developed by Professor Dessauer of Germany, and has been used experimentally by Dr. William Bierman in the treatment of sinus infections and asthma of certain types and also hypertension or high blood pressure.

Dr. John Severy Hibben of California, described a type of generator producing ultra violet light which has the advantage of operating at only slightly above room temperature, giving a constant source of energy of great intensity and providing facilities for measuring accurately the doses of ultra violet rays.

SCIENCE DEMANDS NEW CALENDAR

Opposition to a 13-month calendar, coupled with a demand for a more moderate revision of the present calendar system, was voiced at the triennial meeting of the International Astronomical Union which has just closed its sessions at Cambridge, Massachusetts. This meeting called together the most important gathering of world-famous scientists in the past year, owing in part to the interest aroused by the eclipse which happened to coincide with the opening of this great convention.

American astronomers are advocates of calendar reform in the proportion of about 7 out of 10, and they prefer a 12-month revision to any 13-month plan by an overwhelming majority. European astronomers are more conservative, many of them confirming their immediate demands to a correction of the present wandering Easter date, which is a serious inconvenience in European life, owing to its disastrous effect on educational schedules, on the meetings of learned societies, and on courts and legislative sessions. Most European astronomers, however, agree with their American colleagues in opposition to a 13-month calendar.

The calendar reform favored by scientists is described as follows: "Adoption of a perpetual calendar of 52 weeks, plus one or two extra days, to be observed as international holidays. Division of the year into four quarters of 91 days each, arranged into three successive months of 31, 30 and 30 days respectively. The year will thus consist of twelve months, as at present, with a few very slight changes in the length of certain months to establish a permanent uniformity.

THE LEGION AVOIDS TWO TRAPS

The American Legion is the largest group of Americans familiar with the temperament of Europeans from actual contact. And the Legion has voted thumbs down on American adherence to the World Court. It has overwhelmingly rejected participation in that group which rightly has been called a "backdoor" entrance to the League of Nations.

The cancellation of war debts is another point on which the Legion is at variance with the internationalists. It looks with disfavor on the program to load on the American taxpayer the $11,000,000,000 debt which the richest nations of Europe incurred in good faith, but that they now say is too much for them to pay.

In both decisions, the Legion voices the feeling of a majority of its countrymen who are not misled by propaganda which is designed to rush the United States into revision or cancellation on the specious claim that such action will lead to world-wide economic recovery.

The discernment shown by the Legion indicates a patriotic feeling that entitles it to a hearing of its utterances. It has the interest of America at heart.—Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch.

WOMEN DRIVERS SAFER THAN MEN

If you want to start something in any kind of a gathering ask this question: "Are women safe motor car drivers?"

The statisticians point out that there are at least 3 operators to every two cars in the United States, and there were 22,347,800 passenger automobiles registered in the United States in 1931. That means that there are something like 32,500,000 operators. Surveys made in many cities and estimates of the Federal authorities indicate that women constitute approximately 25 per cent of the total number of these drivers.

The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, which strives constantly to persuade motorists to reduce driving accidents as one of the means of reducing automobile insurance rates, conducted a survey on the subject. Their results were checked with similar investigations made by other agencies. Figures thus obtained show that of the 1,281,400 drivers involved in accidents in 1931, women numbered 97,800 or 7.63 per cent. There were 2,460 women in fatal and 95,340 in non-fatal accidents.

In observance of traffic rules and regulations women also stand out. Full statistics are unavailable but reports from a dozen large cities show that women constitute only about 2.53 per cent of those who have to "tell it to the judge."

The other side insists that soft-hearted traffic officers give her the benefit of every doubt and show mercy where there is no doubt at all. Admitting that feminine wiles do count in some instances it still leaves a margin in favor of the woman.

Traffic officers, inspectors, insurance commissioners, police chiefs, magistrates, and others in a position to know, were circularized on the question, "Are women safe drivers?" In replies received 77.8 per cent considered the woman a more careful driver than the man; 11.1 thought she exercised at least as much driving care as a man, and 11.1 considered the woman as careless in handling a car.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Foreign Propaganda

During the World War, and especially before the United States entered that conflict, the American people were flooded with all sorts of foreign propaganda, designed to win the sympathy of the nation to one side or the other. There was British propaganda, French propaganda, German propaganda and Austrian propaganda. That a great deal of this propaganda was effective goes without saying. The American people at that time were not so well acquainted with European diplomacy as they are today. It took a long and costly war followed by a slow and painful reconstruction to convince us of the fact that the less interest America took in European politics the better off it would be.

It should not be believed that the depression has ended the work of the foreign propagandists in the United States. They are still at work, busily at work. Some of them want Uncle Sam in the League of Nations, and others are concerned about the cancellation of the World War debt. Some of the propaganda is so skillfully devised that it seems to be coming from purely American sources, but if we could get under the surface we would find that a great deal of it, in fact nearly all of it, has foreign inspiration.

The attempt has not been given up either, of interesting America in the purely political problems of Europe. One of the hottie subjects of foreign propaganda now is the Polish corridor. Only recently there was sent out an imposing looking pamphlet on the "Polish Corridor," written by one "Observer" and calculated to enlist the sympathies of the American reader in the cause of Poland and why that nation should be guaranteed permanent occupation of the corridor. Doubtless, if search was made, abundant propaganda could be found on the other hand, purporting to show that the corridor should be given back to Germany. No nation has a career on the subject of propaganda.

The example is cited to show that the efforts to get America entangled in the political problems of Europe have never been given up. If we find joined the League or had plunged into the World Court without safeguarding reservations, there is no doubt that we would be by his time "up to our necks," so to speak, in European political problems. One of the most ticklish of these is the Polish corridor problem which threatens some of these days to plunge Europe into war again. It is a question in which America has no interest one way or the other and it is up to Europe to solve it. Uncle Sam has troubles enough of his own, and these require his entire attention. And the best assurance he has that he can stay at home and mind his own business, is that he is not disposed to join any super-organization of world

J. L. Zelering and O. M. Allen, of Kalamazoo, were here Tuesday looking after improvements on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds.

The north side sewer is completed and work will be commenced on the South Bridge Street sewer as soon as the material arrives.

An elaborate production of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" will be presented at the opera house tonight. The presentation here of this immortal tragedy should insure a full house.

The new building on the premises of St. Mary Catholic Church, to be used as a priest's residence and parochial school, is well under way, and will be completed this fall and winter.

Next Tuesday afternoon and evening, there will be held, in Masonic Hall, in this village, a Royal Arch school of instruction. The most excellent Grand High Priest and the Eight Excellent Grand Lecturers of the State of Michigan, will be present. A supper will be served at Bartlett Hotel. As this will be the first official school here since the institution of Charlevoix Chapter the event will be of unusual Masonic interest.

Columbus Day Exercises

We give below the program of exercises prescribed by the President for the observance of Oct. 21st, Friday next, in commemoration of the discovery of America:

Reading of the President's proclamation.

Salute to the flag and singing of "America", by school chorus.

Acknowledgement of God by prayer or Scripture.

Song of Columbus Day, by pupils and audience.

Address, "The Meaning of Four Centuries."

Ode—Columbus Banner.

Dismissal.

The veterans will march to the school grounds, arriving at 10 a. m. where they will be met by color guard of pupils and escorted to their position in the audience. They will then be joined by the schools, and the exercises will commence at once.

The public is cordially invited.

Capt. Lennox is getting out the schooner Mocking Bird for sea.

Egbert Carpenter and C. Y. Cook, of this village, are up the Jordan river hunting deer.

A movement is on foot for the organization of a "Shakespearean Club" in Charlevoix.

A post office has been established at Thumb Lake in Hudson Township, this county. Jas. A. Wagoner is the P. M.

The Congregational Church will hold services in the school house next Sabbath at 10:30 a. m. The pastor is expected to return before that time.

Washburn, Ackert, and Allen, the machinists, are excavating for the foundation of a foundry which they will crowd rapidly to completion, and have in operation this fall.

The teachers of Charlevoix County are to hold their first meeting at the school house in Charlevoix on the 27th of this month. All teachers, and the friends of education generally are invited to be present.

Those persons who arise early these mornings have a magnificent view of the comet, or a view of the magnificent comet, as you please.

Hon. F. J. Meech, of Norwood, has purchased two lots on the Upright & Hurlbut addition and is having them cleared off preparatory to the erection of a residence thereon. This means that Mr. Meech will upon the completion of his residence become a permanent resident of Charlevoix. Dr. Chamberlain, Mr. Meech's uncle, has also bought lots adjoining and will be valuable additions to our population.

Several boys started the report Sunday that a dead body had been seen in Dr. Weed's back yard, and upon the wings of the wind the report flew and grew, until it assumed the proportion of a suspicion in the minds of some that the doctor had been body snatching—some even naming the identical body. Some other minds who knew better, called on the doctor, and found a full but disconnected skeleton, which had been in the doctor's possession for ten years. The bones were musty and he had put them out to bleach.

The Drowning of F. L. Kiser of This Place From the Tug Minnie Warren

It is our painful duty to chronicle the untimely death of Frank L. Kiser, of the firm of Geo. W. Esterly and Co., on Thursday morning. He is supposed to have fallen overboard from the above named tug, somewhere between Norwood and Little Island, as he was last seen in that vicinity, but was not missed until they reached the river. Several of our citizens made up a party on Wednesday evening for a trip to Elk Rapids, Mr. Kiser being among the rest. The probable facts are that on their return, at about the place spoken of, while nearly all on board were asleep he left the forecastle with the intention of relieving the engineer, and while making his way aft over the piles of wood which obstructed the narrow passage way, lost his balance and fell overboard. The occurrence has cast a gloom over the entire community as Mr. Kiser was universally esteemed. He was just in the prime of life. He leaves a widow and three children. The estimable lady receives the sympathy of all in her sore bereavement.

The ladies appointed to raise money for a flag have been highly successful and we shall soon see the result of their labors.

The School Board authorize us to state that the old school building will be sold to the highest bidder on Saturday next. The proceeds will go into the fund for procuring seats for the new building.

WARNING ISSUED TO THE MANY HUNTERS FOR COMING SEASON

While a quarter of a million shot guns banging away for the next two months in Michigan's woods, fields and marshes will cause some unavoidable accidents, it is possible to keep the accident rate at a minimum if every hunter takes the proper precautions, according to the Department of Conservation.

For several years the Department has been keeping statistics concerning hunting accidents and the figures have offered explanations as to why

During the small game hunting seasons for several years from 15 to 20 fatal accidents have resulted from the careless use of guns. Most of the duck hunting accidents have occurred when hunters have pulled their guns by the barrel from the bottom of the boat. Most of the wound and field accidents have occurred when hunters dragged their guns after them through fences and brush heaps. If hunters would avoid these two violations of hunting propriety, according to the Department, half of the ordinary list of accidents would be eliminated.

Among the suggestions given by the Department for proper handling of guns are:

"Carry your gun over the fence with you, with the barrel pointed away from yourself and others.

"If your gun falls on the ground or touches water make certain the barrel is clear before you fire it.

"A gun lying on the bottom of the boat presents an accident.

"Make certain no other human is in the line of fire."

While in most instances the acquisition of additional land giving water frontage to various parks is prohibitive because of the cost, it will be necessary at some time in the future to develop adequate bathing facilities through water diversion ponds and possibly with the assistance of filtration plants.

Of the 11 state parks in Oakland County—parks that are crowded to capacity through the summer months only one offers good bathing facilities. This state park is located at Walled Lake and it has only 200 feet of frontage on the lake.

At the Dodge River Park No. 8 near Utica and on the Clinton River, hundreds of people make use of the water which is never more than knee deep. Diversion of the river water to a pool deep enough to offer swimming and purified by artificial means would be necessary to give the desired facilities, it was said.

Bathing facilities are now first requisites of state parks, park officials claim, and the demands for such facilities have grown every year since Michigan organized its state parks system.

Through the cooperation of the State Department and the Michigan Stream Control Commission constant inspections are made of water used for bathing purposes in the parks, and in two instances beaches have been closed rather than subject bathers to conditions that might prove detrimental.

HOME AIR CONDITIONING BASIS OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT THAT WILL REVIVE PROSPERITY

Twenty-Five Million American Homes in Need of Its Benefits, States Dr. Hill

CHICAGO, ILL.—"Transition of the furnace into an air-conditioning plant, makes residential heating service now used as much out of date as the old-fashioned 'cook-stove or kitchen range,'" declared Dr. E. Vernon Hill, dean of American air-conditioning scientists, and editor of the Aerologist, a national publication devoted to the science of heating, ventilating and air conditioning.

"Air-conditioning for the 25,000,000 homes in America, as well as the almost innumerable commercial, public and industrial buildings, is the new innovation that fills, in the parlance of the business man, 'a felt but unknown want.' It is the basis of a new industrial development that will be instrumental in reviving prosperity and which will be a balance wheel that will keep prosperity on an even keel for many years to come."

This statement is based on the fact that the American public has become familiar with the comforts and benefits of air-conditioning through the perfected systems now used in the better theatres, public buildings and in many lines of industry. "This has resulted," he said, "in demand for air-conditioning in the home," and he expressed the opinion that when the American public fully recognizes the benefits imparted by air-conditioning from the standpoints of health and comfort, air-conditioning will be looked upon as more of a necessity than the radio or even the automobile.

"No home need be without the comforts and healthfulness of air-conditioning," Dean Hill continued. "There is now available to any home owner who can afford the most type central heating plant, a heating-air-conditioning system that automatically performs the important functions of air-conditioning. Thermostatically controlled, these systems, in addition to supplying the warmth essential in winter comfort, also automatically supply the home air with sufficient moisture to offset the indoor dryness characteristic of winter heating.

"They also meet another vital requirement of air-conditioning namely, constant air circulation, by means of a thermostatically controlled air circulating unit. This air circulation is therefore, just sufficient force to keep the air in every room constantly moving, changing it from four to six times per hour. It is outstanding benefit of this air motion is the development of an indoor temperature that is practically uniform in every room at floor and ceiling levels.

Dr. E. Vernon Hill, Chicago, eminent aerologist and dean of American air-conditioning engineers, who states that home air-conditioning is the basis of an industrial development that will revive prosperity.

"This unit likewise makes the best cooling system available for cooling purposes during the hot periods of summer. The air motion stimulates the stagnant air conditions and other scientific home interiors in hot weather and, by keeping the air in constant circulation through the cool basement, tends to modify the temperature to most important benefit however, is the gentle air motion which produces a physical comfort commensurate with that obtained by lowering the temperature several degrees.

"Thermostatically controlled home air-conditioning systems now available are dependably efficient, moderately priced and practically fool-proof. Their use, in conjunction with oil burning equipment, gas burners, or automatic stokers for coal, virtually eliminate all of the drudgery, discomfort, and inconvenience that heretofore have characterized home heating.

"Obviously," he said in conclusion, "public demand for domestic air conditioning will be almost unlimited. Air-conditioning systems are indispensable to sound health and they impart a genuine indoor comfort that is now experienced in but few homes or places. Public acceptance of the new idea in year round air-conditioning, will, in effect, render practically all existing housing obsolete."

WATER FRONTAGE SCARCITY IN STATE PARKS MATTER OF CONCERN

Scarcity of water frontage and good bathing beach property in state parks in the vicinity of Detroit and other southeastern Michigan centers of population offer one of the major problems for development in that area according to the Parks Division of the Department of Conservation.

EXTENSION SPECIALIST TO JUDGE POTATOES AT ANNUAL SHOW

H. C. Moore, Extension Specialist in potatoes at Michigan State College, East Lansing, has been engaged to judge the potatoes at the Tenth Annual Top O'Michigan Potato and Apple Show at Gaylord, October 26, 27, and 28. Mr. Moore will be assisted by J. J. Hirt and of the potato department at the college.

Mr. Moore is recognized as a national figure in potato work and the show exhibitors will be pleased to know that he will grace the exhibits at this year's show. Since the Show began in 1923 judges from New York, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin and Canada have placed the awards.

E. E. Loree of the Horticulture Department at Michigan State College will judge the apples. Mr. Loree judged the apples at the show in 1929 and all apple growers will be pleased to see him return.

The Alfalfa Seed Classes will be placed by R. E. Decker of Mason and Mr. Decker has charge of Alfalfa Seed Certification work in the state and seed growers will be glad to know that he will be at the show.

All four of the judges will appear in the various programs during the three days of the show.

After a very successful season with the Ten Commandments at the request of many we began last May a series of sermons on the "Teachings of Jesus." The irregularities of the summer program incined us to drop the series in July but as we are settling down for the season ahead it seems only right to continue our plans.

Let us bring to your attention that the teachings of Jesus may be divided into three divisions i. e. 1 Personalities. 2 Ins and Outsiders. 3 The Kingdom to Come. We have dealt with the Personalities of God, the Holy Spirit, of Jesus and of man. There is one other we cannot miss and it is of Satan and Demons. Some will raise their eyebrows when we mention the Personality of Satan. But with Jesus he was a very real person. Don't miss the sermon for it has in it the basic reasons for the coming into the world of Jesus Christ. Plan to hear all of the series for we are going to probe deeply into the religious life of all of us.

The Charlevoix County Council of Religious Education meets next Tuesday in the M. E. Church of Boyne City. Special features include Daily Vacation Bible School, Demonstration of that work. Dramatics

On Tuesday, October 11, the Drama Club had a program auditory for the preceding week. John Wunder gave an interesting talk on the life actor of France, Spain, America including many characters of interest and famous actors and actresses such as John Drew, Maude and the Barrymore family.

Margaret McCann gave a review of the "Charm School." A group of girls in a private school become suddenly aware of the fact that the school has fallen into the hands of a young lawyer. They all agree to go on a strike but the plan is quickly abandoned when they see that the lawyer is not only young but handsome. He attempts to teach the girls charm and consequently Elise, one of the students, falls in love with him and upon realizing that he will have nothing to do with her runs away. His search for her lasts through the night and her kind disappearance reveals to him that he loved her all the time, married thought he is forced to give up his "Charm School."

Alice calling three burglars in her house immediately informs the police who are several miles distant. The burglars, after filling their bags with valuables prepare to flee from the family jewlers, when Alice appears pleading with them to be quiet so as to not disturb her sick mother.

While Buck and Harry enjoy the meal J. Hattie and Alice exercise "For twenty years," J. Hatch tells Alice "he has escaped the law and civilization". Alice warns him that he risks twenty or thirty years of his life in prison for one years profit and that some time he will be caught. While they converse a noise is heard and Alice tells him that "civilization" is on his track, and that the house is surrounded by policemen, and that he is caught."

At this moment Captain Lucas enters and arrests the burglars.

Jessie Bonstelle's Final Curtain

The whole country is saddened at the death of Jessie Bonstelle, beloved actress, and founder of the first Civic Theater in the United States.

The American Magazine, McCalls The Theater Magazine and others have carried glowing accounts of Miss Bonstelle's work in the American Theater. In her several stock companies it is estimated that she has trained more stars than any other director can boast. Among them are Alice Brady, Catherine Cornell, Arlen Harding and Kenneth McKenna.

Personals

Many students from C. H. S. went to the football game at Cheboygan Saturday.

Albert McMillan is back in school after having been ill for sometime.

Mr. Roth spent Tuesday and Wednesday of last week interviewing foreign language teachers in the Southern part of the state.

History and Civics

The American History Classes are writing themes on Colonial Lives to be read in class. They are endeavoring to make them as interesting as possible.

The World History Class is studying the Chivalry of the middle ages. They find this subject very enjoyable.

Fire Prevention Week Observed

Friday afternoon the 6th and 8th graders presented an entertaining and educational program called "The Trial of Fire". The scene for the play was laid in a Court room. There on trial were the most simple things that start fires. Each pupil who took part was dressed in accordance with his characters. The Junior and Senior High Schools formed a very appreciative audience.

Band

The band will play on the evening of November 3 at the pageant—"My Michigan" to be presented by the W. C. T. U.

Also preparations is being made by the band to play at the Armistice program in the school.

Glee Club Meeting

The High School assembly held a pep meeting Friday after school. Jack Foster made a speech and many rousing cheers were given. The meeting ended with the singing of Red and White.

Grade News

The Kindergarten pupils are busy making their preparations for Hallowe'en. The pupils have made pumpkins and other Hallowe'en decorations and have placed them about their room. They also have corn stocks on either side of the fire place.

The first grade pupils are busy restorating the furniture in their room. The chairs are being painted green in place of blue.

Those pupils have been neither tardy nor absent for the first month.

The music classes of the grade building are busy writing original poems with music for Hallowe'en. The fifth grade has seven poem completed.

Sixth Grade

The Jolly Pipers have chosen a new announcer, Robert Goss, a controller, Edward Fuehrman, and a board of Appraisal, Vernice Holland, Harry Withers, Dorothy Powers.

Group A broadcasts on Wednesday at 2:45 and group B on Friday at the same time.

Hazel Hamlin has returned to our school after spending a month in Detroit.

Miss Fargo's room is making a study in their Geography. Miss Hall leads. How they are planted, how they grow, and how they are harvested. They have their sand table filled with shelves across it and on this they have placed some of the fall products. Some that they have are onions, squash, potatoes, pumpkins, cucumbers apples nuts and they have a few corn stalks. They will also study the fall flowers and leaves in much the same manner. This proves interesting to the pupils as all the vegetables, flowers and leaves are brought in by them.

The fourth grade, under the direction of Miss Manson are thoroughly enjoying their initiation into the study of Geography this year.

Miss Daref is teaching the girls of the Senior High gym class clogg dancing. They are all very enthusiastic over it.

Junior High News

The first month of school always proves to be one of readjustment for many students, particularly those in the seventh and rural students who have not had the opportunity to work in similar activities.

With the second month now in its second week, both teachers and students feel a degree of acquaintance which permits both to realize the value of the other.

Campaign for election to the Junior High Student Council are being prepared, petitions of candidates circulated among members of the student body and plans to stimulate public enthusiasm for self-directed activity are beginning to appear.

Home-work for those who have a B is better in each subject.

DEATH TAKES NELSON LINDLEY

END CAME THURSDAY NIGHT; WAS 66 YEARS OF AGE

Mr. Nelson Lindley, well known resident of this region, passed away at the family home in Hayes township Thursday night at the age of 66 years, his death being due to a complication of diseases, some of which having been persistent over a period of several months.

Funeral service was held at the family residence Monday afternoon with Rev. G. Russell Parker officiating with interment following at Undine cemetery.

Mr. Lindley was a native of the Dominion of Canada, born in Ontario March 23, 1866, where he continued his residence until some years after reaching his majority, following this he came to the United States where he continued until his passing, the last score of years being spent in this region.

During the years of his residence in this region Mr. Lindley has followed, mainly, the business of interior decorator, painter, etc., and in this he was artistic and done his work in such a manner as could be best appreciated by skilled artisans and professionals.

He is survived by Mrs. Lindley and three daughters, Mrs. Margery Lindley Peterson of Reading, Pa., Mrs. Lyrita Arlene Lindley Volz of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Mable LaVores Lindley who lived with her parents.

MYSTERY PARTY RULES AND REGULATIONS

The Epworth League Society, which is sponsoring the Mystery Party to be held in the local M. E. Church on Friday evening of this week, hereon announces the rules for the distribution of costume prizes.

There will be three judges, to be selected Friday night. Their decisions will be final.

There will be six first prizes awarded, Nobody can receive more than one prize.

There will be one prize given for the winning costume in each of the following divisions: The Prettiest Costume, The Spookiest Costume, The Funniest Costume, The Most Interesting Costume, The Costume Showing Most Preparation, and The Best Dogusie. In case one person seems to have the best costume in more than one division, he or she will receive the prize in the first division, while the second place costume will receive the prize in the next. A list of the prize winners will be published in this paper in the next issue.

According to the few hints that have leaked out about what is actually going to happen at this mingling of ghosts and witches, it would seem that the committee in charge would realize its desire to make this the spookiest party around this territory.

Mrs. Adah Beeman, president of the Home Missionary Society of the Grand Traverse District, attended a meeting of the Petoskey Auxiliary held at the home of Mrs. Tubbs, at Walloon Lake, where she delivered an address on Christian Citizenship. Mrs. Martin Block, Treasurer of the District was also a guest.

There is a vacancy in the office of the Argo Milling Company this week due to the absence of Mr. Henry Partridge who is visiting in Detroit for a few days. Mr. Partridge will be back on the job in a day or two and upon his return will be accompanied by Mrs. Partridge who for two weeks past, has been with relatives and friends in the metropolis of Michigan.

Those pupils have been neither tardy nor absent for the first month.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Achert went to Pontiac Friday, where they will spend the winter months, according to present plans.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

MANY MOTORISTS ARE WITHOUT PROPER OPERATORS LICENSE

Approximately 300,000 motorists are without legal operators licenses, the state police estimate in calling attention to the fact that on or before November 1, the last big re-registration under the 1931 statute, must take place.

Under the present operators law, motorists are required to obtain a new license every three years. Prior to that time once a license was issued it was good until the owner lost it.

The present statute became effective May 1, 1931 and under its provisions all licenses issued prior to January 1, 1928 expired November 1, 1931; all licenses issued prior to January 1, 1928 and subsequent to December 31, 1924 expired May 1, 1932; all licenses issued subsequent to December 31, 1927, expire November 1, 1932.

While many motorists have taken out their new licenses there are literally thousands who have failed to comply with the statute. The police estimate is based on registrations under the old law, which brought in about 150,000 applications annually and a check of accident records that show one driver out of every seven involved in a collision of any kind has no license.

FARMERS MAY HUNT ON OWN LAND WITHOUT HUNTING LICENSE

Farmers or their employees may hunt or trap without a license on that enclosed area on which they live but must be provided with a license to hunt on any other lands even though it be "worked" as part of the farm according to the Department of Conservation in answering numerous inquiries as to the regulations permitting certain persons to hunt without a license.

Chapter Four of the General Game Laws of 1931 provides that "resident citizens of this state and their children and employees when hunting or trapping upon their own enclosed farm lands upon which they are regularly domiciled" are not compelled to obtain a license.

This has been interpreted to mean, according to the Department, that farmers or their children or employees may hunt without a license only on the area in which their home is enclosed. If part of the farm is directly across the road no license is necessary in that there since the farmer owns to the center of the highway on either side, making the areas contiguous.

It is never, should a farmer own or "work" a plot of ground separated from the farm on which he lives by other property, he would be compelled to have a hunting or trapping license to take game or fur-bearing animals there.

A special meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is called for Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the Community room. The eight amendments will be explained and instruction given in marking the ballot and "splitting your ticket." Some of the district officers are expected also to report the state meeting.

Big game hunters, according to reports from the department of conservation, can secure their license for 1932 at some 1800 places in the state such places being agencies established by the department for convenience of those interested and to facilitate the work at headquarters.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. R. Gervers of Bellaire spent several hours here Thursday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Sorensen, following a visit of ten days with friends in Chicago, returned home Friday night last. They were accompanied on the return trip by a brother of Mrs. Sorensen, who probably will remain here for an extended visit.

SGT. A. YORK HERE FRIDAY

WILL SPEAK AT GYMNASIUM AT 7:30 FRIDAY EVENING

In cooperation with the Anti-Saloon Leagues of Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the Anti-Saloon League of America has secured Sergeant Alvin C. York, national hero of the World War for a series of meetings, which will continue to election day in November.

It was Sergeant Yorks daring feat, of October 6, 1918, when under orders with his squad of 17 men he went over the ridge and silenced a machine-gun nest in the Argonne Forest, leading back to the American lines 132 prisoners and with the loss of but eleven of his own men, that made him a national hero.

When he returned from France, New York went wild over him. He was feted and entertained by statesmen and generals. Both Houses of Congress met in joint session and cheered him to the echo. Vaudeville and motion picture agencies, newspaper syndicates, advertisers after his endorsement, offered him fabulous sums of money to "sign on the dotted line." But Alvin York had a different plan for his life. He hurried back in the Tennessee mountains where he was born and had lived his life until his country called him to service in the World War. His heart was with his own people, particularly with the boys and girls of his own country who had only the most meager opportunities for education. He had a great plan to build an institution of learning back in that mountain fastness and his plan and his dream have come true. The state and the county lifted his community out of the mud by the construction of a hard road named in his honor and from the proceeds of his lectures augmented by an appropriation by the state he is maintaining schools, madern, well built, which are as well equipped as those found "outland."

Sgt. York does not glorify the war. He is an advocate of peace and good will. And it was only after an all-night vigil on the mountain side that he got the consent of his conscience to don the uniform of the soldier. The York schools are his contribution to permanent peace. It is Mr. Red Cross this year by congress.

"After fifty-one years as the official national relief agency, the American Red Cross finds itself in 1932 with a voice against the legalized liquor traffic. He has thrilled thousands with his simple eloquence and as one critic says, "charmed them with his mellow mountain dialect, rich in idioms, brought over and handed down by those old Scotch-Irish settlers who first peopled York's native hills."

Sergeant York will be accompanied by Colonel Frank R. Ehbert, Los Angeles attorney, who is a veteran of both the Spanish-American and World Wars and a very eloquent speaker.

He is a Lt. Colonel in the Reserve United States Army. He won his rank as a veteran of the Spanish American War and of the World War. He served in the Chemical Warfare branch of the service. There he learned the art of defeating the enemy with chemicals.

He graduated with honors from Ile Pauw University and from the Chicago Law School.

In 1919, when the Illinois legislature enacted the Enforcement Code, the liquor interests demanded a hearing before Governor Frank O. Lowden—and received it. The alcoholics cast the best attorneys available—Levy Mayer and Clarence Darrow—to represent them. The dry's sent Colonel Ebbert. The doughty Colonel won his case, and Lowden signed the bill without leaving his desk. Mayer received a fee of $10,000. Colonel Ebbert came back and collected a ten-dollar fee plus expenses and a lawyer's satisfaction.

His address is full of humor and common sense. Come and hear him.

RED CROSS WARS ON DISTRESS

2,200 CHAPTERS AIDING IN THE NATIONAL RELIEF WORK

The annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, announced for November 11 to 24, will find more than 3,000 chapters seeking membership for support of regular and emergency aid work through the year of 1933.

Mrs. J. M. Harris, chairman of the Charlevoix County Chapter has summed up the national organization's relief activities during the past year as follows:

"To prevent suffering in this period of unemployment and general economic depression, the Red Cross has made widespread distribution of wheat, flour, clothing, medicine and other supplies. More than 2,200 chapters have participated in community unemployment relief problems.

"Approximately 15,000,000 persons, residing in every state in the Union, have received flour through the Red Cross, while the clothing needs of tens of thousands of distressed families have been supplemented by the organization's present cloth and clothing distribution program. The task of converting government wheat and cotton into flour and garments was assigned to the Red Cross this year by congress.

"After fifty-one years as the official national relief agency, the American Red Cross finds itself in 1932 with a voice against the legalized liquor traffic. He has thrilled thousands with his simple eloquence and as one critic says, "charmed them with his mellow mountain dialect, rich in idioms, brought over and handed down by those old Scotch-Irish settlers who first peopled York's native hills."

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN MEETING IN GAYLORD

On the afternoon of November 1st at 3 o'clock at the Gaylord Auditorium, Mrs. Harry V. Woodhouse of the State Central Republican Committee of Detroit will meet with the Ladies of this District and give an address in behalf of the Republican candidates. Mrs. Woodhouse is nationally known as a speaker and organizer.

The government handwriter, Gen. G. C. Meade, is doing some work at the entrance to the harbor this week; however, the job will not be extensive as the appropriation was for a small amount and like other government appropriations was cut to the lowest possible figure.

JAMES CAGNEY A PUGILIST IN "WINNER TAKE ALL"

Just as he sprang upon the world in the most authentic of gangster pictures, "The Public Enemy," and gave the screen its most realistic auto racing picture, "The Crowd Roars" so does James Cagney provide the colorful thrills of the prize-ring in his latest Warner Bros. picture, "Winner Take All," which comes to the Palace Theater next Saturday and Sunday.

This virile young personality who has taken a step higher with each succeeding picture, has eclipsed all former successes in "Winner Take All." With a reputation of punch and power in his pictures, Cagney is happily cast as a two-fisted pugilist who pulls no punches in fight or love.

The story deals with Jim's attempt to come back as a winner by going to a desert resort to build himself up. There he meets Peggy Smith with whom he falls in love; so much so that he breaks into his convalescence period to fight in order to raise money for her.

The principal scenes are masterpieces of realism. Cagney proves that he can not only act the part of a boxer, but can box with the best of them.

Under the absent voters law the "absent voter" shall be taken to mean any qualified elector, who, on account of physical disability is unable to attend the polls or well as those who expect to be absent from the city or township on November 8th. Applications for absent voters ballots can be secured from the city clerk.

Monday, November 7 is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Care of Children's eyes a specialty. 2712

BELLAIRE HAS LEGION POST

LOCAL POST HOLDS CARD PARTY NEXT MONDAY EVE.

Bellaire now has a Legion post, with a potential strength of about 125 members. The territory taken in the towns of Ellsworth and Central Lake as well as Bellaire and the adjacent countryside. The new post, which has not yet received a number but will be known as Antrim County Post, American Legion, was officially started last Saturday evening by Department Vice Commander Scott and District Commissioner Allard.

The officers are S. E. Acumegger, commander, Alden, Mich.; Carl Knutson, vice commander; Elmer Fate, adjutant; Forrest Phinny, sergeant at arms; Earl Richards, finance officer; Leo Thomas historian and Judson Hilton, chaplain, all of Bellaire. Leslie T. Shapton Post will miss some of these men, who were its members in 1932, for the new post will give up two more delegates from the Lower Eleventh District at the State Convention and our projected forming of an outpost on Beaver Island will just about replace the members we are losing to Bellaire When formed, Charlevoix will have one of the only three outposts in the United States, the others being located on Old Mission Point, subordinate to the Traverse City post and in Maine. The next post to be started in this district will be the one at Gaylord, which will draw from the counties of Montmorency, Otsego and part of Presque Isle. The district will then have fifteen posts.

Don't forget the stag card party on December 21st, the Armistice Day program and banquet on November 11th and the turkey party on November 19th. These will be the outstanding events in the Legion's fall program. Members of this post who have received letters regarding their dues and blanks to fill out are urged to take care of these matters at once so as to have dues ready for the next roundup on November 12th.

MICHIGAN'S NEW ELECTION LAW WORRIES WHITEHOUSE CLERKS

Michigan's new election law gave the White House secretaries at Washington Herbert G. Hoover something to think about a few days ago.

Not knowing that the Michigan statute provides that every candidate is to be identified with a proof backing for checking purpose to ascertain if the name so properly spelled and placed in the proper place and under the proper party label, one of those called Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald to find out why county clerks of Michigan were sending so many ballots for their OK.

Mr. Fitzgerald explained to the person on the other end of the telephone line that the county clerks of Michigan were just following the law.

It is necessary on each of the county tickets to have a simple ballot expressed as every candidate, Mr. Fitzgerald explained to the White House secretary and President Hoover was satisfied just the same as every one else, down to county surveyor.

This year the names of the candidates for president and vice-president on all parties appear on the ballots rather than the names of the presidential electors. This provision was enacted by the 1931 legislature.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Shanks and son Warren were guests of Mrs. Shanks's mother, Mrs. Emma Bogart over the week end. The visitors returned to their home, Algonac, early this week.

Mr. E. A. Harris of Detroit spent a day or two here late last week on business connected with state affairs and incidentally visiting old time Charlevoix friends.

REPUBLICANS HOLD RALLY

IN SCHOOL GYMNASIUM WEDNESDAY EVENING

The first of a series of Republican Rallies scheduled for Charlevoix county and one therein, was held in the high school gymnasium last evening with a fair crowd in attendance to hear the arguments presented in favor of the state and national ticket.

The session was opened by the introduction of the chairman of the county committee, Herman C. Meyer, by Mayor Arthur Bergeon.

In introducing the county candidates present he gave the assurance that this work of the series of meetings would be held in Boyne City Friday evening, October 28th, with capable speakers present to give the addresses of the evening. The next meeting following this will be a District meeting and one of the really big Republican meetings of this campaign and is scheduled to be held at Ingleside Tuesday evening, November 1st, with such notables as U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mayor Patrick Dunigan, Congress Fred Dickinson, A. E. F., and Attorney John Voorhees as speakers.

This is a district meeting sponsored by Republicans from the following counties: Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska, Montmorency, Otsego and Roscommon and aside from the addresses will be featured with a torchlight parade, band music, etc.

The race in the series of county meetings will be held in East Jordan Friday evening November 4th with the final and county rally scheduled for Charlevoix the night of November 7th, election eve.

The chairman then introduced Gerald F. Bush, superintendent of schools, who gave an inspiring address in the support of the candidates for state honors, many of whom it has been his privilege to know intimately. His remarks and presentation of an disarming array of facts and figures in favor of Governor Brucker's administration, left little room for doubt in any true Republicans mind with regard to his duty on November 8th.

Judge Parm C. Gilbert gave the closing address of the evening and in his pleading in interesting manner presented the national picture in a most convincing way, speaking from the standpoint of an American citizen whose duty to his country comes first.

At the close of the remarks he called attention to the two amendments coming before the voters on November 8th, relative to tax limitation and tax exemption, and pointed out the havoc these would be wrought in the affairs of government if these amendments were approved by the voters.

The meeting was considered a most encouraging one from the viewpoint of the party and a worthy forerunner of the other meetings in the series which culminates in one big county rally here in Charlevoix on the eve of the big battle on November 8th.

DR. ARMSTRONG RETURNS HOME AFTER TWO MONTHS VACATION

After an absence of more than two months Dr. H. B. Armstrong returned from a trip to Chicago Tuesday night and at once took up his professional work where he dropped it a few days before taking his Chicago trip.

The Dr. looks fine and if one can judge from appearances he is battling 100 per cent at all times. Apparently his vacation of two months spent in Chicago did him a world of good physically, moreover the Doctor expresses a sense of deep satisfaction over his return to his home here and to his professional work. In this the Patriot holds no copyright as citizens of Charlevoix and surrounding territory are as a whole expressing their satisfaction concerning the same proposition.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER

A few reasons why government should keep out of business:

Because government in business opens the flood gates of public expenditures at the taxpayers' expense: many of the expenditures being for special services to a limited number of persons from which services the general taxpayer, who must pay for them, can derive no benefit.

It creates new classes of political agencies and gives them unlimited power to incur debts, levy taxes and spend public money.

It discourages industry and prevents the investment of private capital in new enterprises because a private citizen cannot compete with tax-free, government-owned projects.

It invites the worst kind of political gerrymanding for promotional schemes at public expense.

Each time the government goes into business, it removes taxable property from the tax rolls and loads the taxes thus lost onto remaining taxable property, plus additional taxes for new governmental ventures into the field of industry.

The question of the government in business in competition with its private citizens should be considered from the standpoint of the principle involved, rather than from the interest of any particular line of business. The business itself is incidental to the principle. If we subscribe to the theory that public ownership is good for any business, even in a small degree, we should be honest enough to go all the way and sanction complete public ownership and control of the means of production and distribution. We should not single out one line of business to stand the brunt of such unfair and killing competition.

Government competition might better apply to the local meat market, grocery store, or clothing store, than to ocean shipping, insurance, public utilities, railroads and banking, for it is much more important that the average family get the first three items at cost than it is that they get the latter items at cost.

THE FOREMOST ISSUE

At the recent American Bankers' Association convention, excessive taxation and public expenditures were the leading subjects presented by nationally prominent speakers.

It is literally amazing how many financial and industrial organizations are regarding the tax problem as the most important of all our difficulties at this time. We have reached a point in our affairs where the cost of government is becoming an impassable barrier in the way of the investment of capital, the development of industrydustry, the creation of estates, and the employment of labor. Money that once flowed into productive enterprise, which surely needs new funds now, is either hoarded or invested in tax-free government bonds. Millions of American investors have found a real and personal meaning in the old saying that "the power to tax is the power to destroy."

We have seen what expanded governmental activities with their resulting influence on the tax bill, have done in England, Germany, Australia and lesser powers. The dole, which was created to aid the unemployed and the distressed, has had precisely the opposite effect—it has created more unemployment and more distress by stifling industry. So with the rest of those governmental panaceas which have taken billions from the pockets of the taxpayers of the world. Whether America's tomorrow will be bright or clouded depends on what action we take in handling the tax problem now.

IS A RAILROAD A GOOD CITIZEN?

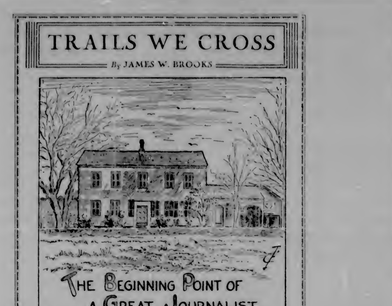
"The Great Northern sent a check Monday for its taxes. It was for $198,487. It is the biggest check for taxes annually received. It may always be depended upon. The Great Northern is never a delinquent taxpayer. Most of us never think of it as a citizen of this community. Few of us realize, until the matter is called to our attention, as in this case, what part it has in keeping things going hereabouts. It helps pay for our schools, roads and bridges, and takes care of our needy. It discharges all the duties of citizenship on the paying end with little complaint. . . .

"We can afford to be most patient with all our railroads. They face conditions of change that are not yet fully or clearly developed. In them is invested a lot of the money of plain everyday people. What they mean in a community sense is perhaps best expressed for popular appreciation in a check for $198,487 in taxes.



That will go a long way toward keeping schools open and cash in the treasury to pay the salaries of policemen, firemen, county officials and other public servants.

Thousands of American communities depend upon these railroad tax checks. What would happen to the small taxpayer if railroads were government owned and tax-exempt? His taxes would probably be so high he could not pay for more years than one cares to count. For the most part, we refer to the fire loss as the "nation's loss"—as if it were a more or less remote matter, affecting other pocketbooks than ours.

Most of us, of course, suffered no fire during the year. But we contributed our share of the bill just the same. We paid it in higher insurance premiums than would otherwise have been necessary, in loss of business, in destroyed jobs, in ruined industries, in increased taxes, in lapses in community development. Every fire, no matter how large or small, damages all. None can escape it.

Let's do our share to cut the fire bill to conform to the rest of the cuts in the family budget.

TOYS ARE NECESSITIES

Toys and games are called an everyday childhood necessity, ranking with food and shelter, not just a pretty Christmas tradition, by the Child Play Welfare Association in a nationwide appeal to provide playthings for the children of the unemployed. "When Johnny begs for an electric train building blocks or a wagon and Jane prays for a doll, a board game or a ball, they are really pleading for their educational opportunity, for protection against criminal influences," says Warden Lawes of Sing Sing, famous criminologist, who calls this donation of educational play equipment "the best influence against delinquency."

This drive for equal play opportunity deserves the whole-hearted support of every community. Today toys and games are no flimsy luxuries; they are strongly built, accident proof. Modern playthings are designed to develop children's mental, physical and manual potentialities to the fullest possible degree. Every child has a right to these benefits.

"Problem children," are bored, idle children. When carpentry tools, drawing and carving sets, playing school equipment, Tom Thumb house-keeping toys, velocipedes, skates, kites, musical instruments, modeling clay, boats, autos construction sets, tops, balls, board games, etc., divert youthful energy to educational play, the corner gang loses its recruits; the problem child becomes a good citizen.

SCHOOLBOY PATROLS FOR SAFETY

Four times a day more than 150,000 youngsters in 800 American communities guide their schoolmates in crossing dangerous street and highway intersections safely. These youngsters make up the "Schoolboy Patrols". Theirs is a commendable and important work. One of the fastest growing phases of child safety education, it is on credited with some of the best results. Statistics show that child pedestrian fatalities have decreased 25 per cent in the last four years.

These patrols are one of the finest means of protecting school children on their way to and from school, from street and highway accidents. Every schoolboy patrolman concentrates his attention on directing his classmates in crossing intersections at the proper time. He does not direct traffic, and is never in danger himself.

LINCOLN OWNED A PATENT

One of the prize documents at the United States Patent Office is the original application of Abraham Lincoln all in his own handwriting, for a patent for some sort of contrivance to inflate bags to provide air pressure to raise boats out of the water.

Many people think that Lincoln excelled only as a rail-splitter in his early life, while as a matter of fact he was the handiest man in the "shipping business" the whole length of "the river."

That was years before he took up law and politics. C. A. O'Brien. Washington's famous patent attorney, says that a good patent has always proved to be the best piece of property in the world—and that it still is.

CUT OUR FIRE BILL

"Let's give the fireman a vacation."

That was a suggestion offered by a magazine published by the National Safety Council, in writing on Fire Prevention Week just passed. Let's hope it was well heeded. Now every citizen should do his best to see that the fire department continues on "vacation" during the balance of the year as well.

Last year we paid a fire bill of almost half a billion dollars. We've paid about the same bill

(ODAY, THURSDAY,
OCTOBER 27, IS NAVY DAY

It is also the anniversary of the day of the establishment of the American Navy by the Continental Congress in 1775.

Navy Day has been celebrated on his day each year for the past ten years under the sponsorship of the patriotic organizations of the country to honor the fine achievements and traditions of the Navy and to bring them to the attention of the general public.

But this year Navy Day has a particular significance. Navy Day is one of the important dates being celebrated in the Bi-Centennial Celebration. It is a day that has been set aside to pay tribute to the naval genius of our first President during the celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary year of his birth.

It is only fitting and proper that we pay on Navy Day a fitting tribute of reverence and respect to the Father of Our Country. For George Washington was a Navy Man, an important Navy Man. As a matter of fact George Washington can rightfully be called the Father of the American Navy.

Until recently historians have not sufficiently emphasized Washington's importance as a naval leader. It has only been in the last few years when historical experts of the United States George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission have been presenting all the fast of George Washington's life, and naval experts like Captain Dudley W. Knox, U. S. Navy, retired, have been re-evaluating the events of our history closely associated with the life of George Washington, that the real stature of George Washington as a naval leader has been set forth. Such competent and authoritative historians have come to the conclusion that George Washington was a naval genius.

Although Washington had no proficiency in naval technique—he admits this in his own handwritings—he saw, more clearly than any other naval or military officer participating in our Revolutionary War, the potentiality of a strong naval force, and the great advantages to be derived from military and naval cooperation in a joint operation. It is this conception, at a time when the importance of the joint use of the naval and military arms of a government was not realized, that stamps George Washington as a naval genius.

Congress appointed George Washington Commander-in-Chief of the American Army. Almost immediately he assumed the responsibility of "Admiral" of the American Navy.

At the siege of Boston in 1775 he saw the great advantage the British army was enjoying because of Britain's supremacy on the seas. He saw supply ships landing without opposition—supply ships which brought the necessities of war to the besieged British army. He was helpless to prevent this steady flow of British ships because he had no navy.

While Congress was deliberating ways and means to build a navy, Washington took matters into his own hands and began fitting out ships.

The first ship commissioned by George Washington was the "Hannah." This historic ship was out on the high seas but two days when it returned to port with its first prize. Soon Washington had a fleet of six vessels. These ships and privateers sent out under the supervision of the individual Colonies or privately, played havoc with British ships, diverting much needed ammunition and other supplies to the struggling Colonies.

A small American fleet on Lake Champlain, harrassing and delaying the British in their trip down the Hudson to join with Howe, who was coming up from east, was an important factor in the surrender of General Burgoyne's army at the battle of Saratoga. This battle has been called the "Decisive event of the war," because it showed Europe that America's cause was not hopeless and led to the French alliance.

This alliance with France meant men, money and ships for the Americans. It meant the hastening of the close of our war for independence. And the "navy" played an important and vital part in making this alliance a reality. With the arrival of the French fleet to our waters in July, 1778, Washington could demonstrate his naval genius. He became the supreme naval strategist.

He made his military movements depend on the French fleet. When French naval superiority was absent from our waters, Washington delayed military action and merely held his troops in readiness, waiting for the time when the French fleet would prove equal to the British.

Washington was unwilling to use Rochambeau's army until the fleet arrived to support the military movements and thus make victory decisive. He laid down the maxim: "In any operation, under all circumstances, a decisive naval superiority is to be considered as a fundamental principle, and the basis upon which every hope of success must ultimately depend."

We all know the story of the famous Yorktown campaign—a campaign where the Navy and Army cooperated to perfection. General Cornwallis was bottled up at Yorktown and had to surrender with his entire army. To all intents and purposes this campaign ended the war and brought peace to our land.

Washington, in a great measure, directed the naval end of the campaign. He pleaded, argued, and ordered until he had his way and we can see now how wise and how great he was in this historic campaign.

George Washington rightly takes his place as the first of a brilliant list of American Admirals and we must always remember that, even after the Revolutionary War, George Washington always tried to impress on the mind of the people the necessity and advisability of maintaining an adequate navy so that our rights on the high seas would be protected and our neutrality and liberties at home safeguarded.

George Washington is our greatest contribution to civilization. We, his descendants, can very well be proud of his achievements and of our country which produced him and of our Navy which today, even as in Washington's day is the nation's first line of defense.

Among those who will go north to deer hunting this fall are those friskey old sports, Egbert Carpenter and M. J. Stackman.

The matter of establishing a U. S. fish hatchery at Charlevoix has been settled and work will be commenced early in the spring. It will be located either on the life-saving station grounds, or on city property near the power house—just where has not yet been definitely determined.

Capt. Fountain and his crew of life-savers are continuing the splendid work of landscape improvement down at the station grounds. The hill is being terraced and sodded, and the trees and shrubbery cleaned out. Next summer Capt. Fountain hopes to complete the work, and it will be a credit to him, the village and the government.

Shades of King Strang! Just think of it: a railroad on Beaver Island! Imagine the Hotel Beaver porter shouting "All aboard for Lake Geneseret!" or "Train for Mount Pisgah!" Yet that is what is proposed by a Chicago firm which has large land holdings there from which the timber has not been cut. Last week this concern bought out W. F. Gill's sawmill plant and will build a narrow-gauge railroad from the mill ten miles up the island. This means much more than a lumbering project. The timber is mostly hardwood with some cedar, covering good farming lands. It means the enlargement of agricultural interests and a general and permanent development of the island.

Capt. Walter Clifford, 7th Infantry U. S. Army, arrived in town from Fort Pembind on Monday, and is quartered with his brother, W. C. Newman. Capt. Clifford is at home in Charlevoix, where he has been well known for many years, having spent a three year sick leave here several years ago. Capt. Clifford's visit here will take up the whole of this week, when he will leave for Washington, on business connected with the introduction of his patent ramp-stove into the army. He has sixty days leave of absence.

W. C. Mears, of Banks, well known to Charlevoix as a musician and teacher of experience, has been secured by Rev. G. Daniels, to give the M. E. Sabbath school of this place, a course of instruction in music the coming winter, commencing in November. In addition to the regular course of instruction he will produce, on Christmas, with the school and adult singers, the celebrated cantata of "Santa Claus". Mr. Mears has produced this cantata in Vermontville and Nashville, Mich., with great success in both places. It is a beautiful thing, and will serve both to stimulate interest in the Sabbath School and develop much slumbering talent among our little folks.

Charlevoix may well boast of the intellectuality of her people. No town of its size in Michigan has more or better societies having for their purpose the intellectual development of their members than Charlevoix. Her Historical Society has come to be an institution embracing the best people of Charlevoix, a membership in which constitutes an honor to anybody. The Liberal Club has come to be an institution in the village, firmly established and prosperous. Now a Shakespearean Club is to be organized and keeping the type of Charlevoix intellectuality as we do, we can safely predict for it perpetuity no less certain than its sister societies. We say we are proud of this side of Charlevoix life, and we say it not without reason.

Active search has been instituted for the recovery of the body of F. L. Kiser, who was drowned on the 17th. A pass book, and several other articles which were identified as his were found on the beach about a mile and a half above Little Island, which indicated the whereabouts of the body. A force of nine men now patrol the beach at that point.

In the matter of the water-works well job we believe the council has done the best they could; but at this writing nothing has been accomplished, although pumps will be ready to fill the mains the last of this week. The council committee have made three contracts, and up to date the only results reached have been one balloon ascension and a masquerade ball. If the present fall weather continues, we hope to yet have a punch and judy entertainment and a tight-rope walk.

The exercises on Columbus Day under the management of Prof. H. M. Enos and the cooperation of Baxter Post, G. A. R. was successfully carried out. The program adopted throughout the United States was that submitted by the Youth's Companion, and nothing could have been more appropriate. The school children were massed fronting the school building, flanked by the veterans. At a given signal the flag was raised by Comrade Stackman As it reached the peak, the pupils came to a salute, repeating the following: "I pledge my allegiance to my flag, and the Republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, liberty and justice for all."

A grand sentiment and one that the girls and boys should cherish in their hearts! "Old Glory" was given three cheers by the veterans, who, on many a bloody field have proven that it is worth fighting for, and, if need be, dying for. Rev. Mr. MacPherson gave a scripture reading from the Psalms, and the school sang appropriate music. Then the cannon boomed a salute in honor of the occasion, and of the flag, proudly floating from the tower.

COUNTY WIDE 4-H CLUB COUNCIL SELECTED AT CLUB MEETING

The recent 4-H Club Leaders Training Meeting held in Mont's Restaurant, Charlevoix, last Thursday night, was attended by representatives from all sections of the county. A splendid banquet was enjoyed at 6:30 followed by songs and recreation.

During the discussion on plans and preparations for a highly successful 4-H Club season, everyone seemed to believe that a county-wide 4-H Club Council would be of great assistance. This Council will confer with the County Agricultural Agent and will consist of representatives from different sections of the county. With this arrangement a representative would be in direct contact with all club activities.

Mrs. Harold Stueck of Charlevoix was selected as the Chairman of this Council. The other members are as follows: John Veeter, Clarion; Juanita Baker, Boyne City; Mrs. Charles Withers, Charlevoix; Mrs. Robert Russell, Boyne Falls; Douglass Ross, Bay Shore; and Carleton Smith, Charlevoix.

Mr. A. G. Kettunen, State Club Leader and Miss Cylva Wixson, Assistant State Club Leader, were present and supervised the study hour, at which time two groups were formed, one interested in the boys' work and the other in the girls' program.

It is too early to make any announcement as to the number of clubs that will be organized this winter, but it is pretty safe to anticipate around 25 in the county.

Any communities that are interested in organizing a club are requested to get in touch with me as soon as possible. All boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 are urged to participate in this work.

Making Old Mohair Velvet Look New

F. F. Ansperger, of the Chicago Hash Company, showing Ruth Ray and Helen Hatch how to make Mohair Velvet or Velour upholstery look new by applying a damp cloth.

After prolonged use the mohair fibers in mohair velvet or velour upholstery may become incorrectly distributed, resulting in a "rubbed" appearance but this is quickly and easily removed. In the accompanying illustration F. F. Ansperger, car salesman for the Chicago Nash company, is explaining to Miss Ruth Ray, left, and Miss Hester Hatch, how a simple damp cloth may be made to look like new although it may have been in use for years.

A damp cloth is stretched over the upholstery as shown and allowed to dry. The moisture with the comb, recent dying affects the mohair fibers, the hairs of the Angora goat in such a way that they are lifted back to their original vertical position. This same result may be obtained by steaming the upholstery.

Some mohair velvet or velour as it is widely known is a pile fabric, that is, one in which the fibers are on end instead of lying flat as in the case with many other upholsteries, they are capable of withstanding long wear with little sign of serving. In many cases, mohair upholstery will outwear the automobile. It is costly high class, so silk covers are needed and it is comfortable.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER

A few reasons why government should keep out of business:

Because government in business opens the flood gates of public expenditures at the taxpayers' expense, many of the expenditures being for special services to a limited number of persons from which services the general taxpayer, who must pay for them, can derive no benefit.

It creates new classes of political agencies and gives them unlimited power to incur debts levy taxes and spend public money.

It discourages industry and prevents the investment of private capital in new enterprizes because a private citizen cannot compete with tax-free, government-owned projects.

It invites the worst kind of political gerrymandling for promotional schemes at public expense.

Each time the government goes into business, it removes taxable property from the tax rolls and loads the taxes thus lost onto remaining taxable property, plus additional taxes for new governmental ventures into the field of industry.

The question of the government in business in competition with its private citizens should be considered from the standpoint of the principle involved, rather than from the interest of any particular line of business. The business itself is incidental to the principle. If we subscribe to the theory that public ownership is good for any business, even in a small degree, we should be honest enough to go all the way and sanction complete public ownership and control of the means of production and distribution. We should not single out one line of business to stand the brunt of such unfair and killing competition.

Government competition might better apply to the local meat market, grocery store, or clothing store, than to ocean shipping, insurance, public utilities, railroads and banking, for it is much more important that the average family get the first three items at cost than it is that they get the latter items at cost.

THE FOREMOST ISSUE

At the recent American Bankers' Association convention, excessive taxation and public expenditures were the leading subjects presented by nationally prominent speakers.

It is literally amazing how many financial and industrial organizations are regarding the tax problem as the most important of all our difficulties at this time. We have reached a point in our affairs where the cost of government is becoming an impassable barrier in the way of the investment of capital, the development of industry,industry, the creation of estates, and the employment of labor. Money that once flowed into productive enterprise, which sorely needs new funds now, is either hoarded or invested in tax-free government bonds. Millions of American investors have found a real and personal meaning in the old saying that "the power to tax is the power to destroy."

We have seen what expanded governmental activities with their resulting influence on the tax bill, have done in England, Germany, Australia and lesser powers. The dole, which was created to aid the unemployed and the distressed, has had precisely the opposite effect—it has created more unemployment and more distress by stifling industry. So with the rest of those governmental jamanceas which have taken billions from the pockets of the taxpayers of the world. Whether America's tomorrow will be bright or clouded depends on what action we take in handling the tax problem now.

IS A RAILROAD A GOOD CITIZEN?

"The Great Northern sent a check Monday for its taxes. It was for $198,487. It is the biggest check for taxes annually received. It may always be depended upon. The Great Northern is never a delinquent taxpayer. Most of us never think of it as a citizen of this community. Few of us realize, until the matter is called to our attention, as in this case, what part it has in keeping things going hereabouts. It helps pay for our schools, roads and bridges, and takes care of our needy. It discharges all the duties of citizenship on the paying end with little complaint . . .

"We can afford to be most patient with all our railroads. They face conditions of change that are not yet fully or clearly developed. In them is invested a lot of the money of plain everyday people. What they mean in a community sense is perhaps best expressed for popular appreciation in a check for $198,487 in taxes.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

THE BEGINNING POINT OF A GREAT JOURNALIST

In this old house, still standing at East Poultney, Vt and reached via a side run from Rutland, Horace Greeley learned the printers trade.What he did after he had mastered the art of movable types is written large in the annals of American political history.

That will go a long way toward keeping schools open and cash in the treasury to pay the salaries of policemen, firemen, county officials and other public servants.

Thousands of American communities depend upon those railroad tax checks. What would happen to the small taxpayer if railroads were government owned and tax-exempt? His taxes would probably be so high he could not pay them.

TEACHER DIDN'T KNOW

Horace M. Albright, Director of the National Park Service, tells about the expulsion from school of a young girl in the middle west because she insisted that George Washington was born at Wakefield while the teacher said he was born at Mount Vernon. According to Mr. Albright the girl had visited Wakefield and Mt. Vernon, but that did not prevent her expulsion from being ratified by the school board.

The spick and span new mansion built on the site of the Washington birthplace at Wakefield is being furnished with authentic furniture of the Colonial period, much of it donated by people interested in saving original pieces. New but old-fashioned gardens have been designed and the lawns are unoffically kept. An ancient cedar grove nearly gives an old-time charm to the mansion which makes it easy to visualize the days of peace and plenty when Wakefield was a real home instead of decorative and an ideal as it is today.

SCHOOLBOY PATROLS FOR SAFETY

Four times a day more than 150,000 youngsters in 800 American communities guide their schoolmates in crossing dangerous street and highway intersections safely. These youngsters make up the "Schoolboy Patrols". Theirs is a commendable and important work. One of the fastest growing phases of child safety education, it is on credited with some of the best results. Statistics show that child pedestrian fatalities have decreased 25 per cent in the last four years.

These patrols are one of the finest means of protecting school children on their way to and from school, from street and highway accidents. Every schoolboy patrolman concentrates his attention on directing his classmates in crossing intersections at the proper time. He does not direct traffic, and is never in danger himself.

CUT OUR FIRE BILL

"Let's give the fireman a vacation."

That was a suggestion offered by a magazine published by the National Safety Council, in writing on Fire Prevention Week just passed. Let's hope it was well heeded. Now every citizen should do his best to see that the fire department continues on "vacation" during the balance of the year as well.

Last year we paid a fire bill of almost half a billion dollars. We've paid about the same bill for more years than one cares to count. For the most part, we refer to the fire loss as the "nation's loss"—as if it were a more or less remote matter, affecting other pocketbooks than ours.

Most of us, of course, suffered no fire during the year. But we contributed our share of the bill just the same. We paid it in higher insurance premiums than would otherwise have been necessary, in loss of business, in destroyed jobs, in ruined industries, in increased taxes, in lapse in community development. Every fire, no matter how large or small, damages all. None can escape it.

Let's do our share to cut the fire bill in conform to the rest of the cuts in the family budget.

TOYS ARE NECESSITIES

Toys and games are called an everyday childhood necessity, ranking with food and shelter, not just a pretty Christmas tradition, by the Child Play Welfare Association in a national-wide appeal to provide playthings for the children of the unemployed. "When Johnny begs for an electric train, building blocks or a wagon and Jane prays for a doll, a board game or a ball, they are really pleading for their educational opportunity, for protection against criminal influences," says Warden Lawes of Sing Sing, famous criminologist, who calls this donation of educational play equipment "the best influence against delinquency."

This drive for equal play opportunity deserves the whole-hearted support of every community. Today toys and games are no filmsy luxuries; they are strongly built, accident proof. Modern playthings are designed to develop children's mental, physical and manual potentialities to the fullest possible degree. Every child has a right to these benefits.

"Problem children," are bored, idle children. When carpentry tools, drawing and carving sets, playing school equipment, Tom Thumb house-keeping toys, velocipedes, skates, kites, musical instruments, modeling clay, boats, autos construction sets, tops, balls, board games, etc., divert youthful energy to educational play, the corner gang loses its recruits; the problem child becomes a good citizen.

LINCOLN OWNED A PATENT

One of the prize documents at the United States Patent Office is the original application of Abraham Lincoln all in his own handwriting, for a patent for some sort of contrivance to inflate bags to provide air pressure to raise boats out of the water.

Many people think that Lincoln excelled only as a rail-splitter in his early life, while as a matter of fact he was the handiest man in the "shipping business" the whole length of "the river."

That was years before he took up law and politics. C. A. O'Brien, Washington's famous patent attorney, says that a good patent has always proved to be the best piece of property in the world—and that it still is.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

TODAY, THURSDAY,
OCTOBER 27, IS NAVY DAY

It is also the anniversary of the day of the establishment of the American Navy by the Continental Congress in 1775.

Navy Day has been celebrated on this day each year for the past ten years under the sponsorship of the patriotic organizations of the country to honor the fine achievements and traditions of the Navy and to bring them to the attention of the general public.

But this year Navy Day has a particular significance. Navy Day is one of the important dates being celebrated in the Bi-Centennial Celebration. It is a day that has been set aside to pay tribute to the naval genius of our first President during the celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary year of his birth.

It is only fitting and proper that we pay on Navy Day a fitting tribute of reverence and respect to the Father of Our Country. For George Washington was a Navy Man, an important Navy Man. As a matter of fact George Washington can rightfully be called the Father of the American Navy.

Until recently historians have not sufficiently emphasized Washington's importance as a naval leader. It has only been in the last few years when historical experts of the United States George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission have been presenting all the fact of George Washington's life, and naval experts like Captain Dudley W. Knox, U. S. Navy, retired, have been re-evaluating the events of our history closely associated with the life of George Washington, that the real stature of George Washington as a naval leader has been set forth. Such competent and authoritative historians have come to the conclusion that George Washington was a naval genius.

Although Washington had no proficiency in naval technique—he admits this in his own handwritings—he saw, more clearly than any other naval or military officer participating in our Revolutionary War, the potentiality of a strong naval force. He saw the great advantages to be derived from military and naval cooperation in a joint operation. It is this conception, at a time when the importance of the joint use of the naval and military arms of a government was not realized, that stamps George Washington as a naval genius.

Congress appointed George Washington Commander-in-Chief of the American Army. Almost immediately he assumed the responsibility of "Admiral" of the American Navy.

At the siege of Boston in 1775 he saw the great advantage the British army was enjoying because of Britain's supremacy on the seas. He saw supply ships landing without opposition—supply ships which brought the necessities of war to the besieged British army. He was helpless to prevent the steady flow of British ships because he had no navy.

While Congress was deliberating ways and means to build a navy, Washington took matters into his own hands and began fitting out ships.

The first ship commissioned by George Washington was the "Hannah." This historic ship was out on the high seas but two days when it returned to port with its first prize. Soon Washington had a fleet of six vessels. These ships and privateers sent out under the supervision of the individual Colonies or privately, played havoc with British ships, diverting much needed ammunition and other supplies to the struggling Colonies.

A small American fleet on Lake Champlain, harrassing and delaying the British in their trip down the Hudson to join with Howe, who was coming up the river, was an important factor in the surrender of General Burgoyne's army at the battle of Saratoga. This battle has been called the "Decisive event of the war," because it showed Europe that America's cause was not hopeless and led to the French alliance.

This alliance with France meant men, money and ships for the Americans. It meant the hastening of the close of our war for independence. And the "navy" played an important and vital part in making this alliance a reality. With the arrival of the French fleet to our waters in July, 1778, Washington could demonstrate his naval genius. He became the supreme naval strategist.

He made his military movements depend on the French fleet. When French naval superiority was absent from our waters, Washington delayed military action and merely held his troops in readiness, waiting for the time when the French fleet would prove equal to the British.

Washington was unwilling to use Rochambeau's army until the fleet arrived to support the military movements and thus make victory decisive. He laid down the maxim: "In any operation, under all circumstances, a decisive naval superiority is to be considered as a fundamental principle, and the basis upon which every hope of success must ultimately depend."

We all know the story of the famous Yorktown campaign—a campaign where the Navy and Army cooperated to perfection. General Cornwallis was bottled up at Yorktown and had to surrender with his entire army. To all intents and purposes this campaign ended the war and brought peace to our land.

Washington, to a great measure, directed the naval end of the campaign. He pleaded, argued, and ordered until he had his way and we can see now how wise and how great he was in this historic campaign.

George Washington rightly takes his place as the first of a brilliant list of American Admirals and we must always remember that, even After the Revolutionary War, George Washington always tried to impress on the mind of the people the necessity and advisability of maintaining an adequate navy so that our rights on the high seas would be protected and our neutrality and liberties at home safeguarded.

George Washington is our greatest contributor to civilization. We, his descendants, can very well be proud of his achievements and of our country which produced him and of our Navy which today, even as in Washington's day is the nation's first line of defense.

Among those who will go north deer hunting this fall are those frisky old sports, Egbert Carpentes and M. J. Stuckman.

The matter of establishing a U. S. fish hatchery at Charlevoix has been settled and work will be commenced early in the spring. It will be located either in the life-saving station grounds, or on city property near the power house—just where has not yet been definitely determined.

Capt. Fountain and his crew of life-savers are continuing the splendid work of landscape improvement down at the station grounds. The hill is being terraced and sodded, and the trees and shrubbery cleaned out. Next summer Capt. Fountain hopes to complete the work, and it will be a credit to him, the village and the government.

Shades of King Strang! Just think of it: a railroad on Beaver Island! Imagine the Hotel Beaver porter shouting "All aboard for Lake Geneseret!" or "Train for Mount Pisgah!" Yet that is what is proposed by a Chicago firm which has large land holdings there from which the timber has not been cut. Last week this concern bought out W. F. Gill's sawmill plant and will build a narrow-gauge railroad from the mill ten miles up the Island. This means much more than a lumbering project. The timber is mostly hardwood with some cedar, covering good farming lands. It means the enlargement of agricultural interests and a general and permanent development of the Island. And that in turn, means larger lumbering interests on the adjacent islands, which contain much valuable timber. It looks like a period of industrial activity at "the Beavers!"

In the matter of the water-works well job we believe the council has done the best they could; but as this writing nothing has been accomplished, although pumps will be ready to fill the mains the last of this week. The council committee have made three contracts, and up to date the only results reached have been one balloon ascension and a masquerade ball. If the present fair weather continues, we hope to yet have a punch and judy entertainment and a tight-rope walk.

The exercises on Columbus Day under the management of Prof. H. M. Enos and the cooperation of Baxter Post, G. A. R. was successfully carried out. The program adopted throughout the United States was that submitted by the Youth's Companion, and nothing could have been more appropriate. The school children were massed fronting the school building, flanked by the veterans. At a given signal the flag was raised by Comrade Stockman. As it reached the peak, the pupils came to a salute, repeating the following: "I pledge my allegiance to my flag, and the Republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, liberty and justice for all."

A grand sentiment and one that the girls and boys should cherish in their hearts! "Old Glory" was given three cheers by the veterans, who, on many a bloody field have proven that it is worth fighting for, and, if need be, dying for. Rev. Mr. MacPherson gave a scripture reading from the Psalms, and the school sang appropriate music. Then the cannon boomed a salute in honor of the occasion, and of the flag, proudly floating from the tower.

Capt. Walter Clifford, 7th Infantry U. S. Army, arrived in town from Fort Pembina on Monday, and is quartered with his brother, W. C. Newman. Capt. Clifford is at home in Charlevoix, where he has been well known for many years, having spent a three year sick leave here several years ago. Capt. Clifford's visit here will take up the whole of this week, when he will leave for Washington, on business connected with the introduction of his patent campstove into the army. He has sixty days leave of absence.

W. C. Mears, of Banks, well known to Charlevoix as a musician and teacher of experience, has been secured by Rev. G. Daniels, to give the M. E. Sabbath school of this place, a course of instruction in music the coming winter, commencing in November. In addition to the regular course of instruction he will produce, at Christmas, with the school and such singers, the celebrated cantata of "Santa Claus". Mr. Mears has produced this cantata in Vermontville and Nashville, Mich., with great success in both places. It is a beautiful thing, and will serve both to stimulate interest in the Sabbath School and develop much slumbering talent among our little folks.

Charlevoix may well boast of the intellectuality of her people. No town of its size in Michigan has more or better societies having for their purpose the intellectual development of their members than Charlevoix. Her Historical Society has come to be an institution embracing the best people of Charlevoix, a membership in which constitutes an honor to anybody. The Liberal Club has come to be an institutuon in the village, firmly established and prosperous. Now a Shakespearean Club is to be organized and having the type of Charlevoix intellectuality as we do, we can safely predict for it perpetuity no less certain than its sister societies. We say we are proud of the side of Charlevoix life, and we say it not without reason.

Active search has been instituted for the recovery of the body of F. J. Kiser, who was drowned on the 17th. A pass book, and several other articles which were identified as his were found on the beach about a mile and a half above Little Island, which indicated the whereabouts of the body. A force of nine men now patrol the beach at that point.

Joke.—We do not sanction the perpetration of jokes at the expense of the departed, but the following, which is too good to keep, will be laughable only to those who knew the subject of the pun. Making Old Mohair Velvet Look New

F. F. Knoerzer, of the Chicago Hash Company, showing Ruth Ray and Helen Hatch how to make Mohair Velvet or Velour upholstery look new by applying a damp cloth.

After prolonged use, the mohair fibres in mohair velvet or velour upholstery may become temporarily flattened down, resulting in a "rubbed" appearance but this is quickly and easily removed. In the accompanying illustration F. F. Knoerzer, star salesman for the Chicago Hash company is explaining to Miss Ruth Ray, left, and Miss Hester Hatch, how a suitable damp cloth may be used to look the new although it may have been in use for years.

A damp cloth is stretched over the upholstery as shown and allowed to dry. The moisture will fix those almost dying effects the mohair fibers, the hairs of the Angora goat, to such a way that they are lifted back to their original vertical position. This same result may be obtained by steaming the upholstery.

Since mohair velvet or velour as it is fit is widely known is a pile fabric that is one in which the fibers are on end instead of lying flat as is the case with many other upholsteries they are capable of withstanding long wear with little sign of service. In many cases, mohair upholstery will outlast the automobile. It is easily kept clean, no oily creams are needed and it is comfortable.

The Board of Supervisors at their recent session appropriated $100 to assist the township of Eveline in the construction of a scow to be used as a ferry to cross the mouth of South Arm with teams. They propose to have it 30 feet in length by 12 feet in width. This is an article much needed by the people of that vicinity.

L. D. Bartholomew, Esq., the purchaser of the Lincoln property, arrived last week and took possession. He is erecting a commodious addition. Mr. B. is interested in a nursery for the growing of fruit trees, and he tells us that he will soon be in receipt of a large variety of all kinds. He will also take orders for spring delivery. We welcome Mr. B. among us and extend our well wishes.

The Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County met at the County Clerk's office, in the Village of Charlevoix, at 1 p. m.

On motion James A. Keat of South Arm, was elected Chairman of the ensuing year.

On the roll being called, the several townships were found to be represented as follows:

Charlevoix, Alanson G. Aldrich; Evangeline, Geo. W. Hunt; Eveline, Nathan Jarman; Marion, John Newman; South Arm, James A. Keat; Norwood, Fred J. Meech.

COUNTY WIDE 4-H CLUB COUNCIL SELECTED AT CLUB MEETING

The recent 4-H Club Leaders Training Meeting held in Mont's Restaurant, Charlevoix, last Thursday night, was attended by representatives from all sections of the county. A splendid banquet was enjoyed at 6:30 followed by songs and recreation.

During the discussion on plans and preparations for a highly successful 4-H Club season, everyone seemed to believe that a county-wide 4-H Club Council would be of great assistance. This Council will confer with the County Agricultural Agent and will consist of representatives from different sections of the county. With this arrangement a representative would be in direct contact with all club activities.

Mrs. Harold Stueck of Charlevoix was selected as the Chairman of this Council. The other members are as follows: John Vester, Charlton; Juanita Baker, Boyne City; Mrs. Charles Withers, Charlevoix; Miss Robert Russell, Boyne Falls; Douglass Rose, Bay Shore; and Carleton Smith, Charlevoix.

Mr. A. G. Kettunen, State Club Leader and Miss Cylva Winsor, Assistant State Club Leader, were present and supervised the study hour, at which time two groups were formed, one interested in the boys' work and the other in the girls' program.

It is too early to make any announcement as to the number of clubs that will be organized this winter, but it is pretty safe to anticipate about 25 in the county.

Any communities that are interested in organizing a club are requested to get in touch with us as soon as possible. All boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 are urged to participate in this work.

H. C. Mollenkamp, Co. Agr. Agt.

Mrs. Jas. Simmons attended an executive meeting of the District W. C. T. U. at Bellaire last Friday.

Rigid enforcement of fire laws, rules, regulations and cooperation in controlling flash conflagrations on the part of the 60 operators in advance of the season has marked Michigan Department of Conservation's determination.

A fitness fine starting in the fields in Midland County was just a step away from the work program of game, fish and forest protection, conservation officials said, and each year new precautions by citizens have become a matter of habit and less and less planned away needs action.

The Conservation Service and Field Administrative Divisions of the Conservation Department have been concentrating forces this fall particularly in the vicinity of the oil fields and no pains have been omitted to save each acre from fire. Each farm, built and other safety measures completed were

"Probation after Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, October 23.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Mark 16:9) "Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p.46) "The Master said plainly that physique was not Spirit, and after his resurrection he proved to the physical senses that his body was not changed until he himself ascended—or, in other words, rose even higher in the understanding of Spirit, God."

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Our Faculty

Each week the news staff has arranged to acquaint the public with a few brief facts concerning the members of the faculty. This week the following teachers have been interviewed:

Miss French—Principal of grades, kindergarten teacher.

Mr. Magoon—Band leader and Junior High Mathematics instructor.

Miss Atkinson—Music Instructor.

Mr. Bingham—Principal of Junior High and teacher of History and Civics.

Miss Helen French, Elementary Principal, and Kindergarten Instructor, received her education at Western State Teacher's College, Kalamazoo, where she obtained her life certificate. Her first year of teaching was spent in Souix, Michigan. This was followed by her employment at Charlevoix Elementary School where she has been for the last six years. Aside from her duties with the beginning students and her work as principal, Miss French has on several occasions given musical selections to very appreciative audiences. Dealing with the younger children calls for a very pleasing personality which Miss French possesses.

Mr. Magoon—U. S. band leader and Math teacher in the Junior High School is a graduate of the University of Illinois. He specialized in Mathematics and Music and possesses a Bachelor of Science Degree. Mr. Magoo has played under Victor Herbert, well known bandmaster and under Bohumier Kryl. He has studied under Lewellan, trumpeter in the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, also under Ernest Pitchen. Mr. Magoo has been a member of the Chicago Russian Symphony Orchestra and has played in the concert band where he went to school.

Among the various places that Mr. Magoo has taught are: Conn National School of Music, Chicago; Lockyear's Business College, Evansville, Indiana; Western Normal, Kalamazoo; Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Illinois; Lyon and Healy, Chicago; Lewellan, Elmhurst, Western Springs, La Grange, Lombard, all of Illinois.

Miss Atkinson's early college days were spent at Taylor University. Her advanced work has been at Northwestern, and at the University of Michigan. While in college she did much concert work, some writing in music and also assisted in teaching piano lessons. She has won various musical contests—two that are of special interest are the Skinner Prize and first place as representative of the Literary Society.

For the last several summers Miss Atkinson has traveled with the Concert Quartette which has been heard over the radio. She has taught at Vault Detroit and at Decatur, Michigan. While at the latter place, her orchestra took first place in the state. This is Miss Atkinson's fourth year of teaching. Besides the piano, she is trained to play the violin and the pipe organ. It will be remembered that Miss Atkinson was a chaperone at the National Music Supervisors Conference last year.

Mr. Bingham is a graduate of the University of Michigan where he received his life certificate and his A. B. degree. After graduating from high school he spent the summer at Western State Normal and the next winter was a teacher in a rural school. His next school was in Caledonia, Michigan, where he remained four years. This was followed by a period of traveling out west in California, Oregon, Washington. He spent the winter of 1927-28 in California.

Five years ago Mr. Bingham came to Charlevoix where he has been employed in the Junior High School. Last summer after spending a short time in Washington, D. C. he attended summer school at the University of Michigan.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education it was voted to apply for State and Federal aid for the home economics department. This means that the department will be organized in conformance with the state plan for vocational home economics education. The current school year will be considered as the preliminary year required and reimbursement will be made at the end of the 1932-33 session, provided all requirements are met by the local school. Under Miss Koch's direction the department has already been reorganized in the direction of comprehensive and practical home making courses.

The High School students are looking forward to a very interesting speech to be given this Friday by Sergeant York, who was one of the greatest heroes of the World War.

The Chemistry class has obtained a storage battery from the Manual Arts Dept. and are making several experiments on electrolysis.

Home Economics Club Organized

After a most enjoyable hike and supper on the beach Monday evening, October 17, a Home Economics club was organized. Any girl who has been or is at the present time in one of the Home Economics classes, is welcomed to membership in the club.

Beverly Lookot was elected president; Monica McHugh, vice president; Mary Novotny, secretary, Olive Earle, Treasurer.

Plans for the year were discussed and committees appointed to work out details.

Manual Arts

Of special interest in the Manual Arts Department has been the cutting of colored flower pots and ten pot stands. Also a number of floating screens are being made for the Home Economics room as a part of the cooperative work being done with the other departments of the school.

History and Civics

Both the World and American History Classes are writing letters to students in foreign lands. They have the address of young people living in Australia, Canada, England, Norway, India, The South Natal States, Paraguay, France and Holland.

The civics class will conduct the voting for Class officers which will be held Wednesday of this week.

Candidates for the various classes and their offices are:

Seniors—President, Dorothy Stalley, Margaret McCain, Winifield Kitsko.

Secretary and Treasurer, Margaret Carey, Virginia Taylor, Edwin McCann.

Juniors—President, Byrnece Lamphear, Christian Hansen, Marguerite Chew.

Vice president—Marquis Boen, Elsie Rumenick.

Secretary and Treasurer, George McKenzie, Bonnie Meggison, Marjorie Partridge, Bernard Foster.

Vice president, Keith Nickerson, Marie Novak.

Treasurer, Marie Ikens, Bob Zeller, Marie Hansen.

Music

December 16, Junior High Operetta.

February 17, Senior High Operetta.

April 21, Grand Operetta.

It is hoped a large number will plan to attend these entertainments.

The Music classes as well as the high school students greatly appreciate the new chairs in the music and reading rooms.

Athletics

Although the Charlevoix team put up a hard fight Saturday they came out at the low end of the score. During the first half the home team outplayed Boyne City, making more first downs and stopping Boyne's offensive play. At the beginning of the second half the opponents substituted a few new players, but Charlevoix held until late in the third and fourth quarters, when Boyne began to score.

Next Saturday Charlevoix plays Harbor Springs on the home field. A big crowd of students and towns people will be there, and the Seniors will have enough bamburgs and candy for all!

Pep Meeting and Dance

At 7:30 Friday night the football field was crowded with students and town people who came to watch the outburst of enthusiasm in a new kind of a pep meeting. A huge bonfire was lit, the band played, and cheer after cheer arose to the "Red and White." The football boys led by a snake dance which came to an end at the athletic field where they encircled the bonfire and gave the school yell.

Following the pep meeting a dance was held in the gymnasium. Music was furnished by the school orchestra. Refreshments were served by the Girl Reserves.

Plans for the year were discussed and committees appointed to work out details.

Manual Arts

Of special interest in the Manual Arts Department has been the cutting of colored flower pots and ten pot stands. Also a number of floating screens are being made for the Home Economics room as a part of the cooperative work being done with the other departments of the school.

History and Civics

Both the World and American History Classes are writing letters to students in foreign lands. They have the address of young people living in Australia, Canada, England, Norway, India, The South Natal States, Paraguay, France and Holland.

The civics class will conduct the voting for Class officers which will be held Wednesday of this week.

Candidates for the various classes and their offices are:

Seniors—President, Dorothy Stalley, Margaret McCain, Winifield Kitsko.

Secretary and Treasurer, Margaret Carey, Virginia Taylor, Edwin McCann.

Juniors—President, Byrnece Lamphear, Christian Hansen, Marguerite Chew.

Vice president—Marquis Boen, Elsie Rumenick.

Secretary and Treasurer, George McKenzie, Bonnie Meggison, Marjorie Partridge, Bernard Foster.

Vice president, Keith Nickerson, Marie Novak.

Treasurer, Marie Ikens, Bob Zeller, Marie Hansen.

Music

December 16, Junior High Operetta.

February 17, Senior High Operetta.

April 21, Grand Operetta.

It is hoped a large number will plan to attend these entertainments.

The Music classes as well as the high school students greatly appreciate the new chairs in the music and reading rooms.

Athletics

Although the Charlevoix team put up a hard fight Saturday they came out at the low end of the score. During the first half the home team outplayed Boyne City, making more first downs and stopping Boyne's offensive play. At the beginning of the second half the opponents substituted a few new players, but Charlevoix held until late in the third and fourth quarters, when Boyne began to score.

Next Saturday Charlevoix plays Harbor Springs on the home field. A big crowd of students and towns people will be there, and the Seniors will have enough bamburgs and candy for all!

Pep Meeting and Dance

At 7:30 Friday night the football field was crowded with students and town people who came to watch the outburst of enthusiasm in a new kind of a pep meeting. A huge bonfire was lit, the band played, and cheer after cheer arose to the "Red and White." The football boys led by a snake dance which came to an end at the athletic field where they encircled the bonfire and gave the school yell.

Following the pep meeting a dance was held in the gymnasium. Music was furnished by the school orchestra. Refreshments were served by the Girl Reserves.

Junior High News

Additional members of the Junior High School Honor Roll for the first month are Gordon Cummings of the ninth grade and Marjorie Miller of the eighth grade.

Honor Point System: "In the belief that many others will be called Life contribute to the development of the members of the school community, it is felt that a plan may be devised which will aid students to realize that other places do make valuable contributions. This will be used during the third month of school. The Student Council will have general supervision of the plan, and all minor adjustments and changes as needs appear. At the end of each school month an alphabetical list of all students in the Junior High School will appear on the Bulletin Board. Beside the names, a series of columns will be drawn. These columns will represent the school months. The ranking of each student will appear beside his name.

A special list of those who rank highest in the entire Junior High School will appear also. Twenty names will be included in the list.

Grade News

Sixth grade—Each of the pupils have chosen an animal to represent and they are going to read all they can about that animal. For Art they are going to carve their animal from ivory soap or draw it on pasteboard. Some of the pupils however are going to do both.

The sixth grade is trying to do away with tardy marks.

Vernice Holland is getting a group ready for a Halloween party. She is going to give it before the fifth grade on Friday.

Fifth grade—The fifth grade are studying the Western States in Geography. The pupils are gathering pictures, representing these states and also making outline booklets.

Fourth grade—The pupils are busy gathering cocoons. They have several in their room now and study and watch them every day.

Third grade—The pupils are studying seeds, their means of transplantation and their use. The pupils are bringing seeds to school. Also seed booklets are in progress.

The third grade have been studying Hoover and Roosevelt in their Weekly Reader. A straw vote was taken and Hoover won by five votes.

The students in Miss Fargo's room have been feeding horses for stray kittens this fall. The children bring milk and fish to school to feed the kitten. They have one in their room now which they are feeding and trying to make a little larger before giving it away. This kitten is black with a white star under its chin, and the class have named it Ebenezer.

PRESENTING AMENDMENTS

TO BE VOTED ON NEXT TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8TH

There will be submitted to the electors, at the General Election to be held on Tuesday, November 8, 1932, the following proposed amendments to the Constitution of this state and referendum on Act 88, P. A. 1931, being an Act to regulate the manufacture, etc., of oleomargerine, etc.

(Proposal No. 1)

The proposed amendment to Article XVI, Section 11, is as follows:

"Section 11. The legislature may by law establish a liquor control commission, who, subject to statutory limitations, shall exercise complete control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, including the retail sales thereof; and the legislature may also provide for an excise tax on such sales: Providing, however, that neither the legislature nor such commission may authorize the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages in any county in which the electors thereof, by a majority vote, shall prohibit the same."

(Proposal No. 2)

The proposed amendment to Article X, by adding Section 21, is as follows:

"Section 21. The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed one and one-half per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be specifically assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed five years at any one time, to not more than a total of five percent of the assessed valuation, by two-thirds vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation. Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932."

(Proposal No. 3)

The proposed amendment to Article V, Sections 2, 3 and 4, is as follows:

"Section 2. The senate shall consist of thirty-two members elected by (Continued on second page)

ANNOUNCEMENT OF STICKER CANDIDATE MADE

Announcement has been made that Rollie L. Lewis, defeated candidate for nomination for Prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket at the primary election, will be a sticker candidate for the office November 8th.

The announcement comes from Mr. Lewis and his name is attached to the announcement. Therefore it can reasonably be assumed that he is taking the matter seriously, and that he is anxious to continue to receive the salary attached to the office for another term of two years.

At the August primary Mr. Lewis received only 1152 votes out of a total of 3862 votes cast. This indicates that a large majority of electors in Charlevoix County did not feel like continuing him as an official.

One of several reasons for the attitude taken by the electors at the primary was the excessive expense created throughout the administration of Mr. Lewis. They were firmly convinced that good judgment on his part would have eliminated the commitment of many cases, such as cost taxpayers large sums of money and this, too, without beneficial results.

There has been cases where officials have been sent far and to distant states for a class of alleged offenders whose absence from Charlevoix county was satisfactory and desirable, for whose appreciation few if any of our citizens would have spent a single penny of the taxpayers money for their return, due to so many acquittals of offenders.

The claim is also advanced by many citizens that during Mr. Lewis' term of office that county affairs have been practically in constant turmoil, resulting in interference with business such as has cost the taxpayers large sums of money. That good judgment on the part of Mr. Lewis would have eliminated this expense is fully believed by many who are called upon to foot the bills; thereby reducing our already high tax rate perceptibly.

Mr. Fitch was nominated by an unprecedented declaive majority by the electors at the September primary. His previous record for economy and judgment in an official capacity is well known and this had much to do with the exceptional vote given and tabulated for him at the close of primary election.

The taxpayers are concerned and justly so, over the excessive burden imposed by way of taxes and feel that large sums of money can be saved yearly by a judicious effort, rather than through the creation of many needless expenditures of public funds, more, they are concerned about such extraordinary expenses for which they express their disapproval.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Since the Primary Election residents from every city and township in the County have called upon me with the request that I run on slips for Prosecuting Attorney.

For weeks I have discouraged this action.

Since the October meeting of the Board of Supervisors the demand has increased and today I have consented to become a candidate.

The Citizens of Charlevoix County making this request of me will see that every voter is provised with slips.

I ask your careful consideration of my candidacy.

Sincerely yours,
ROLLIE L. LEWIS

2881

Mr. and Mrs. Al Ulrich, after spending some days with relatives at Elkhart, Indiana, returned last Saturday.

The Methodist Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. C. Hansen Wednesday, November 9th at 2:30. This will be the thank-offering meeting.

STERLING NICKERSON CAPTURES PRIZE AT HALLOWEEN PARTY

Sterling Nickerson, one of the contestants in the Halloween Jack O' Lantern program party at Traverse City last Saturday night captured one of the prizes offered by the committee in charge of the event.

Betty Kelsch of Suttons Bay in Leelanau county, whose jack o'lantern wore a laugh from ear to ear and showed a fine set of pumpkin teeth, won the $10 first prize in the Jack O'-lantern contest.

In the football game played as part of the Halloween celebration, Traverse City high school defeated Manistee, 6 to 0.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR JOHN H. WILLIAMS

Funeral service was held Monday afternoon at the Baptist Church, for Mr. John Henry Williams who passed away at the U. of M. hospital, Ann Arbor, last Friday, where he was taken for treatment a few days earlier.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams and was born at East Jordan August 2, 1909. He was a graduate of Charlevoix High School, class of 1928, and later took an extended trip through the western states, returning from the west coast only a few weeks ago.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Albert Edwards of Charlevoix and Miss Susie Williams of Detroit and one brother, Joe Williams also of Charlevoix.

Rev. W. H. Rauch of the Baptist Church officiated at the funeral service. Interment at Brookside.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown to us in our recent deep bereavement, the loss of a kind, loving husband and father and our appreciation to those who assisted at the funeral service.

Mrs. Nelson Lindley.
Mrs. Margery Lindley Peterson
Mrs. Lyrtle Lindley Volz
Mable LaVerne Lindley.

BOYS' CLUB ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Edmund Bogart entertained the Boys' Club of the Methodist Church with an excellent supper last Thursday evening, with twenty-four of the club members in attendance out of a total membership of twenty-nine. Appropriate Halloween decorations added materially to the appearance of the scene. The meeting was an annual function at which officers for the ensuing term were elected as follows: President, Warren Shapton; vice president, Harold Chew; secretary, Herman Meyers; treasurer, George Richardson.

This was followed by a business session under the supervision of Rev. W. Hurd, pastor of the Methodist society. The effort of Mrs. William Pool in conducting and teaching the boys was praiseworthy and came in for special commendation and the fact that sixteen of the lads in attendance were sixteen years old was pleasing to her. Mrs. R. F. McDonald of East Jordan was present at the meeting and assisted Mr. Bogart in her part of the program.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our appreciation to neighbors, friends and the local public for their sympathetic expressions and kindly helpfulness in our bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards,
Susie Williams, Joe Williams.

Mrs. Walter Alexander and her daughter Peggy, Mrs. R. O. Cram, Mrs. Miles Olmstead and Mrs. Lee Carey, drove to Flint Wednesday. From Flint they go to Detroit for a visit of ten days with relatives and friends.

P. J. Bartholomew entered Charlevoix hospital for treatment and a minor operation last Saturday.

REPUBLICANS STAGE RALLIES

ONE AT EAST JORDAN AND FINAL HERE NOVEMBER 7TH

Two political meetings are scheduled by the Republican County Committee one to be held at East Jordan Friday (tomorrow) night at which Superintendent Gerald Bush will talk on National Politics, Mr. John Lake on State politics and Attorney J. M. Harris will deliver an address taking for his subject the recent Republican State convention held in Detroit.

Monday night, November 7th, the second meeting will be held in Charlevoix at the high school gym with Hon. Glenn Dunn of Muskegon as the principal speaker, taking National politics as his subject. Mr. Dunn is a forceful speaker, therefore the crowd attending will bear an address extraordinary. Other speakers will address the meeting but at this writing the committee have not decimed as to how many or who will speak. However the committee state that such speakers will be men of state wide prominence.

Music for the Charlevoix meeting will be furnished by the Boyne City and East Jordan bands.

"SHO-TAUQUA" TO PRESENT VARIED ENTERTAINMENT

Who ever conceived the idea of Sho-tauqua surely knows his show business. Mixing circus clowns with concert artists and blending them into 100 per cent entertainment, is an artful understanding of the psychology of amusement. In naming them the Merry Makers he gave them a very he-flitting title because they have the clever faculty of keeping their audience in a merry mood—and who does not enjoy a good laugh? The Legion is fortunate in securing this happy combination for their welfare benefit. The entertainment will be held in the gymnasium the evening of November 16th. Admission 10 and 20c.

The first of a series of seminar's on the general theme "The Modern Message of Christianity" will be held in Manistee next Monday. Rev. G. R. Parker who is a member of the state conference committee on evangelism will attend. Rev. B. G. Mattson who was pastor of the local church from 1925 to 1930 will appear on the program.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid will meet with Miss Blair, 203 Clinton St.'net, Tuesday afternoon, November 8 at the Tea Garden.

Mrs. Geo. L. Warner and Miss Caroline Smith, returned to Chicago Saturday, after spending months at their summer home on the Belvedere grounds.

Mrs. George Tramel closed her Belvedere.—tage last week and Friday, and returned to Chicago after a stay here for several months.

Mr. Eddie Gallagher of St. James was here Friday and Saturday on business.

Mrs. Maggie Sharrow, son Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Sharrow drove to Ypsilanti Saturday, returning home early this week.

Captain W. C. Taylor and wife started out on a motor trip with Miami, Florida, their destination, where they will spend the winter months, Tuesday.

Mrs. Willis and Mrs. McCartney will entertain the Pilgrim Circle next Wednesday at Mrs. McCartney's, 304 Bluff. Cooperative dinner at 1 p. m.

This evening—Thursday—at 8 p. m. the Community Players present "My Michigan," a pageant, at the Gym. Admission free, offering for community welfare work.

DEER KILLED LAST NIGHT BY AUTOMOBILE ON ELMIRA HILL

Conservation Officer Ed Buell of Boyne Falls was here this morning and had with him a young doe killed by a motorist on Elmira hill last night. The doe jumped in front of the automobile, the crash killing the deer outright and wrecking the machine to some considerable extent particularly the front end of the car, where lights were smashed, radiator damaged and fenders driven out of shape by the impact. The driver escaped serious injury. Mr. Buell was taking the carcass to the county infirmary where the venison will be served to the inmates of the institution.

PRIZES AWARDED AT "MYSTERY PARTY"

Prizes for the best costumes seen at the Mystery Party given by the Epworth League last Friday evening were awarded as follows:

Prettiest costume—Marion Tuby (Southern belle of 1860)

Spookiest costume—Vernice Holland (witch).

Most interesting—Wilbur Roberts son (devil—modern style).

Funniest costume—Billy House (half boy, half-girl).

Most preparation—Patty Myers (spirit of Halloween).

Best disguise—Helena Isaakson (Harpo Marx).

Ingham and Harold Isaakson deserve honorable mention, as both had splendid costumes, although neither won first place under the above grouping. Mrs. George Brown, Miss Doris Trumble, and Mr. Chester Buddy, who acted as judges, received a general acknowledgement of approval, as their decisions were in sympathy with the feelings of the crowd. The cash prizes were well spread out, two Methodists, two Baptists, one Congregationalist and one out-of-town visitor being the winners.

An Initiation Committee, headed by Wayne Bolding, welcomed the guests in true Halloween style, after which the visitors were glad to be led into the cleverly decorated banquet hall of the M. E. Church. The center of attraction here was the imitation bonfire which flashed and flickered in realistic style. Fortune telling by Marjorie Newman, Dorothy Pedersen, and the Mystery Wheel started off the program, after which the guests enjoyed themselves with Mystery Puzzles, Songs, and group games were followed by a Mind-Reading Act by Clarence Arnold. Then came the decoding of best costumes. After this ghost stories by Dorothy Staley and Harold Newman kept the crowd interested until 10 p. m. when refreshments were served to approximately 75 young folks.

Credit for the general management of the affair should go to the League's Social Committee: Doris Trimble, Clarence Arnold, Harold Newman.

LITERARY SOCIETY MEETS

The Literary Society of the M. E. Church met with Mrs. Clarence J. Withers, 104 West Hurlbut Avenue, this afternoon. Judge E. A. Rosegrey will attend the meeting and will explain each of the several amendments upon which electors will be privileged to vote at the General election Tuesday, November 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Cram accompanied by Mrs. Eva Hanshew motored to Flint last Thursday for a visit over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Cram returned Sunday, Mrs. Hanshew remaining with her daughter, Mrs. V. O. Cram for the winter.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. R. Gervers and Miss Dorothy Ziegler were Charlevoix visitors Tuesday.

Monday, November 7 is the date when Dr. Leahy the Optometrist will

TIME TO ACT

In times of depression, businesses and individuals retrench. The tendency of governments seems the other way. Between 1903 and 1928, inclusive, cost of government (local, state and national) increased 443 per cent—from $19.30 to $105.20 per capita. This year it is a good deal higher. The first $38,000,000 earned by the taxpayers of the country EACH WORKING DAY in the year must be turned over to government.

Without belittling the services of government, it must be admitted that it is setting new records in inefficiency. The bureaucrat taps every pocketbook. Waste, duplication of effort, unnecessary activities, overlapping of departments a vast army of employees—these things must be eliminated if tax burdens are to be lowered. Some of the greatest extravagances can be found in almost every taxpayer's local government.

A decrease in cost of government would do more than anything else to help industrial recovery. It is time to act.

SUICIDAL CHANCES

Accounts of suicides usually indicate a preference for the quickest and easiest way out of life. An exception comes from Cuba in a recent report stating that 65 girls, from 16 to 23 years of age, committed suicide in Havana during a three-week period because they were disappointed in believe or tired of living. Each soaked her clothing with alcohol and applied a match, choosing this painful death in accordance with a historic Cuban tradition. What a way to die!

America's response is that she has no such tradition. Perhaps a Cuban would conclude, however, that many of our citizens take suicidal chances with fire, when he reads that 10,000 persons are killed by fire annually and as many more are injured.

Americans take chances with fire by permitting faulty construction of hollow walls, unsafe chimneys, heating plants and roofs, and by neglecting rubbish. Factories and business buildings contain unnecessary electrical hazards, hazardous manufacturing processes, and lack sprinkler systems. The remedies for these hazards are often simple. In fact, it is difficult to visualize a fire that could not have been prevented had correct conditions been maintained—conditions that would at least retard the spread of fire, holding it in check until the firemen could arrive.

Perhaps we will no longer take "suicidal chances" with fire when fully informed on this subject. It is the duty of those who know to spread the information.

STRENGTHENING GOOD WILL

Professional pacifism constantly endeavors to discredit the motives animating the defense forces created and controlled by governmental authority. The extreme peace at any price advocate regards our skeletonized army and navy as a menacing threat against the peace of the world, requiring other nations to maintain huge military and naval establishments.

The pacifist, in his frenzy to restrict the efficacy of measures for national peace and security, ignores the many peaceful services rendered the nation by the armed branches of our government. The historic duty performed by the army in the settlement of all the states west of the Atlantic seaboard, developing railroads and highways, perfecting methods of sanitation and the control of plagues, welfare and relief work in times of devastation by fire, flood and earthquake—all these humanitarian services benefiting the people of the land are quite overlooked by the "peace" propagandist.

Demonstrations of friendly good will rather than exhibitions of impotence and craven surrender, create enduring respect and international amity. Such an occasion transpired recently when Major General Frank Parker, commanding the 6th Corps Area, presented a British flag to Canadian authorities at Sault Ste. Marie to replace one captured during the War of 1812 in making the presentation General Parker expressed sentiments shared in by everyone privileged to wear the uniform of his country. General Parker's point of view—frank, devoid of the ambiguity apparent in elaborately staged international conferences designed to promote world peace, and expressing the straightforwardness of the soldier sincerely devoted to his country's interests—deserves adoption by every loyal citizen.

It is our firm conviction that the genuine regard held by men of our nation's uniformed forces, for the motives, rights and privileges of soldiers of other countries, demonstrated by friendly respect and courteous intercourse, builds far more substantial and enduring international good will than all the virtuous oratory and fatuous pamphleteering being imposed upon a distracted world by pacifism.—National Defense Magazine.

UNCLE SAM—RETAILER!

One enterprising business man has been thriving right through the worst of the crisis. He has enlarged the scope of his operations constantly. His methods have been ruthless at times, and many are the victims of his progress.

This business man is none other than your Uncle Sam. He is not particular about what line of business he goes into, or the exact form of merchandising or manufacturing he undertakes. If you need a new tire for your car, at near cost price, try the battleship Idaho. You'll find you can get a very good price on a set of spark plugs from the same ship's store. Or if you make your own gin, rum or whiskey, Uncle Sam will be glad to purvey the proper flavoring extracts.

There is no detailed record of all the ramified commercial activities through which the United States government competes with its own citizens. It runs restaurants, hotels, ice plants, dry cleaning and dyeing plants and printing plants. It manufactures clothing, deals in cotton, wheat and wool, makes helium, operates laundries, manufactures paint. Through various army posts, navy yard stores and cooperative enterprises, it is possible to purchase from Uncle Sam the merchant, almost any conceivable article from a can of crab flake salad to a haircut. At this time no estimate can be made of the volume of business carried on nor can there be a good guess as to the extent of manufacturing operations. It has, however, been a rapidly growing menace to private initiative during the past few years.

The thinking business man, unaffected by this competition directly, may well ask himself why such a situation is allowed to exist. The reason is foritis. The end will be only when the government of the United States ceases entirely to take opportunity away from its own citizens.—Nation's Business.

AMERICAN POSSIBILITIES

Few traders who believe that Uncle Sam build buy abroad and sell abroad and that true prosperity will come from turning over our home market which uses over ninety per cent of ar production to the foreign producers in exchange for a market which absorbs less than en per cent of our production, will not be very much pleased by the recent statement of Dr. Henry Arnstein, eminent chemical and mechanical engineer of Philadelphia.

In an address before the convention of the American Association of Engineers in Washington the other day Dr. Arnstein declared that eighty-five per cent of the two billion dollars worth of commodities imported by this country could be produced in the United States thereby creating wealth and employment for Americans.

Declaring that the American engineer has been "inactive in developing the country's national resources to create wealth and employment" while foreign engineers are doing everything possible to develop this field, Dr. Arnstein urged widespread teaching of the use of native-grown and native-produced products for the "development of America's natural resources and for the benefit of the citizens of this country."

The speaker, who is well known for his processes of producing alcohol from waste products and the utilization of it for motor fuel, told the engineers that a cure for the diseased economic condition of the country lay with them.

"We must teach the American farmer and the American manufacturer to grow and produce such commodities as we are now importing," the speaker asserted. Urging an "America for Americans" slogan, Dr. Arnstein said, "It should be a patriotic duty to demand American grown and American-produced commodities, and engineers and technically trained men should point out the benefit of research, enabling the utilization of surplus agricultural and manufactured commodities, and enabling the creation of new standards of living."

WHO SHOULD PAY FOR HIGHWAYS

Asserting that highway development and use has grown to such an extent in America that these highways have in fact become a public utility, Charles Steward, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, declares that those who use the highways should pay for them. Mr. Steward analyzes highway development and supports his conclusions in one of the featured articles in the October issue of "Review of Reviews and World's Work," a magazine of national circulation devoted to the discussion of current public questions.

Annual expenditures for highways have reached the stupendous sum of two billions of dollars, declares Mr. Steward, expanding to this figure in but eight years. The official expenditures as shown by government reports were less than $100,000,000 in 1923. In the eight-year period the annual expense expanded more than twenty-fold. For eight years the total expenditure reached the tremendous figure of almost $12,000,000,000. All of this sum must be paid by taxation in one form or another, the writer asserts, and in the past eight years only 36 1-2 per cent of it has been paid by the users in the form of gasoline and license taxes while property owners and income tax payers have had to pay 63 1-2 per cent.

For each representative district containing more than one county, the secretary of state shall file in his office a description of the house districts therein, specifying the number of representatives to be elected from each district and the population thereof; and in each representative district containing but one county, the board of supervisors of such county shall cause to be filed in the office of the secretary of state a description of the house districts hereinbefore provided for, specifying the number of representatives to be elected from each district and the population thereof."

"Section 4. At the first regular session of the legislature following the adoption of this amendment, and thereafter at the first regular or special session following each decennial United States enumeration, the legislature shall by law, in accordance with the preceding section, readjust, establish the representative districts and apportion anew the representatives in the several districts and counties as the basis therefor the last preceding United States census: Provided, That if the legislature shall fail to make an apportionment as herein provided for, or if the legislature shall fail to convene by law, the secretary of state shall be declared unconstitutional by a court of competent jurisdiction, such apportionment shall be made by the secretary of state as a ministerial duty within ninety days after the adjournment of such legislative session during which the constitutional determination of the unconstitutionality of such apportionment, as the case may be, Apportionment by the secretary of state shall be enforced, if necessary, by a writ of mandamus upon petition of the attorney general, or any elector, and the attorney or city attorney of this state. The secretary of state shall certify to, and shall publish in the next succeeding publication of the session laws a record of the final apportionment made, containing the number and description of each representative district and the population thereof according to the last preceding United States census, and shall also file the same with the clerk of each county within the state."

Proposal No. 4.

The proposed amendment to Article X, Section 7, is as follows:

"Section 7. All assessments hereafter authorized shall be on property at its cash value. To the value of $1,000, the household goods, provisions, live stock, tools and stock of his trade, owned by any householder, shall be exempt from all taxation other than to pay public debts heretofore incurred, and the homestead owned and occupied by any householder shall be to the extent of $2,000 be exempt from all taxation other than to pay public debts heretofore incurred, and for special benefit assessments for ways. Until 30 days after any assessment roll is completed, filed, and the fact announced in the newspaper believed by the assessing officer to have the largest circulation in the taxing district any person having an interest in any property assessed may determine the assessed value of such interest by depositing with the assessing officer a sum equal to one per cent of such property interest (describing it) at any named price, which price shall thereupon become the assessed value of such interest; which offer may be accepted at any time within 60 days after the roll was announced by any person first depositing such price in cash with the county treasurer of the county where such property is located, payable to the order of the officer upon deposit of a duly executed conveyance of such interest to the accepter, who may have a decree of specific performance, and the state shall be responsible for the money so deposited."

(Proposal No. 5)

The proposed amendment to Article III, Section 1, is as follows:

"Section 1. In all elections every inhabitant of this state being a citizen of the United States; every inhabitant residing in this state on the twenty-fourth day of June, eighteen hundred thirty-five; every inhabitant residing in this state on the first day of January, eighteen hundred fifty; every male inhabitant of foreign birth, who having resided in the state two years and six months prior to the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and having declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States two years and six months prior to said last named day; and who shall have completed his naturalization prior to January first, nineteen hundred twenty-four; the wife of any inhabitant of foreign birth who, having resided in the state two years and six months prior to the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and having declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States two years and six months prior to said last named day, and who shall have completed his naturalization prior to January first, nineteen hundred twenty-four; the wife of any inhabitant of foreign birth who, having resided in the state two years and six months prior to the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and having declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States two years and six months prior to said last named day, and who shall have completed his naturalization prior to January first, nineteen hundred twenty-four; the widow of any deceased inhabitant of foreign birth who, having resided in the state two years and six months prior to the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and having declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States two years and six months prior to said last named day, and who shall have completed his naturalization prior to January first, nineteen hundred twenty-four; the widow of any deceased inhabitant of foreign birth who, having resided in the state two years and six months prior to the eighth day of November, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and having declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States two years and six months prior to said last named day;

Sunday School, 11:00
Please note the change in the time for the morning service at Ironton.

In Charlevoix the Sunday School has been set at 12:15. This change has been made to prevent the possible overlapping of the worship service and church school service. Should it seem necessary we will return to the 12:00 o'clock period.

The subject for the morning service is "The Teachings of Christ Concerning Salvation." Whether we wish to accept it or not the fact remains that Jesus came into the world for just one thing which is briefly mentioned in Luke 19:10, "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." The Apostle Paul was supremely interested in the question how a sinful man can become right with God. Because there is a let down in some circles in the consciousness of the fact of sin the need of salvation has faded. Yet, the world needs more than anything else, salvation. Come Sunday morning and bring a friend who does not claim to be a Christian.

Union Armistice Service will be held at our church next Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mark of the Church of God will bring the message. An offering will be taken which will be turned over to the welfare fund of the local American Legion Post.

Our Junior Church will become active again next Sunday. The service will begin at 5:00 o'clock. Further announcement will be made next Sunday.

The 50th anniversary of this church will be observed during the week of November 13. On Sunday the 13 the pastor will deliver the anniversary sermon. On Thursday evening the 17th pre-Thanksgiving Dinner will be served after which a program will be rendered. We are trying to collect a group of pictures that were taken of scenes in Charlevoix and Ironton about 50 years ago. If these pictures could be borrowed they will be returned in good condition. Place your names upon the back. Sunday, November 20, is the final service with an outside speaker, perhaps a former minister from Ironton will join with us on the Sunday of November 13.

TO VOTERS OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
Regardless of your political party, you are vitally interested in the outcome of the vote on Amendment No. 3, which is one of 8 on your November 8th ballot.
I wish to urge you to vote NO on this amendment. It must be defeated if our county is to keep its present voting strength in the state legislature. If it is adopted your voting power will be cut in half and at least two more counties will be added to the Charlevoix-Leelanau District. It will take four counties to elect one State Representative instead of two as at present.
We already have a small enough voice in state affairs. Let us not make it smaller. Vote NO and be SAFE.

PRES. HOOVER IS DENIED SECOND TERM

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY G.O.P. CANDIDATES IN "STICKER" STUCK

The result of election, insofar as republicans are concerned can be summed up with a single word—disaster. Track east, west, north or south the final result is the same.

President Hoover was buried under an avalanche of votes, hurled against him from all points of the compass, such as has never in all past history equalled the deluge that was wishing-read throughout the nation Tuesday, sweeping republicans out of the highest national and state positions and carrying at high tide a host of democrats in fill the places made vacant, with the new Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt as leader, succeeding to the Presidency of the nation, taking for a Hoover out, Roosevelt in proposition, March 4, 1933.

The election was a sweeping victory for the democratic party and carried with it the electoral vote from 41 out of the 48 states, a grand total of 476 as against 55 votes (electoral) won by the republicans in 8 states.

Naturally there were some surprises and some disappointments not only in National and state but locally as well. In the latter it was largely a case of ratification of majorities received by republican candidates at the primary election held in August. In some instances those majorities were increased; in others slightly decreased but in all the majorities were substantial and to the point.

During the last few days of the campaign Keller L. Lewis, defeated in the primary election for renomination as prosecuting attorney, injected himself into the campaign as a sticker candidate, thereby making an attempt to defeat Attorney Arthur L. Fitch, the regular republican nominee. From the time the announcement was made until the polls closed the two candidates waged a hot campaign. In this Mr. Fitch won a decisive victory as shown by the unofficial tabulation of the votes cast. Mr. Fitch receiving 2666 votes, Lewis 1497. These figures may be changed slightly when the official canvass is made, but for present purposes they show conclusively that under normal conditions the electors do not favor sticker candidates entering political campaigns.

In Charlevoix where both Mr. Fitch and Mr. Lewis as candidates are permanent residents of long standing Mr. Fitch in the first ward and Mr. Lewis in the second, the result was was as follows by wards:

	1st	2nd	3rd
Fitch	131	387	270
Lewis	27	64	33
Fitch's maj.	104	323	237

A complete report as made by the board of County Canvassers, will be carried in the next issue of the Sentinel showing the entire vote of the county, an analysis of which should be of interest to every elector.

It can be said that no more complete and sweeping victory by any party has ever occured than the one this year by the Democratic party in the history of both state and nation.

"SHO-TAUQUA" HERE WEDNESDAY EVE., NOV. 16TH, AT THE GYM

Wednesday evening, November 16, is the date set for the presentation of a new form of entertainment, very appropriately named "SHO-TAUQUA." It is a happy combination of Merry Makers featuring Esther Crane, an extraordinary musical entertainer and an artist well worth hearing, John Henry, the funniest kid in creation and Dr. Vox and his lifelike Autostator are also on the program and will furnish many a laugh.

Then there is the Mysterious Morrison, the gay deceiver, with more tricks than a politican. And for the kiddies especially comes Ko-Ko, the loveable circus clown with hundreds of laughs.

Music, Mirth, and Mystery, a 100 per cent entertainment for you and you and you — and all for the unusual price of 10 and 20 cents for high class entertainment.

When you can hear and see real concert artists in the "flesh" for so small an admission fee, who could not long ago demand anywhere from $1.00 to $2.50 for a seat for one of their programs, it is certainly an opportunity not to be overlooked.

As they have so many numbers which the children enjoy, they have arranged to give a special matinee at the High School Gym at 4 p. m. This is especially for the little fellows who so enjoy clowns and laughs but are usually tucked away in bed about the time of the regular evening performance. And remember, it is a 100 per cent entertainment for young and old alike. Remember the date and be sure to see — SHO-TAUQUA.

SPORTSMEN PREPARE FOR HUNTING SEASON

Taking a little stroll along Bridge street Saturday we found several sportsmen anxiously awaiting the opening of the big game season, all "set" and ready to go as soon as they could visit the polls November 8 and cast their vote. Some others preparing to start for their favorite hunting grounds on the following and succeeding days, and all with hopes pitched high and looking forward toward an enjoyable vacation and with some expectation of demonstrating their ability with a rifle.

However, taking a dear with many of the local sportsmen is not primarily the purpose of the trip to the wilds. The one great feature is the time and opportunity to get out into the open, roam the big woods, live next to nature and for a few days enjoy a vacation and then at the end of the season return to their business affairs with renewed health, strength and vigor, fit to engage in their usual vocations. May their desires be ellmaxed by perfect fulfillment.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE ATTEND RALLY FRIDAY

Twenty-six young people of the Baptist Church drove to Kingsley Friday night for their Mid-year Rally. A banquet was served by the Church. Rev. McCallum gave the principal address. Lloyd Arnold of the local society gave an inspiring talk on "Adventuring."

Miss Pearl Smith is the Grand Traverse Associational leader.

In keeping with the occasion both of the local banks will be closed all day tomorrow, Armistice Day, November 11th.

"MY MICHIGAN" GREAT SUCCESS

OFFERING OF $27.50 TAKEN FOR LEGION WELFARE FUND

The entertainment at the gymnasium last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was witnessed by a full house who expressed their appreciation of every number.

The school band directed by Mr. Magee played several numbers and pupils from the elementary grades of the public schools directed by Miss Atkinson sang three patriotic songs.

The pageant "My Michigan" produced under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Dowd pictured the evils of the liquor traffic in the state at several different periods in its history.

Miss Bernice Negeleon as "Michigan" gave the prologue and several interludes in a very pleasing manner.

In the first scene Virginia Taylor, Jay Oliver, John Winkler and Wm. C. Palmer as Singing Water, Big Bear, the French trader, showed how the traders during the French occupancy persuaded the Indians to trade their lands and furs for "firewater" while the priests attempted to intervene.

The second scene showed the domination of smokers by the liquor dealers back in 1867. Dr. Winder as Big Tim, the saloon keeper and political boss, was "immense." Chic Chew as Tom, Harold Newman as Red, Lloyd Arnold as Mr. Watkins and O. F. North as Parson Eddy did their parts to perfection. The material and stanzas for this scene were founded on fact—see Catlin's "History of Detroit" and the chapter on "Why Michigan Went Dry."

In the third scene David Coulter, Mrs. Elizabeth Trimble and Audrey Trimble took the parts of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Landers and Janie, their child. Janie is kidnapped by her father's bootlegger, Jake Romano (played by A. C. Belding) and rescued by officer O'Brien and his second (Ty Gray and Harry Baker). The father's resolve to stop giving aid to the lawless liquor traffic was a fitting climax.

The offering for the welfare work of the American Legion amounted to $27.50.

Messrs. Charles Martini, A. J. Rellus, Ernest Kibbe and Floyd Black Eugene Lewis, C. Y. Marshall and Milo Todd are planning for the big game season and have under advisement to make a camp over in Montmorency county, according to present plans the start for camp will be made early next week.

Mr. H. H. Grund drove over from Wallson Lake Saturday and spent part of the day here on business.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Lawson Baxter and daughter Charlotte, were guests of Charlevoix friends Sunday.

Mrs. J. H. R. Gervers, Mrs. Arthur Schoolcraft and Miss Lera Smith of Bellaire were Charlevoix business visitors Saturday.

With arrangements made for establishing a camp near Trout Lake a party of Charlevoix sportsmen will leave for that place late Friday afternoon or early Saturday morning. As planned at this time the membership of the party will be as follows: Clarence B. Meggison, Charles, Clarence, Ed and William Heine, Vern Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gravelin and Harold Towsley leave Sunday on their big game hunting trip and will be in camp in the Blue Lake region for the shooting season.

HOME FURNISHING PROJECT SECOND LEADERS TRAINING MEETING

The second Leader's Training Meeting of the Home Furnishings project, sponsored by the Extension Division of the Michigan State College was held in the Boyne City Public Library last Wednesday.

Sixteen local groups, scattered throughout the county, were represented with 32 leaders as well as several visitors. In addition to Miss Gertrude Reis, Specialist from the college, who is in charge, we were honored by the presence of Miss Edna Smith, Home Demonstration Agent Leader. The leaders who had taken that work for the past three years were pleased to again have the opportunity of greeting Miss Smith who was in charge of the first year Home Management project.

Charlevoix County has the largest number of local groups carrying on this work of any county in this section and judging from the comments already received this project seems to be exceptionally popular.

The meeting was called to order by the County Chairman, Mrs. B. Hastnell and Miss Smith was introduced and gave a short outline of the duties of the county committee.

Miss Reis presented the lesson of the day, "Making Slip-Covers" and the room was soon a busy of workers with the leaders measuring and fitting their slip-covers for the chairs brought by them.

The next meeting will be held on December 7th, at which time the subject, "Refinishing Furniture" will be discussed. Anyone wishing to enroll in this project, please call or write the County Agricultural Agent, R. E. Mellencamp, who will be glad to furnish you with the desired particulars.

FRUIT GROWERS SPLENDID SHORT COURSE OFFERED TO FARMERS

Full details of the Commercial Fruit Growers Conference which is to be held November 14 to 18, at Michigan State College, East Lansing, have been received by R. C. Mellencamp, County Agent.

Never before have so many interesting subjects been crowded into such a short course. It would seem that this would be a rare opportunity for those interested in fruit, to take a few days vacation and get posted on the latest developments taking place in fruit production in the state. No matter what field of fruit production you are interested in, you will receive considerable information in regard to your problems. Some of the important discussions are: Turbulin; Arsenical Injury on the Peach; Developments in Codling Moth Control; The Relations of Weather to Epidemics of Cherry Leaf Spot, Apple Scab Developments in 1931; Spraying Materials and Scab Control; A Study of some of the Newer Spraying Materials; Relation of Orchard Fertilization to Keeping Quality; Organic Matter for Orchard Soils and Yield and Size of Apples as Influenced by Soils and Fruit Thinning.

The cost of this course is indeed reasonable—the fee is only $1.00. Rooms may be secured in East Lansing for $1.00 per night per person. Meals may be secured in East Lansing restaurants. Accommodations are also available in Lansing hotels. Certainly never before has any information been available at such a small expense and yet covered so many vital problems.

Complete outlines of all subject materials to be given are available in the County Agent's office at Boyne City, which please remember is now located in the new Federal Building, Second floor.

PROGRAM FOR ARMISTICE DAY

TO BE HELD IN GYMNASIUM AT TWO-THIRTY P. M.

It is fitting that Armistice Day should follow so closely on the heels of a national election which has ended a bitter political struggle—fitting that those who have lost and those who have won should be reminded that the men of our country who now lie in peace under the sod of France and the manned unfortunates that fill our government hospitals offered their lives for humanity's most treasured possession—liberty.

Let us then, on the eve of this Armistice Day, unite in a solemn resolve to preserve that liberty for which these heroes fought that their sacrifice may not be in vain. Though no armed enemy forces confront us, the powers of greed, selfishness and special interest are always marshalled against us and our battles against these sinister influences, though bloodless, are no less important in the preservation of that holy freedom whose price, as a great patriot has warned us, is "eternal vigilance."

The program in Charlevoix on November 11th will be similar to that of last year. The flag in the city's memorial park will be flown at half mast until eleven a. m. when Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, and its auxiliary unit will march to the park, led by the post bugle and drum corps, taps will be played and the flag raised to the staff-head.

At 2:30 in the afternoon a community program will be held in the gymnasium sponsored by the legion and School, at which Judge Joseph P. Murphy will be the principal speaker.

An army style banquet at the Legion Home on East Garfield Avenue at 7:00 o'clock will close the day's program. This affair is for the veterans, their wives and friends, and will feature reminiscences of the Great War as related by several ex-service men. The price is 35c to all.

The Nelson-Gimble hunting party made up of Oscar F. Nelson, and Emery Gimble of Charlevoix and Elmer Nelson, brother of Oscar F. and Grover Hall of Detroit are leaving for Ontonagon County today, where they will make camp and spend the big game season near Lake Gogebic.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Plum will spend the big game season in camp at some point near Whitefish Bay and will leave for the north Sunday. They will be accompanied from Newberry by an old time friend, Ernie Eckelsderfer, who will be with them during the hunting season.

Dan and Will Spayde leave Monday for the wilds near Atlanta, where they will do their big game hunting

Mr. George W. Heeman motored down from Newberry and spent the week end with Charlevoix relatives and friends.

Local sportsmen, interested in the big game season who will spend their vacation in the wilderness near Lake Gogebic are Albert Staley, Arthur Staley, Bonny Nickerson, Sterling Nickerson. They will be accompanied by George Weaver of Kingsley, who for some years past has been a member of the Staley-Nickerson outfit.

A hunting party composed of Attorney A. L. Fitch of Charlevoix, Lewis W. Tooley, Lewis Capelin, Ray Scott, Russell Barden, Bob Gherrie, M. J. Rovich and J. H. Parker of Boyne City are leaving for the north on a hunting trip, next Saturday. They have a cabin near Newberry, where they will live during the shooting season.

FEED DEALERS HOLD CONFERENCE IN ELLSWORTH

The majority of feed dealers in both Antrim and Charlevoix counties met together Tuesday night November 1st, to discuss the variety and types of feed that are being handled for the coming winter feeding season. Prof. J. G. Hays, Michigan State College, was present and very forcibly brought to the attention of the local feed dealers just what the farmers are buying or may be expected to buy.

First of all it has found, as a result of several years experiments in the feeding of dairy cows, that a wide variety of feeds in the cow's ration is not absolutely necessary. This affords considerable encouragement to farmers in that they may secure wonderful results from feeding their home-grown feeds supplement with high-protein feeds. It was brought out that in buying high-protein supplements cottonseed meal is usually the cheapest source of protein. Furthermore, we now find that cows can handle large quantities of cottonseed meal, in many cases up to five or six pounds daily, whereas in the past we have recommended not more than one or two pounds a day.

Plans are being developed to hold a series of from 12 to 16 feeding schools this winter in the Grange halls and other community centers to bring to the attention of the dairyman some of these newer developments. These meetings will be conducted by County Agent R. C. Mellencamp and will start shortly after the first of the year.

As a result of the meeting last Tuesday the local dealers will have in stock feeds that will meet the feeding conditions for this coming winter.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT OCTOBER NEWS LETTER

At this time I would like to present a few facts regarding our activities during the month of October. As you know, I took charge of this Unit on October 1st. Dr. Dean has been granted leave of absence until July of next year.

Our plan of work has been arranged for the ensuing months. General in this calls for work in the outlying districts first. In the schools we aim to examine the children and vaccinate against smallpox for the next few months. In the spring we hope to devote our efforts to immunizing against diphtheria for the school and pre-school child. However, our plans may be altered and may vary in different parts. As I have said before, we are anxious to increase our services on behalf of the mother, the infant and the preschool child.

The teachers in most of the schools are now weighing and measuring, as well as testing vision and hearing. This gives more time to devote to other services and enables us to reach a larger number of schools for examinations and inspections.

During the second week in November I expect to attend the Public Health meeting at Lansing. Our nursing staff will be unable to attend this year.

During October Mr. Nebeling has been doing sanitary surveys in rural schools and at the same time carrying on an educational program among the school children. A definite indication of marked improvement in the sanitary conditions of school buildings has been noticed. A large number of dairy and milk producing farm inspections have also been made.

Antrim County

There have been reported an odd case of scarlet fever and chickenpox from this county, but no unusual prevalence of communicable disease has occurred. We have visited a few

R. CROSS FACES BUSY WINTER

NEED GREATER THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE CLOSE OF WAR

With a realization of the increased responsibilities of the American Red Cross in the last year and the knowledge that the organization is facing its busiest winter since World War days, local leaders are taking an unusually active part in the approach of the membership roll call campaign. According to Red Cross chapter officials here, the annual Roll Call will be conducted between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 24.

Dr. C. J. Winder, who will direct the Roll Call this year in the absence of Mrs. Adah Bowman who has so ably conducted the work for the past few years, issued a statement today, emphasizing the importance of the community's support to the Red Cross during the enrollment period. The statement follows:

"This year the economic emergency lends special importance to the annual Roll Call, or membership campaign of the American Red Cross.

"The Red Cross is the recognized relief agency throughout the nation. It is chartered by Congress, headed by the President of the United States and accorded the cooperation of the Federal government. In the unemployment crisis it has borne a great relief responsibility. It has been the authorized medium for distribution of wheat and cotton to those in need of flour and clothing. Its volunteers have been organizing in devotion to the task of labeling and distributing supplies, and in production of finished goods from materials. Hundreds of thousands of gardens have been planted from Red Cross seed. In 2,200 communities Red Cross Chapters have participated in unemployment relief work.

"No unemployment have been added 95 chapters calling for Red Cross assistance in the person of one year. Drought in the northwest, tornadoes in the southeast, floods in the central south and a variety of other calamities have created mighty burdens on the organization.

"Our debt of gratitude is great. Our present and prospective dependence is unquestioned. Everyone who is able to take out membership, as a good citizen and patriot should do so."

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Because of the somewhat unusual circumstances, I am told that it would not be out of place for me to take this opportunity of expressing to you my gratitude and appreciation of the vote of confidence given me on the Eighth of November.

It is indeed gratifying and helpful to learn, after many years of living amongst you as friends and neighbors and occasionally occupying places of public trust, that you keep and hold your faith in my honesty and integrity and refuse to accept a naked charge as proof of guilt or to be misled by untrue and baseless accusations made by unthinking persons in the purposes of a political campaign.

Very sincerely,
Arthur L. Fitch.

THE TAX-PRODUCED DEPRESSION

Said Colonel Robert R. McCormick recently: "The depression here and throughout the world has been caused by excessive taxes, which have made industry and commerce unprofitable, have prevented them from saving any surplus or gaining new capital, and have thrown millions of men out of work."

Mr. Average Business Man will say "amen" to that. The haul of the tax collector reaches as insistently into the small concern as the large one. It touches, relatively speaking, the millionaire and the clerk about alike, though in the latter's case the taxes are paid indirectly. It falls on the small farm and the great industry with disastrous consequences for each.

Taxes—industrial retrenchment—unemployment—depression. One follows the other, with taxes leading the way.

THE LITERATURE OF "ESCAPE"

In the world of fiction, as in so many other matters, the United States is the leader among nations.

This applies not only to writing of a more or less "highbrow" tingle, but also to what is termed the literature of escape. That is the literature—call it action, western, aviation, or what you will—that takes us out of the humdrum affairs of daily life into a more rarified air of adventure, romance and mystery.

Such a literature, reaching as it does a remarkably high percentage of our population, has an undeniably strong effect on the life of the country. In days of depression its value is especially noticeable—it clears the brain, banishes worries for a time, prepares us to better face our own little realities. It is probably the cheapest form of entertainment—for ten or twenty-five cents we can buy enough of it to while away an entire evening. A few hours of "escape" are often of inestimable benefit.

American magazines of all kinds are immeasurably superior to those published abroad. The products of American authors are much sought after in all English speaking countries. Our writers have gone far toward curing the social ills exactly as our doctors solve the problems of health.

WHY DO WE HAVE FIRES?

That is a fair question—and one that can be answered.

We don't have fires because they are unpreventable, and are an unfortunate but inescapable phase of modern life. We have them because we are careless—are incompetent—put a false form of "saving" ahead of real economy—and because we refuse to learn a few simple, easily understood lessons.

Every year we pay out $500,000,000 directly to the bill for fire. The indirect cost comes to several times that figure. Probably the total reaches two billion dollars or more. At least eighty per cent of it is unnecessary—that eighty per cent could well be termed the "careless-ness bill." No other civilized people allows so great a waste in either dollars or lives.

We build homes cheaply, and below the standard of fire resistance recommended by authorities. We allow wiring to go untended and fail to have the heating plant examined and overhauled at regular intervals. We permit rubbish to accumulate in corners. We put off "until tomorrow" the repairing of faulty chimneys. The inevitable result is fire.

Fire can be controlled. Its cost can be cut to a fraction of the present figure. Almost all of the ten thousand lives lost annually can be saved. The way to do that is simply by unremitting vigilance on the part of each of us.

DANGEROUS DRIVING MONTHS

The fall and winter months are the most dangerous of the year for automobile driving.

Rain, snow, sleet, hail and misty, early darkness, haste to reach home and escape the cold, tightly closed cars and low visibility, all contribute to the hazards.

Skidding is a chief danger of cold weather driving. The motorist must confront not only a visible wet or icy surface, but one hidden under a bed of fallen leaves.

Last year 1,740 persons were killed and 51,720 injured in 44,610 accidents due to skidding cars.

"The automobilist cannot carry the driving practices of the late spring and summer over to the fall and winter without running a great risk of accident," says Maxwell Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "Conditions become vastly different in the last three months of the year, and the driver must take them into consideration." Mr. Halsey lays down certain rules for the dangerous driving months.

mechanical defects that may have developed during the summer.

"Be especially sure your brakes are effective; be sure your tires are in first-class condition, also your lights and your windshield wiper.

"Cut down on your summer speed.

"Allow for early darkness and for decreased visibility.

Available statistics indicate that automobile fatalities in the United States decreased about 12 per cent the first 7 months of this year. If that record were to be maintained up to, and including, December 31st, it would mean that the number of human lives taken by motor cars during the year would fall below 30,000 for the first time since 1928. However, the supreme test is now being applied. Every agency nowadays is endeavoring to bring about a reduction in automobile insurance rates. A winter driver should realize that he can contribute most to the success of this movement by driving which will decrease the number of accidents.

Under the most perfect conditions, the driver of an automobile should exercise extreme care. And when the bad days come, that care should be stretched to the utmost.

GRAVER DANGERS THAN WEALTH LOSS

"There is no reason why we should worry about our material wealth," writes Senator Guy D. Goff, in the current issue of the National Republic, in an inspiring article entitled, "The Voice of Washington." "Language can not picture nor words paint the great wealth that has come to this nation. There are dangers ahead far greater than abundance or poverty—or the denial of certain rights. It is not what we have but what we are that measures our worthwhileness. There is not an adequate love of country, nor sufficient patriotic self-sacrifice, nor an inborn heart's desire on the part of the majority of our citizens to take an active interest in public affairs. The men and the women of this country are proud and honest. They love their government and they respect its institutions, but in their ease and their radical comfort they forget that every gift is accompanied by an obligation to do. They are indifferent to the fact that public participation and public service, and personal domestic and family morality are absolutely necessary to the security of individual happiness and prosperity. They are too much absorbed in their own selfish affairs to love this blessed land of such dear souls and sacred memories with a passion enduring when all other earthly desires have gone. They do not care enough for the priceless fabric of liberty transmitted to them as the most precious of heritages and in the pursuit of their selfish aims they have become too envious, desirous and jealous even to care to serve the nation.

"We must substitute for this false, defective selfishness the undeniable truth that there can be no permanent prosperity for one class of our people at the expense of another class. We must teach those who do not know, as well as those who have forgotten, that democracy is no miracle worker, that it guarantees this and nothing more; that much of unequal ability shall be equal in their rights to develop their potentialities. We must insist that every avenue be open and every opportunity free. We must make the world a better place in which to live. We must improve the morals, conserve the health and advance the welfare of every man, woman and child with who mwe come in contact, and whose lives touch ours. We must soften the severity of labor and increase the rewards of those who do the intellectual as well as the manual work of the world. To fail in these things is to take the first long step back to despotism. To close our eyes to these eternal and moral voices is to approve a combination of the mediocre and the inferior, to the end that character, ability and morality shall be punished and restrained. Most men, aside from the lazy, the weak, the criminal the defective and the tainted yearn for something that has the mark of personal ownership —something won by struggle—something to love and defend — to use and enjoy. Mankind wants a home, and all the virtues that cluster around it. This sentiment constitutes the poetry of life, and dwells in humble surroundings just as much as it does in places of wealth and culture."

REHABILITATE A BASIC INDUSTRY

That a great national objective of today is the stimulation of general business and increased employment; that in the past new industries have tided us over bad periods, while today lack of funds makes promotion of new things on a large scale impossible; that therefore, we must fall back on and rehabilitate what industries we have; that transportation represents the greatest single national investment, having assets in excess of $30,000,000,000.

Thus, the rehabilitation of transport, particularly the railroads, will do more than anything else to stimulate business and employment.

THE UNENDING AGE

We know of mining as a great industry. We know that the production of metals, in normal times, affords employment for an army of workers, contributes to the prosperity of a thousand other industries, and makes possible the welfare of entire states.

There is still another phase to mining—its influence on civilization. With agriculture, it is one of the oldest industries. The history of the world, indeed, can be told through the symbol of metals. When primitive man first discovered copper a long step forward had been taken in the march of civilization. So with brass, lead, steel, etc.

Science Tests Fabrics for Durability

MOHAIR WINNER IN RUBBING MARATHON

Scientific Tests Show Durability of Different Kinds of Fabrics.

In the laboratory of a large seat manufacturing company, a flat plate slips back and forth, back and forth across a square of upholstery material which has been securely attached to a solid base. A strange endurance contest is under way, a scientific and accurate test to show how long the sample of fabric will resist the constant wear of the sliding plate. Count is kept of the number of "rubs" the sample receives and when the piece begins to wear out, the machine is stopped and another "rub-off" is entered in the interesting endurance "marathon."

This, briefly, is one of the tests applied to mohair velvet or velour as well as to other materials before the manufacturers select the kind of upholstery they wish to place on the seats they are making. Previous experience has already told these men much about the durability of the materials considered but the chief object of the test is to do in a brief time what would otherwise require months and years so that selections can be made more readily and inferior materials quickly eliminated.

Of all the upholstery fabrics entered for these strange "marathons" mohair velvet or velour has been consistently among the dependable winners. "Ilavers" are given wear numbers to indicate how well they stand up under the test. Some of the materials are so fragile that they win a score of fifty or less while practically all the mohair samples submitted for test score a count of 5,000 to 8,000.

These wearing tests help explain why automobiles upholstered in mohair frequently bring from $25 to $100 more than similar cars upholstered in other fabrics at the time of resale or trade-in. The upholstery is in good condition after years of service. It is clean and bright, the colors have not faded and the mohair upholstery helps ensure the attractive appearance that the car is good for many more miles of duty.

Mohair is made from the hair of the Angora goat. Mohair velvet or velour is a pile fabric, that is, it is composed of thousands of small fibers or yarns that they stand on end, thereby presenting a soft, resilient but durable surface that will withstand years of hard service. In case the pile flattens down after months and prolonged use, it is quickly and easily refreshed by placing a damp cloth over it and allowing the cloth to dry or by steaming.

The pesky serious loss from the favorite travel fabric in automobiles and in railroad cars. It is especially suitable to summer use in vehicles and on furniture as well for its fine colors in soil, fade or rub out, even when moisture and perspiration so that garments are not stained in hot weather. Air added warmth for its summer purposes in the fact that it is cooler than other materials. The spaces between the many fibers permit a certain amount of air to circulate between the person and the seat, thereby reducing excessive body temperatures.

HOME AIR CONDITIONING BASIS OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT THAT WILL REVIVE PROSPERITY

Twenty-Five Million American Homes in Need of Its Benefits, States Dr. Hill.

CHICAGO, ILL.—"Tramilion of the furnace heat an air-conditioning plant, makes residential heating systems now used as much out of date as the old-fashioned hot-box or kitchen range," declared Dr. E. Vernon Hill, dean of American air-conditioning scientists, and editor of the Ashrae, a national publication devoted to the science of heating, ventilating and air-conditioning.

"Air-conditioning for the 25 million homes in America, as well as the six most innumerable commercial, public and industrial buildings, is the new innovation that fits, in the parlance of the business man, 'a felt but unknown want.' It is the basis of a new industrial development that will be instrumental in reviving prosperity and which will be a business asset that will keep prosperity on an even keel for many years to come."

This statement is based on the fact that the American public has become familiar with the comforts and benefits of air-conditioning through the perfected systems now used in the better theaters, public buildings and in many lines of industry. "This has resulted," he said, "in demand for air-conditioning in the home. And he expressed the opinion that when the American public fully recognizes the benefits imparted by air-conditioning from the standpoint of health and comfort, air-conditioning will be looked upon as a mere of a necessity than the radio or even the automobile.

"No home need be without the comforts and healthfulness of air-conditioning," Doctor Hill continued. "There is now available to any home owner who can afford the usual type central heating plant, a heating-air-conditioning system that automatically performs the important functions of air-conditioning. Thermostatically controlled, these systems, in addition to supplying the warmth essential to winter comfort, also automatically supply the home air with sufficient moisture to offset the indoor dryness characteristic of winter heating.

"They also meet another vital requirement of air-conditioning, namely, constant air circulation, by means of a thermostatically controlled air circulating unit. This air circulation is draftless, yet of sufficient force to keep the air in every room constantly moving, changing it from four to six times per hour. An outstanding benefit of this air motion is the development of an indoor temperature that is practically uniform in every room at floor and ceiling levels

Dr. E. Vernon Hill, Chicago, eminent aerologist and dean of American air-conditioning engineers, who states that home air-conditioning is the basis of an industrial development that will revive prosperity.

"This will likewise makes the heating system available for cooling purposes during the hot periods of summer. The air motion eliminates the stagnant air conditions that characterize home interiors in hot weather and, by keeping the air in constant circulation through the cool basement, tends to modify the temperature. Its most important benefit however, is the gentle air motion which produces a physical comfort commensurate with that obtained by lowering the temperature several degrees.

"Thermostatically controlled home air-conditioning systems now available are dependably efficient, moderate priced and practically fool-proof. Their use, in conjunction with oil burning equipment, gas burners, or automatic stokers for coal, virtually eliminate all of the drudgery, discomfort, and inconvenience that heretofore have characterized home heating.

"Obviously," he said in conclusion, "public demand for domestic air-conditioning will be almost unlimited, for air-conditioning systems are indispensible to sound health and they impart a genuine indoor comfort that is new experienced in but few homes or places. Public acceptance of the new idea in your round air-conditioning will, in effect, render practically all existing heating obsolete."

Mrs. Adah Beeman closed her Park avenue residence last week and Sunday accompanied her son George W. Beeman to Newberry, where she contemplates spending the winter months.

The first consignment of lake trout eggs came over from the Beavers Wednesday in charge of S. M. Rose, and were shipped to the Northville hatchery. There were twenty cases containing 3,000,000 eggs. They will continue to come at about the same rate by nearly every trip of the Havet during the closed season.

Recent information from the north woods states that Nick Shores has two deer and Ed. Chaloupka one.

Wm. Schubert, Jr., of Cincinnati, has purchased the old Bixby cottage, on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds, and will rebuild it into a fine modern summer home. Silas Alcock has the contract. R. P. Foley is receiving bids for the erection of a fine cottage on Newman street, opposite W. H. Miller's. Mr. Danforth, a wealthy banker of Washington, Ill., has purchased two lots on the grounds and in the spring will build the finest cottage on the premises. The sewer work on the grounds will be completed this week Saturday, and it is first class in all respects. The Association has this fall built 1600 feet of six foot cement walks at a cost of nearly $1,600.

It's Grover

Grover Cleveland is elected President of the United States. New York and Illinois went Democratic by small majorities and they did the work. As we go to press the returns are meagre owing to overcrowded wires.

Michigan

The Republicans have elected Rich governor by 10,000 majority, and elected Congressmen and electors in the 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 11th, and 12th; the Democrats carried the 1st, 5th, 7th, with the 10th in doubt.

Mears is elected Senator and Bigot Representative by good majorities.

Charlevoix County

Here is where we belong! Charlevoix county, on the National and State ticket, gives 375 plurality in 1890 it was 355. Every man on the Republican county ticket is elected by good majorities, thanks to Chairman Coulter's good work and Chairman Coulter's typewriter.

Charlevoix county has never before in its history elected a full Republican ticket. The Populist vote was 129.

Mears carried the county by 349 and Bigot by 155 plurality. The pluralities on the county ticket are as follows: Kerns, 442; Stroud, 330; Ward, 287; Hipp, 261; Myers, 217; Field, 204; Mayne, 117

Charlevoix township, with the clerk of the typewriter, a fresh and potent memory, with a total vote of 595, beats its best record and gave a Republican majority of 98. In the hour of sorrow the Republican vote of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County is a solace like unto the Balm of Gilead. The typewriter, like the bicycle is one of the greatest inventions of the age.

Charlevoix has reached the point where the necessity of good brass band is a necessity. It has also reached a point where it is able, abundantly, to support a professional leader and teacher of such an organization. No organization of this kind can be made a success unless it has at its head a man who can devote his time to making it a success. Such a leader the Charlevoix band never had, and now the band has engaged the services of Prof. G. M. Rice of Lexington, Mich., a professional musician to lead and teach the band. A small amount monthly from every man, who is able to contribute, will keep Prof. Rice here and give Charlevoix a band that we shall be proud of.

Shakespeare Club

A number of admirers of the "Immortal Bard" assembled in the parlors of the Bridge Street House on Monday evening for the purpose of organizing a Shakespeare Club. James E. Wood was elected temporary chairman and Mr. Oscar Upright, Secretary. A constitution was adopted, and permanent officers elected as follows for one year:

President, Willard A. Smith.

Secretary, Miss Nettie Hawks.

Measures were taken for the purchase of copies of Shakespeare's plays for the use of the club and the "Court Scene" from the "Merchant of Venice" selected for reading at the next meeting. The following will be the cast

Shylock W. A. Smith; Duke: R. W. Kane; Antonio, Dr. S. C. Graves; Portia Miss Rita Edwards; Bassanio, James E. Wood Gratiano; Albert, Washburn; Salanio Miss Armstrong; Narissa Miss Nelson; Salarino, Mrs. Jas. E. Wood

The Club adjourned to meet at the Bridge Street House parlors on Monday evening, November 20th.

You can't make a Greely man out of such material as Robert Miller—don't south." Mr. Miller was persistently urged to accept a nomination at the regular Republican convention for some of the most responsible offices, but he just as persistently refused. He has the reward of a clear conscience.

Try It Again—That the united local effort put forth with so good results at the mouth of the river last winter was the seed "sown in good ground", that sprang up into the subsequent state appropriation, there can be no doubt. After several unsuccessful efforts to enlist the state in our behalf our people put their own shoulder to the wheel and something "come" in the shape of improvement. Then the State, seeing that we were in earnest gave us assistance the full extent of which has not yet been realized. We now wish to urge a repetition of last winter's effort. We hope to see our people continue the South pier lakeward as far as possible this winter, thus giving protection to the channel from both sides. We sincerely believe that the same argument that brought the State to our assistance, will call the attention of Congress to one growing wants. Let us up and at it again.

A NEW RUTH CHATTERTON FILM "THE CRASH", COMING

A Ruth Chatterton picture is always an event in this city. The coming of her second First National picture, "The Crash," to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday will be no exception to this rule.

The showing of "The Crash" here will be especially interesting from three standpoints. First, it presents Miss Chatterton in a fine, dramatic role well suited to her talents.

Second it is a timely story, turning upon the effects of the stock market crash. Third, it brings again to the screen here the most sensational young leading man in pictures, Gene Brent, who has already announced his marriage to Ruth Chatterton. Brent has had a phenomenal success in the past year, coming out of obscurity to play opposite Miss Chatterton in two pictures, opposite Miss Barbara Stanwyck Joan Blondell, Loretta Young and other screen favorites.

"The Crash" is said to be Miss Chatterton's finest vehicle, and a worthy successor to "The Rich Are Always With Us" which was her initial First National picture.

It brings a popular actress in a story, that reports say, is brimming with entertainment and exciting action.

Mr. Clare Staley enjoyed a motor trip to points in southern Michigan last week. From reports made upon his return the vacation was a pleasant one.

THE TAX-PRODUCED DEPRESSION

Said Colonel Robert R. McCormick recently: "The depression here and throughout the world has been caused by excessive taxes, which have made industry and commerce unprofitable, have prevented them from saving any surplus or raising new capital, and have thrown millions of men out of work."

Mr. Average Business Man will say "amen" to that. The hand of the tax collector reaches so insistently into the small concern as the large one. It touches, relatively speaking, the millionaire and the clerk about alike, though in the latter's case the taxes are paid indirectly. It falls on the small farm and the great industry with disastrous consequences for each.

Taxes—industrial retrenchment—unemployment—depression. One follows the other, with taxes leading the way.

THE LITERATURE OF "ESCAPE"

In the world of fiction, as in so many other matters the United States is the leader among nations.

This applies not only to writing of a more or less "highbrow" tingle, but also to what is termed the literature of escape. That is the literature—call it action, western, aviation, or what you will—that takes us out of the humdrum affairs of daily life into a more rarified air of adventure, romance and mystery.

Such a literature, reaching as it does a remarkably high percentage of our population, has an undeniably strong effect on the life of the country. In days of depression its value is especially noticeable—it clears the brain, banishes worries for a time, prepares us to better face our own little realities. It is probably the cheapest form of entertainment—for ten or twenty-five cents we can buy enough of it to while away an entire evening. A few hours of "escape" are often of inestimable benefit.

American magazines of all kinds are immeasurably superior to those published abroad. The products of American authors are much sought after in all English speaking countries. Our writers help quite as much as our mental ills exactly as our doctors solve the problems of health.

WHY DO WE HAVE FIRES?

That is a fair question—and one that can be answered.

We don't have fires because they are unpreventable, and are an unfortunate but inescapable phase of modern life. We have them because we are careless—are incompetent—put a false form of "saving" ahead of real economy—and because we refuse to learn a few simple, easily understood lessons.

Every year we pay out $500,000,000 directly to the bill for fire. The indirect cost comes to several times that figure. Probably the total reaches two billion dollars—or more. At least eighty per cent of it is unnecessary—that eighty per cent could well be termed the "carelessness bill." No other civilized people allows so great a waste in either dollars or lives.

We build homes cheaply, and below the standard of fire resistance recommended by authorities. We allow wiring to go untended and fail to have the heating plant examined and overhauled at regular intervals. We permit rubbish to accumulate in corners. We put off "until tomorrow" the repairing of faulty chimneys. The inevitable result is fire.

Fire can be controlled. Its cost can be cut to a fraction of the present figure. Almost all of the ten thousand lives lost annually can be saved. The way to do that is simply by unremitting vigilance on the part of each of us.

DANGEROUS DRIVING MONTHS

The fall and winter months are the most dangerous of the year for automobile driving.

Rain, snow, sleet, hail and early darkness, haste to reach home and escape the cold, tightly closed cars and low visibility, all contribute to the hazards.

Skidding is a chief danger of cold weather driving. The motorist must confront not only a visible wet or icy surface, but one hidden under a bed of fallen leaves.

Last year 1,740 persons were killed and 51,720 injured in 44,510 accidents due to skidding cars.

"The automobilist cannot carry the driving practices of the late spring and summer over to the fall and winter without running a great risk of accident," says Maxwell Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "Conditions become vastly different in the last three months of the year, and the driver must take them into consideration." Mr. Halsey lays down certain rules for the dangerous driving months.

mechanical defects that may have developed during the summer.

"Be especially sure your brakes are effective; be sure your tires are in first-class condition, also your lights and your windshield wiper.

"Cut down on your summer speed.

"Allow for early darkness and for decreased visibility.

Available statistics indicate that automobile fatalities in the United States decreased about 12 per cent the first 7 months of this year. If that record were to be maintained up to, and including December 31st, it would mean that the number of human lives taken by motor cars during the year would fall below 30,000 for the first time since 1928. However, the supreme test is now being applied. Every agency nowadays is endeavoring to bring about a reduction in automobile insurance rates. A winter driver should realize that he can contribute most to the success of this movement by driving which will decrease the number of accidents.

Under the most perfect conditions, the driver of an automobile should exercise extreme care. And when the bad days come, that care should be stretched to the utmost.

GRAVER DANGERS THAN WEALTH LOSS

"There is no reason why we should worry about our material wealth," writes Senator Guy D. Goff, in the current issue of the National Republic, in an inspiring article entitled, "The Voice of Washington." "Language can not picture nor words paint the great wealth that has come to this nation. There are dangers ahead far greater than abundance or poverty—or the denial of certain rights. It is not what we have but what we are that measures our worthwhileness. There is not an adequate love of country, nor sufficient patriotic self-sacrifice, nor an inborn heart's desire on the part of the majority of our citizens to take an active interest in public affairs. The men and the women of this country are proud and honest. They love their government and they respect its institutions, but in their ease and their radical comfort they forget that every gift is accompanied by an obligation to do. They are indifferent to the fact that public participation and public service, and personal domestic and family morality are absolutely necessary to the security of individual happiness and prosperity. They are too much absorbed in their own selfish affairs to love this blessed land of such dear souls and sacred memories with a passion enduring when all other earthly desires have gone. They do not care enough for the priceless fabric of liberty transmitted to them as the most precious of heritages, and in the pursuit of their selfish aims they have become too envious, desirous and jealous even to care to serve the nation.

"We must substitute for this false, defective selfishness the undeniable truth that there can be no permanent prosperity for one class of our people at the expense of another class. We must teach those who do not know, as well as those who have forgotten, that democracy is no miracle worker, that it guarantees this and nothing more; that men of unequal ability shall be equal in their rights to develop their potentialities. We must insist that every avenue be open and every opportunity free. We must make the world a better place in which to live. We must improve the morals, conserve the health and advance the welfare of every man, woman and child with who mwe come in contact, and whose lives touch ours. We must soften the severity of labor and increase the rewards of those who do the intellectual as well as the manual work of the world. To fail in these things is to take the first long step back to despotism. To close our eyes to these eternal and moral voices is to approve a combination of the mediocre and the inferior, to the end that character, ability and morality shall be punished and restrained. Most men, aside from the lazy, the weak, the criminal the defective and the tainted yearn for something that has the mark of personal ownership —something won by struggle—something to love and defend — to use and enjoy. Mankind wants a home, and all the virtues that cluster around it. This sentiment constitutes the poetry of life, and dwells in humble surroundings just as much as it does in places of wealth and culture."

REHABILITATE A BASIC INDUSTRY

That a great national objective of today is the stimulation of general business and increased employment; that in the past new industries have tided us over bad periods, while today lack of funds makes promotion of new things on a large scale impossible; that therefore, we must fall back on and rehabilitate what industries we have; that transportation represents our greatest single national investment, having assets in excess of $30,000,000,000.

Thus, the rehabilitation of transport, particularly the railroads, will do more than anything else to stimulate business and employment.

THE UNENDING AGE

We know of mining as a great industry. We know that the production of metals, in normal times, affords employment for an army of workers, contributes to the prosperity of a thousand other industries, and makes possible the welfare of entire states.

There is still another phase to mining—its influence on civilization. With agriculture, it is one of the oldest industries. The history of the world, indeed, can be told through the symbol of metals. When primitive man first discovered copper a long step forward had been taken in the march of civilization. So with brass, lead, steel, etc.

Science Tests Fabrics for Durability

This is a "wear testing machine" used in a recent rubbing marathon to find out how long different kinds of motor car upholsteries and other fabrics would wear. Mohair velvets and velour were consistent winners.

MOHAIR WINNER IN RUBBINGMARATHON

Scientific Tests Show Durability of Different Kinds of Fabrics.

In the laboratory of a large east manufacturing company, a flat plate slips back and forth, back and forth across a sample of upholstery material which has been securely attached to a solid base. A strange endurance contest is under way, a scientific and accurate test to show how long the sample of fabric will resist the constant wear of the sliding plate. Count a load of the number of "rubs" the sample receives and when the piece begins to wear off the machine is stopped and another "victim" is entered in the interesting endurance "marathon."

This, briefly, is one of the tests applied to mohair velour or velour as well as to other materials before the manufacturers select the kind of upholstery they wish to place on the seats they are making. Previous experience has already told them how much about the durability of the materials considered but the chief object of the test is to do in a brief time what would otherwise require months and years so that selections can be made more readily and inferior materials quickly eliminated.

Of all the upholstery fabrics entered for these strange "marathon" mohair velvet or velour has been consistently among the dependable winners. "Rubs" are given wear numbers to indicate how well they stand up under the test. Some of the materials are so fragile that they win a score of fifty or less while practically all the mohair samples submitted for test score a count of 2,000 to 8,000.

These wearing tests help explain why automobiles upholstered in mohair frequently bring from $75 to $100 more than similar cars upholstered in other fabrics at the time of resale of tradeins. The upholstery is in good condition after years of service. It is clean and bright, the color does not fade, and the mohair upholstery helps assure the protective quality that the car is good for many more miles of duty.

Mohair is made from the hair of the Angora goat. Mohair velvet or velour is a pile fabric, that is, it is composed of thousands of small fibers or woven tufts that stand on end, thereby presenting a soft resilient but durable surface that will withstand years of hard service. In case the pile flattens down after severe use and prolonged use it is quickly and easily refreshed by placing a damp cloth over it and allowing the cloth to dry or by steaming.

The pasts velours are free the favorite weave fabrics in automobiles and in railroad cars. It is especially suitable to summer use in vehicles and on furniture as well for its fine colors on test fade or fall out even when subjected to perspiration so that garments are not stained in hot weather. An added reason for its summer popularity is the fact that it is cooler than other materials. The spaces between the many fibers permit a certain amount of air to circulate between the person and the seat, thereby reducing excessive body temperatures.

HOME AIR CONDITIONING BASIS OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT THAT WILL REVIVE PROSPERITY

Twenty-Five Million American Homes in Need of Its Benefits, States Dr. Hill.

CHICAGO, ILL.—"Installation of the furnace heir an air-conditioning plant, makes residential heating systems now used as much out of date as the old-fashioned fireplace or kitchen range," declared Dr. E. Vernon Hill, dean of American air-conditioning scientists, and editor of the Ayrological, a unique publication devoted to the science of heating, ventilating and air conditioning.

"Air-conditioning for the 25,000,000 homes in America, as well as the adjacent innumerable commercial, public and industrial buildings, is one new innovation that fits in the parlance of the business man, 'a fella' but un known want.' It is the basis of a new industrial development that will be instrumental in restring prosperity and which will be a balance wheel that will keep prosperity on an even keel for many years to come."

This statement is based on the fact that the American public has become familiar with the comforts and benefits of air-conditioning through the perfected systems now used in the better theaters, public buildings and in many of industry. "This has resulted," he said, "in demand for air-conditioning in the home." And he expressed the opinion that when the American public fully recognizes the benefits imparted by air-conditioning from the standpoints of health and comfort, air-conditioning will be looked upon as more of a necessity than the radio or even the automobile.

"No home need be without the comforts and healthfulness of air-conditioning," Doctor Hill continued. "There is now available in any home owner who can afford the usual type central heating plant, a heating-air-conditioning system that automatically performs the important functions of air-conditioning. Thermostatically controlled, these systems, in addition to supplying the warmth essential to winter comfort, also automatically supply the home air with sufficient moisture to offset the indoor dryness characteristic of winter heating.

"They also meet another vital requirement of air-conditioning, namely, constant air circulation, by means of a thermostatically controlled air circulating unit. This air circulation is draftless, yet of sufficient force to keep the air in every room constantly moving, changing it from four to six times per hour. An outstanding benefit of this air motion is the development of an indoor temperature that is practically uniform in every room at floor and ceiling levels.

Dr. E. Vernon Hill, Chicago, eminent physicist and dean of American air-conditioning engineers, who states that home air-conditioning is the basis of an industrial development that will revive prosperity.

"This unit likewise makes the heating system available for cooling purposes during the hot periods of summer. The air motion eliminates the stagnant air conditions that characterize home interiors in hot weather and, by keeping the air in constant circulation through the cool basement, tends to modify the temperature to its most important benefit, however, is the gentle air motion which produces a physical comfort commensurate with that obtained by lowering the temperature several degrees.

"Thermostatically controlled home air-conditioning systems now available are dependably efficient, moderate priced and practically fool-proof. Their use, in conjunction with oil burning equipment, gas burners, or automatic stokers for coal, virtually eliminate all of the drudgery, discomfort, and inconvenience that heretofore have characterized home heating.

"Obviously," he said in conclusion, "public demand for domestic air-conditioning will be almost unlimited. For air-conditioning systems are indispensable to sound health and they impart a genuine indoor comfort that is now experienced in but few homes or places. Public acceptance of the new idea in year round air-conditioning will, in effect, render practically all existing heating obsolete."

Mrs. Adah Beeman closed her Park avenue residence last week and Sunday accompanied her son George W. Pecman to Newberry, where she contemplates spending the winter months.

The first consignment of lake trout eggs came over from the Beavers Wednesday in charge of S. M. Rose, and were shipped to the Northville hatchery. There were twenty cases, containing 3,000,000 eggs. They will continue to come at about the same rate by nearly every trip of the Beaver during the closed season.

Recent information from the north woods states that Nick Shores has two deer and Ed. Chalompka one.

Wm. Schubert, Jr., of Cincinnati, has purchased the old Bixby cottage, on the Charlevoix Summer Home grounds, and will rebuild it into a fine modern summer home. Silas Alcock has the contract. R. P. Foley is receiving bids for the erection of a fine cottage on Newman street, opposite W. H. Miller's. Mr. Danforth, a wealthy banker of Washington, Ill., has purchased two lots on the grounds and in the spring will build the finest cottage on the premises. The sewer work on the grounds will be accompleted this week Saturday, and it is first class in all respects. The Association has this fall built 1600 feet of six foot cement walks at a cost of nearly $1,000.

Michigan

The Republicans have elected Rich governor by 10,000 majority, and elected Congressmen and elections in the 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 11th, and 12th; the Democrats carried the 1st, 5th, 7th, with the 10th in doubt.

Means is elected Senator and Bagot Repre entative by good majorities.

Charlevoix County

Here is where we holler! Charlevoix county, on the National and State ticket, gives 879 plurality. In 1890 it was 355. Every man on the Republican county ticket is elected by good majorities, thanks to Chairman Coulter's good work and Chairman Crouter's typewriter.

Charlevoix county has never before in its history elected a full Republican ticket. The Populist vote was 139.

Means carried the county by 349 and Bagot by 155 plurality. The pluralities on the county ticket are as follows: Kevan, 442; Strand, 330; Waxi, 287; Hipp, 261; Myers, 217; Field, 204; Mayne, 117.

Charlevoix township, with the click of the typewriter, a fresh and potent memory, with a total vote of 395, beats its best record and gave a Republican majority of 98. In the hour of sorrow the Republican vote of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County is a solace like unto the Balm of Gilead. The typewriter, like the bicycle is one of the greatest inventions of the age.

Charlevoix has reached the point where the necessity of good brass band is a necessity. It has also reached a point where it is able, additionally, to support a professional editor and teacher of such an organization. No organization of this kind can be made a success unless it has at its head a man who can devote his time to making it a success. Such a leader the Charlevoix band never had, and now the band has engaged the services of Prof. G. M. Bire of Lexington, Mich., a professional musician to lead and teach the band. A small amount monthly from every man, who is able to contribute, will keep Prof. Bire here and give Charlevoix a band that we shall be proud of.

Shakespeare Club

A number of admirers of the "Immortal Bard" assembled in the parlors of the Bridge Street House on Monday evening for the purpose of organizing a Shakespeare Club. James E. Wood was elected temporary chairman and Mr. Oscar Upright, Secretary. A constitution was adopted, and permanent officers elected as follows for one year:

President, Willard A. Smith.

Secretary, Miss Nettie Hawks.

Measures were taken for the purchase of copies of Shakespeare's plays for the use of the club and the "Court Scene" from the "Merchant of Venice" selected for reading at the next meeting. The following will be the cast:

Shylock: W. A. Smith; Duke, R. W. Kane; Antonio, Dr. S. C. Graves. Portia, Miss Etta Edwards. Bassanio, James E. Wood Gratano, Albert Washburn. Salanio, Miss Armstrong. Nerissa, Miss Nelson. Solanio; Mrs. Jas. E. Wood.

The Club adjourned to meet at the Bridge Street House parlors on Monday evening, November 20th.

True—The Grand Traverse Herald gives the following compliment to Robert Miller, one of our upand-down, "don't care a d—d" sort of Republicans: "Robert Miller, of Charlevoix, having been nominated for a county office by the Greeleyites, publishes a vigorous letter in the Sentinel, in which he notifies them that he is not in the least thankful for their favors; declares his intention to "still adhere to the good old Republican party and cause, and pronounces the movement which resulted in nominating himself and others a cheat and swindle. You can't make a Greely coon out of such material as Robert Miller—and much!" Mr. Miller was persistently urged to accept a nomination at the regular Republican convention for some of the most responsible offices, but he just as persistently refused. He has the reward of a clear conscience.

Try It Again—That the united local effort put forth with so good results at the mouth of the river last winter was the seed "sown in good ground", that sprang up into the subsequent state appropriation, there can be no doubt. After several unsuccessful efforts to enlist the state in our behalf our people put their own shoulder to the wheel and something "come" in the shape of improvement. Then the State, seeing that we were in earnest gave us assistance the full extent of which has not yet been realized. We now wish to urge a repetition of last winter's effort. We hope to see our people continue the South pier lakeward as far as possible this winter, thus giving protection to the channel from both sides. We sincerely believe that the same argument that brought the State to our assistance, will call the attention of Congress to our growing wants. Let us up and at it again.

A NEW RUTH CHATTERTON FILM "THE CRASH", COMING

A Ruth Chatterton picture is always an event in this city. The coming of her second First National picture, "The Crash," to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday will be no exception to this rule.

The showing of "The Crash" here will be especially interesting from three standpoints. First, it presents Miss Chatterton in a fine, dramatic role well suited to her talents.

Second it is a timely story, hinging upon the effects of the stock market crash. Third, it brings again to the screen here the most sensational young leading man in pictures, Gene Raymond, who has already announced his marriage to Ruth Chatterton. Brent has had a phenomenal success in the past year, coming out of obscurity to play opposite Miss Chatterton in two pictures, opposite Miss Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Blondell, Loretta Young and other screen favorites.

"The Crash" is said to be Miss Chatterton's finest vehicle, and a worthy successor to "The Rich Are Always With Us" which was her initial First National picture.

It brings a popular actress in a story, that reports say, is brimming with entertainment and exciting action.

Mr. Clare Staley enjoyed a motor trip to points in southern Michigan last week. From reports made upon his return the vacation was a pleasant one.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Service Sunday, 10:45 a. m.

Subject: "Mortals and Immortals"

First Wednesday of month only at 7:45 p. m.

Reading Room Tuesday and Saturday 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 6.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (Gen. 1:27): "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Corrolative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 557): "Popular theology takes up the history of man as if he began materially right, but immediately fell into mental sin; whereas revealed religion proclaims the Science of Mind and its formations as being in accordance with the first chapter of the Old Testament, when God, Mind, spake and it was done."

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Our Faculty

The reporter caught Mr Kirke as he was about to leave the mathematics room just in time to secure some of the interesting events in his life. Through his high school course, Mr. Kirke participated in football, basketball, and baseball. This was followed by college training at Michigan State College where he worked his way through by washing dishes and grinding flours. With a major in mathematics and a minor in physical education he coached at an Industrial School for a while and then assumed a position as assistant football coach at Olivet where he remained a year. The next year was spent at Williamston, 1932-33 marks the fifth year of Mr. Kirke's teaching and coaching at C. H. S. There in this time the high school basketball team has entered the state tournament, the other years they had a remarkable record which can only be obtained through the coach and cooperation of the team and the coach

Miss Ferneau proved a very willing assistant at the hands of the reporter beginning with the statement "I'm 29 years old and unmarried." Miss Ferneau graduated from Western State Teachers College with a major in History, English, and Social Science and a minor in mathematics. She now has her A. B. degree. She very amusingly recalls how she worked her way through college taking care of very "ornery" children. Miss Ferneau has taught for ten years in various rural, grammar, grade, and high schools in the southern and southwestern parts of Michigan. This is her 4th year in C. H. S. where she is busy with her History, Government, and Algebra Classes. The first year she coached the debate team at C. H. S. For the next two years she sponsored the class of '32 and at present is sponsor of the Junior Class. Graduates who return to visit C. H. S. soon make their way to Miss Ferneau's room, for they realize that she always remains their interested friend.

Hi-Y Breakfast

Tuesday morning the Hi-Y held a breakfast and business meeting in the basement of the Methodist church. Mr. Hurd, their sponsor spoke, also Secretary of the Northern District, Mr. Dreary, gave a talk. The State Conference which is to be held at Muskegon this month was discussed and plans were made to send boys there.

Armistice Day Program

There will be an Armistice Program Friday at 2:30 p. m. It will be put on by the school and American Legion and is not only for the schools but for the community as well. The program is as follows:

Marches—Charlevoix School Band.
Boy Riders, King.
Roll of Honor, King
On the Square, Panella.
Victor March, King.
Salute to Our Flag, Girl Trio
Hats Off, 5th, 6th and 7th grades.
Best Loved Southern Melodies — Charlevoix School Band.
Selections, American Legion Quartette.
Armistice Day Address, Joseph F. Murphy, Petoskey.
America, (All Sing) Band.

Music

Miss Atkinson is teaching music in ten of the rural schools, three mornings each week. It is planned to have a Rural School Festival some time this month. Miss Atkinson as well as the rural students are very enthusiastic over their new work. The ten schools in which she attends each week are: Bay Shore, Murray, Grand View, Burgess, Hop Yard, Ironton, Loeb, Marion Center, Barnard and McGeagh.

The 5th, 6th and 7th grades, under the direction of Miss Atkinson gave three unusually pleasing patriotic songs last Thursday evening at "My Michigan."

Band

The C. H. S. band should be congratulated on their good work Thursday, November 3 at the pageant "My Michigan." The selections were "Praise Ye the Father" (March Pontifical) "Best Loved Southern Melodies," "The Gypsy Festival Overture." The school band was also present at the Torch Parade, Monday, November 7.

Mr. Magor has sent for new music some of which will be used at their concert the latter part of December. The rest is more for practice and fun. These pieces are classics to the band will have to work hard.

Dramatics

Last Tuesday the drama club spent an evening in the study of the technique of acting. Many of the steps from the play "Green Grow the Lilacs" were learned and sung at the meeting which afforded much amusement and entertainment for the group.

Several members of the Club were in the pageant "My Michigan". John Winder, Lloyd Arnold and Virginia Taylor were in the cast, and Dorothy Staley helped with the staging. David Coulter, a member of the Club two years ago was also in the cast.

History and Civics

The World History people have been studying views of the Palace of Versailles this week. They find the subject very interesting.

A number of bills have been sent to the House of Representatives of the Civics Class by the American History Class. The bills dealt with the reduction of the salaries of senators and representatives.

English

Sophomore English students have been keeping diaries for the past month. In their daily entries they have included incidents and observations which have stimulated thought in new and unusual directions.

Pep Meeting

Friday night after school marked the close of our football pep meetings. The Junior High joined in this fun. Every member of the football team made a speech. Some of the team played their last High School football game Saturday.

Dancing Program

There will be given on December 9th in the gym, a dancing program by the Junior and Senior High School girls. It will be under the direction of Miss Deuel. The money which is received will be used to purchase new gym equipment. The Senior High girls will do some original clogging and the music will be furnished by the music department.

Personals

The Junior ring committee composed of Emerald Chew and Helen Myers have been interviewing ring salesmen this week. So far they have made no choice from the rings.

A new Club has been started by some of our Junior girls called the "Happy" Club. The members are Marjorie Partridge, Alice Usher, Helen Myers, and Marguerite Chew. The club was entertained with a fish dinner Sunday night at the Usher home.

Mrs. Stelter was hostess at a surprise party given for the "Twins" Friday night. About 20 were present.

Junior High News

Eighth Grade History Section II is debating on "Whether the present method of electing the president is good."

The following students have been selected as candidates for Student Council offices:

President—Ernestine Chew, and Thad Pearl.

Sec.-Treas.—Virginia Bogart, Rose Dodd, and Esther Lou Fuchtman.

Director of Public Safety—Maurice Fouty, and Steve Serno. This election will be held November 8.

The Eighth grade is making note books in History.

The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, a two part contata written by Ira B. Wilson will be given by the Junior High students December 16th.

6th Grade

The sixth grade have organized a newspaper staff and are planning to publish a weekly newspaper. The following are the committees:

Poster Committee, Harry Witters, Chairman, Gilbert Powers, Robert Goss, Ila Bassett.

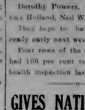
General News—Reporter: Dorothy Powers, chairman; Vernice Holland, Naol Wenger.

They hope to have their paper ready early next week.

Four rows of the sixth grade have had 100 per cent results from their health inspection last week.

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

By ROMIE C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association



R. C. STEPHENSON

WE hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and promote more stable business activity. I know no better plan to suggest than to insure future farmers through the instrumentality of every school system in the country. Such a plan would benefit the rural family and every business through which the country has to do business as well as the city. Here are a program of practical action and the foundation of a definite National policy.

I know of no better plan than this to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation, and its strength a common assurance of individual working, earning and saving. And I know of no better plan to give activity to a depression than to build a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. But unless there are savings we apparently have cannot be spending during depressions.

Those who practised this plan during the past period of prosperity have no security and a protection against present adversity that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones who are now dependent upon others. If there has been more preaching of this doctrine when it was more feasible to put it into effect than it is now, there would be less depression and less financial insecurity today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on saving during prosperity, a measure of the emphasis today might properly be put on other ways—at least to the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of exercising their savings. While many millions of our people are in distress and are suffering who have not suffered as severely in the past, in the matter of purchasing power it is true that the increase in all the ordinary channels of trade, on which the welfare of everybody now and in the future depends, would be of great benefit to all the people. Increased purchasing power would be a stimulus to industry and a help to agriculture, and banks immediately in charge to engage in a war against depression on all of the main fronts by their communities where confidence and helpful constructive applications of credit could be put before a certain number of people would be more timely acting now the 20th day of May, 1933.

schools and started immunizing 70 children against diphtheria. We will touch a few more in November, but after this will not be immunizing until spring. The next few months will consist of examination of school children.

The preschool clinic was held at Elk Rapids in October, where 18 children were vaccinated against smallpox.

Miss McCoy, besides the school nurse, has been engaged in making home calls. The larger number being on behalf of the infant and preschool child. The township health committees are making layettes and obstetrical kits and are working with the Red Cross in making up materials.

Our dentist, Dr. Quinlan, is now located at Central Lake. After going to Elk Rapids, he will be at Mancelona for the remainder of the stay in the county. During two weeks of the month, he has examined 699 children in this county.

Charlevoix County

A few cases of whooping cough and one case of scarlet fever have been reported during the month.

We have examined 169 school children in this county and the parents of 43 were present at the examination. Forty five school children were also vaccinated against smallpox.

Dr. Quinlan finished his work in his county for the year about the middle of the month. During his time here he has examined 570 children and placed 382 fillings.

Miss Lockwood has been making a number of home visits. These have been chiefly on behalf of tuberculosis, the infant and mother, as well as for school child and the crippled.

Emmet County

A few cases of scarlet fever and one case of typhoid have been reported during October.

We have been somewhat late in getting started in the rural schools in this county. However, we have examined 225 school children. This has been chiefly at Pelonkey. The children at St. Mary's, Harbor Springs, have been tuberculin tested. We hope to have the reactors X-rayed during November.

Miss Warner has been engaged chiefly during October in home calls on behalf of school children. She has also been doing considerable work on behalf of the crippled.

Otsego County

There has been an odd case of scarlet fever reported during the month. This has been in Elmira.

We have started immunizing 96 children against diphtheria. This will be the only group which will be started until early next year. Forty two school children have been examined during the month. The parents of 16 of these were present at the time of examination.

Dental corrections in the Sailing school have been 189 per cent. This entitles the school to a Dental Banner. In the Gaylord school about 50 per cent of the first grade pupils have had dental corrections made by their family dentists. A number of those were referred from the preschool clinics held during the summer.

Miss Johnston has been making regular inspection of school children at Elmira, owing to a few cases of scarlet fever in the district. She has also made a number of calls in behalf of communicable disease.

Gordon B. Moffat, M. D., Director, District Health Unit No. 3.

Wells and America

Mr. H. G. Wells made a survey of the United States a number of years ago. In the book, The Future in America, which he published as the result of his research, he asked "Is the average citizen honest? Is he a casual in handing out gifts? If he is, the future can easily be no more than a monstrous social disorganization in the face of divine opportunities." Wells, we fancy, may have in store for us, Mr. Wells' picture is a good description of large portions of the past as seen with Tamassee Half as a frame.—H. B. Werner in Tamassee Halls.

When Government Aids Agriculture

Demand for relief agricultural or otherwise, comes naturally from those who feel most keenly the impact of economic pressure. Even most affected quickly to government for aid. But the frequently appears set in operation by governments simply because most table readjustments. The basic laws of supply and demand have never been permanently and successfully set aside. So in general governmental interventions start artificially stimulating orders or even maintain them when the prevailing economic situation obviously shows that readjustments are necessary. Such efforts are expedients that spend only temporary relief rather than permanent cure. Forced plasters may relieve pain for the moment but they rarely get at the seat of the real trouble.—H. L. Bruner.

When army worms threatened the crops of Marshall County, Texas, information concerning the pests was made available by the College of Agriculture, and banks immediately took steps to organize a war against the insects. Soon, on the main roadways in their communities where combating bills and helpful crop applications for eradication could be put before a certain number of people would be more timely acting now the 20th day of May, 1933.

CONSERVATION DEPT. PROPOSES

"WORK RELIEF" THROUGH $1,400,000 CONSTRUCTION

Declaring itself as favoring "work relief" rather than "dole relief" the Michigan Department of Conservation at the request of the Commission for Trade Recovery has offered the use of $1,400,000 on construction work that would employ thousands of men.

The construction would include forest fire protection, fish-rearing and state park work in 58 of the State's counties.

Of the 1,400,000 proposed, $1,000,000 would be loaned outright and $400,000 would be used in matching funds for work projects.

The emergency relief project called for the construction of conservation camps to house men who would be employed on the various proposed projects.

"The emergency relief project called for the first time in the history of Michigan, the state would be placed in a position to carry to completion many necessary tasks looking toward the wise rehabilitation and protection of its wild land resources," the resolution adopted by the Conservation Commission said.

The resolution pointed to the need for developing the recreational industry in the state and for preserving its natural resources, the need for an effective system of fire lines, for removal of fire menaces, for establishing and maintaining forest growth and for the building up of its system of public parks, game refuges and public hunting grounds.

The Commission pointed out that the expenditure of almost two million dollars might easily save the state many times that amount in fire fighting costs. During the year 1931 the Department of Conservation had to spend $1,100,000 in fighting forest fires. Had such prevention work as is now proposed been done prior to that time, possibly hundreds of thousands of dollars would have been saved to the taxpayers in that one year.

Under its proposal the Department of Conservation would spend $874,500 on forest fire prevention, construction work, $305,620 in forestry work and $219,880 on state park construction work.

It is proposed to obtain the funds through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. EDNA C. LOGAN

Mrs. Edna C. Logan, of Coldwater, Mich., who for the past two years has been employed in the Charlevoix High School, teacher of French and Latin, died Monday night, after a lingering illness of nearly six months. She was obliged to give up her position after four weeks teaching this fall.

Mrs. Logan was a student at the Teachers' Normal College at Ypsilanti, also University of Eugene, Ore., where the greater part of her teaching took place. She taught several years in Arkansas and the past ten years in Michigan.

Miss Carrie Collins, of Monroe, Mich., a life-long friend, has been with her the past three weeks, where she was residing at 210 Mason St.

The funeral occurred at the Congregational Church at 4 p. m. Tuesday. Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. The remains were placed in the Brookside Cemetery Vault.

Ira A. Adams left Saturday on his annual deer-hunting expedition down on the bank of the Au Sable.

BOHUMIR KRYL HERE SUNDAY

GREATEST MUSICAL TREAT OF YEARS TO BE OFFERED

The no-nine-hundred Bohumir Kryl, celebrated band master, who will appear at the Charlevoix High School auditorium with his great band, is one of the most picturesque characters in the musical world.

The career of Bohumir Kryl reads like a chapter from almost unbelievable fiction. At the early age of twelve, Mr. Kryl began his career of public entertainment, in the Winter Gardens of Berlin, and has been an outstanding personality from that day to this.

When he was thirteen Kryl worked his way to America by means of his cornet. He is master of numerous instruments, but confines his playing at present to this cornet. With this instrument he does the impossible—plays one octave lower than any other living cornetist. He plays with a certain contempt for the difficulties that often defeat other musicians.

Kryl seems defeat in any line of endeavor. Aside from his mastery of music he has attained distinction in the arts of sculpture and painting. He has also established himself as an able business man, having been president of a large bank in the Chicago area.

Kryl is the father of two beautiful daughters and is the grandfather of three lovely children. One daughter married Paul Taylor White, composer and director of the Rochester, N. Y. Civic Symphony Orchestra. Kryl's daughters Marie and Josef, are an accomplished pianiste and the other violinste, toured Europe and America in recitals.

Kryl's is a versatile personality. In Kryl and his band, the Charlevoix High School Music Department is presenting a world famous band leader and a world famous band. Kryl's artistry and his superb directing unite in a wonderful composite of band music that is unexcelled.

SHO-TAUQUA DRAWS CROWD

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT ENJOYED BY AUDIENCE

The "Sho-tauqua" entertainment held at the high school gymnasium Wednesday evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance.

The Kilown Ko-Ko amused both young and old and the musical numbers consisting of selections on the Dixie, piano and violin were thoroughly enjoyed.

The ventriloquist act was both original and interesting and the best of its kind witnessed for many years. Little Buddy Kosal with his fancy act drew a big hand and deservingly so, while the closing ghost act sent shivers up and down the spine.

The reception accorded this form of entertainment proved conclusively that it is once more becoming popular and Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Cross are to be complimented on the efforts to bring "Sho-tauqua" to Charlevoix before the public again at popular prices.

The American Legion, sponsors of the event, wish to express their appreciation for the cooperation shown by school officials which was a big factor in making it a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenfield of Bellaire were Charlevoix visitors Wednesday.

MANITOU AND PURITAN SOLD

DUKE TRANSPORTATION COMPANY MAKES PURCHASE

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce is just in receipt of a letter from the Duke Transportation Company of Houghton Michigan, stating that the company has recently purchased the steamers "Manitou" and "Puritan" from the bondholders of the Michigan Transit Corporation and are making elaborate plans to operate these ships for the season of 1933.

They plan to make Charlevoix one of their ports of call and believe that they can bring us considerable business. Captain M. L. Gilbert, who will command the steamer operating on the Charlevoix run, will arrive here shortly to make the final arrangements before their exceptionally fine ships, with its schedule for the summer season, goes to press.

The company feels that, in order to make the operation of the new line the success that it should be, they must have the co-operation of all the resort owners and examiners of commerce en route. Just what form they expect this cooperation to take is at present unknown, but this matter will doubtless be explained by Captain Gilbert on his projected visit to this city.

The Duke Transportation Company which is evidently a newly formed organization will operate as a daily service during the period of open navigation on the International Ferry, the Port William Line and Houghton-Isle Royle run and as a weekly service, the Chicago-Isle Royale Line, via Michigan ports.

1933 LICENSE PLATES ON SALE NOVEMBER 19

The sale of 1933 license plates for new automobiles and trucks will start on November 19, according to advices by the Department of State. This move allows purchasers of cars during the last two weeks of November to use their vehicles at once without buying 1932 plates.

The regular sale of 1933 plates to all owners of automobiles, trucks and trailers starts Dec. 1. The 1933 plates will have black block numerals on a white background and all plates next year will have numbers lower than 100,000.

Mrs. Ray Faulkner drove over to Gaylord Monday to meet her sister, Mrs. Geo. Myler, of Detroit, who will remain here during the hunting season. Mr. Myler went on north with a party of hunters.

LOCAL LEAGUERS ENTERTAIN PETOSKEY LAST WED EVE.

The Charlevoix Epworth League line held last Wednesday evening to a group of league members from Petoskey. After the Petoskey guests arrived at 7:45 the evening's entertainment was run through without a single hole of discord. The party went through exactly as planned, and the affair in general, as well as each individual feature, showed a great amount of preparation on the part of the local League's Social Committee. Present were 41 members of the society, in addition to the 17 honor guests from Petoskey, making a total of 58 altogether.

The Petoskey folk were welcomed at a Reception Committee composed of Virginia Taylor, Dorothy Staley and John Winder. Everyone then formed in a large circle and Mrs. Hurd called the roll, to which each enrolled by or she was present by making up a clever phrase using his or her initials as initial letters to the words of the phrase. Another get-acquainted game followed, and then Ben Hurd led in the singing of two well-liked songs. Miss Ira Howe was at the piano during this feature.

A program of active games was next on the program led by Harold Newman. This featured the school and sports idea. The School Bus opened the merriment, and was followed by two interesting games based on football. One featured passing the ball and the other entering with the ball. Last on the list of games was Team Officers which evoked many laughs.

Next Petoskey Epworth Leaguers were given an opportunity to put on a short three act merry-maker, which was very funny. They had six actors in this number, and all did well in their assigned parts. Charlevoix Leaguers added a similar number to the program by putting on a one-act pantomime which had been well rehearsed. Dorothy Staley read the story while the actors went through their parts in a manner which would make one think they had lost their minds, but that was the way they were supposed to do. The audience applauded wildly at times imagine, if possible, Paul McCartney and John Winder having a fight by throwing salt on each other. Other actors took their parts with the same seriousness. Those included Virginia Taylor, Virginia Nickerson, Rex McGhan, Winifred Buddy, Marie Hanson, Thelma Swanson, Ira Howe, Chester Buddy, Marjorie Newman, Ella Lakies, and Clarence Arnold.

Clarence the Great gave an interesting exhibition of Mind-Reading, by leaving the room while the group selected some object. He told what it

LIBRARY NOTES

Children's Book Week is being observed at the Public Library

"Books for Young America," is the theme for Book Week this year, which is being observed throughout the land in public libraries from Nov 13th to 19th.

New and attractive books are on the tables, and parents, teachers and all interested in children's books are invited to call and look over the class of literature children are interested in.

"The Magic Music Shop," by Mary Graham Bonner tells something of Jack Mitchell's career as a musician, his merriment, and was followed by two interesting games based on football. One featured passing the ball and the other entering with the ball. Last on the list of games was Team Officers which evoked many laughs.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS MINNIE T. HODGE

Mrs. Minnie T. Hodge passed away very peacefully on Sunday afternoon at the home of her niece, Mrs. Walter Burgess, 109 Clinton St. in this city.

Mrs. Hodge was born in Charlevoix, Kay September 14th, 1866, having resided in Washington, D. C. for twenty-five years, where for many years Capt. Allan T. Hodge, a member of the G. A. R. held a position of Custom Guard until he died in 1914.

Mrs. Hodge has resided with Mr. and Mrs. Burgess for a year and a half, and became subject to failing health last September 1st.

Her only surviving relatives are, one sister, Mrs. H. G. Clark, of Charlevoix, who arrived here Monday, her niece, Mrs. Burgess and nephew, Elmer Clarke, of Chicago.

The funeral was held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Episcopal Church, conducted by Rev. Edward S. Doan, the music furnished by Miss O'Brien.

Interment in the Brookside Cemetery.

Christian Science Society will hold a Thanksgiving service at Van Pelt Hall Thursday, Nov. 24th, at 10:45 a. m. The public is cordially invited.

COMMUNICATION TO RED CROSS

FROM MRS. ADAH BEEMAN, NOW LIVING IN NEWBERRY

To the Charlevoix Chapter of the Red Cross:

Your chairman was obliged to cause before making a statement of he plans for the work of the Red Cross, but feel it is left in competent hands to be put over.

The first is as has been, in the hands of the Legion, Mr. Ernest Kibbon, chairman of Welfare, very conscientiously looking after that.

Mrs. A. F. Phelps, chairman of the Girl Scouts, has given much time and thought to the work. The Legion Auxiliary, Church Societies and Clubs who are ready to help in this great work, please Call Mrs. Bridge and save her time and extra work.

Dr. C. J. Winder, who generously assisted the chairmanship of the Red Cross will do all he can to make he drive a success as this year we are given more liberty in using our share of the membership fund for Home Christian work.

Miss Crouse, chairman of the Junior Red Cross in the schools, who has done much fine work in the past drives, will do all she can under existing conditions.

From the part support given the drives, I am sure the workers will have your hearty cooperation and I shall watch results with great interest.

Yours in the work,
Adah Beeman,
Vice-County Chairman.

MARION CENTER NOTES

Mr. Ellard Black left Sunday for the Happy Hunting Grounds. Bert Elliott, Elmer Ingalls and George Mogerson went Monday morning.

Marion Center No. 206 met on Friday of last week with only a small attendance. The excitement is over since election.

The Master Group of the Home Furnishing Project met Wednesday at the Grange Hall. All ladies are to bring chairs and material for slip covers. It will be a busy day. Dinner served at noon as planned at our last meeting. This meeting was postponed one week owing to the fact that the leaders could not get their slip covers ready for exhibition.

LEGION PLANS TURKEY PARTY

DISTRICT MEET WILL BE HELD AT ONAWAY DEC. 11TH

Everything is set for the turkey party on Saturday evening, November 19th, at the Legion Home in the past three events have been very popular and this year should be no exception. Better plan to attend, have a good time and carry home your Thanksgiving dinner. The public is cordially invited.

Onaway Post, American Legion, has kindly consented to be host for the next meeting of the Lower Eleventh District organization. Nothing definite has been promised, but it is rumored around that venison will be the main dish at the banquet that is a regular feature of such affairs. The date is December 11th.

Past Commander Leo C. Allard and William E. Goss of the local post went to Petoskey last Friday evening and were among the victims of a "wreck" staged by the Traverse City vultures of Le Domaine de la 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux (popularly known as the Forty and Eight). This is the social order of the Legion and only those who have served overseas or performed some distinguished service for the Legion are eligible. If these gentlemen appear in bright blue service caps and long smocks at the next Legion turnout, you will now know what it is all about.

In spite of the inclement weather on Armistice Day a representative body turned out in the morning to conduct the Legion ceremony at the memorial park.

At two-thirty p. m. an interesting program was held in the gymnasium in which the high school band and the grades participated.

An unusual feature and one that will be witnessed but seldom in the future was the presence of a representative of the last three wars, Commander Purkett of Petoskey G. A. R., of the Civil War, Dr. W. W. Wilkinson, representing the Spanish-American War and Joseph P. Murphy of Petoskey representing the World War. Appropriate remarks were made by the first two mentioned and Mr. Murphy gave an interesting address.

The banquet at the Legion Home in the evening was enjoyed by those present, especially the "slum-gullion" for which we have to thank Comrade William B. Goss. Sunshine was back in Dr. Armstrong, Rev. Hurd, Dr. Winder, C. B. Maggard and the post commander, gave a description of the battles of Belleau Wood and Belleau illustrating his remarks by a diagram drawn on the blackboard showing the relative positions of contending forces and their objectives, pointing out that these two engagements were participated in by Leslie T. Shapton and the last mentioned one was here he gave the supreme sacrifice.

ADJOURNED MEETING OF W. C. T. U. FRIDAY

An adjourned meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held next Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the Community Room for the purpose of electing officers and transacting other business.

This extra session is necessary because a recess was taken last Friday to permit the members to attend the Community Armistice Day program in the Gym.

This left time only for the devotional service which was conducted by Mrs. Lois Campbell and the presentation of the topic—"Is there a liquor problem for our children."—by Mrs. G. R. Parker.

Mrs. F. W. Mayne has closed her Michigan Avenue home for the winter and is located at the Dibble Hotel.

GRAVER DANGERS

"There is no reason why we should worry about our material wealth," writes Senator Guy D. Goff in the current issue of the National Republic, in an inspiring article entitled. "The Voice of Washington." "Language can not picture nor words paint the great wealth that has come to this nation. There are dangers ahead far greater than abundance or poverty—or the denial of certain rights. It is not what we have but what we are that measures our worthwhileness. There is not an adequate love of country, nor sufficient patriotic self-sacrifice, nor an inborn heart's desire on the part of the majority of our citizens to take an active interest in public affairs. The men and the women of this country are proud and honest. They love their government and they respect its institutions, but in their ease and their radical comfort they forget that every gift is accompanied by an obligation to do. They are indifferent to the fact that public participation and public service, and personal domestic and family morality are absolutely necessary to the security of the individual happiness and prosperity. They are too much absorbed in their own selfish affairs to love this blessed land of such dear souls and sacred memories with a passion eclipsing them all other earthly desires have gone. They do not care enough for the priceless fabric of liberty transmitted to them as the most precious of heritages, and in the pursuit of their selfish aims they have become too envious, desirous and jealous even to care to serve the nation.

"We must substitute for this false, defective selfishness the undeniable truth that there can be no permanent prosperity for a class of our people at the expense of another class. We must teach those who do not know, as well as those who have forgotten, that democracy is no miracle worker, that it guarantees this and nothing more; that men of unequal ability shall be equal in their rights to develop their potentialities. We must insist that every avenue be open and every opportunity free. We must make the world a better place in which to live. We must improve the murals, conserve the health and advance the welfare of every man, woman and child with whom we come in contact, and whose lives touch ours. We must soften the severity of labor and increase the rewards of those who do the intellectual as well as the manual work of the world. To fail in these things is to take the first long step back to despotism. To close our eyes to these eternal and moral voices is to approve a combination of the mediocre and the inferior, to the end that character, ability and morality shall be punished and restrained. Most men, aside from the lazy, the weak, the criminal, the defective and the tainted yearn for something that has the mark of personal ownership—something won by struggle—something to love and defend—to use and enjoy. Mankind wants a home, and all the virtues that cluster around it. This sentiment constitutes the poetry of life, and it dwells in humble surroundings just as much as it does in places of wealth and culture."

PRUNING IS SCIENTIFIC

In a recent address, Governor Olson of Minnesota pointed out the need for governmental economy, and then said: "However, at the present time we should guard carefully the way in which government costs are reduced. If they are cut down in a frenzy, in a mood of passionate despair, in a temper of revenge, then indeed is the spoilsman likely to flourish and the technician and expert he cut off."

In other words, tax reduction must be accomplished scientifically. The kind of "tax reduction" that eliminates good men and necessary work damages the cause it espouses.

The kind of tax reduction we need is that which cuts away some of the maze of bureaus that has grown up in recent times, principally since the war, each with its long list of employees. They are anchored around the necks of taxpayers who are trying to swim through harsh waters.

These growths and long lists might well be compared to the dead wood and long suckers the scientific orchardist must yearly prune from his tree. Our governmental pruning must be done just as scientifically, so that what remains is the trunk and the roots and the sturdy growth of years with the life-sapping overgrowth trimmed clean.

IT'S UP TO THE READERS

It is the belief of the American Fiction Guild that only when the public begins to shy away from the sex and gangster magazines, will those magazines, with their lurid, suggestive covers and stories, vanish from the news stands. Readers must use more discrimination in the selection of light reading.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

CARLYLE HOUSE
ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

For down the road to Yesterday Carlyle House stands out as a momentous sign post in American history for here it was in 1755 that colonial taxation was first proposed, culminating in the Declaration of Independence 21 years later. Here also was planned the ill-fated Braddock campaign against the French at Fort Duquesne.

There are many kinds of stories on the stands. Some are printed on smooth paper and for the most part contain the printed works of America's most famous writers. Others are printed on rough paper. They contain good stories and their writers will be the famous authors and novelists of tomorrow."

Most of the so-called news stand magazines are wholesome, treating of adventure all over the world, of the conquest of the air and the sea, of crime detection from the side of the law. Some of the most famous executives of the land select their light reading from the news stand group, resting their brains while they travel the world on the wings of some adventure writer's imagination. Select your reading as "carefully as they do their's, for, after all, the most pernicious magazines contain material that is the most monotonous to be found, since they select themes which are capable of so little variation.

CONQUER FIRE

Fire destruction again shows a slight increase. For the first 9 months of the year it was $511,050,639, compared with $340,712,487 in the same period last year.

We will soon learn whether any good results followed Fire Prevention Week, which was observed in October. As a general rule, the loss goes down during the week and in the period immediately following, only to rise again soon after. When it comes to fire, the public has a short memory. That shortness costs the nation ten thousand lives and half a billion dollars each twelve months.

In normal times the waste is a disgrace. In these times it is an unmitigated tragedy. The actual destruction of property is the least of the total fire bill—more important by far is the unemployment, loss of business and increased taxes that inevitably follow. Cases are on record where whole communities have seen progress come to an end because of a single great fire—which could easily have been prevented.

THE DIFFERENCE

The railroads of the United States operate every day in the year, on regular schedule.

The New York State Barge Canal, one of the principal railroad competitors, is open seven or eight months of the year and service is contingent on high or low water.

The barge canal cost the taxpayers $286,710,629 up to June 30, 1931. Its average annual cost to the taxpayers has been $10,239,665.

The railroads receive no tax money, and pay their own way. In case of loss, they and their stockholders must shoulder the burden.

The waterway is free to all users, boats moving over it pay no tolls.

During 1931 the railroads paid in taxes to the state of New York the neat sum of $28,000,000.

The commerce moving over the canal is subject to no regulation whatsoever.

The railroads are completely regulated by both the federal and state governments.

Here is the difference between the railroads and the government-subsidized waterways—and the New York canal is used simply as an example of the general condition.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Workmen's compensation is that form of insurance whereby a state seeks to assure medical care, hospital service and wage income to an injured employe while he is incapacitated. In case of death in the course of his employment, it also assures financial support for his dependents.

The bulk of compensation insurance in the United States is handled by private stock companies charging fixed, definite rates. Official records of the various state insurance departments show that those companies have suffered underwriting losses of more than $122,000,000 in workmen's compensation in the last nine years. They now seek permission to increase rates in those states where such matters are regulated by boards, commissions or departments. They say frankly that unless some relief is granted to them they must cease to engage in the business. The National Convention of Insurance Commissioners has recognized this emergency in a resolution calling upon the authorities to permit an increase.

Companies ascribe the growing unfavorable condition to the fact that a vast increase in unemployment, a substantial decrease in wages and the spread of part-time labor has so reduced the premiums, or the money they receive, that it fails by far to counterbalance the amount they must pay out on awards. Premiums are based upon each $100 of payroll, drops in wages cause drops in premiums. At the same time compensation awarded to injured workmen has not been lessened in any respect.

WHAT ADVERTISING IS DOING

Efficient newspaper advertising is still doing the trick of bringing profits to advertisers and perhaps a little bit better in the depression years than at other times. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association in a recent survey found out these interesting facts among others:

Four tobacco manufacturers increased their advertising space recently and three showed gains, the fourth showing a slight loss. An automobile company which increased its newspaper advertising outlay 33 per cent increased its earnings 40 per cent.

An outstanding showing was that made by a manufacturer of electric refrigerators who spent $200,000 in the newspapers and increased the number of dollars taken in by 460 per cent.

If you have a real message to offer in the advertising pages it will "get over." The indications of the last few months have shown that the public is beginning to "loosen up" with its money. Those who realize this in time will make money out of that knowledge.

ALL AMERICA NOW RIDING THE GOAT

The subject is usually associated with more or less unpleasant institution reminiscences but did you know that millions of persons have been "riding the goat" on the railroads and have been enjoying the ride?

Every time you ride in a railroad car upholstered in genuine mohair you are literally "riding the goat" for the mohair is the fleece of the Angora goat, not cloth, moss or any other of the many strange products that some persons erroneously associate with mohair. There are many reasons why this material was chosen and has been so widely used on the railroad and some of them are unusually interesting because it has taken modern scientific methods to reveal them and they are new. For years people have known that mohair must be a good material or the railroads would not use such large quantities of it. Its more durability and fast colors are by no means the only reasons why it is popular.

Here is one important factor that makes genuine mohair so popular for railroad and auto upholstery and seats. The tiny, crest fibers of the goat's hair actually mesh with the clothing of the person in the seat and so help to hold him in a comfortable position and to keep him from slipping off the seat in case of a sudden stop.

At first thought, this does not seem to be so important but it is a vital safety matter, especially in the case of old persons and small children. If you have ever tried to keep a comfortable position in a chair that was too big for you and was covered with the old-fashioned horse hair, for instance, you'll realize how true this is and it is to feel the strong, friendly little fibers of the mohair, holding you in place.

Then, mohair doesn't make the clothing shiny as do some other materials. It also has been some on there and these are important points in the mind of the traveling man especially as he would find his labor bills enormously higher if he had to ride on hard, smooth seats on all his journeys.

Every service man and woman knows how easily real mohair is cleaned with the vacuum cleaner, how easily spots and stains can be removed and how fresh the material looks after it has been given a thorough brushing and cleaning.

Just recently, improved processes of weaving have been developed so that mohair promises to be more popular than ever. There are now more than 2,500,000 Angora goats in this country and the United States is the largest producer of angora fleece. Automobilists as well as railroad travelers are "riding the goat" too for millions of yards of mohair are in use as automobile upholstery. The material is also finding wide employment in airplanes whose cabins are upholstered in durable, sound-absorbing mohair, for beauty, economy and greater comfort.

MOHAIR IS GIVEN 'TUG O' WAR' TEST

Behind the scenes at Stanford Mills, Stanford, Me., the home of mohair velvet or velmo as it is generally known, are strange looking machines and devices of various sorts for testing the fibers before they are woven into upholstery for your furniture and automobile.

One of these is a strength tester. Mohair fibers, the hairs of the Angora goat, are stretched between the two small spools below a big dial, a lever is released and the spools slowly draw apart while a pencil writes on the paper chart a record of the amount of pull being applied to the fibers. When the needle on the big dial has swung far around, the fibers will begin to break and the test is over.

This "tug of war" is applied to the fibers to make sure that no weak threads enter the manufacture of the upholsteries and other fabrics destined for years of hard service on automobile seats, railroad cushions and scores of other uses. Many of these tests are made by upholsterers to apply their own tests so before the materials go to the ultimate user they have passed through several different tests, insuring reliable quality and freedom from misadventure.

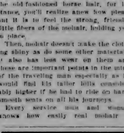
In addition to the pulling test, there are chemical tests to prove that the dyes used in velmo will not run when subjected to perspiration, perfumes or other moisture, there are rubbing tests to prove how long the even fibers of velmo will last and there are other color tests to show that mohair is little likely to fade.

Samples of dyed mohairs are left out in the sun for months and then compared to the new materials to show that the colors have not faded. When more rapid results are needed, powerful lights with rays like those of the sun, apply in a few hours the equivalent to many days of exposure to the sunshine to show that the velmo colors retain their natural hues after long service.

DO YOU KEEP SUFFICIENT WATER IN YOUR AQUARIUM?

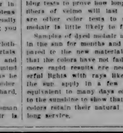
ALL ANIMALS, EVEN FISH, BECOME A PROPER MIXTURE OF AIR AND WATER IN WHICH TO LIVE

AIR 4% —WATER 96%



Fish cannot live in water that does not contain the proper air supply.

AIR 98.4% —WATER 1.6%



Man cannot live in air that does not contain the proper water supply.

HOME AIR IS UNHEALTHFUL IN WINTER WHEN IT DOES NOT CONTAIN SUFFICIENT MOISTURE

MAN LIVES IN AIR AS FISH IN WATER

Holland Institute of Thermology Traces Respiratory Diseases to Dry, Dusty Stagnant Air in Homes.

FISH cannot live in water that does not contain air. Neither can man live in air that is entirely free from water. In fact, all animal life requires for existence a proper mixture of both air and water, declares the Holland Institute of Thermology, of Holland, Mich., whose research engineers have found that even slight changes in the composition of life environments are often detrimental to healthful existence.

The most desirable mixture of these elements for fish life is 4 per cent air and 96 per cent water. When the volume of air is less than 4 per cent, fish are likely to suffocate.

In the home, every pound of air heated to a temperature of 70 degrees should contain 130½ grains of water to be most comfortable and healthful. This means a proportion of 98.4 per cent air and 1.6 per cent water. Yet in many homes during the winter season the amount of air moisture drops to one-third and even less of this amount. Such air is the result of old style methods of heating which provide no means for injecting water vapor into the air to maintain a healthful and comfortable humidity. Colds, influenza, and other respiratory infections are generally the result of insufficient moisture in home air.

The cold air of winter has only a fraction of the capacity of summer air for moisture. The great outdoors is the only source of our indoor air supply, and when winter air is heated to temperatures of 70 degrees or more, its moisture capacity is correspondingly increased. Hence, there is a shortage of water vapor in the air. The most satisfactory means of overcoming this moisture deficiency is by means of heating systems of the vapor air type. These are equipped with humidifiers which evaporate and automatically inject into the home air the water vapor from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily, as required. In modest homes of 5 or 6 rooms, from 6 to 8 gallons of water should be evaporated daily to adequately humidify the home air.

The moisture thus supplied is sufficient to conserve and protect health. Furthermore, outside temperatures of 68 to 72 degrees will be found to be far more comfortable than the high temperatures and super-dry air that characterize homes heated with old style heating systems.

Rev. W. W. Hurd united in marriage last Tuesday at 3:00 o'clock in the Methodist parsonage, Mr. Clayton Hewett of Petoskey, and Miss Viola Zink, also of that city. They will make their home at the family residence just south of that city.

A party composed of Clare and Art Staley, Barney and Sterling Mickerson, of Charlevoix; George Weaver, of Kingsley, and Earl Publow, of Norwood, left here Saturday morning for their hunting camp at Lake Gogebic near Ontanagon. Bert Sitzley expects to join the party next Saturday.

Victor McGuire, who is a student at the Central State Normal at Mt. Pleasant, was a week end guest of his uncle, Dan McGuire, in this city.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

An addition is being built to the M. E. parsonage.

There were 21,000 deer hunters licenses issued in Michigan this fall.

John P. Maloney, the popular clerk of the steamer City of Charlevoix, and Mlle. Elizabeth Barrett of this place, will be married here next Tuesday. After a wedding trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Cleveland, they will make Charlevoix their home. Mr. Maloney went to Beaver Island yesterday to visit relatives.

E. Saltonstall of Cheboygan is in town today.

Deputy Warden Coulter dropped into town yesterday.

The deer hunters are about all returned with the following counts: Chas. Jefferies, 1; L. E. Smith, 1; Ernest Shawley, 3; Oscar Mason, 1; Lee Howland, 3; Frank Chaloupka, 1; Ed. Chaloupka, 2; Nick Shores, 3.

Floyd Hall of the Charlevoix green houses will probably never be a smoker, after the experience he had with tobacco smoke Tuesday afternoon. He had been engaged to smoke the "bugs and things" from the school house plants. With an assistant he went after the vermin at the close of school. With the doors and windows closed they started a smudge of tobacco smoke that would have done credit to the S.S.S. when Pete Campbell is present. Hair became dizzy and started for the door, but fell in a heap before he reached it. He was asphixiated with tobacco smoke and was unconscious for four hours. He was really in a precarious condition so the doctors say. As to whether the bugs survived the trouble we have not yet been informed, but presume there was disaster in bugdom.

The physicians of Charlevoix county met at the Hotel Bartlett last Friday and organized the Charlevoix county Medical Association. Following are the officers: Pres., Dr. L. M. Kanagy, Charlevoix; Vice Pres., Dr. Blume, Boyne City; Secretary, Dr. Lamsway, Boyne Falls; Treasurer, Dr. Shaver, Boyne City; Delegate, Dr. Armstrong, Charlevoix; Directors, Drs. Thexton and Bartlett, Charlevoix; Dr. Howe, Boyne City.

Forty Years Ago

The hunters are out: Bert Mason and a party left last week, and on Friday Geo. Burns, Capt. Partridge were joined by Samuel B. Chase, lately elected Recorder of Cook Co., Illinois, and a Chicago friend for a two weeks' trip north.

The Chicago Club House is already connected with the city water works. Warden Dougherty is an old plumber, and did the work himself.

Nick Shores in company with Mr. Chase and friend, Mr Shillow, left for Presque Isle, on Saturday, and now the deer will have to suffer.

Egbert Carpenter is selecting plans for a new residence to be built next season.

Several of the young ladies pring into Prof. Bize's Ladies' Band, have already sent for their instruments.

The Charlevoix Shakespearian Club meets Monday evening at the Bridge Street House parlors. The reading will be the "Court Scene" in the "Merchant of Venice."

Fred W. Mayne and Miss Lettie Ainslie, both of this place, were married at the residence of the bride's parents on Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Daniels officiating.

Egbert Carpenter has spent several days this week about Intermediate Lake after deer, but returned with a long face and no deer. He goes again next week in company with the editor of this paper. Then look out for deer.

Our Beaver Island correspondent sends us the following list of county officials elected for Manitou county, at the recent election: Sheriff, Oliver O'Donnell; Clerk and Register, John Donlevy; Treasurer Neill Gallagher; Prosecuting Attorney, A. J. Southam; (Harbor Springs) Surveyor, Fred Butts.

Rev. Mr. Cole will preach at the same place at the usual morning hour.

Sixty Years Ago

The first snow of the season fell on Thursday to the depth of one inch.

A teacher has been engaged for the winter term of the Charlevoix School.

A beet weighing seven and three quarters pounds was brought to our office by Hon. John S. Dixon, lately.

The Grand Rapids Eagle boasts of a turnip weighing twelve and a half pounds. One recently presented to us weighs twenty.

That Plug Hat which A. Buttars wears is one of the many good results of the late election. We think we have one somewhere; also one pair of No. 1 calf-skin boots. New York went 50,000 for Grant.

The Presbyterian Society of this place have secured the clerical services of Rev. Geo. W. Wood, late of An Sauble, who arrived lately with his family and household effects. He will preach at the school house tomorrow at 7 p. m.

FAMOUS PILOT TO TOUR U. S. AT 230 MILE AN HOUR AVERAGE SPEED

"World's fastest and safest transport plane" with which Major James H. Doolittle (inset) will set new inter-city records in 9,000-mile flight.

CHICAGO.—A nation-wide demonstration of commercial aviation of the future, when American business and professional men can travel at will at home, have lunch and transact important duties in cities 1,000 miles away and be back with their families for dinner, will be staged next week with Major James H. Doolittle, world-famed flyer, playing the leading role.

Doolittle will take off from the Municipal Airport here November 23, on a 9,000-mile flight along the principal airways reaching from Chicago to the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts in "Shellighting," a new ship of his own design which he claims is "the fastest and safest transport plane in the world," and with which he plans to maintain an average speed of 230 miles an hour between stops throughout his tour.

His speed-making flight will be the longest ever attempted for the purpose of establishing new intercity speed records with a transport plane carrying passengers. Four persons will accompany him. His speed will be just double that of the present average of planes operated by American commercial air lines. His ship, which is the last word in airplane design and equipment, is capable of a speed of more than 245 miles an hour.

The plane is equipped with a 700 horsepower Wright-Cyclone engine of advanced design, an improved N. A. C. A. radial engine cowling, a romatic variable pitch propeller and retractible landing gear. It is also equipped with a two-way radio, latest improved flight instruments, and a mechanism in the wings which prevents the forming of ice, enabling the pilot to maintain predetermined schedules in any kind of weather without endangering his life or those of his passengers.

Some of the plane's equipment was developed or improved by the famed pilot himself.

While Doolittle has established many record records for land planes, he is universally recognized for his outstanding accomplishments in the field of aeronautical engineering, as well as scientific research and development of airplanes and aviation instruments and fuels. As manager of the aviation department of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, St. Louis, he devotes practically all of his time to such endeavors.

Doolittle plans first to make a circuitous flight throughout the East stopping at Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto, Ont., Boston, New York City, Washington, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. He will then proceed southward, stopping at Tulsa, Okla., Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta and Nashville after which he may head for the Pacific coast, landing at Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City and San Francisco. Returning to Chicago on the last leg of his flight, he probably will stop at Los Angeles, Santa Fe N. M. and Kansas City. He expects to make his all-daylight tour of the United States in the phenomenal time of six days.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

It's easy to be forgotten
If you have no telephone

When friends plan parties and other good times, often "on the spur of the moment", they usually turn to the telephone to invite the "crowd". For telephoning is the easiest and quickest way. As a result, those without telephones miss many good times.

A telephone costs surprisingly little . . . only a few cents a day. It helps in finding employment. It is a social and business aid. And it is PRICELESS PROTECTION in EMERGENCIES, enabling you to summon doctor, firemen, or police instantly, day or night.

Just one telephone call in an emergency may be worth more than the cost of the service for a lifetime.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Our Faculty

Miss Belding, teacher of the first grade, was born at Norwood, but lived in many different places in the state, and has come back to Charlevoix to teach. Her school days were spent in Charlevoix where she graduated from C. H. S. and from Charlevoix County Normal. She taught two years in a rural school, which was followed by a course in Elementary work at Mt. Pleasant Teacher's College where she obtained her life certificate. Miss Belding next taught at Owosso where she remained three years. This is her second year at Charlevoix.

For some time Miss Belding has been making a study of literary work and the writing of compositions. She states her hobby as "selection and composition of children's literature. The reporter also learned that Miss Belding is very interested in nursery schools which detect talents in children and then develop these talents. This natural interest in the proper direction of tiny minds makes Miss Belding a very enthusiastic teacher and much liked by her small charges.

Mr. Weisenburger

While Mr. Weisenburger cut letters out of red flannel cloth he related his passed experiences. His high-school days during which he was active in football were spent at Grand Rapids; his college days at Kalamazoo, Michigan and Munsing, Indiana, during which time he prepared for his work in manual arts. Mr. Weisenburger has spent six years teaching manual arts at Byron, Woodland, Stockbridge and Charlevoix, Michigan. Of course his hobby is handicraft work at which he proves to be a real artist. Aside from merely teaching the boys the mechanics of manual arts he has them work on things that prove useful to the school such as making the entrance to the book store; also he imparts to them a real interest in the home, to improve its convenience and beauty. Outside of school Mr. Weisenberger finds time to sing in the Congregational Church Choir.

Miss Dittmer

Miss Dittmer tried to escape the reporter but fortunately was caught and was prevailed upon to talk of some of her experiences. Her college work was done at Mt. Pleasant where she took up a later elementary course and obtained her life certificate. This was followed by her teaching at Cedar Springs for two years and then at various schools around Ludington for three years. This is her third year at Charlevoix where she is very interested in the 5th grade students.

Miss Dittmer states her hobby as dancing. Last summer she spent the greater part of her vacation traveling through the western part of the United States across the northern route and back by the southern route. She visited Yellowstone Park, Glacier National Park, Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Chicago and Detroit. She enjoyed the trip very much and is interested in the different places visited.

Personals

Henry Newberg is back in school again after having come in for two weeks.

The Junior Class will make the final selection of their class rings on Thursday.

The Girl Scouts held a school dance Friday night at the Gym to make money so that they can attend the conference at Muskegon, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston and Mrs. Howe are to be chaperones at the dance. Mrs. Livingston, Mrs. Howe and Miss Hannah Bennett are also chaperoning Girl Scouts to Muskegon.

Miss Lois Hough, Home Economics teacher, attended the Home Economics Conference at Michigan State College, East Lansing, Saturday, November 19. The meeting was presided over by Miss Ruth Ferguson, State Supervisor of Vocational Home Economics. Speeches concerning the teaching of Home Economics and the substituting of such projects were discussed. Miss Koch reports it was a very valuable meeting.

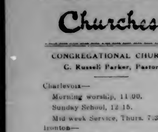
TUBERCULOSIS THE THIEF

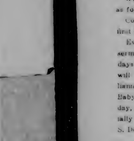


Tuberculosis causing the death of Michigan Tuberculosis Association with funds to be realized from the sale of Christmas seals. The opening drive starts on Armistice Day. Headquarters of the division of Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be in charge of the campaign in Charlevoix county.

CAMPAIGNS FOR PENNY SEALS

Mrs. Wilbur M. Brucker, wife of the Governor, is a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated anti-tuberculosis societies. Realizing that the future of the Commonwealth depends upon the health of its children, she is devoting much time to the campaign to eliminate tuberculosis in Michigan. The Christmas Seal campaign, which opens on Armistice Day, is sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated anti-tuberculosis societies. The proceeds of the sale of Christmas seals from now until Christmas will be used to finance the fight against tuberculosis in Michigan.

Saving Young Lives



AIMING at the prevention of the hundreds of deaths from tuberculosis each year, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association is launching a statewide Christmas seal campaign, one of the most significant devices of modern science, the X-ray, being used to discover early tuberculosis in children.

The Christmas seal, or tuberculosis stamp, put on important first-class mail, is the means by which the Association finances its campaign against tuberculosis. Through the sale of the seals, which will go on sale from Thanksgiving Day to Christmas in all parts of the state, the association hopes to raise a sufficient sum to permit the finding of child hood cases of tuberculosis which formerly turned into the serious, adult form of the disease before they were discovered. The test means that a child under three can be used to remain in ignorance of the infection which he carries until it develops into active disease. He can avoid the sickness and death suffered in the past by thousands of Michigan boys and girls, young fathers and mothers.

Funds raised in this 1931 sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals in Michigan will be used to bring this life saving program during 1932 into as many Michigan communities as possible.

JOSY KRYL WHITE HERE WITH BAND SUNDAY

Josy Kryl White inherited her exceptional talent from her distinguished father Bohumir Kryl whose career as cornetist and bandmaster is known throughout the United States and Europe.

Josy commenced playing the violin at the age of four and played the Mendelssohn Concerto three years later in public with striking success. During the war Josy Kryl while studying with the world famous violinist Eugene Ysaye nearly lost his life in her escape from Belgium. German munitors bombed her train killing twelve passengers in her car, seriously wounding Miss Kryl. Upon her return to the United States she studied under the late Leopold Auer and Ottokar Sevcik. In 1918 she resumed her study with Ysaye who was appointed conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Devotion to her art with its heavy demands has not prevented Mrs. White from playing the role of a devoted wife and loving mother to three beautiful children whose musical education under the guidance of their distinguished parents, gives great promise in years to come. Miss Kryl toured the United States many times in recitals and with Symphony orchestras as a child prodigy, and before the palace of Belgium while touring Europe. She will appear here at the High School Gymnasium on Sunday afternoon, November 20, 1932, as one of the soloists with Bohumir Kryl and his famous organization.

LETA MAY well known Coloratura Soprano soloist with Bohumir Kryl and his band will be present at this engagement.

KRYL BEGAN CAREER PLAYING WITH CIRCUS AT AGE OF ELEVEN

Critics throughout the world are quite unanimous in their statements that Bohumir Kryl is the greatest cornetist of the present day, and the soloriest. "The greatest cornetist in the world" is not one of the past year only but one which he has rightfully possessed for a score of years. An outstanding feature of the mastery of this instrument is his ability to play two full octaves below any other cornetist, thus doing what has always been considered impossible.

The career of this celebrated bandmaster reads like a chapter from almost unbelievable fiction. Born in Prague, Bohemia, the son of a sculptor, ran away from home when he was eleven years old and joined a circus then traveling Europe, acting as an acrobat during the shows and playing his horn in the parade. For two years he ravorted through the air on the trapeze, tumbling and jumping over elephants, and other various antics of the circus tent. But a fateful day arrived when in jumping he met with an accident and walked over two hundred miles to his home town, mcHetually spitting forever the circus life.

Less than six months after the circus accident, Kryl was on his way to America, paying for his passage by playing the violin. Some ten years later Sousa heard of a young cornetist who was working as a scenic or at Crawfordsville, Indiana, engaged in doing a likeness of Gen Lew Wallace, and hearing him play persuaded him to lay down the chisel become cornet soloist with the Sousa Band. A few years under Sousa and other noted bandmasters on the day and young Kryl was ready to take his place with his symphonic band in the halls of music throughout America. Engagements were held for weeks at a time in Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Cincinnati, as well as the yearly tours when he toured and reversed the continent playing to packed houses and was crowned as the "picturesque bandmaster," and spoken of frequently as that cornetist with the golden tone."

In all of his band work, Kryl plays and features symphonic music. Thousands of listeners have likened his concerts to great pipe organs, so perfect is the musicianship of the group, and so perfect his control over the players.

In the personal make-up of the man, there is found the rare grace which accompanies every movement on the stage; there is the unforgettable hand crowned with tawny yellow hair, and the blue eyes which flash fire or twinkle and which makes one think of sun playing on falling rain, especially when his band does something that calls forth unusual approval, or when he is recounting his days back in Bohemia with the circus.

Kryl and his famous band will be heard at the H. S. Gymnasium Sunday afternoon, 3 o'clock, Nov. 20. An opportunity no one can afford to miss. Admission 50 and 25 cents. Never before and perhaps never again will Charlevoix be visited by such a world famous musical.

CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH WEEK OF NOVEMBER 13TH

The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the First Congregational Church which took place during the week of November 13th will long be remembered by those who participated in the several services.

On Sunday, the 13th, the pastor, Rev. G. R. Parker, preached the Anniversary Sermon on the subject "Over Fifty Years" using the text "Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord: look unto the rock whence ye are hewn and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged. Isa. 51:1.

Special musical numbers rendered on the occasion under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Steiter were "Thou Crownest the Year"—Maker, by the Adult Choir and "Just for today"—Ferris, by a Woman's Chorus. Mrs. A. A. Swinton played the Offertory. The Ironton Church did not assemble for morning worship in their own meeting house and attended this anniversary service in large numbers.

On Thursday evening, the seventieth, a pre-Thanksgiving dinner, southern style, was served by the Mary Brewster Circle in the church dining room to over two hundred members and friends.

At eight o'clock the same evening there was an anniversary program in the church auditorium, the chief feature of which was a Historical Sketch prepared and read by Mrs. Margaret Harsha who has been clerk of the church and custodian of its records for 22 consecutive years.

Rev. G. Willis Parker, the pastor presided. Letters were read from Rev. Chas. Trueblood of Alpena, Rev. W. W. Gadd and Mr. JohnTuill of Vanderbilt, Rev. C. E. Taggert of Sand City, Rev. Jay Bigsby of Lebanon, Mo., and Mrs. Frederick W. Sass, (in Florida) all extending good wishes and expressing regret that they could not be present.

Dr. B. G. Mattson and wife of Manistee came up for the occasion and there were also some present from Atwood, Ironton, Barnard and other neighboring communities as well as other local churches.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bridge, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, Mrs. Ira A. Adams and others responded to requests for reminiscences.

The Atwood Reform Church male quartette with Mrs. Knopman at the piano furnished several musical numbers which were very much enjoyed.
